DDA sells property to the low bidder

$101,000 bid bypassed to accept bid of $62,500

By L. Scott Swanson

At a Dec. 28 special meeting the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) sold the former Kusina Motors building for $62,500 despite having another bid which offered to buy the building for $101,000.

The DDA had purchased the building in conjunction with a piece of property which is being converted into a public parking lot between Antrim and Mason Streets. The total cost of the purchase ended up being about $390,000.

The building is not needed for the parking lot so the DDA sought bids from prospective purchasers. In seeking bids, the DDA stipulated that bids not only include a purchase price, but also explain what the bidder proposed to do with the property.

Two bids were opened Dec. 13. CJK Properties, which recently renovated the Beacon Center (former Market Mall) complex, bid $101,000 and proposed to convert the building into small side-street retail spaces. Charlevoix Cinema Inc., which owns the local theater, bid $62,500 and proposed to move the theater from its present location and convert the Kusina Building into a multi-screen theater.

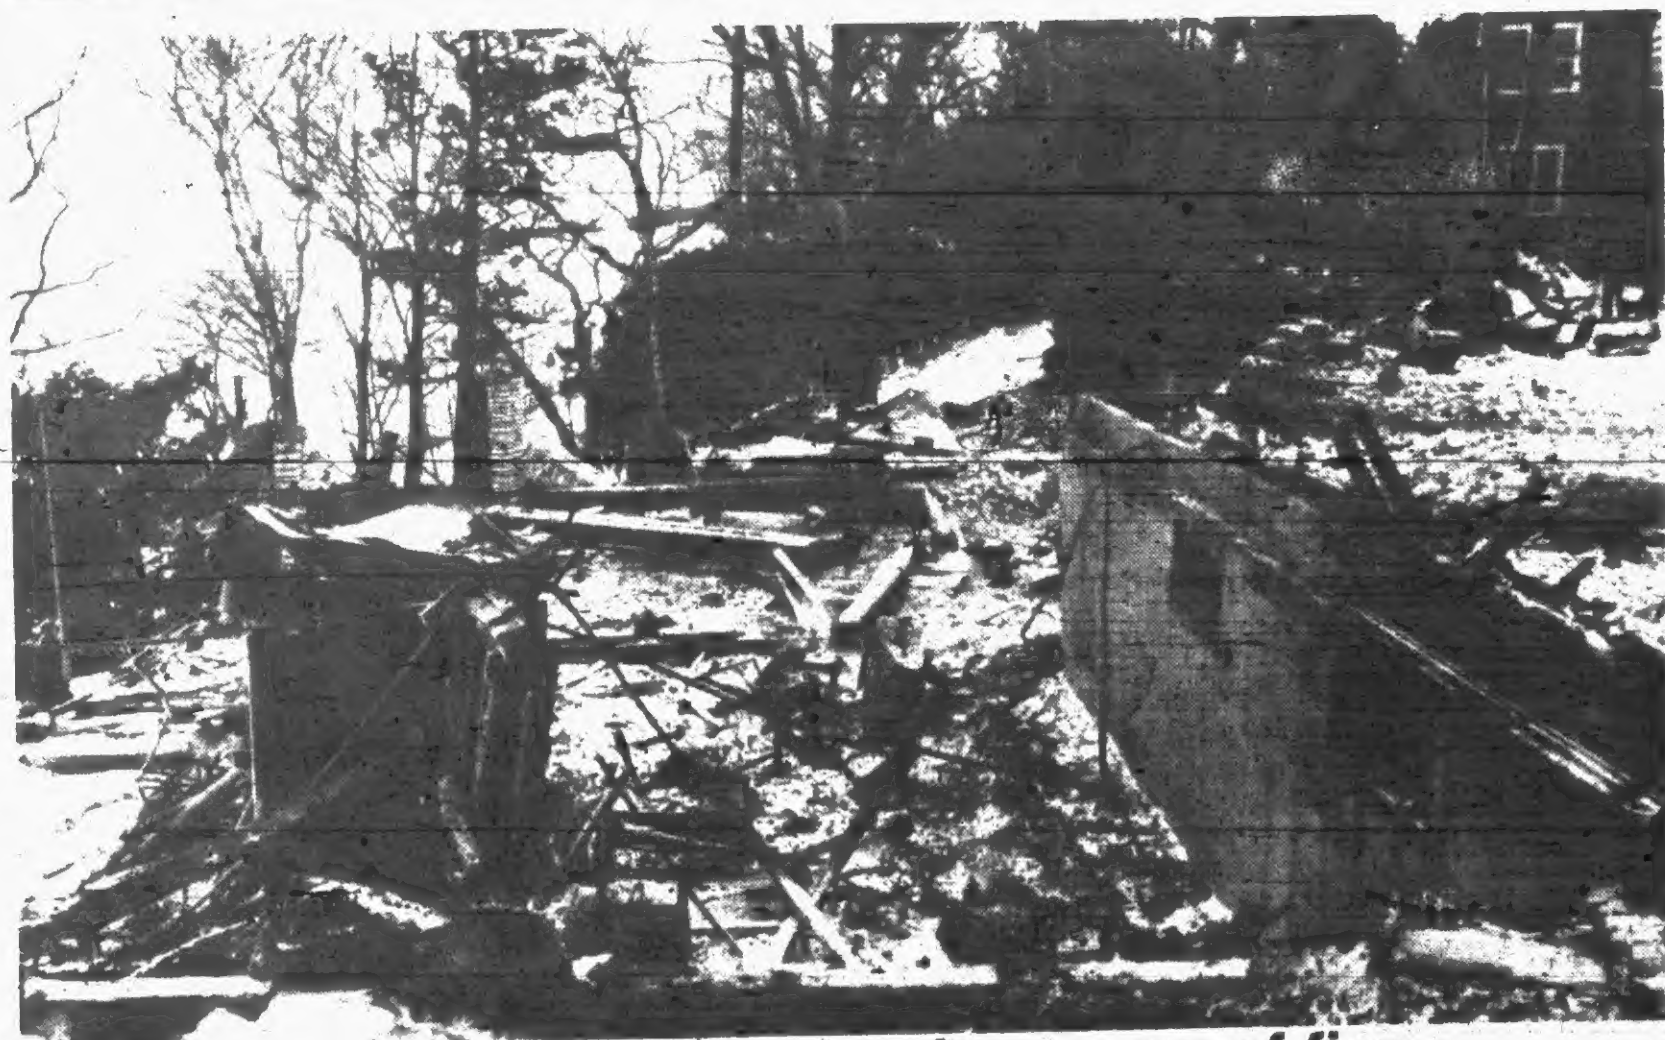

DDA members discussed the bids at their Dec. 15 meeting, but took no action. The DDA is purchasing the building and property under a land contract. Beyond that, due to soil contamination the city went through a court process referred to as a "friendly condemnation" in order to reduce the city's liability exposure in the future for contamination problems at the site. Consequently, before the DDA could sell the building they had to get the holder of the land contract, Bernice Kusina, to agree to the sale and they had to get the Circuit Court to sign off on the agreement.

Between the Dec. 15 and Dec. 28 meetings the DDA made the necessary arrangements with Kusina and the court. However, Kusina demanded additional compensation of $5,000 for agreeing to allow the sale.

At the Dec. 28 meeting the DDA agreed to the additional $5,000 in compensation. However DDA Chairman Hugh Mason explained that no money will actually change hands. Between the time the DDA and Kusina agreed on a price for the building and property in 1992 and the time the city took possession in 1993 the building condition deteriorated. The DDA decided to withhold $4,000 plus another $1,000 for legal fees. The addition of $5,000 for allowing the sale will simply negate that $5,000.

At the Dec. 15 meeting, city planner Gerry Harsch recommended that in evaluating the two bids the DDA "look beyond just the dollars you would recapture." He advised DDA members to consider the impact of the proposed projects and said that $40,000 isn't that much money relative to the entire DDA spending picture.

At the Dec. 28 meeting DDA members reviewed a projected cash flow study which was based on estimated appraisal figures procured by Harsch and compiled by city treasurer Rick Brandt. The study equated the Kusina Building to $100,000 the city has available to invest and the two bids as investment options. The return on the investment would be property tax dollars received by the city in the next 20 years. According to the cash flow study the return on the CJK bid would be $195,984 while the return on the Charlevoix Cinema bid would be $192,233 - a difference of two percent.

Harsch noted that at 20 years out the value to the community is very similar. Mason said, "That obviously doesn't give us enough information to lead us one way or the other."

DDA member Bill Haggard noted that the CJK bid called for the city to give up at least one and perhaps two parking spaces in the proposed lot. He asked if the city would be compensated for that loss or if that was calculated into the bid. Attorney Harry Golski, speaking on behalf of CJK, said that was calculated into the bid. At the Dec. 15 meeting, city manager Mike Wiesner had estimated the value of the parking spaces to be about $7,600 apiece.

DDA member Jeanine Wallace was unable to attend the Dec. 28 special meeting, but sent a memorandum. In the memo, she wrote, "I am very sorry that I am unable to attend tonight's meeting. I wish to express my great concern regarding the impact of the loss of the theater on the downtown."

"As a DDA, we should be concerned about our downtown. Every business person on Bridge Street, that I spoke with, feels the theater is a must. The theater is a destination for people. While they wait for a movie, they browse in the shops or eat in the restaurants downtown."

"If I were able, I would cast a vote to accept the lower bid from Mr. Supernaw (i.e. Charlevoix Cinema Inc.) because this will greatly impact the future of our downtown. We must think of the long range."

A motion to accept the Kusina bid of $62,500 passed by a vote of 5-0. Mary Feindt, Bill Haggard, Dave Novotny, Bob Lieberman and Jeff Porter voted in favor. Dan Barron abstained from discussion and voting because his business partner, Golski, represented one of the bidders.

The motion stipulated that the theater complex be constructed on the property within one year.

Investigators find arson to be the cause of Michigan Avenue fire

Arson caused a fire which destroyed a Michigan Avenue home at 2:30 a.m. Monday Dec. 27 according to Charlevoix Fire Department and insurance company investigators. According to a fire department news release evidence collected at the scene indicates the fire started in the utility room area of the house, which was unoccupied at the time.

Fire investigators sifted through the debris and collected evidence which has been forwarded to the State Police crime lab.

The home was located at 419 Michigan Avenue and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Poverman of New York. By the time the fire was noticed and reported to the fire department the building was beyond being saved. As city fire chief Doug Carver described it, when the fire department arrived the roof was in the basement. Although firemen were unable to save the home at 419 Michigan Avenue, they were able to keep the fire from spreading to other homes on the street. High winds coming off Lake Michigan blew embers from the fire into yards more than a block away.

Anyone with information which may help investigators is asked to contact the Charlevoix Fire Department at 547-3279. The Michigan Arson Prevention Committee offers rewards of up to $5,000 for information leading to the conviction of arsonists.

Correction

A story which ran in the Dec. 29 Courier incorrectly stated that a fire on Michigan Avenue occurred at approximately 2:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 28. The fire was discovered at approximately 2:30 a.m., Monday, Dec. 27.

1994 bridge work begins

January not only ushered in the new year, but also another round of bridge work. Construction crews began rerouting traffic Monday. Last year the west side of the bridge was repaired. This year workmen will be repairing the bridge's east side. On the bright side, this year's work will only reduce traffic to two lanes rather than one lane. Work will continue throughout the winter months.

DDA hires Bob Davis to lobby to retain Coast Guard ship

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is hiring former congressman Bob Davis to lobby political and U.S. Coast Guard officials to continue to have a Coast Guard ship stationed in Charlevoix. According to terms of the agreement the DDA will pay Davis $24,000 to act as a consultant during the next 15 months.

Given budgetary cuts, the Coast Guard is going to be reducing the number of ships in its Great Lakes fleet in coming years. The Acacia is a 180-foot buoy tender currently stationed in Charlevoix. The Acacia and other 180-foot buoy tenders are old and are being phased out. They will be replaced by a lesser number of 225-foot ships.

Mayor Dave Novotny, who as mayor also serves on the DDA, explained that he and other city officials have been in touch with state, federal and Coast Guard officials. Novotny said the way things presently look there will be three ships and five cities fighting over them. The cities involved are Duluth, Minnesota, Cheboygan, Port Huron, Grand Haven and Charlevoix.

As DDA member Dan Barron put it, "The problem is there's not going to be enough ships to go around."

Novotny said that the way things look, one ship is going to Duluth and another to Cheboygan leaving only one for either Charlevoix, Port Huron or Grand Haven.

Before being stationed in Charlevoix, the Acacia was stationed in Grand Haven. After the Mesquite, which was stationed in Charlevoix, sunk in Lake Superior the Acacia was reassigned to Charlevoix. Davis who was in congress at the time and on the Maritime Committee was instrumental in the reassignment.

Davis did not seek re-election in 1993. Northern Michigan is now represented by Bart Stupak, D-Munising. Novotny said city officials have talked with an aide to Stupak in the hope that Stupak and Davis will work together on the ship issue.

The Acacia has a crew of 52 and an annual payroll of approximately $1 million. The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce board has made retention of a Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix one of its highest priorities for 1994.

DDA decision ranks among worst in recent years

At a Dec. 28 special meeting, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) made a decision which not only cost local taxpayers thousands of dollars, but in terms of good governmental policy is one of the worst decisions made by a city public body in recent years. The decision amounts to governmental orchestration of downtown business and opens doors for many unhealthy influences which should not be allowed to play a role in city government.

Earlier this year the DDA solicited bids in order to sell the former Kusina Motors building on Antrim Street. (The DDA had purchased the building in conjunction with other property which is going to be converted to a parking lot.) The DDA received two bids for the property - one bidder offered to buy the building for $101,000 and the other bidder offered $62,500. Curiously, the DDA accepted the bid for $62,500. (See related story on page 1.)

Prior to accepting the low bid, DDA members engaged in a cursory discussion in an attempt to make a case for what appeared to be a predetermined decision. The bidder who bid $101,000 proposed to build side-street retail space. The bidder who bid $62,500 proposed to move the local theater from Bridge Street and construct a multi-screen theater on Antrim Street. Assuming the role of all-knowing governmental economic planning agency the DDA decided they liked the theater proposal better than the retail proposal and accepted the low bid.

Aside from costing local property taxpayers somewhere between $13,500 and $38,500 dollars, the DDA decision has several other undesirable ramifications.

The purpose of the DDA at its inception approximately 10 years ago was to make Charlevoix's downtown business district environment economically attractive for commerce. To that end the DDA has funded and overseen sidewalk improvements, the development of Hoffmann Park and has ordered new street lights. There are also plans for improving Veterans Park, East Park and Bridge Park. Whether or not you agree with the cost or certain facets of those projects, at least those projects fall within the realm of improving the general downtown business environment. The DDA decision to accept a low bid because they liked one business proposal better than another goes well beyond that.

In deciding that they are capable of arbitrarily picking winners and losers among downtown businesses, DDA members ignore the principles of a free market economy. If Charlevoix's downtown business district is allowed to function according to free market principles, thousands of customers will pick the business winners and losers through their purchasing decisions. Merchants will thrive or fail based on how they serve those customers.

What the DDA decision amounted to was a small, appointed (not elected), governmental body circumventing the free market. DDA members decided that rather than allow consumers and individual businesses to make choices, they would make the choice for them.

In taking the lower bid simply because they liked one business proposal better than another the DDA made an extremely poor policy decision. It tells people doing business with the city that decisions made by the DDA are not being made simply on objective criteria, but are being based on more nebulous and undefined factors such as personal preference. Personal preferences can be swayed by a lot of different factors, many of which should play no role in governmental decisions.

The DDA decision to act as an economic management agency was a very poor one. In its wake DDA members should take a second look at how they define their role in city government. The City of Charlevoix has a Planning Commission; a Zoning Board of Appeals and a City Council to guide community growth. Charlevoix does not have a Business Orchestration Commission and it doesn't need one. The DDA should neither usurp planning, zoning or council authority nor should it attempt to interfere with the free market. In the past the DDA has successfully completed projects which enhance the general environment of the downtown business district. DDA members should remain focused on those types of things and resist the temptation to use tax dollars to force their vision of what businesses should be located downtown upon consumers and business people who may have differing needs and views.

1993: looking back at a busy year in Charlevoix

Why would you burn someone's home?

Editor,

To the person or persons who burned down my house:

On December 27, 1993, Doug Carver, your Fire Chief, called us around 10 in the morning, his voice gentle with compassion, to tell us that our house on Michigan Avenue had burned to the ground, completely, nothing left. He was professional in his delivery of information, but we could hear the disbelief in his voice, the sadness, the understanding of our loss. He was great.

We have heard from our sympathetic insurance agent, fire inspectors from the Charlevoix Fire Department, from the insurance company, and from a fire specialist. We are grateful for their concern and expertise. Other local friends have been overwhelmingly generous in their offers of aid, of places to stay. We are so very grateful.

But you who broke into our house destroyed a dwelling that we loved, photographs of past summers of people now dead, artifacts meaningful to us, countless Petoskey stones triumphantly carried from the beach, toys and furniture from four generations of our family, towels and linens from six generations. Those are not replaceable. Everything's gone.

How could you do such an awful, thoughtless, hateful thing?

The great-grandparents who originally found Charlevoix and its climate were from pre-air-conditioned New Orleans, a very long and arduous journey. Their children bought our property in the late '20s after several years of renting cottages. We have lived there ever since.

We have supported Charlevoix in all its parts, the hospital, the schools, the very fabric of your town and local life. We have depended on Charlevoix to guard our house, graciously and efficiently done by the Charlevoix Police, and also the Fire Departments of the City and Township, to keep our house intact. We participated in the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful campaigns, in the North Point Conservancy, in the annual United Way Campaigns. We gave back to the community in many ways.

What brought us back every summer, except for those war years in the '40s when we couldn't travel from Boston, was the superbly clear air, the fantastic sunsets, the warmth of our relationships with people, local and from all over the country.

To us this was the perfect house in the perfect place. We looked forward to walking in the door every summer to see that perfect view of Lake Michigan and maybe a sunset, to finding everything where it had always been. Nothing was supposed to change. It was perfect.

My grandparents loved it. My parents loved it. I loved it. My husband, more lately come to it, loved it. Our children thrived in it. Our grandchildren waited impatiently, September to July to be in Charlevoix, in that house.

How could you do this? Why?

Susan Poverman

Following is a brief look back at some of the events which took place in Charlevoix during 1993.

January

*Bruce Livingston was appointed to replace third ward city council representative Pat Gaskin when Gaskin moved to a home outside of the city limits.

*County commissioners rescinded a pay raise for new prosecutor Richard May following complaints that some commissioners had discussed the raise with May prior to the election.

*The state and city worked on determining the extent of groundwater contamination at the city street department site on Stover Road.

*Vandals shot out windows at the Ferry Beach pavilion. Four juveniles were subsequently arrested.

*County commissioners rescinded tax funded health care benefits for the spouses of former commissioners, but left in place tax funded health care benefits for former commissioners as well as present

Donald Clark Coulter

Donald Clark Coulter, 64, a Traverse City attorney, died Dec. 25 at Munson Medical Center. Mr. Coulter's parents were from Charlevoix and at one time he served on the board of a local bank.

A native of Birmingham, he had lived in Traverse City since 1956.

A district commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, he had worked with the Boy Scouts for 20 years. He had served as a troop leader and Scout master for Troop 27. He also served on the Salvation Army Board of Directors and volunteered his services for the Grand Traverse Area Hospice.

He was a member of the Kiwanis Club for 35 years and the Presbyterian Church.

He was an avid sailor for more than 60 years and in the past six years had taken up gardening. He enjoyed reading, especially about history. He also enjoyed playing the piano.

He paid meticulous attention to details. He especially enjoyed being available for his family, both emotionally and physically, always there when they needed him.

Mr. Coulter attended the University of Michigan both as an undergraduate and graduate student. He graduated in 1954 with a Juris Doctorate degree from the U of M Law School.

He served two years with the U.S. Army in the counter intelligence corps during the Korean War.

The son of Clark and Dorothy I. (Dunlap) Coulter, he was born May 31, 1929, in Birmingham. On July 1, 1961, in Buffalo, N.Y., he married Susan B. Sanderson, who survives.

Also surviving are four children and their spouses, Edward Sanderson Coulter and Barbara of Chillicothe, Ohio, Jennifer Coulter Reame and Timothy of Cadillac, Jonathon D. Coulter and Jamie Castillo of Puebla, Mexico, and two grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents; one sister, Constance D. English, and one brother, James D. Coulter.

Services took place Tuesday, Dec. 28 in the Presbyterian Church, Traverse City. Dr. Homer Nye officiating.

Arrangements were handled by the Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home of Traverse City. Memorials may be directed to the Salvation Army or the Boy Scouts.

Irene Hartsell

Irene Hartsell, 92, of Charlevoix and formerly of Saginaw, died Jan. 1, 1994, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be held 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 6, at Roselawn Memorial Gardens in Saginaw. The Rev. Philip Schairbaum will officiate.

Irene Burkholder was born Oct. 25, 1901, in Toledo, Ohio. She married Everett J. Hartsell on July 3, 1925, and he survives.

Mrs. Hartsell moved to Saginaw in 1926. She taught school in Harbor Beach, Detroit and Saginaw for several years.

She was a member of the First Congregational Church in Saginaw, the Bushnell Congregational Church in Detroit, and the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Hartsell was former president of the American Association of University Women, and a member of the Kings Daughter.

Survivors include her husband, Everett; two daughters, Mary Hartsell Roberts of Saginaw, and Jane Ann Bahr and her husband, Dr. Edward R. Bahr, of Cleveland, Miss.; one son, James Everett Hartsell of Detroit; six grandsons, Michael Hartsell and his wife, Pat, Christopher Hartsell and his wife, Robin, Jeffrey Hartsell and his wife, Cecile, Steven Hartsell, and David and Brian Bahr; one granddaughter, Diana Roberts; four great-grandchildren, Megan and Daniel Roberts and Jonathon and Shari Hartsell. Mrs. Hartsell was preceded in death by two brothers, two sisters, and a grandson, Richard Edmond Roberts Jr.

Arrangements were handled by the Deisler Funeral Home, 2233 Hemmett, Saginaw.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

It was shortly after Christmas. I was in a downtown fast food restaurant waiting to place an order. A family with three young children was in line behind me. Never having been known as a bashful fellow, I said hello to the kids and asked them what they got for Christmas. They looked at me a little sheepishly and said, "We don't celebrate Christmas. We're Jewish."

They were a bit surprised when I repeated Happy Chanukah and asked if they had burned a Menorah in their home. At that point, the mother got hooked on what was transpiring between us and joined the conversation. She was intrigued that a Christian minister would know something about her faith's traditions and would take the time to encourage her children. I reminded her that without the heritage that Judaism gave us, Christianity would be awfully empty. Then I looked at the children and said that they should never apologize for who they are. If they really believed, they should be proud.

It was a thoroughly enjoyable and unexpected conversation. One that left me with all kinds of emotions. The thought that kept ringing in my heart was that there are a lot of Christians who are apologetic about what they believe as well. There are a lot of Christians who would not even have said as much as those young children did had some asked them about their faith.

Why? If we believe in God the Father Almighty and Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord, we have nothing to be shy about and an awful lot to share. If we truly understand the place and the potential the Holy Spirit holds for every trusting soul, we have more reasons to be confident than we do to be bashful. Yes, the Christmas trees are fast coming down and the holidays are quickly becoming pleasant memories but God has not packed up and gone on hiatus until next December.

If your faith has the meaning and the presence it was intended to have, then its effects and its message should be sounding a stronger note than ever as we enter into this new year. God still offers forgiveness and new life to any seeking soul. God still brings a form of healing that even the wisest of doctors acknowledges as being unique in medicine. God still desires to step in and offer guidance or reassurance in even the most difficult times you can imagine.

If someone asked you about your faith, can you think of a few things to say? God is good all the time. Those who have experienced that goodness and faithfulness need to speak up and share the grace that makes living so precious.

FAMILY

Sanford & Agatha Matchett (1944)

Sanford and Agatha Matchett of Charlevoix will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary on January 15, 1994.

Fifty years ago Agatha Ranney of East Jordan and Sanford Matchett of Charlevoix were married at the bride's home. Attending at the wedding were Bea (Ranney) Boss, sister of the bride, and Gerald Boss. The ceremony was conducted by the late Rev. Howard Moore, minister of the Barnard Methodist Church.

For the last 50 years, the couple worked the family farm in the Barnard area south of Charlevoix where Sandy was born and raised. They operated a turkey farm until 1970 and a sheep farm until 1984 then son Tim took over farm operations.

The couple has three children and eight grandchildren: son, Melvin, wife Judy, and children Marie, Brian and Julie of Elk Rapids; daughter Joyce, husband Steve, and children Tasha and Tenille of Belding; and son Tim, wife Linda and children Isaac, Mia, and Noah of Charlevoix. The couple are active members of the United Methodist Church of Barnard.

In lieu of a party, the children are asking friends and family to honor the couple with cards and congratulations sent to: Sanford and Agatha Matchett, 04150 Matchett Rd., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Cunningham 50th

Mr. & Mrs. Clyde Cunningham

District Tournament play. The Rayders finished the year with a 15-6 record.

*The Masons and Odd Fellows completed their 63rd annual winter cribbage tournament with the Odd Fellows winning handily.

*The City Council applied for state grants to improve Michigan Beach and the city softball complex. The beach grant was recently turned down, but the softball field grant is moving forward and major improvements to the softball complex should take place either in the fall of 1994 or the fall of 1995.

April

*An architectural historian who specializes in buildings designed by the late Frank Lloyd Wright contacted the Courier in search of a

Wright-designed home which he felt might exist in Charlevoix. A story in the Courier drew a response from several readers who knew of the building in question. The building designed by Wright had been constructed out on Pa-ba-Shan Lane, but had burned down decades ago and only the foundation was left.

*Middle School students worked on a theater production in a newly established middle school performing arts program.

*A report by a panel of fire chiefs assembled by mayor Dave Novotny, declared the dismissal of four volunteer firemen justified. Those who supported the dismissals called the report a complete vindication. Those who opposed the dismissals deemed the report a whitewash.

*Hundreds of people enjoyed the annual K-5 school spring carnival.

*Contract talks for school teachers began. The talks are on-going.

May

*Disgruntled second ward residents filed a recall petition against Ted Felter claiming they were unable to contact him to voice concerns about city issues. Felter maintained that he was available and that the people filing the petitions were simply upset about controversy surrounding the city fire department.

*Legendary high school athletic coach Ray Kipke died.

*The school board proposed a millage figure which would have resulted in a 12 percent increase in local property taxes.

*A new bridge railing installed as part of the Memorial Bridge project.

ject was deemed ugly by several people. The safety of the railing was also questioned. Later in the year the DDA approved a revised railing design to make the railing safer and more attractive.

*Sixth grade students Liza Gorkiewicz, Kadie Bogart, Jessica Corey and Jamie Gowell won a State Future Problem Solving competition and later competed in International competition in Wisconsin.

*Charlevoix Middle School students brought home several ribbons from state competition including a first place ribbon by Tony Doan.

*A group of public officials and business people from Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin visited Charlevoix to pick up ideas on how they could improve the resort atmosphere of their community.

*The Charlevoix Rayder boy's track team won its fifth straight regional title.

*Pouring rain did not stop the 12th annual Operation Petunia planting.

June

*City council members listened to a debate over the fate of the old water tower. Ultimately the council decided to apply for grant funding which would remove the tower as part of a Michigan Beach improvement project. However, the grant has been turned down.

*The Charlevoix Rainbow Shoppe, a resale shop which helps fund local charities, celebrated its tenth anniversary.

*Beaver Islanders complained to county commissioners about bad road conditions on the island.

*Voters rejected a school millage proposal and elected Mary Lee Campbell and Joan Buday to school board seats. Later in the summer voters approved a revised proposal for a lower tax rate.

*City police officers completed their Emergency Medical Technician training.

*Hundreds of fishermen enjoyed the Ninth Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

*City officials from the community of White Hall visited Charlevoix for Mayor Exchange Day.

*The city council acted on an ordinance to address problems with dog droppings on city parks and beaches.

*High school softball player Melissa Cox was named to the Class C All State Softball Team.

July

*Due to the June failure of the school millage request, Charlevoix school district taxpayers received summer tax bills that were lower than usual. Those bills are being offset by higher than usual bills due next month.

*The State of Michigan demanded $444,311.56 from Charlevoix Public Schools, claiming the school system was responsible for groundwater contamination which necessitated construction of a new water plant. The school system hired an attorney and a hydrogeological specialist to review data. After reviewing the data, the hydrogeologist issued a report which said the contamination affecting the water plant could not have come from the school. The school forwarded that report to the state.

*The school board decided against a proposal to hire a school curriculum director.

*A lifeboat from the Carl D. Bradley was brought back to Beaver Island.

*The city council turned down a proposal to increase city ambulance rates.

*Approximately 40,000 people enjoyed the 1993 Venetian Festival.

*A new scoreboard at the city softball field was dedicated to the late Mike Reinhart who died earlier in the year.

August

*St. Mary's hosted a three on three basketball tournament in conjunction with their annual Parish Festival.

*State action to reform school finance voided a contract between the city, county and schools calling for the city's DDA to expire in 1998.

*The Charlevoix Historical Society began raising funds to renovate the Depot Building and convert it to a museum.

Three local skiers fare well in CUSSA race

Charlevoix skiers J.H. Heck, Robby Bunting and Kami Boyer skied well in Central United States Ski Association (CUSSA) races at Sugar Loaf Resort this past weekend.

Heck placed sixth and seventh in two slalom races. Bunting placed ninth in one slalom race. Boyer placed tenth in the women's slalom race.

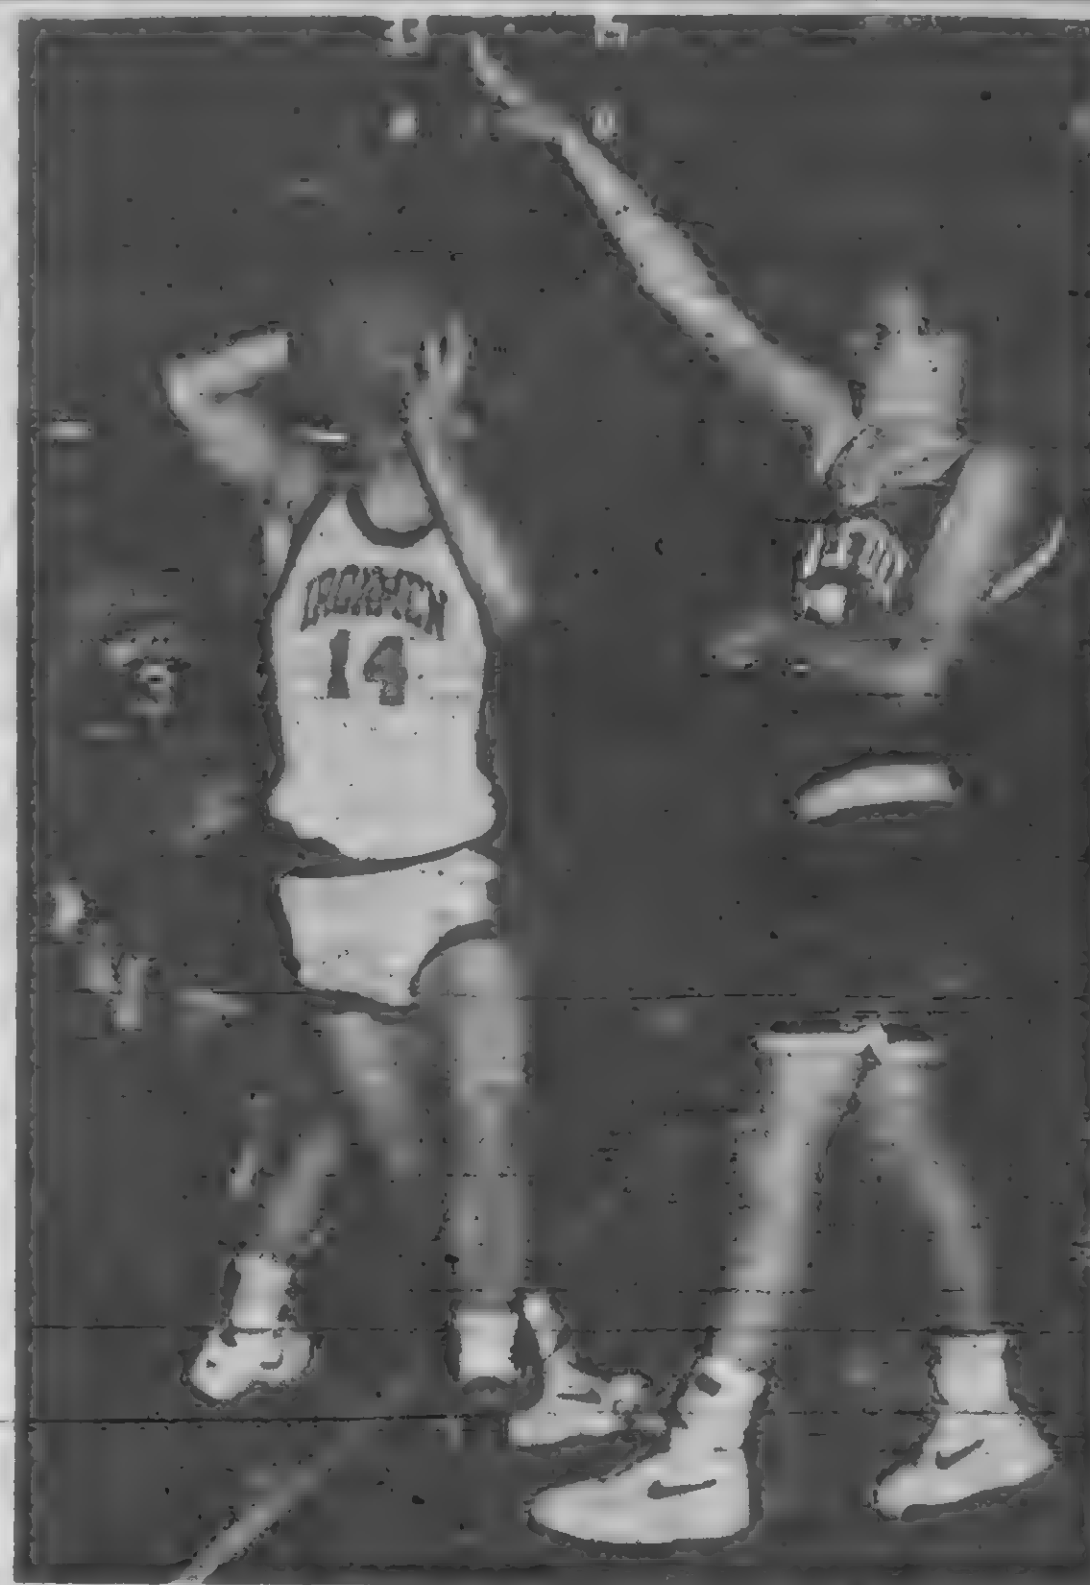

All three are members of the Charlevoix High School ski team.

Power lifter to speak to Charlevoix students

Motivational speaker Scott Works will speak to East Jordan and Charlevoix students this Friday. He will be at East Jordan High School at 10:15 a.m., at Charlevoix Middle School at 1 p.m., and at Charlevoix High School at 1:40 p.m.

Works, who is a former college football player and national champion powerlifter, uses his physical strength to convey a message of moral strength. His message to students is that they possess the greatest power in the world - the power to choose between right and wrong.

At 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 8, parents and students are invited to an "Evening of Champions" speech by Works at Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix's high school varsity boys' basketball team compiled a 15-6 record during the 1992-93 season.

tug of war across the Pine River Channel.

*Second ward council member Ted Felter, survived a recall election by four votes 132-128.

*The city planning commissioner decided that neon isn't a problem in Charlevoix and chose not to push for tighter restrictions on the use of neon.

*The Charlevoix County 4-H program looked into the possibility of purchasing Castle Farms.

*The DDA ordered new street lights for downtown Charlevoix at a cost of $157,335.

October

*Mayor Dave Novotny shifted the public comments section from the beginning to the end of the city council agenda.

*CB North Bank celebrated the completion of the merger of Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank with an open house.

*The Charlevoix Courier won five Michigan Press Association awards including a third-place finish in the General Excellence category.

*The Charlevoix High School golf team qualified for the state finals with a second place finish in regional competition.

November

*Teachers voiced complaints to the school board about the extended length of contract negotiations and began showing up en masse at school board meetings.

*Cheri Hoffman and Bruce Reid were elected to two-year terms on the city council.

*Pool proponents proposed to build a pool on city property on or near Ferry Beach. The proposal currently has been referred to the planning commission.

*Garbage hauling in Charlevoix grows increasingly competitive as more haulers come into the community.

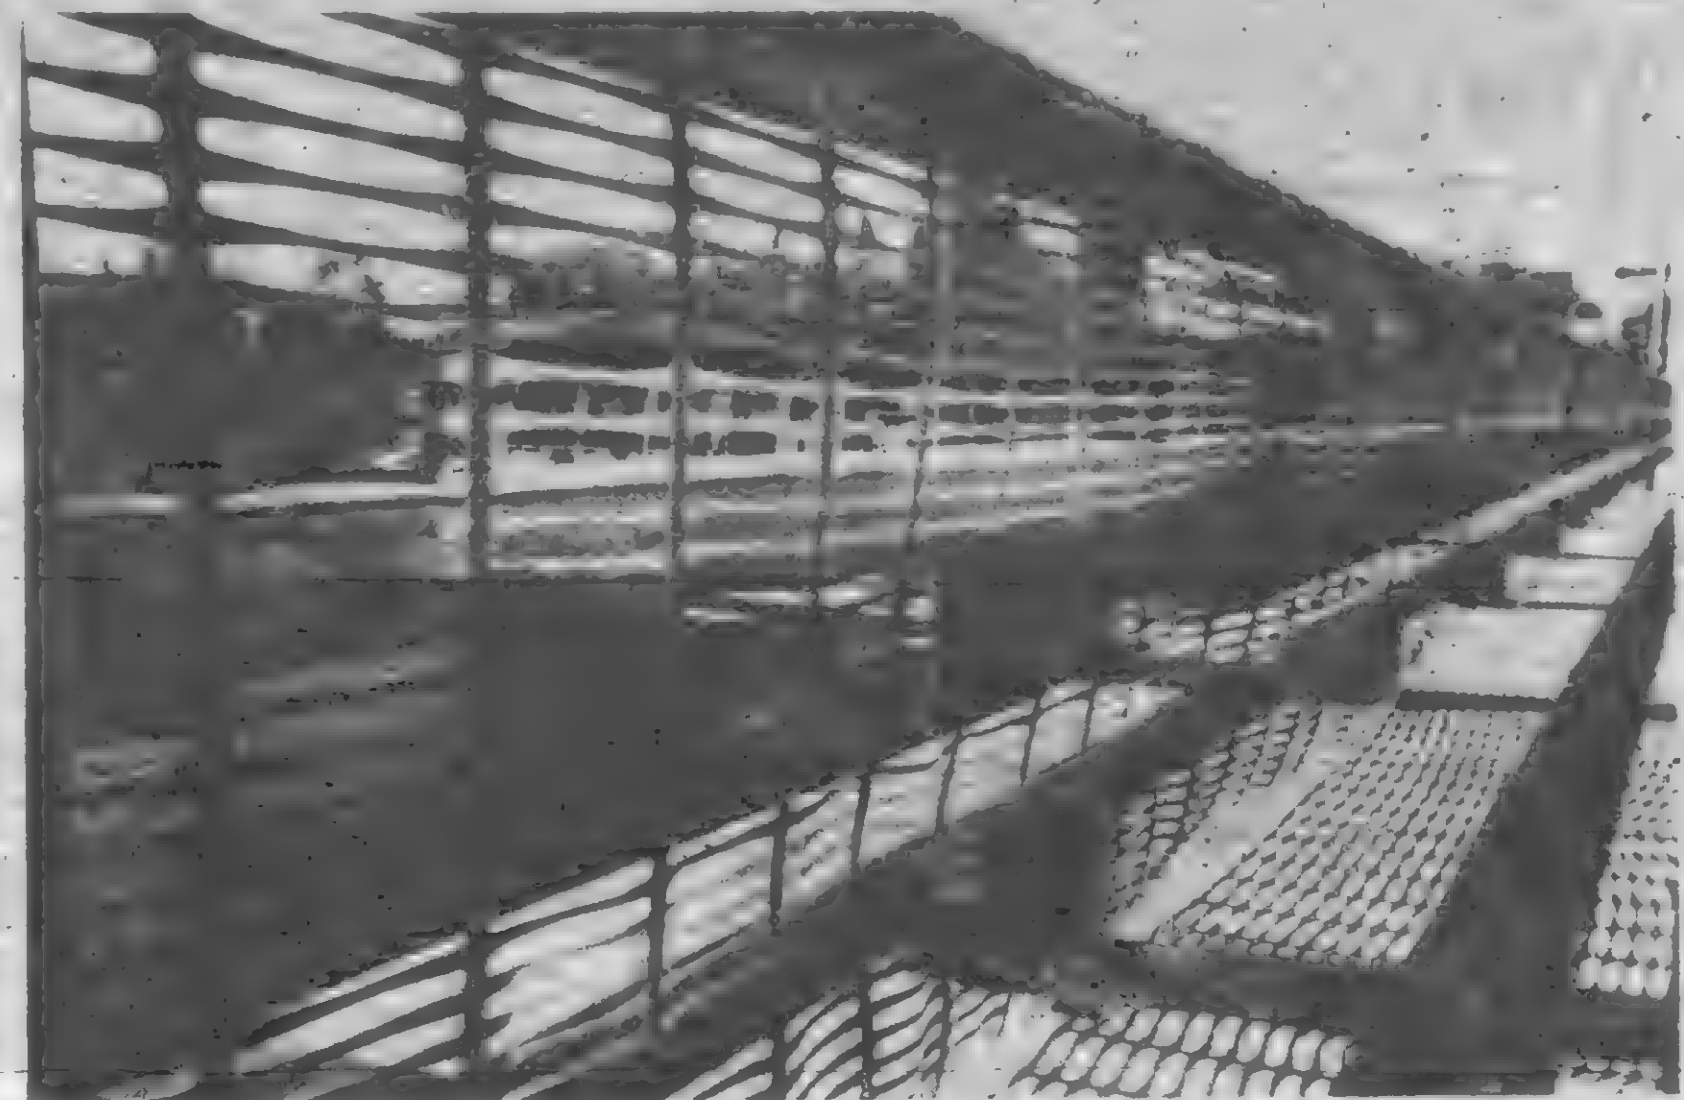

*Three juveniles are arrested following an investigation into the arson of an unoccupied home on Klooster Road.

*A water main project on Petoskey Avenue is completed, correcting a problem with freezing pipes. The problem required several northside homeowners to leave their water running during the winter months for the past four decades.

December

*County commissioners debated the merits of different types of computer systems before finally settling on an IBM system.

*School board members work on deciphering the significance of MEAP test results.

Orange plastic netting was temporarily placed over the new bridge railing in response to safety concerns.

Soccer was added to Charlevoix as a sanctioned high school sport in 1993.

There are things you can do to prevent intestinal illness

Two different types of intestinal illnesses have been reported in the region. The first illness is caused by a salmonella bacteria. This type of bacteria is a commonly reported cause of food or waterborne illness. Since June of this year, 29 cases of salmonella have been reported in individuals traveling or living in the district. Some of the associated symptoms include headache, muscle aches and pains, fever, nausea, stomach pains and cramps, and diarrhea. In most cases the illness does not require treatment. However, at times, individuals can become very ill and require medical treatment to include hospitalization.

The salmonella bacteria is found in the intestines of domestic and wild animals, including birds and poultry, pigs, cattle, rodents and pets such as turtles, chicks, dogs and cats, and occasionally humans. The best way to prevent the illness in the home is to thoroughly cook all foodstuffs from animal sources, especially pork, poultry, egg products and meat dishes; avoid recontamination between clean and dirty areas in the kitchen; refrigerate prepared foods in small containers; employ proper hand washing during and after food preparation and after using the bathroom; and not preparing foods for others when ill. The importance of washing hands after using the bathroom or soiling one's hands cannot be over emphasized.

The second illness occurring in the community is a suspected viral gastrointestinal illness. It is a different type of illness than salmonella. The viral illness is generally spread person to person by the fecal-oral route. The time from exposure from another person to illness is one to two days. Symptoms include sudden onset of nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain, muscle aches and pain, and low grade fever. The symptoms usually last one to two days.

Treatment of the illnesses is usually not necessary because they tend to be self-limited. For more infections, the use of antidiarrheal agents is not appropriate. These agents may retard elimination of the causative organism and prolong the disease. However, there are times when your physician may recommend their use. Healthy adults can consume clear fluids for the first 12 hours after vomiting stops; then limit their food intake to bland foods for the next 24 hours. If watery diarrhea or vomiting is severe or persists longer than 2 days or is associated with faintness while standing, adults should see a physician. The primary danger is to the very young and very old and is due to loss of fluids and electrolytes in the stool. Persistent diarrhea and vomiting body fluids if severe can be life-threatening. Therefore, a physician should be contacted if an infant, child, or elderly person has an intestinal illness with vomiting and diarrhea, or if they are unable to retain fluids.

The important information for the public is to know how to prevent the spread of intestinal illness.

The old fish pond in East Park held many pleasant memories for Charlevoix people, but in 1993 children were creating their own memories in the new fish pond.

SCRAPBOOK

One of the strangest stories the Courier came across in 1993 was the story of the Frank Lloyd Wright designed home which was at one time located on Lake Michigan - north of Charlevoix. Apparently, the famous architect had designed the home for a wealthy man from Chicago. The house apparently burned in the early 1920s. There are two versions of the story of the fire. One story has it that a woman discovered her husband at the house with another woman and a short time later the house burned. The second story has it that the house was purchased by a man who planned on marrying a woman and living with her there, but prior to the marriage she died. Dis- traught, and unable to bear the thought of living in the home without her, he had the home destroyed.

Card games help pass time in slow winter months

By Laurie Lounsbury

The lobby in the Lodge Motel was quiet last week, with nothing but the sound of a fire occasionally crackling in the fireplace. The stone beaver outside braced itself against the gusts of icy wind and snow blowing off Lake Michigan. Inside, Jack Uhrick shuffled two decks of cards and dealt them out to his sister, Diane Jerome, and Pete Phillips. Rusty Smith, motel manager, relaxed in an easy chair near the card table and watched a game of Up the River unfold.

Across town, Uhrick's mother Florence was settling in at the kitchen table at Jackie Phelps' house, along with Marie Webb and Monnie Dziedzic. The aroma of freshly brewed coffee wrapped around the group of women like a vaporous quilt. After a little gentle ribbing about one another's card playing skills and cheating capabilities, Dziedzic dealt the cards for their first hand of Bridge.

At Alexander's restaurant, several businessmen hunched over a cocktail table and studied their Euchre hands.

It's winter in Charlevoix, and all over town people while away the Castle Farms sold to Friends of 4-H

By L. Scott Swanson

Just think of it. Some time within the next few years some kid's going to parade his prize calf out onto the same Castle Farms' stage where people once worried Ozzy Osborne might bite the head off a bat or kill a sheep.

The tower which the rock and roll wild man David Lee Roth got a kick out of scaling prior to a concert will be converted to a 4-H club photo lab.

A portion of the concert lawn where thousands once raised butane lighters for a Doobie Brothers encore will become a show place flower garden.

It's a done deal. A group called Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H Inc. is buying Castle Farms. After nearly a year of groundwork, the deal was signed Sunday evening.

Castle Farms, which put Northern Michigan on the rock-and-roll concert map, is going to be transformed into a self-supporting, multi-faceted learning center for Charlevoix County youth.

According to Chuck McDermott, President of Friends of 4-H, the group will pay the Reibel Family Trust $1.1 million to purchase the property on a five-year land contract and take possession by May 15, at the latest. The actual selling price of the 50-acre parcel is $1.65 million, which is the appraised value. However, a tax law will allow the Reibel Family Trust to contribute $550,000 of that cost to the purchaser making the purchaser's cost $1.1 million.

McDermott, 4-H Director Todd Kesner and others involved with the purchase see an endless array of possibilities for Castle Farms. In the past four years, youth involvement in Charlevoix County 4-H programs has more than doubled, from 657 club members to 1,507. Interest from adults and youth has grown at a phenomenal rate, but space is needed for the programs.

Castle Farms offers ample space for all of the traditional 4-H agricultural activities as well as at least a hundred other things, McDermott and Kesner rattled off several possibilities people have discussed. An archery range, a soccer complex, a skating rink, an arts complex, a biological study area, a multitude of craft areas, a show ring for horses. The possibilities go on and on.

Finding ways to use the facility is the easy part of the equation. The difficult part is finding ways to fund the facility. Yet, the Friends of 4-H feel they have an answer. They intend to continue to host concerts at Castle Farms, but they will be more low-key family entertainment with smaller crowds. They also plan on continuing to host the Castle Farms Arts Festival. The facility may also be the site of auctions and various types of theme festivals and tournaments (i.e. Blues Festivals and basketball and archery tournaments). The Friends of 4-H are also seeking private contributions and grants from various foundations. Between now and May they need to raise $300,000. BDO Seidman, a Grand Rapids accounting firm is

Purchase process has been in the works for nearly a year

The sale of Castle Farms has been in the works for nearly a year. Chuck McDermott and Virginia Lepman presented the idea to Charlevoix County 4-H Director Todd Kesner in February of 1993.

In March a letter was sent to the Reibel family asking if they might be interested in selling the property. Later in the month, Art Reibel phoned Kesner and indicated he would be willing to consider selling Castle Farms.

During the summer and early fall an appraisal was done and a committee was formed to tour the property and develop an offer price.

In October a group called Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H Inc. was formed. Charlevoix County 4-H is affiliated with Michigan State University (MSU), but the university does not fund bricks and mortar projects or assume large amounts of debt in a facility purchase. Consequently, it became necessary to form the Friends of 4-H. The Friends of 4-H will be the actual owners of the property. MSU and the County 4-H program will serve as a resource.

Charlevoix attorney Dick Joseph assisted the group in the transaction. In addition to working out transaction terms for the property, Friends of 4-H have also been making plans for funding and using the currently putting together a marketing and management plan for the future of Castle Farms.

"We'd like to have something going on all the time. We'll have to have as much revenue generated as possible, particularly in the early years," Kesner explained.

Kim Reibel, who has managed Castle Farms in recent years after taking over from her father, Art Reibel, says she's excited about the sale.

"It'll be great for the community and the kids," she said.

Art Reibel bought the castle in 1968 and began hosting concerts in the late 1970s. The concerts brought some of the biggest name performers in rock and roll to Charlevoix - The Beach Boys, The Doobie Brothers, Bob Seger, Ted Nugent, Tina Turner, The Police. And speaking of the police, the concerts also occasionally brought thousands of people, accompanying traffic jams and complaints from local law enforcement. Kim Reibel said performers enjoyed coming to Castle Farms. She said they liked the facility and they liked visiting the area.

In looking back at her memories of the past 15 or 20 years at Castle Farms, Reibel noted that although concerts stand out as big highlight events what really interests her and is hard to let go of is Castle Farm's history. The facility was built in 1917 as an experimental farm. Later, it was abandoned as a farm. In the 1960s, a man named VanHaver was using it as kind of an arts center and a tourist attraction.

In recent years, Reibel has initiated the Castle Farms Arts Festival, a weekend-long event which continues to grow in popularity. Reibel enjoys working on the Arts Festival and has agreed to continue to coordinate it for the next several years.

In some ways, the Castle's future seems to resemble its past. There are going to be agricultural activities, arts, concerts and entertainment and the facility is going to be used for educational purposes.

Making all of that happen isn't expected to be easy. As Kesner described it, "It's a very, very ambitious project."

...purchase process has been in the works property once it's acquired. Plans are to have the property be self-supporting.

"We zeroed in on this piece," McDermott said. "This is the only piece of property that we feel can be self-supporting."

Friends of 4-H has hired BDO Seidman, a Grand Rapids accounting firm, to formulate a marketing and management plan for Castle Farms.

Prior to taking possession of the property in May, Friends of 4-H needs to raise $300,000 through private, corporate and foundation contributions. The group is working through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation in their fundraising effort. Contributions for the purchase may be sent to the foundation and earmarked for the Castle Farms project. OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

There's no denying that it's traumatic when one is faced with the decision of giving up living in one's own comfortable home. Yet, more and more people of all ages are having to deal with friends or relatives, who need the care and support of a residential health care facility, sometimes only temporarily, sometimes permanently.

Recently, I had occasion to observe the admission of a Medicare patient to Boulder Park Terrace — an attractive, popular new facility in Charlevoix, that we can thank former mayor Ralph McRae for launching.

Although it took an hour just to sign forms, I was very impressed with Michigan's laws covering nursing homes. In addition, every patient receives a very helpful booklet from State Representative, Beverly A. Bodem, of the 106th District. It provides clear information about probate, Michigan statutory wills, living wills and durable records listing where important papers may be found, property ownership, life insurance policies, health insurance and social security information, pension data, birth certificate and bank records. And finally, but most important, it raises the touchy issue of what type medical care one would wish to have if one loses the ability to make decisions. This is called an "advance directive."

Since Dec. 1, 1991, federal law has required hospitals, nursing homes and health care providers, that receive federal funds, to inform incoming patients of their right to consent or refuse treatment. One may also designate a person to act as a representative in handling one's private affairs. This includes taking care of mail, paying bills and talking to one's doctor, attorney, or friend regarding personal decisions and financial affairs. But best of all, one may discharge oneself from the nursing home at any time.

Chances are one might prefer staying at Boulder Park Terrace. The friendly staff wears no uniforms and the homey decor of the rooms is similar to that of a Country French Inn. The lobby is inviting with a fireplace and winged back chairs. A parakeet named Pete welcomes visitors in the Garden Room. There's an ice cream parlor where one may entertain children. There's a tavern, a beauty parlor and barber shop, a physical therapy room, a library, a reception room and two dining rooms.

One dining room serves the assisted living wing and the other dining room serves the comprehensive nursing care group.

Visitors are encouraged. Even pets are welcome! There are no telephones in the rooms, but a cordless phone is available and you may order your own phone, if you choose. Smoking for residents and guests is prohibited except in the nautical "Salty Dog" tavern. Or, if they wish, residents are free to go out for lunch and take a pleasure drive as they please.

Boulder Park Terrace is a non-profit cooperative program of Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey and the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Residents come from all over, not only Harbor Springs and Petoskey, but many families who have summer homes in the area, learn about this outstanding facility by word of mouth. Thus there are patients from Illinois, Ohio, Florida, and California living here. Both Medicare (Federally supported) and Medicaid (State supported) patients are admitted and mental health services are provided, if needed. As you know, Medicare is for almost everyone 65 years or older, rich or poor. Medicaid is for some medically needy and low income people and it is run the Michigan Department of Social Services.

What's in the offing in the future? For one, Candy Slavinski, Billing Coordinator, hopes that the Clinton administration can streamline the blizzard of paper work that she's required to process — but as far as the program at Boulder Park Terrace is concerned, the Executive Director, Debbie Saur stresses that from now on the primary focus will be on rehabilitation therapy for patients, who will then hopefully be released and returned to their own home. That's encouraging.

You never move away from memories of friends

Editor,

During the past 17 years many changes took place in Charlevoix. New families moved in, homes were built, stores opened. We met people from all walks of life. Our children grew up in a community that looked after its youngsters. Now that we are leaving, we look back and remember the many good times, and the fine people we shared the years with.

Wherever we settle down, we will always consider Charlevoix our home, and the people we knew there, our friends.

New dog licenses are too big

Editor,

Dear Humans,

We just got our 1994 Charlevoix County dog license tags and they are really, really large. They hang low on our collars and it's uncomfortable. We are good dogs and always wear our license and we don't like these. Could you please go back to the small ones.

Rainbow Shoppe sets and meets high goals

Editor,

CHARLEVOIX RAINBOW SHOPPE DREAMS COME TRUE. OUR MANAGER JOE SPURGEON, HAD A DREAM AND SET SOME UNBELIEVABLE GOALS FOR THE BUSINESS YEAR OF 1993. Imagine dreaming that the receipts for one month would be $10,000!! He wasn't finished yet, he even had visions of grossing $100,000 in 1993 — now that's really absurd!

On Thursday, December 23, the manager's dream came true. The gross receipts for 1993 were one hundred thousand and sixty dollars. — PRAISE THE LORD! Here are a few more "stats" for you. We had a $1,000 day, a $3,000 week, and yes, a $10,000 month. That's fantastic, considering 80 percent of the merchandise is sold for $3 or less.

We have many people to thank for this success. Of course our dreamer, Joe Spurgeon, the manager, the dedicated employees, our loyal volunteers, (all 189 of them), the many generous businesses and people who donated the merchandise. We must also thank all those who patronized the Rainbow Shoppe.

Throughout the year, much of this revenue has been used to reach out to many non-profit organizations. To name a few - The Nehemiah House, Crisis Pregnancy, Grandvue Chaplaincy, Youth for Christ, Charlevoix Food Pantry, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Senior Citizens Center of Charlevoix, Love Project, Club 77, Christmas Project in Charlevoix and many many other emergencies. Mr. Editor, don't you agree, this is a beautiful dream that came true and with the help of all those mentioned above and especially with the help of GOD AEMIGHTY we just might double that amount in 1994!! Happy New Year.

Rita Orłowski, on behalf of The Board of Directors of the Rainbow Shoppe

Blood donors needed

Editor,

As I reflect on my life during this holiday season, I feel that I am very fortunate. I have my family, and we all have our health. And although I'm thankful for the "good life," I know that others are not as fortunate.

Everyday there are hospital patients in need of life-sustaining blood or blood products. In fact, by age 70, about 80 percent of our population will need some type of blood transfusion. Everyday there is a need for blood, and this need doesn't take a holiday.

If you are looking for a way that you can help even one of the many people in need in our community, here it is. Here is your opportunity to help. It's safe, it only takes a brief amount of your time, and it will make you feel good, too.

The American Red Cross bloodmobile is coming to our community Thursday, Jan. 27, and here is your invitation to help someone by donating blood. In fact, because blood is separated into its various components, you may help as many as four people with each blood donation. Did you know you can donate blood every 56 days or up to six times per year? This life-saving invitation is so important and yet so easy to fulfill.

Please take the time to donate blood at the Red Cross bloodmobile at the American Legion hall from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Jan. 27. I will be there, and I hope to see you, too.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Izor

Legislators face a tough time making a case for either school finance proposal

Governor John Engler's Northern Michigan Representative, David Svanda, will be in Charlevoix this Thursday to speak to the Charlevoix Rotary Club. Svanda will be in town to put a good face on the legislature's best efforts on school finance reform. The more you look at what the legislature has proposed, the more it appears that Svanda faces a real challenge. As the old saying goes, it's tough to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

After several months of arguing over how best to reform Michigan's school finance system, the state legislature came up with two lackluster proposals, both of which raise taxes and do little to improve education in Michigan.

This past summer when Michigan legislators decided to revise funding of Michigan education, they gave themselves an opportunity to make dramatic and long overdue improvements. Unfortunately, when push came to shove they dropped the ball, caved in to special interest pressures and came up with two dud proposals. The Michigan House of Representatives came up with a proposal which will increase income taxes. Engler and the Senate are offering an alternative which will raise sales taxes. Both proposals will result in a net tax increase. Both proposals will shift educational funding from property taxes, which voters were showing an increasing willingness to vote against, to forms of taxes which voters will have no opportunity to vote against. In return for higher taxes and a diminished power, to control those taxes, voters receive some token accountability measures and highly restricted opportunities for the development of schools outside of traditional public schools.

Having failed in their opportunity to improve Michigan's educational system, legislators are now claiming they've done Michigan voters a favor by giving them a choice. But what is that choice? The choice essentially boils down to voting for a sales tax increase which voters have consistently rejected in the past or facing an even worse income tax increase. That's kind of like an executioner doing a condemned man one last favor - giving him a choice of being hanged or shot.

It'll be interesting to hear what Svanda has to say Thursday.

Carolyn Campbell, a sophomore at the Holderness School in Plymouth, New Hampshire, has been named to the school's honor roll for the fall semester. Campbell is the daughter of John and MaryLee Campbell of Charlevoix.

Karla L. Kirkland of Charlevoix was recently appointed by Gov. John Engler to the Michigan Developmental Disabilities Council. The Council receives federal funding provided under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1990 for programs to help developmentally disabled individuals in Michigan.

Army Staff Sgt. Scott M. Mervyn, a member of the 6th Infantry Division at Fort Wainwright in Fairbanks, Alaska has been deployed to the Joint Readiness Training Center at Fort Polk, Leesville, Louisiana for a training exercise.

The Joint Readiness Training Center provides advanced level training for Air Force and Army active and reserve forces. Personnel are trained in deployment and tactical operations under realistic conditions of low to mid intensity conflict.

Mervyn's wife, Julie, is the daughter of Al and Loretta Towsley of Charlevoix.

Michigan State University scholarship established in memory of East Jordan man

Michigan State University alumnus Bill Grauel loved his alma mater, and hoped one day to share his professional success with MSU by establishing a scholarship fund for students from his high school in East Jordan.

Tragically, Grauel's life was cut short by a car accident in 1992, but now his family is fulfilling his dream of helping others attend MSU.

The William H. Grauel Jr. Memorial Scholarship was created by Grauel's sister and her husband, Lynn Grauel Smith and Dr. Timothy Victor Smith. It will provide tuition, fees, and room and board.

It is an honor for Michigan State University to have William H.

Grauel Jr. linked in perpetuity with his alma mater in this way," said William H. Turner, MSU director of admissions and scholarships. "We hope this scholarship will encourage students from East Jordan to further their education in East Lansing and participate fully in campus life, as Bill did."

"This is really Bill's scholarship," Lynn Smith said. "We wanted to do this as a tribute to Bill, but we're also doing it because it's

Proper pet care takes on added importance during the winter

County animal control officer offers suggestions

The Charlevoix County Animal Control Officer would like to recommend the following suggestions for pet owners to consider for the care of their pets during the winter months:

An animal that suffers from neglect cannot tell you how badly it is hurting. It is your responsibility to care for its needs. This time of year the animals need extra help to survive the cold winter months.

No animal should be left outside without proper shelter during the cold season. The shelter should be facing in a direction that keeps the opening away from the wind. A rug or some sort of protector should be dropped over the opening allowing the animal to get in and out. There should be straw in the structure to give added warmth.

Food and water are essential. During the cold winter months extra care should be given in providing an enriched diet to help them put on extra layers of fat which helps them endure the cold.

Not keeping an animal confined to your own property, even animals which are licensed, is against the law and is subject to citations and fines. They should not run at large. They may do damage to someone else's property or endanger motorists causing death or injury to themselves and the driver. During winter months, when roads are wet and slippery, it is an added menace to have pets on the loose.

The law spells out very clearly to the people of Michigan that for every offense of cruelty (neglect) there shall be punishment by imprisonment in jail not exceeding three months or by fine not exceeding $500 or by both fine and imprisonment.

If you have lost a pet or know of one that's lost, remember to contact the Sheriff's Department at 547-4461 and/or the County Humane Society at 547-9711.

Chinook salmon continue dying

Charlevoix fish station at center of search to correct disease problem

By Laurie Lounsbery

The chinook salmon are dying, and it's making the sport fishing industry ill. Chinook salmon in Lake Michigan have acquired a Bacterial Kidney Disease (BKD) which is killing the chinook salmon in large numbers. Jerry Rakoczy, a creel census taker at the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix, says the number of chinook salmon being caught dropped from a high of 404,000 in 1986 to a low of 32,500 in 1993. The census covered nine ports on the west coast of Lake Michigan, which have been sampled each year since 1985.

The BKD first appeared in 1987. Myrl Keller, fisheries biologist at the Fisheries Station, says the disease probably came from salmon eggs purchased from the west coast. The fish hatchery started buying salmon eggs from the west coast in 1986. The fingerling salmon from the west coast eggs were used to restock Lake Michigan waters. Curiously, Coho salmon also have the bacterial disease but it doesn't kill them. BKD is a cold water disease and won't affect humans, Keller said. The Fish and Wildlife Department first believed that the disease was vertically transferred, going from the fish egg to the mature salmon. Keller is now convinced that the disease is horizontally transferred as well, moving from fish to fish. "That's what really frightens me," he said.

The DNR is currently testing all fish eggs to see if they carry the bacteria. Any infected eggs will be discarded, and only healthy eggs will be used to stock the lake. Lake Ontario eggs are being used by the hatchery, since the incidence of the disease is the lowest in Lake Ontario. Keller is hoping to get the disease under control with the use of only healthy eggs and through studies on marked fingerling salmon. All new salmon are given doses of an antibiotic, Tetracycline.

Salmon fishermen have been experiencing declining success since 1986. A bacterial kidney disease (BKD) has been killing chinook salmon. The DNR fisheries station in Charlevoix is at the heart of an effort to determine the cause of the disease and the best way to stop it.

...just keep those cards coming

days that are short on light and long on time with a friendly game of cards.

Jack Uhrick has been playing cards at the Lodge Motel since his days as motel manager. His position changed from manager to owner, and the card game changed from Pinochle to Up the River, but the faces around the card table have remained pretty much the same over the last 20 years. Business is slow for Uhrick and his card playing compatriots, so finding the time to play a few hands is an easy task.

Phillips grumbles and scowls consistently as he studies his hand, regardless of its contents. Uhrick sits back with quiet confidence, even if he's about to lose. Jerome casts a watchful eye at the two of them, looking for signs in their faces that will give her an indication about their hands. The three players will tease each other and grouse about losing until one gets called back to work. Then another player will invariably show up at the table and take up where the last player left off. The card players in the Lodge lobby ebb and shift like the tides, occasionally retreating, always returning. The regular card players can be counted on two hands. Some are friends, some relatives, and some are former Lodge employees. One former employee still drives over from Boyne City when she gets a card playing urge. That prompts Uhrick or Smith to call Phillips at home and lure him over for a game.

Gambling on the games is limited to friendly gentleman bets. "You can say we play for matchsticks," Uhrick said.

No one in the group can recall exactly how they embarked on their card playing tradition. "It must have been a snowstorm, no doubt," Jerome speculated. Phillips, who is relatively new to the group, joined them when he got a call for a wrecker at the Lodge. A customer needed a tow, so Phillips came to help, and stayed to play. The Uhrick brothers grew up around a card table, learning games under their mother's tutelage.

Across town, the Uhricks' mother is playing a game of her own with fellow bridge players in the Hospital Guild bridge group. The group plays in an ongoing, round robin card tournament that starts in September and ends in April. Each team pays $25 to play - all the money is donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Sixty-four people, ranging in age from 35 to 90, play in the tournament. The game includes coffee and dessert at the hostess' home, which rotates every week.

The group of women assembled at Phelps' home have been playing bridge together for about 30 years. Several of the women came to Charlevoix with Consumer's Power and played bridge as a way to get acquainted with other members of the community.

Each time the groups meet, they play 20 hands of bridge. "It takes two or two and a half hours, depending on how much we gab in between hands," Webb said.

Not everyone passes the long evenings with cards. The Bridge Club draws a cozy crowd for trivia contests each Wednesday night. Some people pursue their trivia more seriously than others. Players may form teams of up to four players, sharing their knowledge of trivia. General and musical trivia questions have the crowd hunched over their answer sheets, racking their brains to remember who sang "Shout, Shout." Mayor Dave Novotny emcees the sports trivia portion of the game, with questions culled from his memory of sporting events.

Those who winter in Charlevoix rather than flee to balmy southern climates do find their own rewards - warm friendships nurtured by hot card games.

1991 Medusa oil spill clean-up continues

Cost likely to exceed $1 million

By L. Scott Swanson

In June of 1991 an oil spill was discovered at the Medusa Cement plant south of Charlevoix. Since then a clean-up program has pumped more than 20,000 gallons of spilled oil out of the ground and treated millions of gallons of groundwater. The clean-up has cost Medusa approximately $800,000 to date and the effort is expected to continue for at least the next four years.

"We're not shrinking from our responsibility for clean up, but you get a little queasy when you think about it," said Medusa plant manager John Dixon when considering the cost.

Although the clean-up has been expensive, authorities say it has also been reasonably successful. "If we can get it all-picked up fast enough, we're hoping there will be no long term effects," said Rick Barta of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Barta said he doesn't believe the spill will reach Lake Michigan or create any threat to human health. He noted that although the company hasn't always moved as rapidly as the DNR would like, the DNR isn't totally dissatisfied with their efforts.

Even WATCH (an acronym for Water Air Team Charlevoix) President Jerry Puhl, in the past a frequent critic of the cement plant's impact on the environment, is expressing some degree of satisfaction with the clean-up effort.

"We're not shrinking from our responsibility for clean up, but you get a little queasy when you think about it."

Medusa Cement Plant Manager John Dixon commenting on the cost of cleaning up a 1991 oil spill.

"I guess I'm pleased that they've recovered the amount of oil they have," Puhl said, noting that the figure he heard was 36,000 gallons of oil recovered.

Puhl said he's pleased that Medusa and their environmental consultant, Environmental Solutions Inc. out of Traverse City, have used some progressive techniques in the clean-up.

The oil spill occurred when a pressurized underground pipe corroded and developed a hole which was about one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter. The pipe ran underground between an above ground storage tank and the cement kiln. Normally, the kiln burns coal, but when it is being started after being shut down it burns fuel oil. The pipe was pressurized at 500 pounds per square inch. Dixon said that since the pipe was underground and used only intermittently, it's likely that it leaked several times before enough oil pooled to come to the surface.

Dixon described the system being used for the clean-up as a "pump and treat" arrangement. Two wells are used. The deeper of the ground creating a depression. Oil flows into the depression and is pumped to the surface by the shallower well.

After being recaptured, the oil is sent to a downstate disposal facility. Dixon said Medusa hopes to get a permit from the DNR by this spring which would allow the oil to be burned at the plant. Medusa also hopes to be able to use the oil soaked soil in the cement making process.

Barta said the proposal to burn the oil and use the soil in the cement process makes sense to him. Oil and gravel are normally used in the cement process. Using the contaminated material at the site treats the problem and avoids the potential for other problems which could arise in transporting it.

The water pump recovers approximately 20,000 gallons of water a day. That water is run through a filtration system and when it comes out meets DNR standards. To assure that the water is clean, samples are taken to a Kalkaska lab for testing. Dixon said that even though the water is clean enough so that it could be put directly into the lake, the plant needs water for cooling so it is used for that and ends up as steam.

Barta said that after the oil is removed from the ground, the next step is to define the exact extent of the contamination problem. Some soil has already been dug up. To prevent future problems, underground pipes at the plant are now double-lined. If the inside pipe leaks, the outer wall channels the oil to a containment area. The pipes are routinely pressure tested.

Puhl noted that the plant had a surface spill a few weeks ago by the Medusa Challenger slip with more than 200 gallons of fuel spilled and approximately 40 gallons getting into the water. That spill was able to be cleaned up immediately.

"It's a lot better now than it used to be," Puhl said of the cement plant. "But still, they need to have pressure kept on them to make it better yet."

Puhl said WATCH members meet with plant officials about once every six weeks to discuss the clean-up and plant operations. He said WATCH doesn't want to see the plant shut down, but wants it kept as clean as possible. He added that WATCH doesn't want to fight with plant officials, but to work with them and that's pretty much what's happening.

Medusa Cement Plant Manager John Dixon checks the filtration system being used to clean up a 1991 oil spill at the plant. The system is capable of pumping and filtering 20,000 gallons of water per day.

Above: Jenny Swenor has been one of the Rayder volleyball team's more versatile players. She has been among the team's top setters and servers. Swenor is one of several sophomores on the varsity team.

Right: Junior setter Jill Dreyer sets a ball high toward the net as her teammate Liz Grunch prepares to hit.

Snow has been accumulating throughout Charlevoix. This blob has attached itself to the west side of the roof at the Post Office. There's no telling just when it will break loose and fall, but it's big enough so that when it does, you don't want to be standing under it.

Names in business

A collection of accomplishments, awards and changes involving Charlevoix area business people.

David H. Irish, President of Irish Boat Shop, Inc., has announced the selections of Employee of the Year in 1993. Each year the Company recognizes an outstanding individual at each of the company's two facilities, located in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix.

Kirk Wilson of Charlevoix was recognized for his outstanding workmanship as the head of the Ship's Carpentry department. Wilson has maintained consistently high standards of excellence in woodworking since joining Irish Boat Shop in 1988.

Wilson will receive an extra week of paid vacation in appreciation from the company.

Dr. Bruce G. Deckinga of Northern Michigan Surgical Services has begun holding office hours in Charlevoix. He will be working out of an office at 14730 Park Avenue. Appointments may be made by calling 547-1735 or 547-9251. His practice is limited to general and vascular surgery.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION PROGRAM

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of January 24-27, 1994, and continuing for 17 weeks. These classes are FREE to those who do not have their high school diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $40. Upon successful completion of each class, you will be given 1/2 credit toward the number needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences and military service and you can take tests to give yourself credits in some subject areas. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma...so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or inquire about your situation is 547-3222.

Brrrr!

At least it's not as bad as California's earthquakes. But still the cold weather and snowstorms which have battered northern Michigan all too frequently since about Christmas haven't been fun. This past weekend and early this week the cold and stormy weather was at its worst. The seven degree temperature reading on the bank thermometer was closer to the high end of recent temperatures rather than the low end. Snow has accumulated in piles throughout the community to the point where it's getting difficult to find places to put new snow. Tuesday, schools were closed in Charlevoix and all across northern lower Michigan.

School finance reform has DDAs scrambling

Local DDA considers borrowing quickly so that school tax dollars can be used for repayment

By L. Scott Swanson

Proposals for state school finance reform have the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and other tax increment financing units across the state scrambling to react to changes in their funding. One possibility the Charlevoix DDA is considering is bonding (i.e. borrowing money) to fund projects such as Bridge Park improvements.

Many of the ramifications of school finance reform are still unclear, but by moving forward on bonding prior to March 1, the DDA may be able to capture school millage tax funds for the project. If they waited, that might not be the case.

The Charlevoix DDA discussed

possible ramifications of school finance reform at their Jan. 12 meeting. Consequently, a special meeting to discuss the possibility of bonding was scheduled for Jan. 18.

To understand the effect school finance reform will have on tax increment financing funded entities, you must first have an understanding of how tax increment financing works. (For a detailed explanation, see accompanying story.) Basically, tax increment financing allows a governmental unit to capture (or earmark) certain tax dollars for special projects (in this case city projects as determined by the DDA). Were those tax dollars not captured (or earmarked), they would go into the general tax pool and be distributed among all taxing entities (i.e. the city, school, county and intermediate school district). With school finance reform, the DDA may not be able to capture funds generated by school taxes.

Much of the uncertainty is caused by the fact that there are two school finance proposals and each would affect tax increment financing differently. If the ballot proposal (i.e. sales tax increase) passes in the March 15 school finance election, then the DDA will not be able to capture school tax revenue. If the ballot proposal is turned down by voters, then the legislative proposal (i.e. income tax increase) will be implemented. The legislative proposal would allow school taxes to continue to be captured under certain conditions.

A Michigan Municipal League memo sent to Charlevoix and other communities on Jan. 5 explained those conditions as follows: "Local governments with DDAs, TIFAs and or LDFAs that have outstanding obligations entered into prior to August 19, 1993 would be permitted to capture the school millage to the extent necessary to pay those obligations. Capture of school mills for projects in progress are permitted, if a contract for final design is entered into before March 1, 1994, and an obligation is issued or incurred before December 31, 1994."

In regard to the Charlevoix DDA what that means is if the DDA is going to capture school funds for the Bridge Park project, they will have to sign a contract for final engineering by March 1 and have the Tax increment financing made easy ... well, as easy as possible

*Tax increment financing allows a governmental unit to capture (or earmark) certain property tax dollars for projects in a certain geographic area. In Charlevoix's case the tax increment financing authority board is called the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and its project area is the downtown business district.

Money funding the DDA is generated by property taxes from the DDA district.

Property taxes are calculated by multiplying property value, also known as State Equalized Value (SEV), by millage (i.e. SEV x Millage = Property Tax).

SEV is half of a property's market value (market value being what a property would sell for). A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. In other words if a home is worth $80,000, it has an SEV of $40,000 and each mill of property tax costs that home owner $40. If there are 10 homes on a block and each of them is worth the same amount, then each mill levied on that block generates $400 in property taxes.

(To make things easy to understand, in this example, we'll use small, round figures rather than actual figures.) Think of the DDA area (downtown business district) as a block of buildings. In 1982 when the DDA was formed, say there were 10 buildings on the DDA block and each of those buildings had a market value of $20,000 and an SEV of $10,000. Thus, each mill levied would cost each building owner $10. Say there were a total of six mills levied in the DDA district, three mills by the school, and one mill each by the intermediate school district, county and city.

Each mill costs each building owner $10. There are a total of six mills, so each building owner is paying $60 in property taxes. There are 10 buildings so the total amount of property taxes paid in the DDA district is $600. How do the taxing units divvy that up? The school district is levying half of the millage so they get $300. The intermediate school district, city and county are each levying one mill so they each get $100.

Assume in the next year property values go up so that each building in the DDA is worth $30,000 and has an SEV of $15,000. Consequently each mill levied now costs that building owner $15 rather than $10. And each mill levied in the DDA district results in property taxes of $150. If six mills are levied, total property taxes will now be $900 rather than $600.

How will that $900 be split up? The school, intermediate school district, city and county will get the same amount they got the previous year (before the tax increment financing authority or DDA was formed). What will happen to the remaining $300? That will go to the DDA to fund projects in the DDA district.

As property values in the DDA district increase each year, the DDA board receives more money for DDA projects. The school, intermediate school, city and county receive the same amount of money from the DDA district each year no matter what happens to property values.

That in a nutshell is how tax increment financing works and how the DDA derives its money from property tax dollars.

There are a couple of other aspects that need to be mentioned. In addition to the captured funds, businesses in the DDA pay an additional two mills for the program. (That would be two mills at 1982 levels. Over the years the Headlee Amendment has rolled that back to where the figure is now a bit less than 1.5 mills.) That bonding in place by Dec. 31.

That action could have a number of consequences for both the DDA and the school system. Depending on state interpretations, it could zero out (i.e. account for all spending in) the DDA budget until the bonds are paid off. For the school district, it could reduce the amount of funding per pupil the school would receive from the state.

In either version of state school finance reform, the state will guarantee the Charlevoix school system $6,500 per pupil. However, according to Linda Beers, Governmental Specialist with the Michigan Association of School Boards, that $6,500 per pupil is guaranteed only if the school district levies the maximum millage allowed (i.e. six mills on homesteads and 24 mills on second homes and businesses under the sales tax plan or 12 mills on homesteads and 24 mills on second homes and businesses under the income tax plan) and that the school receives the maximum local revenue from that millage.

"Any reduction in the local effort, the state is not going to recognize," Beers said in a Jan. 14 phone interview with the Courier. In other words any money the DDA takes to pay off bonds would reduce the school's $6,500 per pupil.

Beers said that scenario assumes the ballot proposal fails. If it passes, then the DDA can't capture school funds and either has to cancel the project after signing a contract for final engineering or has to find another way to pay for the project.

Beers said she expects that there are governmental units all over the state pushing to beat the March 1 deadline, but since most folks are "still kind of digging their way through" the effects of school finance reform, she's not sure that the "public at large or school districts have caught on" to some of the potential consequences.

OPINIONS

Editorial

As predicted in last week's Courier, David Svanda, Gov. John Engler's Northern Michigan Representative, faced a tough assignment when he spoke to the Charlevoix Rotary Club last Thursday. Svanda was in town to make a pitch for the Engler supported form of school finance, which calls for a sales tax increase, as opposed to the house legislative plan for reform, which calls for an income tax increase.

Svanda seemed like a nice enough guy and his presentation was informative. The only problem was the sales tax increase plan he was trying to make a case for is a dud. It may not be as big a dud as the income tax increase, but that doesn't make it a good thing.

Pitching a bad plan in of itself isn't an easy thing. Svanda's problem was exacerbated by the fact that several members of the local Rotary are highly interested and concerned about education and have taken the time to become informed.

When Svanda finished his presentation and received questions, he received several difficult ones. One Rotarian asked if there's really that much difference between the March 15 sales tax proposal and Proposal A, which voters rejected this past summer? And if there isn't, that much difference, why do voters have to say no and then say no again. Svanda said the climate for school finance reform in Michigan has changed since the defeat of Proposal A. In reality, the only climatic change of significance, that has occurred in the past six months is that this time around if voters don't swallow a sales tax increase they'll be forced to absorb an income tax increase.

Another Rotarian pointed out that for much of Northern Michigan either of the two proposals means higher taxes, but fewer dollars for local educational efforts - essentially taxpayers paying more, but getting less.

Another member of the Rotary asked Svanda to convey to Lansing legislators his dismay because he felt they had put political wins and losses ahead of the core issue of how best to educate Michigan's children.

The questions were asked politely and the discussion was carried on in a civil and intellectual manner. Svanda's presentation and his answers to the questions seemed sincere and were enlightening. He gave a nice pitch, but it's doubtful that he made any converts. Governor Engler and the democrats and senators in Michigan's state legislature don't need to be sending a message to Michigan's taxpayers. They need to receive one. Both school finance proposals are messed up. Try again and this time come up with something better.

Editor,

It's a dream come true! The purchase of the old Loeb Farm building by the friends of Charlevoix County 4H is so right! It is a perfect place for hands-on, educational, experimental, demonstration and sports programs. These were the same approaches used when the barns were first built in 1919. Even a baseball diamond was there and a school was built down the road. I feel the property has come full circle.

When I had the idea of the 4H being at the farm, I found others felt the same, namely Debbie and Chuck McDermott. I hope we, with the generous support of everyone in the community can carry this project to fruition. It is wonderful that people care so much for the youth in this area that they will give them a special place in which, like the Indian prayer, they can "walk" in beauty.

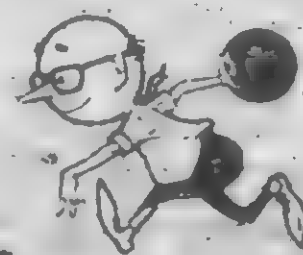

Sincerely,
Gina Lepman

Taxpayers paid for DDA decision

Re: Downtown Development Authority property transaction - Dec. 22nd and Jan. 5th Charlevoix Courier editorials and stories relative to "sale" of a portion of the Kusina property.

Editor,

I hate to differ with a feisty young whipper snapper, especially when he writes with the wisdom of a seasoned old-timer. However, further analysis of the subject DDA transaction would almost indicate that there was no "sale" to the low bidder as stated. Rather it appears someone is being "paid" somewhere in the neighborhood of $70,000 to take the property off the hands of the DDA.

Sound fishy? - Follow along here and see how you view these figures - According to your article (p. 14 Dec. 22nd Courier) you mention the DDA paid some $390,000 for the entire Kusina property. According to the Planning Department this property purchase was comprised basically of two parcels, one measuring roughly 66 ft. wide X 200 Ft. long (13,200 sq. ft.), which is in the process of being developed for vehicular parking and one measuring roughly 70 ft. X 100 ft. long (700 sq. ft.), which is the subject of discussion. The total (20,200 sq. ft.) at $390,000 further equates to a purchase cost in excess of $19,000/sq. ft., and a total cost of roughly $133,000 for the 7000 sq. ft. parcel alone. Thus it cost the DDA (Cost - $133,000, less "sale

"Course the rest of the story is that simply removing the building would have provided a parking area for a minimum of 18 cars at greater than recommended clearances. At the quoted value of "$15,200" for two parking spots (Tamara Burley article - Petoskey News Review - Jan. 7th) that equates to a potential loss of (18X$7600) = $136,800 worth of parking that was already a "bird in hand".

One last quip - I'll bet you a Jimmy ice cream cone against a Lucky Mondae that we'll be buying additional square footage downtown within the next two years - "to alleviate the parking problems" - of course!!

Respectfully,
Bob Gill

Castle Farms purchase brings back many memories

Editor,

The sale of Castle Farms brought back many memories of when it was constructed at the Loeb Farms. Originally this was the Paddock Farm and Bill Paddock and I were schoolmates and I visited the farm many times. Albert Loeb purchased this in the early teens and I remember Robert F. Sloan was the project engineer in the building and most of the stone came from the Onaway stone quarries. Loeb built this as an experimental farm. He was then the president of Sears Roebuck. Loeb Farm had a large herd of dairy cattle and sold milk locally. He also had a cheese factory and raised various types of vegetables. I don't know how many people were employed, but it was a great number. They also fielded a baseball team that won all of their games. A fellow named Tubbs was their pitcher and tried out for the major leagues but threw his arm out and never pitched again. The farm had a large team of Belgium Percherons, as large as the Anheuser Busch stable. They appeared in Charlevoix's Fourth of July parades many times.

It was the show place of northern Michigan, and guided tours were allowed. Albert Loeb has two sons by his first wife, Ernest and Allen. Ernest controlled the area in Chicago, and Allen was an attorney out west. He also had two boys from his second wife, Richard and Thomas as I remember. I remember I caddied for Albert Loeb several times. He was a wonderful gentleman, and unassuming of his wealth. In the early twenties the murder of Bobby Franks by Richard Loeb, (called "Dickie" and Nathan Leopold, both summer residents of Charlevoix, called a halt to all activities on the farm. Loeb's chauffeur John Kling and I were close friends and it was a trying time. The Loeb and Leopold family obtained Clarence Darrow as defense attorney. Many may remember Darrow as the attorney in the so-called monkey trial in Kentucky where William Jennings Bryan defended Christianity. Darrow got the boys off for a life sentence and Dickie was killed while in prison and Nathan Leopold was released and sent to Puerto Rico as a scientist in experimental work. The Loeb family contributed more to Charlevoix than we will ever know and were loved and respected by all. Albert passed away soon after the trial, but Mrs. Loeb continued to reside at the farm until her passing. They will long be remembered by the old-timers. It was Charlevoix's loss.

Christmas Project shows Charlevoix at its best

Editor,

AN OPEN LETTER TO ALL THE "OPEN HEARTED" PEOPLE OF THE CHARLEVOIX AREA:

Last October the Community Christmas Project Board opened our annual search for the names of people who might need a little TLC at Christmas time, and for people who like to celebrate the birth of the Christ Child by providing it in some manner. Through the combined efforts of 140 volunteers and countless others, behind the scenes (many of whom were school children) our search and the results were marvelous.

If you were to glance at our tally sheets as we reviewed the work of the past three months, you would see little black numbers on white sheets of paper. However, if you would see behind them, you would find our neighbors and friends - the elderly who live in our community, the children of needy families, the unemployed and under-employed, the poor and hungry - in short, the very people Christ himself asked us to care for in His name.

Here are some of our "little black numbers": We provided gifts for 171 children and 82 elderly people. Christmas dinners plus extra produce and staples were furnished for 160 households so that all could share in the bounty and blessings of the Christmas season. Overall, we helped in some manner 465 of our neighbors. Many heart-warming stories could be told about our experiences.

We want to thank everyone who assisted us in any way to make Christmas a bit happier for so many people. A very special "thank you" to Reverend Phil Schairbaum and his congregation whose church we use for our work. We kept much of the church building pretty well tied up for a good two weeks in December, and the parishioners were kind enough to work their Christmas schedule and programs around us. Special thanks also are due to St. Mary's Church parishioners who supplied most of the children's gifts and to the Rainbow Shoppe for providing all the fowl. Kudos go to the Middle School boys and girls also, who exceeded their accomplishments of 1992 by bringing 10,862 items of non-perishable food, all delivered to us with dispatch and good cheer. We also appreciate the donations and work of the High School students and the $125 in pennies collected by the Elementary School.

In addition to the hundreds of woman/man hours of mental and physical labor and literally countless food items from many sources, funds in the amount of $3,377.77 were donated to the Christmas Project and other friends to the Food Pantry who consider this an answer to many prayers.

All statistics and responses from people show this to be the biggest and best project ever undertaken by this group. We who sit on the Project Board represent most of the churches in town, and we marvel at the wonderful ecumenical spirit we share and the generosity and kindness of the community. It is small-town America at its best! I'm sure we are expressing the gratitude of the recipients also as we say "God bless you all, now and into the New Year."

Sincerely,
Lucille Marten

Joy - Oldt

Jennifer Lynne Joy and Scott Oldt were married June 5 at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix in a double-ring ceremony officiated by Rev. Dale Ostema. The bride is the daughter of William and Marilyn Joy of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Bob and Virginia Oldt of Johannesburg.

One hundred and fifty guests attended the ceremony. The church pews were decorated with white bows and baskets of fresh flowers adorned the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a candlelight white, satin dress with a train and trimmed with delicate pearls and sequins. Attached to her veil was a bow made by her sister and trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Linda Joy, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Ana Crain, Debbie Harvey and Kathie Franceschetti were bridesmaids. They wore pale pink tea length suits with sweetheart necklines and pearl buttons. They carried bouquets of pale pink roses with baby's breath. Kelly Harvey served as flower girl. She wore a pink dress with ruffles which was made by her grandmother.

Clay Oldt, brother of the groom, served as best man. Robb Oldt, Tim Wilson and Kevin Vida were groomsmen. Anthony Franceschetti was the ringbearer. Bill Joy and Wayne Joy served as ushers.

Music was provided by Arlene Blissett and LeighAnn Lovell who sang duets.

Following the wedding there was a reception at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey. Joan Graves served as hostess at the reception. Prior to the wedding a rehearsal dinner hosted by the parents of the groom took place at Nanny's in Charlevoix.

The bride and groom took a honeymoon cruise to the Bahamas and are living in Deluth, Georgia. The bride is employed with E.D.S. in Atlanta while the groom is employed with Orix Credit Alliance in Atlanta.

Wedding photography was done by Jerry Martinech of Martinech Studio.

Conservancy offers winter environmental program in the snowy outdoors

Now in its third year, the Little Traverse Conservancy's Winter Environmental Education Program will once again take to the snowy outdoors in pursuit of tracks, facts, and animal encounters. The Winter Education Program offers scout troops, school classes and other groups the opportunity to experience aspects of winter ecology that are often overlooked. Identifying animal tracks; looking up close at falling snowflakes; and exploring temperature variations are a few of the activities covered in a one hour hike at one of the Conservancy's Nature Preserves. Other topics might include plant and animal adaptations for winter survival and identifying winter weeds and trees. The Conservancy will modify or present different topics to meet a particular group's needs.

A new addition to the Winter Environmental Education program this year is Native American Storytelling. Specific Native American stories will be told to reflect topics that are covered on our winter hike and will be used to enhance environmental education activities. Stories used include "Turtle Flies South for The Winter," and "The Legend of the Cedar Tree," both based on Native American tales from northern Michigan.

For those participants in the Cheboygan and Emmet County areas, the Winter Environmental Education Program is offered at Round Lake Nature Preserve, just off M-119 between Petoskey and Harbor Springs. For Charlevoix area children the winter program is offered at North Point Nature Preserve north of Charlevoix. The Winter program is offered from January 17 through March 11 with sign-ups available mornings or afternoons, Monday through Friday. There is no charge for this program and to schedule your group please call the Little Traverse Conservancy at 347-0991.

An information workshop and advising sessions for prospective and current students are scheduled at Central Michigan University's Traverse City center Feb. 23, 24 and 28.

CMU offers two degree programs at its Traverse City center on Northwestern Michigan College's Boardman Lake campus: the bachelor of science degree with a major in administration or an option in community development and the master of science in administration degree with a concentration in general administration.

Prospective undergraduate students can attend an information workshop from noon to 1 p.m. Feb. 23. Undergraduate advising appointments will be scheduled from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on both Feb. 23 and 24. Graduate student advising appointments will be scheduled from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Feb. 28.

Learning packages, correspondence courses, weekend and evening classes, and credit for relevant prior learning help make CMU's off-campus degree programs accessible to adult students.

For more information or to make an advising appointment, call Mary Swartz, CMU Traverse City program administrator, (616) 922-0537.

St. Mary School students participate in international exchange of art work Charlevoix St. Mary School students are participating in an exciting A.R.T. (Americans and Russians Together), Exchange project.

A.R.T. is designed to promote mutual understanding and cooperation between Russia and the United States through children's art.

The program gives children a chance to broaden their horizons beyond the classrooms, develop artistic skills, and acquire international friendships by exhibiting and exchanging art work with schools in Russia. Students' art work and personal creative bookmarks will be presented to the Russian schools in the SPIRIT OF PEACE and FRIENDSHIP.

It is through the Monica McHugh Miller Art Memorial Fund that youngsters at St. Mary's are given this opportunity to learn more about themselves and the children of Russia.

Economic Alliance names new directors

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance board of directors elected officers and reviewed the 1993 accomplishments at the annual meeting held Thursday, Jan. 6, at North Central Michigan College, Petoskey. A live interactive video demonstration with MSU Extension staff from the MSU campus was presented to explain the resources available to Northern Michigan businesses.

Elected to office were:
President Robert M. Boldrey, Dean of Continuing Education, North Central Michigan College.
Vice-President Mike Hansen, Manager of Member and Public Relations, Top O' Michigan Electric Co.

Secretary Peter Garwood, Antrim Co. Planner/Coordinator.
Treasurer W.R. Frykberg, Boyne

City Manager.

Parliamentarian Mike Hills, Hills & Associates, Petoskey.

The mission of the Economic Alliance is to enhance the economy in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties by creating and retaining quality jobs. In order to carry out this mission, the Economic Alliance acts as a one-stop resource center by providing information or referrals on business-related matters. The Economic Alliance also provides long-term business assistance services to companies that are starting up, expanding or relocating here. Assistance is provided to local companies in order to prepare them for high quality development or redevelopment.

Charlevoix looks at regulating cable TV rates.

By L. Scott Swanson
The City of Charlevoix has joined with several other Charlevoix County communities in an effort to regulate cable TV rates. Currently the municipalities which include the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, the village of Boyne Falls and some of the townships surrounding the communities, have acquired rate information from the cable TV company and will have that information analyzed by a Grand Rapids law firm and a cable TV analyst. The total cost of that analysis will be between $1,000 and $2,000 and will be shared by the communities.

According to City Attorney Jim Young if the analyst finds the rates are within Federal Communications Commission (FCC) guidelines, then the city will at least know the rates people are paying are justified. If the analyst says the rates aren't justified, then the municipalities have the right to request FCC hearings in an effort to have the FCC force rate reductions. Currently Charlevoix residents pay $9.93 a month for basic cable service (11 channels) and $11.74 for expanded basic (an additional 13 channels).

"What we're hoping is that this will be a first step for municipalities regulating cable TV in Charlevoix County to work together," Young said. "By working together, hopefully when it comes time to renew franchise agreements, we can get better agreements."

The City of Charlevoix signed a franchise agreement in January of 1986 which expires in 2001. However, Young noted that there's nothing preventing the cable TV company and the municipalities from agreeing to negotiate a new contract prior to 2001.

Cable TV in Charlevoix is provided by TCI of Greater Michigan

Inc. a subsidiary of TCI Inc. one of the largest cable TV companies in the world.

Mark Gerhardt, General Manager of TCI of Greater Michigan Inc., says Charlevoix's rates are within the FCC guidelines. However, he notes that the guidelines are rather complicated and vary from area to area based on a lot of different criteria. That can muddle rates. For example, one piece of criteria used in determining rate guidelines is the number of customers served. In Charlevoix due to seasonal shifts in population, that varies from summer to winter. Theoretically, the acceptable rate guideline would change from summer to winter, but it's impractical to change rates with the season. Gerhardt says the benchmark guideline for Charlevoix is 90.3 cents per channel which makes Charlevoix rates right on the mark.

In regard to the municipalities'

efforts to regulate cable rates, Gerhardt said what it amounts to is the industry now being regulated by both local and federal authorities. He also noted that what the city is doing in requesting rate information and an analysis is something any customer could do individually. Gerhardt said TCI of Greater Michigan serves approximately 60 communities and about 25 of them are, like Charlevoix, pursuing some form of local regulation as provided for in the 1992 cable TV act passed by Congress.

Gerhardt said that ironically increased regulation is coming into the industry at the same time as increased competition. He said that within a few years companies such as Ameritech will be offering information and entertainment services similar to what cable TV offers, over phone lines. Direct satellite systems are also being developed. He said that even now, he considers any type of entertainment as competition.

In addition to competition, there are going to be technology driven changes in the industry. As an example, companies are working on digital compression technology which could expand channel selection in this area to 150 to 200 channels.

"There's a race to get to that point," Gerhardt said. But he added, "Technology has a funny way of working. I think it's going to take a little time."

Gerhardt said that even if technology quickly reaches a point where it can provide more things, it may take people some time to adapt. For example it would be nothing but frustrating for someone to know that something they want to watch is on TV somewhere, but not be able to find it.

"It's got to be customer friendly," Gerhardt said.

Schaperkottler led the Swishers with eight points while Jessie Murray scored 10 points for the Sonics.

The Lakers were in show time form, beating the Lucky Ten 28-12. Jennifer McClellan and Meghan Vogel each had eight points for the Lakers while Shandra Spensley had eight points for the Lucky Ten.

Junior High Division:

The Foxes beat the Sharpshooters 23-18. Andrea Arnold scored 8 points for the Foxes while Jamie Gowell scored 10 for the Sharpshooters.

The Gems defeated the Bulls 32-19 behind 40 points from Ann Marie Terryberry. Meghan McFarland had seven points for the Bulls.

The Rejectors beat the Ten Maniacs 36-24. Amanda Eaton had 19 points for the Rejectors while Melissa Milbrant had 10 points for the Maniacs.

The Bombers defeated the Crusaders 37-32. Angie Pötter had 17 points for the Bombers while Lisa Parrish also had 17 for the Crusaders.

Charlevoix Yacht Club schedules a Robert Burns dinner

Yes, there will be poetry and bag pipes

What with the weather the way it's been, you can't even think about going sailing. Yet, the people of the Charlevoix Yacht Club now have this neat building and they like hanging out together so they've got to think of something to do in the off-season.

So here's what they've got planned.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club will host a Burns Dinner in honor of the birthday of Scottish poet Robert Burns. Burns' birthday was some time around this part of the year. The dinner will be Saturday, Jan. 22. As part of the festivities, Bob Clock will read selected poems by Burns and Bruce Stewart will play the bag pipes. Clock and Stewart both have birthdays some time during the course of the year too, but this dinner isn't in honor of their birthdays. It's in honor of Robert Burns' birthday and Clock and Stewart are just helping celebrate it. Clock will read some of the older Burns' poems since Burns hasn't written much lately. And Stewart will play traditional bag pipe music since you don't usually find much bag pipe music rising like a wailing rocket up the modern pop charts.

The dinner will feature a traditional Scottish menu. Smoked salmon will be served as an appetizer followed by Cockie Eekie soup and THE Haggis, which is Scotland's national dish, and pheasant steak pie. Dessert will be gooseberry fool. The dinner is being catered by Tad's.

The event is open to the public. However reservations are limited to the first 70 people. The cost is $22.50 per person. The event will take place at the Yacht Club building on Ferry Avenue. Reservations may be made by phoning Jim Stewart at 547-5353. Those attending are advised that this is going to be one of those rare occasions where you can wear a lot of plaid or tartan stuff and not run the risk of having a whole lot of people look at you funny.

Wrestlers battle the flu among other adversaries

Charlevoix's wrestling team faced multiple opponents last week. The Rayders fared reasonably well against Onaway and Grayling despite being weakened by a far nastier opponent - the flu.

In a three-team meet at home Jan. 13 the Rayders beat Onaway 43-32, but lost to Grayling 44-26.

Double winners for Charlevoix were Jason Hughes with two pins at 119 pounds; David Morales with a pin and a decision at 135 pounds; and Keith Parish with a pin and a decision at heavyweight.

Individual results from the two matches were as follows:

Charlevoix 43, Onaway 32.
103: Rob Reiter (CX) won by forfeit.
112: Double forfeit.
119: Jason Hughes (CX) won by pin 1:46.

125: Onaway won by forfeit.
130: John Wagner (CX) won by pin 1:26.
135: David Morales (CX) won by decision 14-5.
140: Kyle Russell (CX) lost on a pin 3:40.
145: Onaway won by forfeit.
152: Jason Metiva (CX) lost by decision 11-4.
160: Ron Haggard (CX) won by forfeit.
171: Dan Harris (CX) lost on a pin 26 seconds.

171: Harris (CX) lost by decision 3-2.
189: Skippergosh (CX) won by forfeit.
Hyw: Parrish won by decision.

Charlevoix's next match will be this Saturday at home as the Rayders host the annual Charlevoix Invitational Wrestling Tournament.

Basketball team falls to 1-6 with 67-46 loss to St. Ignace

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team looked all right in the first half Friday night against St. Ignace. But in the second half the wheels came off for the Rayders and St. Ignace rolled to a 67-46 win.

Charlevoix played well in the first quarter, building a 15-11 lead by the quarter's end. The pace of the game was quick. St. Ignace opened with a full court press, but later in the quarter dropped it. Junior forward Charlie Pop played a strong quarter. Senior forward David Dobulis, who along with Pop provided the Rayders' only interior offense, picked up two fouls.

In the opening minutes of the second quarter, Charlevoix's offense was stagnant. Senior guard Don Jess hit two three-point shots just before half-time to salvage an otherwise lackluster quarter. St. Ignace took a 27-25 lead into half-time.

St. Ignace took over the game in the third quarter. In basketball, second shots are like bullets in a gun-fight. If both parties have them, things stay interesting. But if only one side gets them and the other doesn't, well, then death comes quickly. St. Ignace was quicker to the glass throughout the evening. When St. Ignace didn't hit their first shot, they followed with a second. On the other hand, when Charlevoix missed their first shot, St. Ignace got the rebound and all too frequently beat the Rayders to the other end of the floor. The St. Ignace fast break was impressive in the second half. The Saints filled the lanes and passed well. By the end of the third quarter, Charlevoix trailed 47-36.

The fourth quarter was much the same as the third. St. Ignace rebounded and ran while Charlevoix just couldn't get their offense functioning.

Individually, Dobulis had 12 points and five rebounds for the Rayders. Pop, whose play was a real bright spot for the Rayders, had 10 points and five rebounds. Jess had 10 points and three steals. The loss dropped the Rayders' season record to 1-6.

Charlevoix dominated the junior varsity game, winning 59-35. George McClellan led the Rayders with 14 points while Gary Leitner added 11.

Charlevoix's next game will be at Kalkaska, Friday, Jan. 21.

Matt Norton (43) and the remainder of the Rayders found St. Ignace players tough to shoot over in a 67-46 loss Friday evening.

County budget to increase by 4.5 percent

Most county employees receive 4 percent salary increase

By Laurie Lounsbury

A four percent raise for all Charlevoix County employees was one contributing factor to an overall budget increase of 4.25 percent in the proposed 1994 Charlevoix County budget. Total revenues and expenditures will increase from $4,977,938 in 1993 to $5,199,370 in 1994.

Prosecutor Richard May was one employee to receive a raise of more than 4 percent. His salary was increased to $60,000, which was slightly more than 4 percent. His assistant prosecuting attorney Mary Beth Kur received a 9.5 percent increase to $40,000 a year. May also went before the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners to request a part-time assistant prosecutor, at a cost of $25,000 a year, and a summer intern for $3,700. The commissioners approved the requests.

The county will see a savings in money spent for court appointed attorneys. The county hired a consortium of attorneys including Gordon Boydston, John Michael, Mark Muwak, and Kraag Lieberman. The consortium will be paid a flat fee of $120,000 a year. Last year the county spent $167,556 on court appointed attorneys.

A new item on the budget is a legislative committee, which is comprised of the sanitary appeals committee, the social services board, and the fair board. The three committees will receive a projected $14,000 in per diem and expense money. Commissioner Phil Johnson attempted to curtail the expenses incurred by the social services board at the last commissioner meeting. The board received $6,601 in per diem and expenses in 1993. Johnson moved that the board be restricted to $1,200 a year, which would allow for two meetings a month. When Johnson's motion failed, Commissioner Howard Hosler moved that the board be restricted to 30 meetings a year at a per diem rate of $50 per meeting, plus mileage and expenses. Hosler's Motion passed. "It's a step in the right direction, a compromise," Commissioner Richard Gillespie said after the meeting.

Bodem to visit Jan. 21

State Rep. Beverly A. Bodem, R-Alpena, will be in Charlevoix and Boyne City on Friday, Jan. 21 to discuss any concerns residents have regarding State government.

Bodem will be at the Charlevoix County Courthouse in Charlevoix from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and will be at the Boyne City municipal building annex from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

For additional information, you may phone Bodem at (517) 373-0833.

No, this pile of snow was not photographed this winter. This photo is a Courier file photo from 1982. Several people have noted that this winter's weather is comparable to that of January, 1982.

Although snow banks from downtown curbs and parking lots have been hauled away at least once, it hasn't taken long for them to accumulate again.

Freshman basketball team wins

Charlevoix's freshman basketball team won its sixth straight game Jan. 13 with a 59-54 win at Grayling. The freshman Rayders are now 6-1 on the season.

Charlevoix trailed through the first three quarters, but rallied in the fourth quarter for the win. The Rayders got off to a slow start and fell behind 14-9 after the first quarter and 27-19 at the half. In the third quarter the Rayders cut the Viking lead to five at 40-35.

Charlevoix carried their momentum into the fourth quarter outscoring Grayling 24-14.

David Manker led Charlevoix with 22 points while Marc Jacobs and Scott Smith each added 13.

State senators offer differing views on school finance reform

Senator Jack Welborn: Ballot and statutory plans are just different ways of increasing taxes

Many people are asking me how I'm going to vote on the school finance reform ballot proposal, scheduled for March 15. I don't know. In fact, I don't really want to think about it. It's sort of like deciding whether to call Dr. Kevorkian or use my own gun. As a taxpayer, I'm going to lose either way. I think both tax options are bad, and that's the reason I voted against them.

Accountants, lawyers, and other analysts are still trying to interpret the finer points of the tax options agreed to by a majority of the Legislature and the Governor on Christmas Eve, but the bottom line is already clear — Whether voters choose a 50 percent hike in the state sales tax or a 30 percent raise in the state income tax, the result is going to be a loss for taxpayers and another gain for government, with no reason to expect improved educational quality or a reduction in teacher union control.

Some other negative features were also built into the compromise which wiped out the historic property tax cut of last July. A vote for escalating the sales tax is also a vote for expanding legalized gambling, through the use of numbers video games in bars. Either way, businesses are going to have an increase of 24 mills in property taxes. If the sales tax fails, there will also be an increase in the Single Business Tax. If the sales tax passes, the transfer tax in real estate sales will be increased to 2 percent, but if the sales tax fails the real estate tax is increased 1 percent. If the sales tax passes, residential property owners get a 6-mill tax reinstatement, 12 mills if the sales tax fails. Either way, the 3-mill Intermediate School District tax is being reinstated on all property owners. Also, the cigarette tax goes up to 75 cents a pack if the sales tax passes; 40 cents a pack if it is defeated; non-cigarette tobacco products go up 16 percent on the wholesale price no matter what happens on the ballot proposal.

If you're confused about the tax options, bear with me.

What's really confusing is the way K-12 funding increased over a billion dollars in the final compromise. I had introduced an amendment, which the Senate passed, that held K-12 spending to $9.6 billion. The House raised K-12 funding to $10.1 billion. Then in negotiations between House and Senate leadership and the Governor, a "compromise" was reached whereby K-12 public schools will get $10.6 billion. On top of that, they threw in another $600 million for the "transition period," for a total of $11.2 billion. If I could have foreseen the way the opportunity of a lifetime for educational reform and tax relief was going to be compromised away, I would not have supported last July's property tax cut amendment.

It has been customary in recent years for Republicans to blame Democrats for blocking tax relief and protecting the MEA teachers' union. However, it is getting increasingly difficult to hold water with that excuse. As a Michigan businessman put it in a December 21 letter to one of the Republican legislative leaders —

"It's amazing, the excuses one hears when positive change becomes impeded... I have heard on numerous occasions, 'Just wait until we Republicans gain control' positive change will then occur. Well, sir, you are in control. The Republicans have a majority in the Senate. The Republicans have control of the governor's office, and the Republicans are in the best shape that they will probably ever be in the House of Representatives."

Actually, the Republicans are in better shape today than when the businessman wrote his letter. On January 7, a House Democrat announced his resignation, effective Feb. 16, after pleading guilty to turning in a phony travel voucher while he was with the House Fiscal Agency. Last November, two House Democrats won mayoral elections, leaving Republicans with a 55-52 advantage in the House until special elections are held.

At a recent meeting with constituents, a Republican member of the house made mention of the new Republican majority, saying, "Now we can get to cost-containment issues" in education. I look forward to that. Forgive me, though, for being skeptical. Only a small handful of Republicans opposed the final tax-increase bill which passed the House. As four of them said in a joint statement, "Lansing is saying to the people: accept one set of taxes or we will force you to accept another set of taxes — without substantive school reform, without cost containment, and without budget cuts in all areas of state government..." Quoting Shakespeare, they noted, "There's small choice in rotten apples."

During negotiations, you couldn't tell the difference between the Democrats and the Republicans in the House leadership. The Republican leaders pushed House conservatives aside and dealt directly with the Democrats. Nevertheless, I was pleased to hear a House Republican say, "Now we can get to cost-containment issues," even though he was not among the handful who opposed the "rotten apples" legislation, because now Republicans have the clear majority and nobody else to blame.

Senator Dan DeGrow: New finance proposals may not be perfect, but they're a step forward

Improving the quality of our schools and finding a new way to finance education are issues about which all Michigan citizens have strong opinions. Each citizen has his or her own dream as to what our school system should look like, and when that ideal is compared to the new system, a new system inevitably comes up short. But the true test is whether the new system is an improvement over the old system, and I believe the answer is a definite yes.

When I supported Senate Bill 1, which eliminated school operating property taxes last summer, I had five goals for a new system. Those five goals were 1) lowering property taxes, especially on homesteads; 2) improving the quality of education; 3) improving equity in terms of per pupil spending; 4) providing adequate funding for education; and 5) reducing the number of millage elections. Using those goals as the criteria for change, I believe the new system is a significant improvement over our old system.

Lower Property Taxes. Regardless of whether the ballot question passes or fails, we will have significantly lower property taxes, especially on homesteads. Currently, the average school millage in this state is 33.8 mills. Under the statutory plan, all but a small number of districts will have only 12 mills on homesteads. If the sales tax passes, that will drop to 6 mills on homesteads. Either scenario represents a huge drop in property taxes. Further, individual assessments would be capped at 5 percent of inflation, whichever is less, with approval of the ballot proposal.

Quality Education. The second goal of the new plan was to improve the quality of education. There are a number of items in the package to help meet the goal.

The number of hours students must be in class is increased by 20 percent over the next five years.

Pre-school funding for at-risk children is something we know works. The new plan will include an additional $15 million dollars each year for this program until all eligible children are covered by the program.

An additional $230 million has been included in the 1994-95 budget for at-risk children who are in school. School districts can use these funds for instructional pro-

Michigan School Financing Options

According to agreements reached by the Michigan Legislature on December 24, 1993, Michigan voters will have the opportunity to vote March 15, 1994 on how taxes should be allocated to fund Michigan schools. The ballot plan (i.e. sales tax increase) goes into effect if voters approve the measure. The back-up plan (i.e. the income tax increase) will go into effect if voters reject the ballot plan.

Current Taxes	Ballot Plan	Back-Up Plan
Income Tax (currently 4.6 %)	Lowered to 4.4 %	Raised to 6 %
Personal Exemption on State Income Tax (Currently $2,100)	Remains at $2,100	Raised to $3,000
Sales Tax (Currently 4 %)	Raised to 6 %	Remains at 4 %
Single Business Tax (Currently 2.35 %)	Remains at 2.35 %	Raised to 2.75 %
Cigarette Tax (Currently 25 cents per pack)	Raised to 75 cents per pack	Raised to 40 cents per pack
Property Taxes
Homestead	6 mills	12 mills
Business, second homes, cottages etc.	24 mills	24 mills
Local Millage Option	3 mills	3 mills
Real Estate Transfer Tax (Minor fee currently imposed)	Raised to 2 %	Raised to 1 %
Out-of-state phone calls (Currently 4 %)	Raised to 6 %	Remains at 4 %
Assessments	Capped at 5 % or rate of inflation.	No cap

that became law is the most expensive in the nation. These schools will help foster innovation and competition and will help serve students who feel their needs have not been adequately addressed in the traditional public school system.

Equity in Spending. For years, Michigan has had an education system riddled with spending disparities. Under the new plan, we are on the road to correcting this serious flaw. Every student in this state is immediately brought up to at least $4,200 per pupil. Within a short time, excluding a small number of wealthy school districts, the difference between the wealthiest and poorest school districts should be reduced to $1,500. Under any criteria, the new plan has improved equity in this state.

Adequate Funding. The budget for K-12 education next year contains $10.2 billion — a $550 million increase over this year. The 5.5 percent increase for K-12 education is more than any department in state government is scheduled to receive, with the exception of the Department of Corrections. Judicial mandates and a growing prison population have required us to increase that budget by 6 percent. While it is true that schools will pay their increased Social Security and retirement costs out of the increase, those are costs the state has paid in the past, thereby reducing the money available for education.

Millage Elections. The last goal was that of having fewer millage elections. For years, K-12 school districts have been unfairly burdened with being the only unit of government in the state to constantly face the electorate on money issues. The new plan will not eliminate millage elections, but it will lessen the number of elections and the amount of dollars being sought. Under the statutory plan, voters would be asked to approve 12 mills on all property, with county allocated mills for K-12 counting towards those 12 mills. Most counties in the state allocate 7 or 8 mills for school operating purposes. Thus, voters would be asked to approve 18 mills on non-homesteads. If the ballot proposal passes, there will be no requirement for homeowners to vote any school millage on their homes.

Future millage elections are necessary because the constitution limits the amount of dollars that can be raised at the state level, thus, requiring some funds to be raised at the local level. While it is not a perfect plan as there will still be millage elections, they will be far fewer and for less.

Finally, voters will have the voice in determining how the schools are funded. On March 15, voters will again be asked if the state sales and use taxes should be raised from 4 to 6 cents with the additional 2 cents dedicated to the School Aid Fund.

Upon approval of the ballot proposal, homestead property taxes would be cut to 6 mills. An assessment cap would limit future increases beginning in 1995 to 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less. Approval of the ballot plan would also roll back the income tax from 4.6 percent to 4.4 percent.

If the ballot proposal fails, a statutory plan would take effect in which homeowners would pay a 12 mill statewide property tax. Additionally, the state income tax would rise from 4.4 percent to 6 percent, a 30 percent increase starting in May and the single business tax would increase to 2.75 percent.

I believe we have largely accomplished what we set out to do last summer — provide homeowners with long-awaited relief from shouldering the burden of funding education and provide schools with more money and better tools to carry out their crucial role in educating our children. While more could be done for quality education, cost containment in the education arena, and the reduction of the overall tax burden, the new plan points this state down a path far preferable to the old system.

...an explanation of DDA financing

money theoretically pays for DDA operational costs. Charlevoix's DDA has used that money to pay the cost of hiring a downtown coordinator and to pay former Congressman Bob Davis to lobby to keep a U.S. Coast Guard ship stationed in Charlevoix.

In addition to receiving revenue increases due to rising property values, the DDA also receives a revenue increase every time there is a millage increase. For example when school district voters approved a millage increase for school technology, the school received revenue from technology millage levied against 1982 property values, but the DDA receives additional revenues from technology millage levied against DDA property values, which have been added since 1982.

In 1991 the city agreed to rebate a portion of those kinds of revenues to the county and school districts and to end the DDA in 1998. However a provision in that agreement said the agreement would be nullified if the state approved some form of school finance reform. The state has done that and consequently the 1991 agreement is void.

DDA hurries to borrow $1.74 million for projects

School finance reform creates March 1 deadline

By L. Scott Swanson

If a March 15 State ballot proposal to raise sales taxes fails and a legislative proposal to raise income taxes is implemented instead, then the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will move quickly to borrow up to $1.74 million to fund improvements in Bridge Park, East Park and at the building housing the Harbor Master and Chamber of Commerce. If the ballot proposal passes, then all bets are off. Charlevoix doesn't borrow the money and the projects are put off for a while.

What does school finance reform have to do with the Charlevoix

DDA borrowing money to fix parks, you ask? Surprisingly, a lot more than you might think. City Attorney Jim Young, who has been consulting with attorneys who specialize in borrowing through the sale of bonds, explained the connection at a special Jan. 18 meeting of the DDA.

The Charlevoix DDA is funded by property taxes derived from millage levied by the city, county, local school system and intermediate school system.

On Dec. 24, the state legislature voted to give Michigan voters a choice between two different school finance reform proposals. Voters will make their decision March 15. The March 15 ballot proposal proposes raising sales taxes to offset a decrease in property taxes. The second proposal, commonly referred to as the legislative proposal, will go into effect if the ballot proposal is rejected and instead of raising sales taxes will raise income taxes to offset a decrease in property taxes. That's what's at the core of the two proposals. Will a decrease in property taxes be offset by sales taxes (i.e. ballot proposal) or by income taxes (i.e. legislative proposal)?

Beyond the core questions of the school finance reform proposals, there are several other ramifications. It is those ramifications which have the DDA scurrying and holding special meetings to beat deadlines.

As Young explained to DDA members, if the ballot proposal (i.e. sales tax increase) passes, then the DDA will no longer be able to capture money from school millage for DDA projects. However if the ballot proposal fails and consequently the legislative proposal (i.e. income tax increase) is implemented, then the DDA will be able to continue to capture money from school millage under certain conditions.

Storm causes dozens of traffic accidents

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department deputies are about as happy as anybody to finally see a break in the weather. According to Sheriff George Lasater, in the 12 day period which concluded Friday, Jan. 21 deputies spent hours out in the cold policing traffic accidents.

Although there were six personal injury accidents involving a total of 22 cars, fortunately nobody was seriously injured. Lasater attributed that good fortune to drivers knowing enough to slow down in bad driving conditions. "I think everyone was creeping," he said.

One of the worst accidents occurred Tuesday, Jan. 18 south of Charlevoix on US 31 near Ferry Road. That accident involved eight cars and three trucks. Visibility at the time of the accident was next to nothing.

In addition to the six personal injury accidents, deputies also policed 33 property damage accidents, 14 vehicles in ditches, 15 vehicles in snowdrifts, two personal injury snowmobile accidents and three property damage snowmobile accidents.

Lasater described last week as exhausting and said that in terms of winter traffic problems it was probably the worst in the area for at least the past five years.

...DDA to borrow $1.742 million for three projects

of school finance reform may be repaid through the continued capture of property tax dollars generated by school millage, in conjunction with tax dollars generated by city, county and intermediate school district millage.

According to Young, in order to be considered a pipeline project, a project must have been included in the DDA's project plan prior to Aug. 31, 1993; have a final design contract signed by March 1, 1994; and bonds to fund the project must be sold (i.e. the money must be borrowed) by Dec. 31, 1994.

The Charlevoix DDA project list contains 23 different projects, all in place prior to Aug. 31, 1993. At the

Jan. 18 special meeting, DDA members discussed which of the projects they wanted to move quickly on to beat the March 1 and Dec. 31 deadlines. They settled on three. A thumbnail description of each follows:

*Bridge-Park plan - cost $1.85 million. Of that cost, the DDA proposes to borrow $1.1 million. The remaining $750,000 would be paid for with a grant which the Beaver Island Boat Company has applied for and hopes to receive in the fall. The plan includes construction of an underbridge walkway, dock improvements, shifting buildings off the shoreline into a building which would be placed in the Bridge Park hillside, and redoing the alley and parking area. Bridge Park is the park just south of the channel on the east side of Bridge Street.

*Marina restrooms and Chamber building improvements - cost $567,000. The entire amount would be borrowed. This plan would construct new restrooms for the municipal marina and create additional space for the Harbor Master and Chamber of Commerce.

*East Park improvements - cost $75,000. The entire amount would be borrowed. Deteriorating walkways and shuffle board courts will be replaced, a sprinkler system installed and various other improvements made.

In order to move forward quickly on the projects, the DDA also approved foregoing the taking of bids and authorized City Manager Mike Wiesner to work out prices with design firms he recommended for the projects. The firms Wiesner recommended are: a combined effort by McNamee, Porter & Seelye and Site Planning for the Bridge Park project; Jack Begrow and Associates for the Chamber and Marina building; and Performance Engineering for the East Park project as well as Veteran's Park, a Clinton Street parking lot and a concept for work at the east end of Mason Street. Wiesner will be assisted by retired engineer El Kaiser in negotiating a fair price with the recommended firms.

There will be provisions in the contracts stating that if the March 15 ballot proposal passes, and consequently the DDA can no longer capture funds derived from school millage, then the contracts will be cancelled.

Will DDA borrowing cost local school?

As the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) rapidly takes steps to borrow money so that revenue from school millage can continue to be used to fund city improvement projects, the obvious question is will this cost the school money? Although people working in education are viewing the process with some skepticism, the answer to the question appears to be no, DDA borrowing won't cost the local school system any money.

At a Jan. 18 DDA special meeting, City Attorney Jim Young, who has been consulting with attorneys who specialize in municipal bond issues, told the DDA that the state

Contrary to public opinion, the ostrich does not bury his head in the sand! Just ask veterinarian, Dr. Baillargeon, who says this is a fallacy and he should know.

But let's start at the beginning. In 1991 Dr. Baillargeon, his wife, Marilyn and Cheryl Albert, the owner of the Northern Pet Center became partners in the Blue Water Ostrich Farm located on Old U.S. 31.

An ostrich farm in Charlevoix? You better believe it! There are now 40 birds on the 28-acre ranch, and in case you didn't know it, this has become a new growing livestock industry in the United States and Canada in the last few years. Thus far the supply, we are told, has never caught up with the demand.

And why the demand for a 350 pound ostrich one may well wonder. Primarily meat; hide, feathers and other byproducts such as toenails and eyelashes.

As for the meat, the flavor is delectable, similar to beef with the same high protein and low fat content, and only half the calories. The red meat sells for as high as $25 a pound and you may find it on the menus of gourmet restaurants in Europe as well as the United States.

The luxurious leather hide is soft, supple, and resists cracking. It is made into the finest boots, for example, as well as wallets and briefcases.

The ostrich gives off 2.2 pounds of feathers per year, which are used not only as fashion accessories, costumes, pens and the like, but surprisingly also as dusters in the delicate computer industry. Feathers sell for anywhere from $50 to $1,000 a pound depending on the quality.

The ostrich's long eyelashes are used in manufacture of paint brushes, and the two toenails that each bird grows are ground down and used as an abrasive in the jewelry industry.

Ostriches don't come cheap. A proven breeding pair can run as high as $75,000, but please be warned, these 7' to 8' tall birds can also be intimidating. Not only can they run at 40 miles an hour for 20 minutes, but their defense is in the powerful legs and feet which can upon impact, disembowel a lion. In addition to the natural defenses of this bird, the owners, to prevent theft, insert a microchip about the size of a grain of rice under the skin of the bird's head. The chip contains a ten digit number and letter combination to identify each bird. This identification is also useful when birds are boarded out on ranches, which is frequently done by investors in this growing industry.

The downside of ostrich ranching is that one has the daily care and feeding of the birds, plus there currently is a lack of packing plants and tanneries to process hides, feathers and the most promising consumer product — ostrich meat.

Chances are this lack will be corrected since the ostrich has existed for a long time, going back as far as seven million years. Even the Bible mentions the regal bird in the days of Job. The ostrich can live in any climate. They graze like a cow in the summer, and the male will dig a nest in a sandy area to cradle the female's eggs. Her eggs range from 3 to 3-1/2 pounds in size, and the gestation period is 42 days. They average 28 offspring a year, which helps make ostrich ranching even more appealing.

But where did the notion originate that the ostrich buries his head in the sand? Dr. Baillargeon explains simply that when the bird is sleeping, they stretch their necks out flat on the ground, and this practice might give one the impression that their small head is buried in the sand. So now you know.

Editor's notes

For those of you who missed it, the local Kuk Sol Won club, under the direction of Kevin Janisse, hosted a martial arts tournament at the Charlevoix Middle School this past Saturday. (See related story and photos on pages 14 and 15.) Supposedly they're planning on hosting another one next year. If you've never been to a martial arts tournament and you get the chance to attend one some time, by all means go.

The tournaments are interesting. The thing that really stands out is that everyone goes overboard to be polite. This can be attributed to a number of factors: A. Most of the martial arts were founded in Eastern cultures which place a high value on civility; B. Some people view practitioners of martial arts as thugs who just like to beat people up. While that may be true for a minority of martial artists in a few undisciplined clubs, the majority of clubs (Charlevoix's included) and the people in them have no tolerance for that and in fact go overboard to be pleasant and dispel that stereotype; C. When you're talking to someone at a martial arts tournament, you generally have no idea of their skill level. They may be some beginner or they may be somebody who could break your face without breaking a sweat. Consequently it's best to just be pleasant and not go taking chances by annoying people.

Has this been a brutal winter or what? Last week the channel was frozen. I was talking with some guys about it last Thursday and we couldn't remember the last year that happened. And the road conditions last week were terrible. Tuesday, US 31 was bad north of town and worse to the south. Blowing snow reduced visibility and then if you did get stuck it was bone-chilling cold. Last Friday may have been the worst day. Despite the much appreciated efforts of plow truck drivers, roads to the south of town kept plugging up. Marion Center Road, near the township hall, was the scene of at least one accident and several people ended up stuck in that area.

My truck came to a halt in a drift on Black Road on the hill just toward town from Johnsons' and Bonars'. I was on my way out to Jerry and Donna Himebauch's to take a picture of a barn roof that had collapsed under the weight of snow. As I drove along, I couldn't see too well because of the blowing snow. Suddenly and without warning (which is the way this kind of thing so often happens) I felt my truck going into a snow drift which had migrated from an adjacent field out into my lane. Until I hit the drift, I just thought my visibility was limited. Once I hit the drift, I found out what limited visibility really is.

The stop was completely unanticipated and fairly abrupt. It didn't hurt the truck and the only damage it did to me was to annoy me. After I came to a stop, I tried to get started again, first forward and then backward.

I didn't have much luck going either direction.

I'd just gotten out of the truck and was looking the situation over and trying to develop a Plan B when a big truck came along and pulled me out.

After being pulled out, I decided I wouldn't go on out to the end of Black Road, but instead I'd turn around and come back to town. I figured that barn roof would still be off come Monday and maybe the weather would be nicer where it'd make a better picture.

Even though the ground is covered with snow in northern Michigan, at least it's stable. That's more than you can say about the ground in California.

This Sunday afternoon is the big day in sports. Yes, that's right. A much anticipated athletic endeavor — the Charlevoix Rotary's cross country ski outing at Camp Daggett for local Rotarians and their families. Sure, you football fans may have thought I was talking about the Super Bowl, but no. It's a rematch of the Buffalo Bills and the Dallas Cowboys and I don't like either of those teams. I don't even think I'm going to watch.

Mount McSauba is no place for a demolition derby

Editor,

My family and I live near Mt. McSauba. We consider ourselves lucky to have this beautiful natural area available to us all year and are grateful to the City of Charlevoix for maintaining such a fine recreation facility. The new lighted cross-country ski trails are a real plus.

In previous years we have looked forward to the weekend of the Mt. McSauba Sno Challenge and planned special events around it. I was disappointed, however, to learn that one of the events being planned as part of this year's Sno Challenge is a Demolition Derby. This kind of event has nothing to do with winter sports and is inconsistent with the "natural area" designation of Mt. McSauba and North Point. I believe such an event poses a hazard to the environment as well as to the spectators in such a small area. Certainly a demolition derby would be better if held in a larger, non-residential area with adequate parking and facilities.

I urge the City of Charlevoix to reconsider sponsoring this event.

Sincerely,
Tom Kenney

There's a reason for changes in dog tags

Editor,

Dear Zeke, Bick and Tate Wallick,

We're sorry you don't like your new, bright and shiny 1994 Charlevoix County dog license tags.

I know they try to give us a new look every year so the animal control office can distinguish the old tags from new. They're just human and don't realize that bigger isn't always better. I'm sure they'll try harder next year.

Hamilton's Loeb Farm recollections were enjoyable reading

Editor,

The following letter is in response to Ralph Hamilton's article (in last week's Courier) on Loeb Farm.

Dear Ralph:
Your letter about Loeb Farm was great - but you made one error. My grandfather, Albert Loeb, had only one wife, Anna. Their four sons were Allan, Ernest, Dick and Tom. My father, Ernest, ran the Farm from its beginning until the livestock and equipment were sold.

But thanks! It was such a nice thing to read.

New cross country ski lights installed at Mount McSauba

By Laurie Lounsbury

Whish, whish, whish - The woods of Mt. McSauba were completely silent except for the steady whishing of a cross country skier as he glided through the pristine forest. Above, the black night sky was punctuated with silvery dots of the winter stars. The skier navigated the cross country trail easily with the help of glowing light from the moon shaped globes illuminating the snow.

It was three years in the making, but the City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau pooled their resources to provide more than a mile of lighted cross country trails in the Mt. McSauba area. The new lighting system extends to the sledding hill and parking lot at the base of the sledding hill. Skiers and sledgers can take advantage of the new lighting in the area seven nights a week, from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Recreation director Ike Boss and city electric manager Ed Whitley studied the lighted Nordic trails at Boyne Mountain before selecting a system for Mt. McSauba. Boyne utilized an electrical system that can operate on lower wattage, so Mt. McSauba followed suit. Boss said the project came in under budget because of this. The city's cost for the trails was $7,100, with matching funds donated by the Convention and Visitors Bureau. He plans to buy a cross-country trail groomer with the savings. "You just want to walk through there when you see it, it's so gorgeous," Boss said of the lighted trails.

Cross country rental ski equipment is available at the Mt. McSauba ski lodge. The rental equipment was donated to the city by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau. The bureau plans to promote the cross country and downhill skiing facilities through their advertising.

On the front side of Mt. McSauba, kids are mastering their downhill skiing techniques with the help of ski lessons. Boss reported that the turnout for ski lessons was up from last years' attendance. The next session of ski lessons will begin Feb. 2. Lessons can be taken either Wednesday or Thursday night. The cost for four lessons, which includes a lift ticket, is $20, or $35 with rental equipment included.

Foundation receives $153,000 grant for youth projects

W.K. Kellogg Foundation matching fund program works in conjunction with local funding

Young people in this area will have a significant nest egg from which to fund programs, thanks to a grant from W.K. Kellogg Foundation. The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has been awarded $153,000 as part of the Kellogg Foundation's Youth Project Challenge.

"This is a terrific boost for our community," said Scott Beatty, president of the local Community Foundation. "These funds will become part of a permanent endowment that can help us provide all kinds of programs for children and teens for many years to come."

To qualify for the Kellogg funds, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation had to raise local money totaling more than $300,000. Each dollar was matched by 50 cents from the Kellogg Foundation. To date, the local Community Foundation has received $303,000 from Kellogg — about one-third of the $1 million grant available to this area through the Youth Project Challenge.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation Director, Robert Tambellini, said the Kellogg matching funds have acted as an incentive in helping the area's new foundation build a health asset base. "When people learn their gift can practically double in value through matching funds, they're very excited. Our donors see this as a way to do twice as much good while investing in something permanent for our young people and their future."

The Kellogg funds will become part of an endowment within the Community Foundation called the Charlevoix County Youth Fund. Only interest income earned on the permanent trust will be used to fund projects to benefit young people. A Young Advisory Committee made up of three representatives from each of the high schools in the county will help oversee the endowment and make recommendations for how income will be spent. Beige Caballero, a junior at East Jordan High School and president of the advisory group says they have already surveyed students and analyzed needs in the county and will begin to look at what kinds of programs and projects to fund later this spring. "We'll have nearly $7,000 available to support youth programs by May," Caballero explains. "And all of us are anxious to put that money to work."

According to Tambellini, such participation from the area's young people is an important component of the Community Foundation's mission. "The whole concept of a community foundation is centered around investing for our needs and shaping our future. There's no better way to do that than to help our children become good citizens, thoughtful leaders, and careful stewards."

Founded in 1930, the W.K. Kellogg Foundation was established to "help people help themselves." As a private grantmaking organization, it provides seed money to organizations and institutions that have identified problems and designed constructive action programs aimed at finding solutions.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation was started by a group of civic leaders in 1992. The Foundation accepts charitable donations, and endowments and manages them in a permanent trust. Earned income is used, in turn, to fund a variety of human service, educational, health, civic, and cultural programs.

For more information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, write the Foundation, c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727, or call 616-536-2440.

Students also preparing for drama presentation

During the regular debate season, the teams participated in the swing debate league and northern Michigan debate league unit #1 with the varsity placing second in the northern Michigan debate league. The team also attended tournaments at Oscoda and Wayland.

Charlevoix High School's debate team has qualified for the state debate February 3-5, 1994 at the Crowne Plaza Conference Center in Grand Rapids.

Preparing for state debate finals are Jesse Wheat, Mark Schairbaum, Kaylee Manker, Bethany Marfuta, Lisa Borths, Angela Buday, Allison Beatty, Gita Butcher, Mike Staton, Maribeth Gagnon, Colleen Urban and Missy Vincent.

Connie Ford, debate coach, said she is pleased with the team since it is a young team with only one senior.

The Pentathlon team of Mandy VanLoo, Jesse Wheat, David Skeel, Keith Parish, Colleen Slattery, Liz Browe, Wendy Jacobs, Ellen McKinny, Nick Himebaugh, Tiffany Karczmycki, Jeremy White, Debbie Hamilton, Lisa Borths, Angela Bu-

day and Amy VanGuilder received eight first place ranks. Borths received two first place ranks. Those receiving one first place rank were: Wheat, McKinney, Karczynski, Himebaugh, Browe, and Buday.

The Pentathlon consists of five forensic events readings from five to eight minutes. Some participants memorize and some read from script.

The Charlevoix High School performing arts classes are currently in rehearsal to compete in district drama at Grand Rapids-Godwin Heights High School, January 29, 1994. The serious drama is an original play written by Connie Ford. The setting is the beginning of the World War II from the home front.

...will DDA borrowing cost local school?

will reimburse the school system for any revenue lost due to DDA borrowing for the Bridge Park, East Park and Marina/Chamber building.

In a Jan. 24 phone interview with the Courier, Scott Schraeger, a taxation specialist with the Michigan House of Representatives, offered the same view.

"Under the statutory plan, there will be projects that they (DDAs) can bond and it won't cost the school anything," Schraeger said. Schraeger said that when the state budget was put together for the coming year there was money put in to cover DDA expenses for projects which were already in the pipeline, but would lose funding money due to school finance reform. In fact, Schraeger said the state has been making similar reimbursements to in-formula school systems for years. Up until now, Charlevoix like most schools in this area has been out-of-formula and ineligible for state school formula money. With school finance reform, the state will eventually stop making the reimbursements once DDAs throughout the state have paid off existing debts.

In a separate phone interview with the Courier, Jane Schultz of the Michigan Senate Fiscal Agency, said she isn't exactly sure how the reimbursement will work, but that $40 million has been budgeted for reimbursement in the 1993-94 fiscal year. School Aid Act and $22 million is budgeted for next year should the school finance reform ballot proposal pass and $12 million is budgeted if the statutory plan is implemented.

Educational administrators both in Lansing and Charlevoix are viewing the talk of reimbursement skeptically. Both school finance reform proposals contain clauses to hold harmless schools such as Charlevoix which currently have higher than average expenditures per pupil. Holding them harmless means they won't have less money to spend. Charlevoix's per pupil expenditure is currently about $6,500 (give or take a few dollars depending on who you're talking to and what set of figures they have in front of them.) Under the hold-harmless clauses, that's theoretically about what Charlevoix schools will have next year too. However, right now it isn't exactly clear how the state will determine what amounts to being held harmless.

Last week in a phone interview with the Courier, Linda Beers, Governmental Relations Specialist with the Michigan Association of School Boards, said it was her understanding that the amount of state money a school receives will be based on the assumption that a school district is levying the maximum millage allowed and receiving the maximum local revenue from that millage.

Further complicating the issue, in order for the state to make determine what a school's foundation grant (i.e. revenue per pupil) should be, the school system is going to have to provide the state with information on a form by Feb. 1. As of Friday, Jan. 21 the state hadn't provided the school system with a form.

Charlevoix School Superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson and Business Manager Rich Kelly have both made trips to Lansing to gather information on the ramifications of school finance reform for the Charlevoix School System. Both have found the process frustrating. As Jackson described it, "Every day is a surprise."

Efforts by the Courier to obtain additional information from Lansing were also challenging. As of press time, at least three calls to different state agencies were still "unreturned" apparently because the people were busy with other meetings and calls.

Schraeger, who did return a call, said that he'd been receiving about 35 calls a day from people throughout the state with questions regarding the effects of school finance reform.

Charlevoix fifth grade physical education students recently began the always-popular cross country skiing section of the class.

Teacher Dave Moyer said that in the beginning the students fall down a lot (top), but after a few weeks they become much more accomplished.

obituaries

John J. Hoffman

John J. Hoffman, 69, of East Jordan, died Sunday, Jan. 23, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

He was born Sept. 20, 1924, in Banks Township, the son of John and Mary (LaDue) Hoffman.

He was united in marriage to Laura Gallagher on Aug. 23, 1974, in Charlevoix, and they made their home in Banks Township. They moved to East Jordan in 1981.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving with the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific.

Mr. Hoffman was a heavy equipment operator and was employed by several excavating firms in the area. He later owned and operated John Hoffman Excavating until his retirement in 1984.

He is survived by his wife Laura; one son and daughter-in-law, Dick and Carol Hoffman of East Jordan; one daughter and son-in-law, Sandy and Tim Pienta of Williamston; one step-daughter, Lynn Nachazel of Traverse City;

one step-son, Rutledge Ross, of Akron, Ohio; eight grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; one brother, William Hoffman of Charlevoix; several nieces and nephews.

There will be a private family service.

Memorials may be made to the organization of your choice.

Arrangements by Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Francis Peters

Francis Peters, 95, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 22, 1994, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

His funeral was Tuesday, Jan. 25, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Peters was born Aug. 15, 1898, in Charlevoix, the son of John and Ethel (Sanborn) Peters. He was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix.

Mr. Peters served in the U.S. Army during World War II. He worked in area logging camps as a young man, and then went into farming in Norwood Township.

In 1950, he married Bernice Passon, and she preceded him in death on Jan. 30, 1977.

He then married Freida Novotny on Oct. 24, 1979. She died on March 10, 1990.

Mr. Peters was a member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, and the Singin' Swingin' Senior Citizens of Charlevoix. He was a fiddle player and played throughout Northern Michigan. He was a regular participant in the Fiddlers Jamboree in East Jordan.

Survivors include one sister, Rhoda Putman, of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by four brothers, Anson, Merton, Daniel and Gilbert; and by one sister, Goldie Reighart.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility or to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Henry Lerman

Henry Lerman, 74, a long-time summer resident of Charlevoix, died Jan. 17 in Royal Oak. Funeral services for Mr. Lerman took place Jan. 19 at the Ira Kaufman Chapel in Southfield. Interment will be in the Clover Hill Park Cemetery in Birmingham.

Mr. Lerman was preceded in death by his wife, Goldie Lerman. He is survived by: three children, Paulette Lerman, Dr. Mark (Julie) Lerman, and Joel (Freida) Lerman; and four grandchildren, Emily Lerman, Elizabeth Lerman, Gordon Lerman and Jake Lerman.

The Prophet Isaiah makes the declaration, "Come now, let us reason together says the Lord. Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be white as snow." (Is. 1:18). The Prophet spoke these words to God's people in Israel at a time when they were far from God and sin was rampant in the nation. God's desire was for repentance by His people, and with that repentance would come complete forgiveness and the restoration of His Presence and Blessing among them. The people of God would again be "white as snow!"

The point is that both individuals and nations that have sinned before God can be forgiven, cleansed, and made whiter than snow! Let us say with King David, "Have mercy on me, O God, according to your unfailing love; according to your great compassion blot out my transgressions" (Psalm 57:1). His response will be to make us whiter than snow! I can think of nothing whiter than that! I can think of nothing more wonderful than that!

Arts Center schedules Winter Term classes

The Winter Term of 1994 arts classes and music lessons sponsored by Crooked Tree Arts Council begins Monday, Jan. 31. Instruction is offered through the Community School of the Arts. Classes are offered in one six-week session, Jan. 31 to March 12, with a make-up week held March 14-19. Classes are held in Petoskey at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, 461 E. Mitchell St.

Three new instructors join the Arts Center Faculty this Winter. Shannon Forrester is a graduate of the Arts Institute of Chicago and has recently moved to the area from Winnetka, Illinois. Forrester is a merit scholar in the areas of painting and ceramic sculpture. She will offer two classes, Figure Painting for grades nine through adult on Tuesday evenings, 7-9 p.m., and an Introduction to Sculpture class on Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m. Her classes are open to all skill levels and to anyone interested in personally experiencing the creative process.

Artist John Deckinga offers a Photography Class at the Arts Center on Mondays, 7-9 p.m. Deckinga is a graduate of the New York Institute of Photography, and has worked as a photographer for the Associated Press and the American Chamber of Commerce in Mexico. His works have been featured in many exhibitions and publications. Students should contact the Arts Center at 347-4337 for materials list for this class.

Artist Ken Christensen offers a Drawing Class on Thursdays, 7-9 p.m. Christensen is well known locally through several exhibitions at various institutions. He has studied extensively in Europe and is presently a candidate for the Reader's Digest International Artist Award for study overseas.

Children's Visual Art classes are offered by Instructor Eileen Heck on Thursdays, 3:30-5:30 p.m. for children in grades 1-5. Children's Art Class is limited to 10 students each.

Instructor David Otis of East Jordan offers Pottery classes for children in grades 2-5 on Mondays 4-6 p.m., and for adults Mondays 7-10 p.m. in the Pottery Studio at the Arts Center.

Artist Catherine Carey offers a class in Watercolor for adults on Wednesday mornings, 10 a.m. to noon. The class is designed for students at all levels of experience. Beginners learn the fundamentals of materials, color mixing and technique; intermediate students use technique to interpret their subject matter in a direction to suit their own personal interests. The class explores color, design, and composition. Materials lists for this class and for other classes are available at the Arts Center.

In dance, instructor Dianna Heinzelman offers a complete series of classes for children and adults, meeting on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays. Mrs. Heinzelman has 26 years of dance teaching experience and has been with the Arts Center since 1981. Her classes include Movement and Dance, Ballet, Boys Dance, Tap, and Jazz Dance. There is also a Company Class for which auditions are required.

Instructor Beth Burke offers an Image Workshop for Adults, a cosmetics class, on Thursdays 6:30-7:30 p.m. and Elementary Drama for students in grades 3-6 on Tuesday evenings 6:30-7:30 p.m. For more information about Image Workshop, please call Mrs. Burke at 526-2576.

Private Music Lessons are offered in Piano throughout each week by instructor Charlotte Ross-Lee. Students may register for one half-hour or one hour per week. Mrs. Ross-Lee offers a beginning Adult Piano Class on Tuesdays, 7-9 p.m.

Lessons in French Horn, Trumpet and Piano are taught by Janis Ley Monday through Thursday afternoons; in Voice by Fran Tollas on Tuesday and Friday, and instructor Bonietta Beah offers flute lessons on Mondays.

Instructor Janis Key continues classes in Kindermusik, with a Beginnings Class called Music for Me, for very young children, on Mondays and Fridays, 10:30-11:15 a.m., and on Tuesdays 11:15 a.m. - noon. A Beginnings Class called Music and My Animal Friends is available Wednesday mornings, 10:30-11:15 a.m. Kindermusik for the Young Child I is offered on Thursdays 3:15-4:30 p.m. For more information about Kindermusik Classes and required materials, please call Ley at 347-7725.

Students may enroll in violin lessons with Maggie Poxson. Poxson also offers three sections of violin class for children on Monday: 10:30-11:30 a.m., 3:30-4:30 p.m. and 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The Burns Clinic Medical Center, P.C. provides funding for scholarships for Community School of the Arts students through grade 12. Students may apply for up to 75 percent of tuition costs. To apply for a scholarship, students must visit the Arts Center and complete an application by 5 p.m. Friday, January 28.

Members of the Crooked Tree Arts Council receive a 10 percent discount on the cost of all classes and lessons. Discounts apply to family membership only for students less than 18 years of age. For a printed class schedule and information about registration for all classes, please call or visit the Virginia McCune Arts Center at 347-4337, 461 E. Mitchell St. in Petoskey, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

New state real estate laws for 1994 affect buyers, sellers and real estate agents

By Laurie Lounsbury

If you bought or sold real estate last year, you might not have known if your real estate agent was working for you or for the other party in the transaction. A buyer may have thought that their real estate agent was working on their behalf, when in truth, the realtor was always working to get the best deal for the seller. That has changed with new real estate disclosure laws that went into effect Jan. 10.

The new law requires real estate agents to disclose who they are representing, either the buyer or the seller. In the past, real estate agents always represented the seller. Buyers weren't always aware of that fact. Agents must now sit down with a prospective client and explain buyer and seller representation. Depending on whom the agent represents, he can no longer reveal confidential information about a buyer or seller.

The law does allow for real estate agents to be a dual agent and represent both a buyer and seller. Greg Smith, manager at Vacation

Properties Network said, "I don't know how to represent a buyer and seller at the same time. That's like an attorney representing both a husband and a wife in a divorce. Attorneys won't do it because it's a conflict of interest. The law is allowing us to do it."

House for sale

derstand. A seller's disclosure statement is required of the seller, which must accurately state the mechanical condition of a property. Sellers must reveal any known problems or flaws with a property. Campbell is enthusiastic about the changes. "It's long overdue. Michigan is finally catching up with the rest of the country," Campbell said. Campbell sees the agency disclosure law as being advantageous to the consumer. "It's leveling the playing field," he said. Buyers can now enlist a buyer agent to represent them exclusively, something that didn't occur in the past.

The seller's disclosure law will work to the benefit of people buying or selling homes without the benefit of a real estate agent. A standard disclosure form must be filled out by the seller, detailing the condition of the home. Buyers working without an agent will have the protection of the disclosure statement from the seller.

The mandates will bring more professionalism to the industry," Campbell said. "Anybody having a hard time with it (the laws) should get out of the business."

Class offered for CPR instructors

A Basic Cardiac Life Support Instructor Renewal Course will be held at Charlevoix Area Hospital Wednesday, February 23, 1994, from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

McRae questions the cops in the Netherlands

By Ralph McRae

While visiting Holland, I decided it would be interesting to know how the police work in that country. I contacted the police headquarters in the large city of Utrecht, capital of the province bearing the same name. Asking to talk to the Chief of Police, I was politely informed that he was not available. The public relations officer who had answered said I would get a better story of how the police system works if I would visit the rural police staff in Maarsse. They recommended I call the public relations officer there. So the same morning I phoned Peter Keijzer, requesting an interview with him which was set up for 2 p.m. that same day.

The small city was 40 miles from the town of Wilnis, home of my Dutch daughter, Ria. The police headquarters was located in an imposing three story building. Told of our arrival, Keijzer came out to welcome Ria and myself. As he showed us around the spacious areas and sections of the building we were highly impressed.

Sitting down at his desk, Keijzer began to outline the policies and principles of the nation's police organization. Between the time of my phone call and our arrival, Keijzer had typed out his views concerning not only his own jurisdiction, but also that of the entire country. He had put into English answers to the many questions I had asked him. Keijzer was very knowledgeable of the law enforcement goals of Holland. He had gone into detail explaining how uniform the system is throughout the country.

Before April 1993, the Netherlands had many separate law enforcement units. Since that time it has been reformed into a simple single agency. At its head is a policy-making board that sets guidelines. What had been a city, county and country puzzle of competing jurisdictions have now become a streamlined law establishment. For administration purposes, the country has been divided into 25 divisions. The province of Utrecht is designated as the Ninth Division. Within the province there are 11 districts, each with its own commissioner. Contained in the 11 provinces are 36 incorporated municipalities.

Like other frustrated policemen, Keijzer complained of the scarcity of police. Utrecht province, with a population exceeding 700,000 has only 2,400 policemen which Keijzer considered to be about half of the number needed. About 200 officers operate out of the Maarsse district. There are 10 police cars and three motorcycles. Other officers are either on foot or bicycles. Eight of the 200 officers are women. Two officers are assigned to environmental assessments and enforcement.

For three months of each year, every officer becomes a detective, wearing civilian clothes.

Traffic control is done by hidden or concealed cameras. Car license plates in the Netherlands are wide and easy to photograph at high speeds. When a car is photographed speeding, computers print and mail speeding tickets. Exceeding a speed limit by 100 kilometers brings confiscation of the car as does failure to respond to tickets.

People arrested for felonies are immediately placed in detention centers. Arrests are for specific violations and there is no plea bargaining. There also is no bail since in the Netherlands that is believed to favor wealthy people.

On minor offenses all cases are tried within two weeks. Murderers must face a judge within 126 days. There are no juries. Judges are appointed, not elected. It is generally illegal to own a gun, however permits are given to certified skeet shooters and to people who receive hunting rights from property owners who have 40 or more acres. With a population of almost 17 million, only three policemen have been killed during the past two years.

But even Holland is confronted with increasing crime, especially among young people. The country once a haven for drug addicts is now coming down on the use of hard drugs only. With the emergence of the European Community, the borders of central Europe are open to everyone, making it much more difficult to control crime. Until recently, Belgium sold guns to everyone without restrictions.

Like most nations, the Netherlands has overcrowded prisons and many prisoners are released early.

Unless they get new people, High School Sports Boosters may disband organization

Group's future to be discussed at Jan. 26 meeting

By L. Scott Swanson

The continued existence of the Charlevoix High School Sports Boosters is in question. In recent years the group has dwindled to a core of about half a dozen active members. With those people getting worn out, the Sports Boosters desperately need fresh blood.

At 7 p.m., Jan. 26 the Sports Boosters will meet at Charlevoix High School to discuss the group's future. Anyone interested in helping with the group is welcome to attend.

The Sports Boosters group has been in existence approximately 30 years. The group's purpose is to generate money to help the various high school sports teams with special needs. The group makes most of their money from the sports booklets sold at the gate and from concession stands at varsity games. Those projects generate between $8,000 and $10,000 each year.

Money generated by the Sports Boosters funds a variety of things, both large and small, for high school sports. Among the Sports Boosters expenditures in recent years are: $16,507 toward the Rayder bus; $2,000 for a high jump pit; $1,390 for a trophy case; $579 for weight equipment; $275 for a volleyball spiking machine; $1,500 for a wrestling mat; $945 for ski gates; $265 for foul weather jackets for the cheerleaders; and $1,440 for foul weather jackets for the football team. Those are some examples of larger expenditures. There have also been several contributions of between $50 and $200 for all kinds of odds and ends.

"A lot of the smaller sports really depend on us," explained Sports Boosters' board member Oma Darrah. Darrah has been a fixture at concession stands in recent years. She said the group used to only have concession stands for football and boys' basketball, but in recent years they've also been having them for other sports. The concession stands don't make that much money at the other sports, but they help the sports and make the athletes feel better about their sport.

Bill Gengle has been with the Sports Boosters since the mid 1970s. He said there have been times when there were more people involved and it made things easier for everyone. In recent years the group has dwindled despite attempts to get more people to attend. "We got to a point where we got tired of begging people to come," Gengle said. He said that now the group is at a point where it's time for people to decide how important Sports Boosters is to the public. If it's important, there will have to be more people. If it's not important, then it will cease to exist.

Gengle attributes diminished participation in Sports Boosters to complacency from coaches and parents. Last year Darrah sent a letter to each of the coaches on behalf of the Sports Boosters asking that each team send a representative to Sports Boosters' meetings on a regular basis. One team sent a representative.

J.V. volleyball team goes 4-4 in tournament

Charlevoix's junior varsity volleyball team went 4-4 at the Inland Lakes JV Volleyball Tournament Saturday. Rogers City won the tournament, beating Inland Lakes in the finals.

The Rayders opened the day with wins over Mio, 15-4, 15-7, and On-ular basis. One team sent a representative.

The Sports Boosters would like to have parents representing a variety of different sports. Gengle says a lack of communication is one of the key problems. In addition to having parental representation from a variety of sports, Gengle said there are other things that can be done. For example, he notes that Sports Booster organizations in other communities will have monthly luncheons where one of the coaches is invited to speak and explain what's going on in his or her sport.

Of the core group of remaining Sports Boosters, most are at a point where their kids are almost out of school. What they would like to do is have a new group of parents come in so they could turn the group over in an orderly transition.

Current Sports Boosters board members are: Bob Donner, President; Rick Grunch, Vice President; Roger Bush, Secretary; Mike Jarma, Treasurer; Barry Anderson, Athletic Director; Bill Gengle, Board Member; Oma Darrah, Board Member.

The future of the group will be discussed Jan. 26 in anticipation of voting on some type of a proposal at the group's February meeting. Anyone who is interested, but can't attend the Jan. 26 meeting is asked to contact one of the Sports Boosters board of directors.

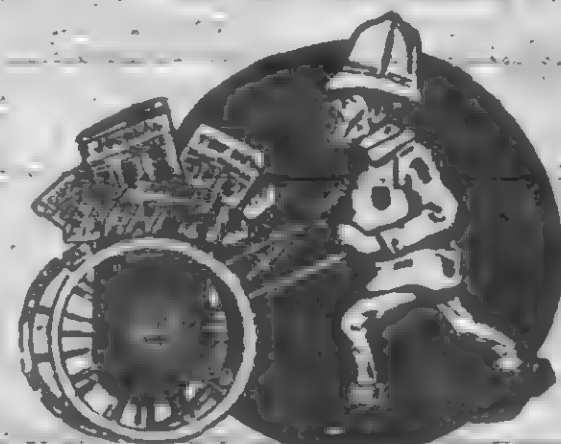

away, 15-12, 15-10 before losing to Rudyard, 15-7, 15-5 and also to Inland Lakes.

Aprille Pischner was Charlevoix's top server. Kristin Czerkes led the offense while Jessa VanGuilder led the defense.

David Morales dominated this wrestling match on his way to a 4-1 record at the Charlevoix Invitational wrestling meet Saturday.

Wrestlers get strong individual performances despite poor team record

Despite some strong showings by individual wrestlers, as a team Charlevoix's varsity wrestlers were 0-3 at the Charlevoix Wrestling Invitational Saturday. Mason County Central won the tournament with a 5-0 record. Other teams participating were Cheboygan 4-1, Frankfort 4-1, St. Ignace 2-3 and Benzie Central 1-4.

A lack of wrestlers in four weight classes doomed the Rayders. Forfeiting in four weight classes amounts to giving the other team a 24 point head start. Charlevoix lost to Cheboygan 46-18, to Frankfort 48-26, to St. Ignace 40-26, to Mason County 36-27 and to Benzie Central 42-29.

Individually, Charlevoix had one wrestler go 5-0 on the day and three go 4-1.

Keith Parish was undefeated at 189 pounds raising his season record to 20-2. Jason Hughes was 4-1 at 112 and 119 pounds. His only loss was to a Cheboygan wrestler at 119 pound which was one weight class higher than where Hughes normally wrestles. Hughes is also 20-2 on the season. David Morales was 4-1 at 135 and 140 pounds. Morales' only loss was in an overtime decision at 140 pounds. Morales who had just gotten over being ill earlier in the week simply ran out of gas in that match. His season record is 20-3. Ron Haggard also was 4-1, losing an overtime match at 152 pounds. Among Haggard's four wins Saturday was a 4-3 decision over a Benzie Central wrestler who entered the match with a 22-1 season record. Haggard is 19-6 on the season.

Other wrestlers picking up wins for the Rayders were: Rob Reiter, 1-4 at 103 pounds; John Wagner, 1-2 at 125 and 130 pounds before being injured; Kyle Russell, 1-4 at 135 and 140 pounds; Jerry Lapham, 2-3 at 145 pounds; Rob Gittum, 2-3 at 160 pounds; and Matt Skippergosh, 2-3 at heavyweight.

Dan Harris (right) and this opponent squared off for a long time and were warned for stalling before they finally got down to wrestling Saturday. Harris ended up losing in a close match.

Rhonda McCloud placed third in the Board Breaking category.

Retail sales were strong throughout Michigan in 1993

Here's the final word on Michigan's Christmas shopping season: "EVEN BETTER THAN EXPECTED."

The annual post-holiday sales survey by Michigan Retailers Association (MRA) showed most stores' sales rose an average 16.5 percent over 1992 sales from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

The increase was even better than the optimistic 12 percent prediction made by the retailers in MRA's pre-holiday survey in early November. It was also a major factor in pushing total 1993 sales above 1992's totals.

"Michigan retailers were optimistic going into the holidays - and they didn't come out disappointed. Sales were even better than expected for most retailers," said Larry Meyer, MRA Vice-Chairman and

"Most retailers also entered the holiday season with 1993 sales ahead of 1992 sales. Strong holiday sales kept the year's totals above the '92 totals," Meyer said.

Statewide, 67 percent of MRA members reported holiday sales increases averaging 16.5 percent. Lansing, Jackson and Battle Creek area retailers reported the best holiday season. Sixty-eight (68) percent of the retailers responding to the survey reported an average increase of 20.5 percent over 1992.

West Michigan recorded the highest percentage of retailers reporting increased sales. Seventy-one (71) percent of area retailers reported increases averaging 14 percent.

Seventy (70) percent of Flint, Saginaw, Bay City and Midland area retailers reported average increases of 18 percent.

Sixty-three (63) percent of Southeast Michigan retailers reported increases averaging 14 percent.

Sixty-two (62) percent of Northern Michigan retailers reported increases averaging 17 percent.

"Holiday sales were strong all across Michigan and significantly stronger than national figures," said Meyer. "We believe this reflects a strengthening Michigan economy that is outperforming other parts of the nation."

An improved economy and greater consumer confidence spurred shoppers' spending, the retailers said. They also cited their own larger inventories, more effective advertising and higher levels of customer service as chief reasons for the double-digit increases.

The percentage of retailers reporting year-end sales increases ranged from 75 percent in the Lansing-Jackson-Battle Creek area to 57 percent in Northern Michigan.

More than 400 retailers participated in the annual mail survey, which began the first week of January.

Meyer said the survey's statewide 16.5 percent figure was consistent with a smaller but more detailed analysis of 125 members' actual credit card sales for the holiday season. That study showed same-store sales up 14.2 percent over last year.

Masons extend their lead in cribbage

The Masons extended their lead over the Odd Fellows this past Thursday night in the annual winter cribbage tournament. The Masons won this past week's play by 320 points, extending their lead for the year to 935 points.

Pete Joyce led the Masons this past week with a score of 948. John Barber was top man for the Odd Fellows with a score of 929.

DDA reviews plans for parks and buildings

By L. Scott Swanson

At a Jan. 26 meeting the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) reviewed plans to renovate East Park, the east end of Mason Street, the Chamber of Commerce/City Marina building and Veterans' Park and a plan to pave a parking lot off of Clinton Street.

Renovating the Chamber/Marina building carried the highest price tag of the four projects. Tim Fisher of H. Jack Begrow & Associates, a Charlevoix architectural firm, presented several different possibilities for the building. The option DDA members favored would put an addition on the building between the present building and Round Lake. The addition could be done in conjunction with remodeling the current building at a total estimated cost of $428,400 or tearing down the current building and constructing an entirely new building at a total estimated cost of $511,840.

The renovation would address Chamber of Commerce space problems and update the aging rest room and shower facilities for the municipal marina operation. (See accompanying drawing.)

City planner Gerry Harsch explained a proposed East Park improvement plan. The plan calls for a new walkway to replace the old walkway in the center of the park between Bridge Street and the lake. The new walkway would have four circular seating areas something along the lines of the seating areas in Hoffmann Park. The eight shuffleboard courts currently near the center of the park would be removed and replaced by six shuffleboard courts in the northeast corner of the park near the end of Clinton Street. The project will also include the installation of a sprinkler system. The estimated cost of the project is $75,000. (See accompanying drawing.)

Harsch also presented a list of options for modifying the east end of Mason Street between Bridge Street and Round Lake. DDA members favored a plan which would include 12 parking spaces and relocate a dry hydrant for fire protection, build a ramp and steps off of the end of the street and do some landscaping work. The estimated cost of the project is $40,000.

Binsfeld makes pitch for ballot proposal

By L. Scott Swanson

Michigan Lt. Governor Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City) visited Charlevoix last week espousing the merits of the ballot proposal which state voters will consider March 15.

The ballot proposal, which is favored by Binsfeld, Gov. John Engler and many Republican legislators, would replace a decrease in property taxes by increasing sales taxes by two percent, from four cents on the dollar to six cents on the dollar.

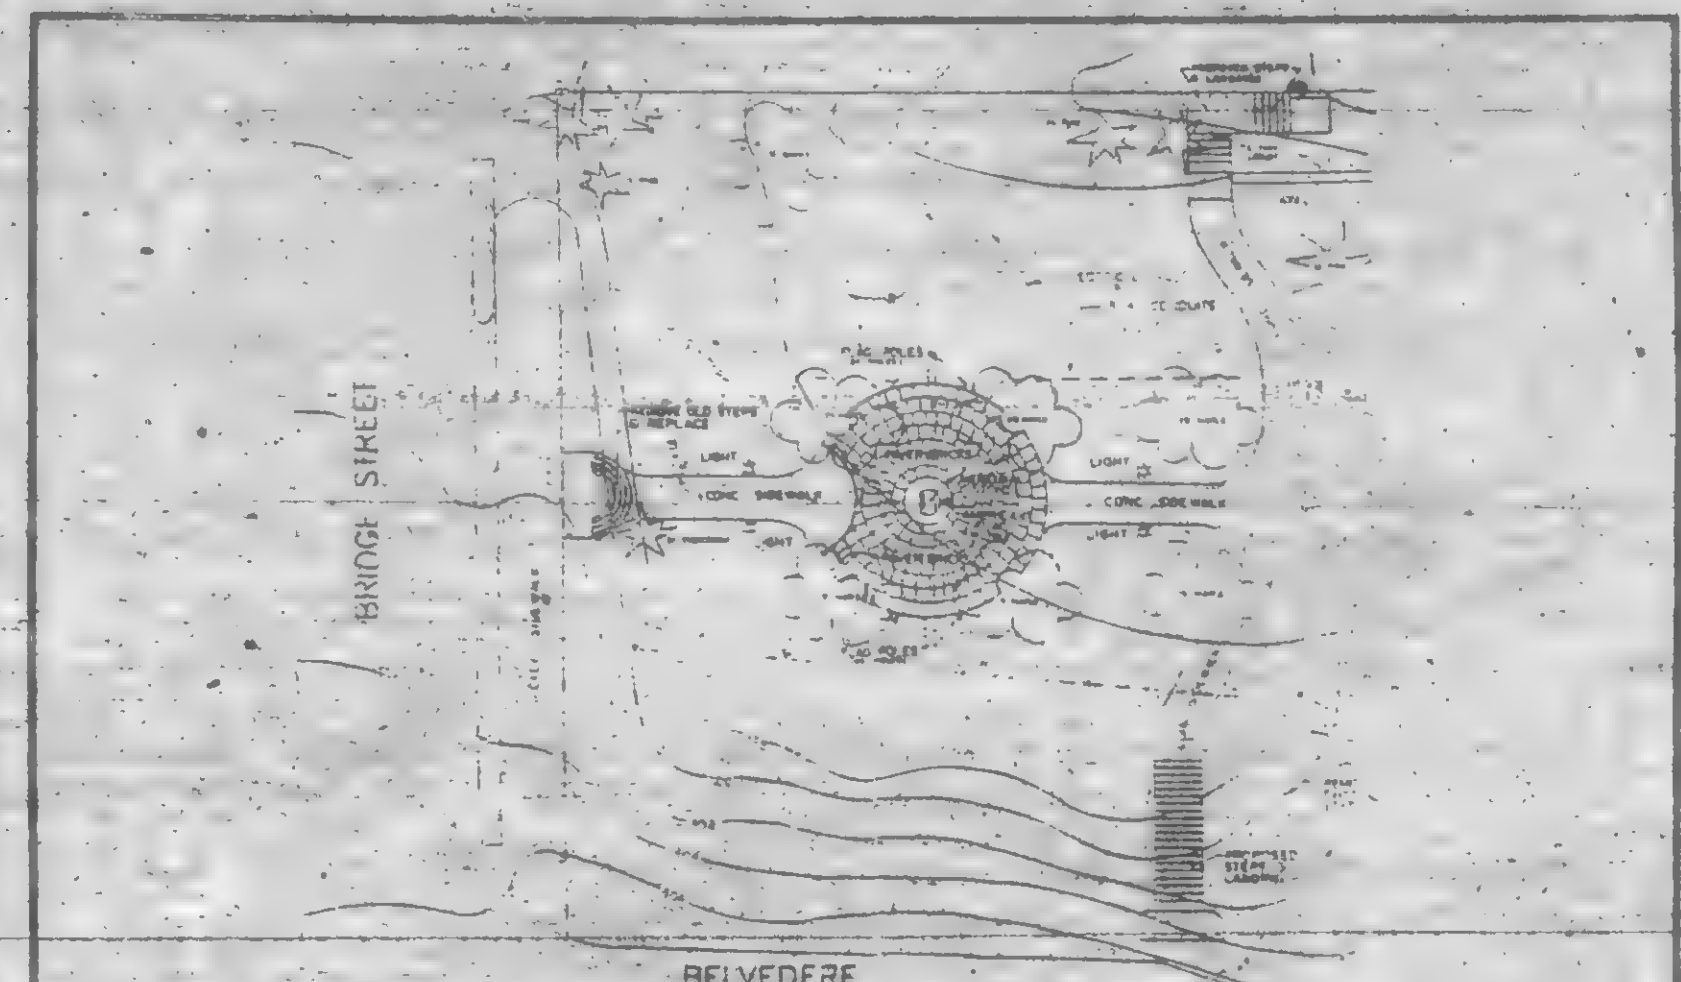

If the ballot proposal fails, another plan commonly referred to as the statutory or back-up plan will go into effect. Under that plan, which is favored by many Democratic legislators, the decrease in property taxes will be offset by an increase in income taxes from 4.6 percent to six percent.

In addition to the main provisions of either a sales tax or income tax increase, each of the plans also contains a variety of other provisions.

The ballot proposal, in addition to raising sales taxes from four to six percent, would: lower the state income tax from 4.6 percent to 4.4 percent; raise taxes on cigarettes

The diagram above shows the proposed design for Veterans' Park. The project is one of several projects being worked on by the Downtown Development Authority. The Veterans' Park project has an estimated cost of $50,000.

Charlevoix fourth graders always looked forward to their unit of study on Egypt, which culminated in an Egyptian bazaar. Realignment of the curriculum eliminated the Egyptian studies, which were replaced by a social studies unit on early Michigan settlers. The Egyptian bazaar was replaced with an old fashioned trading post, which seemed equally as popular as its Egyptian predecessor. From left, Jennifer Mosoryak, Jenny Miller and Colleen Crowley tend their booth. (Additional photos on page 18.)

from 25 percent to 75 cents per pack; limit property taxes to six mills on a person's home and 24 mills on businesses and second homes and allow for three more mills to be voted on locally; establish a two percent tax on real estate sales; raise the tax on out-of-state phone calls from four percent to six percent; and cap increases in the assessed value of property to five percent or the rate of inflation.

The statutory proposal in addition to raising income taxes from 4.6 percent to six percent would: raise the personal exemption on state income taxes to $3,000; raise the state's single business tax from 2.35 percent to 2.75 percent; raise the tax on cigarettes from 25 percent to 40 cents per pack; limit property taxes to 12 mills on a person's home and 24 mills on businesses and second homes and allow three additional mills to be voted on locally; establish a one percent tax on real estate sales; and leave no cap on the rate of increase in the assessed value of property.

In an interview with the Charlevoix Courier Thursday, Jan. 27, Binsfeld said that after all of the adding and subtracting is done the ballot proposal will offer Michigan taxpayers in 1995 a net tax decrease of $178 million while the the statutory plan will be a net tax decrease of $100 million. Those figures take into consideration the impact of federal taxes and the deductibility of state income taxes and the lack of deductibility of sales taxes.

Binsfeld said the ballot proposal is better than the statutory plan for taxpayers, children and the future of Michigan's economy. She said the ballot proposal offers more protection against taxes creeping up from year to year. She noted that the statutory plan not only sets no cap on increases in assessed values, but also would allow the legislature to increase millage rates. The ballot proposal sets a cap of five percent or the rate of inflation on assessment increases and also does not allow millage rates to be raised without a three-fourths majority vote of both houses of the state legislature.

Binsfeld also said that having the real estate sales tax at two percent on the ballot proposal and one percent on the statutory proposal was a compromise. She said that she hopes the legislature will bring the ballot proposal real estate figure down from two percent to one percent.

Another issue Binsfeld said she wants the legislature to revisit is educational quality proposals such as charter schools which were passed by the legislature prior to the finance proposals and touted by Engler in his State of the State address. In his State of the State address, Engler said of charter schools, "The possibilities are limitless." Three paragraphs earlier in the speech, he defined the limits of charter schools, saying, "Charter schools could be started by groups of teachers, or by a school district, by a community college or university."

During the interview with the Courier, the charter schools portion of Engler's speech was cited. The question raised was - if the purpose charter schools is to break the public school and educational union monopoly on education, yet you've restricted charter schools to being initiated and operated by the same groups, what have you really gained?

In response, Binsfeld smiled, kind of shook her head and said it was difficult to even get that far. She said the issue was the focus of intense lobbying by state and national education unions. Republicans, who hold the governor's seat and a majority in the senate, favored more aggressive changes in the educational system. The house is split between Republicans and Democrats. Democrats there favored less dramatic changes. Recent resignations by Democratic members of the house may result in a Republican majority there later this year. At that time educational quality issues may be addressed again.

Letters to the editor

Battered women often do leave, but that doesn't always help

Editor,

When hearing stories about domestic violence, the first question often asked is "why doesn't she just leave?" One of the biggest myths surrounding domestic violence is that women don't leave. Many women do leave multiple times but are hunted down, stalked, and threatened so that the danger of staying away often seems greater than the danger of remaining with their batterer.

Batterers abuse their partners to maintain control over them. When women leave, batterers lose their power to control and often become more dangerous as they attempt to regain control. Research over the last ten years indicates that women who leave their batterers are at 75 percent greater risk of being killed by the batterer than those who stay. One investigation of homicide in Canada found that 100 percent of homicides between separated and/or divorced couples were male perpetrated. Given these statistics, the courage of women who manage to get away is remarkable.

We cannot, however, underestimate the courage of women who stay and live with daily abuse. Women employ a variety of survival techniques to endure the abuse because leaving is not feasible to them, often due to a lack of economic resources, fear that they won't be believed, or fear that they'll lose their children. Murders often referred to as "crimes of passion" are the result of continuous threats, harassment, and violence battered women have bravely and repeatedly survived.

Similarly, in cases where battered women kill, it is in response to a seemingly inescapable way of life. Take, for example, the story of one woman as told in the November 1993 issue of "Mirabella" (p. 176). "Karen Straw had left her husband, Clifton, in 1984 after a three year marriage and moved with her two children to a welfare hotel. She wanted a divorce, but couldn't afford one. For more than two years, her husband continued to harass and beat her, although she obtained orders of protection from the court and tried at least ten times to have him arrested and prosecuted. In December 1986 he broke into her room, beat her, raped her at knifepoint in front of the children, and threatened to kill her. She got hold of a kitchen knife and stabbed him. She was charged with second-degree murder, the heaviest charge the state could bring against her, since New York reserves first-degree murder charges for murders of police officers and prison guards. Obviously the question "why didn't she leave?" is irrelevant; she did.

For women held captive in their own homes by their batterers, their situations are as extreme as Karen Straw's. There doesn't seem to be any way out. Leaving is a solution based on the perception that leaving will end the violence. It can, but often it does not. We need to educate ourselves so that we are more aware of the factors involved in domestic violence that make leaving anything but a simple solution.

Sincerely,
Suzanne J. Binkley and Corinne M. Vorenkamp

P.S. We have referred to batterers as male and victims as female in this letter because over 95 percent of batterers are male. While we recognize that women do sometimes hit men, men hardly ever fear women. Since battering is a pattern of control that relies on fear and intimidation, it is nearly impossible for a woman to batter a man.

Snowmobile trail would be nice addition to Charlevoix's winter economy

One of the Chamber of Commerce's goals for 1994 is establishing a snowmobile trail between Charlevoix and East Jordan in order to connect Charlevoix into the larger trail system connected to East Jordan. The goal is commendable and if it is accomplished would be of great benefit to the Charlevoix business community.

The pairing of Charlevoix and snowmobiling is a logical one. The same Charlevoix motel rooms and restaurants which are bustling in the summer are underutilized in the winter.

Charlevoix's economy traditionally does well in the summer. Tourists flock here in June, July and August. In order to improve Charlevoix economically, it's the other nine months of the year we need to work on. That can be accomplished in two ways, more year-around employment through industry and increasing tourism in the spring winter and fall.

Charlevoix has an active industrial park. In recent years the park has both added new businesses and expanded existing businesses. In regard to expanding tourism in the off-seasons, Charlevoix has the Apple Festival in the fall and that festival is growing to three days in 1994. With the exception of the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament, there's still something of a vacant spot in the spring and early summer.

In the winter, Charlevoix has a ski hill, but we don't draw as many skiers as some of our neighboring northern Michigan communities. Cross country skiing is something which has grown in recent years, but there's still plenty of room for more growth in that activity. The Mount McSaubia Sno Challenge draws some people for one weekend. Even with these activities, there's still room for expansion of tourism in the winter months. Hopefully, snowmobiling could fill part of that void.

The logistics of establishing a connecting trail seem daunting. Getting permission from numerous landowners for the trail will certainly be challenging. But despite the obvious challenges the goal is worthwhile.

Establishing a snowmobile trail between Charlevoix and East Jordan is something which has been discussed, but never come to pass for many a year. Perhaps 1994 will be the year when the trail finally becomes a reality. It's something to hope for and work toward.

FAMILY

A familiar person to local school children retires

By Laurie Lounsbury

A father walked into the elementary school office, carrying one child's glove. As he launched into an explanation about his daughter accidentally leaving the glove behind, secretary Joane Grubaugh quickly jumped in to reassure him. "Let's see, Katie is in Mrs. Mellon's class, right? I'll see that she gets it," Grubaugh said with an understanding smile.

For nine years, Grubaugh has been reassuring parents, helping children with lost gloves or loose teeth, and smoothly handling all of her administrative duties at the elementary school. Grubaugh is retiring next week, leaving behind very tough shoes to fill. "Joane is the most organized and efficient person I've worked with," elementary school principal Richard Swenor said. Swenor joined the staff at the elementary school last fall, noting that, "Things could have been disastrous if Joane hadn't been here. Things went smoothly because of her skills." Swenor was impressed with Grubaugh's computer skills. "She's really kept up with modern technology. As computers come in with advances, she takes it and runs with it," he said.

Over the years Grubaugh has learned the names of thousands of students, parents, and grandparents. "I've been fortunate—it's been easy for me to remember their names," Grubaugh said. On occasion, Grubaugh has been able to spot a familiar face before she knows the child's name. Some of the students are children of students she had when she worked at the high school. Before coming to the elementary school, Grubaugh worked for 19 years as secretary at the high school. Grubaugh understands how important it is for her to know the students and parents. "You are their second mother," Grubaugh said of herself. "They need to know they can come to me and get answers to questions." The questions often come from teary-eyed, frightened children who missed the bus or can't find their classroom.

Grubaugh squeezes her book-keeping duties and secretarial work in between constant interruptions. Parents call with important messages for their children, and Grubaugh makes sure the messages are relayed to the kids. "My greatest fear has been that I'll forget a message," Grubaugh said.

Grubaugh chose to retire in February because she thought it would be a quieter time for her replacement to make the transition. "I understand her reasons for leaving mid-year," Swenor said, adding, "I just wish it could have been mid-year next year."

Grubaugh's husband Jack is also retiring from his job at Michigan Maple Block. "The first thing to do (upon retirement) is not be on a schedule," Grubaugh said. "I'm really looking forward to that." She and her husband plan to do some exploring and traveling, including visits to their grandchildren.

Although Grubaugh is looking forward to retirement life, she said she'll miss the kids and the staff at the elementary school. "They're just a grand group of people to be with," she said.

School offers parenting class

Charlevoix Public Schools is offering a parenting class for parents of elementary age (first through sixth grade) children. The class is designed to help parents raise drug-free children. Classes are provided free of charge through a Drug Free School Grant. The class takes place from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. over a series of three Tuesday nights, Feb. 8, 15 and 22 at the Community Reformed Church on the corner of Meech and Petoskey Ave. To register, call Gayle Gennett at 547-3215. The class is open to all parents of elementary age children, not just those with children in the Charlevoix school system.

Over the past three decades Joane Grubaugh was a familiar face to thousands of students passing through the Charlevoix High School and Elementary School. Grubaugh is retiring this week as school secretary.

Henry L. Lerman

Henry L. Lerman, 74, longtime summer resident of Charlevoix, died Jan. 17, 1994, in Royal Oak.

His funeral took place Wednesday, Jan. 19, at the Ira Kaufman Chapel in Southfield. Interment was in the Clover Hill Park Cemetery in Birmingham.

Mr. Lerman was born Dec. 19, 1919, in Detroit. He had worked for

The Detroit News for a number of years, then served in the U.S. Army during World War II as an aerial photographer.

After his military service, Mr. Lerman started the Henry Lerman Inc. Construction Co. in Oak Park. He had been semi-retired the past 10 years.

He was a pilot, owned his own plane and was also a ham radio operator. Mr. Lerman enjoyed spending summers in Charlevoix near the lakes.

He served several terms on the board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. He was very active in Temple B'Nai Israel in Petoskey and had served on its board of directors.

Mr. Lerman was preceded in death by his wife, Goldie Lerman. He is survived by three children, Paulette Lerman of Southfield, Dr. Mark Lerman and his wife, Julie, of Northbrook, Ill., and Joel Lerman and his wife, Freda, of Franklin Park; and four grandchildren, Emily Lerman, Elizabeth Lerman, Gordon Lerman and Jake Lerman.

Memorial contributions may be made to Temple B'Nai Israel, in care of R. Goldstick, P.O. Box 313, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720, or to Paulette Lerman, 29500 Franklin Road, Apt. 302, Southfield, Mich. 48034.

Lucile I. Bartlett Pratt

Lucile Irene Bartlett Pratt, 86, of Weiser, Idaho, and formerly of Ontario, Calif., died Jan. 17, 1994, at the home of her daughter.

A private family gathering will be held.

Mrs. Pratt was born June 21, 1907, in East Jordan, the daughter of Ira and Grace Bartlett. She attended Teachers College in Kalamazoo and became an elementary school teacher, teaching in a one-room schoolhouse.

On April 20, 1929, she married Earl F. Pratt of Battle Creek. The couple moved to Ontario, Calif., with their two children in 1945 where they owned and operated a small grocery store for many years. Later, Mrs. Pratt was employed as a clerk in a large grocery store. She eventually went back to teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were married 58 1/2 years. He preceded her in death on Nov. 12, 1987. Mrs. Pratt then moved to Weiser, Idaho to be near her daughter and son-in-law.

She is survived by two children, Mary Lou Coats and her husband, Frank, of Weiser and Jerry Earl Pratt and his wife, Jodi, of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif.; five grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; one sister, Virginia Grace of Carson City, Nev.; two brothers, Norman Bartlett and his wife, Jenny, of East Jordan, and Bruce Bartlett and his wife, Leona, of Charlevoix; several nieces and nephews; and a close friend, Amel Smith of Weiser. Mrs. Pratt was preceded in death by her husband, Earl; a sister, Bernice in 1932; and a son-in-law, Arthur James Curry.

Memorial contributions may be made to Friends of Hospice, 1401 N. Whitley, Fruitland, Idaho 83619; or to the Weiser Memorial Pool Building Fund, P.O. Box 844, Weiser, Idaho 83672.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. PHILIP G. SCHAIRBAUM

There certainly is a lot of sickness going around these days — people coughing, noses running, chest congestion, and the flu. I found out recently that the dangerousness of a virus is directly related to the mode of transmission. Those that are directly transmitted — that is, one infected body to a new yet-to-be infected body — are the least problematic. A good example is the common cold, which allows us to be up and about, albeit sometimes feeling miserable, in order to continue contacting as many potential new hosts as possible. The longer we wander around sneezing and coughing on everyone, the more our little viruses thank us.

On the other hand, viruses that rely on some neutral third party to infect new hosts often are more powerful — like malaria, yellow fever, typhus, and all those other dreadful diseases that use mosquitoes to chauffeur them around from one person to the next.

It may be stretching it a bit to say that "human viruses" have some similar features, but let me try to make some comparisons. By "human viruses" I mean those things which take hold of us, affect in some strong way, and which we pass on to others, either directly or indirectly, through the company we keep or the influences we bring to bear. For instance: those who are personally infected by the Spirit, God's Spirit, will naturally pass on that Spirit because they are contagious. And those whose Spirit influences others through third parties like the church, government, or other corporate bodies will have an even more powerful affect than any one-to-one exposure.

The idea is that when we are filled with the Spirit — God's Spirit — we become infectious, with the result that we spread the things of God wherever we go because those things are contagious by their very nature. Isn't this exactly what happened to Jesus? We are told that when Jesus was baptized, "the heavens opened and the Spirit descended upon him like a dove, and from then on nothing was the same. Having been infected by the Spirit, Jesus spent the rest of his life spreading that "virus" to others. And his condition was so contagious that no one who was exposed to him, got to know him, and became really close to him, could resist catching what he had.

The story is told about Malcolm Muggeridge, the successful BBC literary critic, who early in his career went to India to see what was going on with the then-not-so-famous Mother Teresa. Muggeridge watched her work with the lowest of the low and he wrote about "the absurdity of bringing comfort and affection to men and women who were the derelicts of Indian society and who could have no possible influence upon history. 'Is this any way to spend one's life?' he asked.

Then, years later, in explaining how those five days in India were so important to him and turned his life upside down, this is how he put it: "Humanity will not be changed by being taught, but they will be changed by what is caught." Might we say what happened to Malcolm Muggeridge was the "infecting" of Christ's own Spirit, so contagiously presented by Mother Teresa, that from then on he would not help but share her "disease."

So it is that God's people, by the grace of God, are destined to be contagious people, sharing their "infectious" Spirit with everyone they meet, at home, at school, at church, in the community, that a better life might be "caught" by everyone, especially the least among us.

Local couple develops and patents product

By Laurie Lounsbury

After 30 years of making machine parts for other companies, Jim and Angel Bearss are finally manufacturing a product for themselves.

"We were praying for a product of our own for years - about 15 years ago I got the idea," Jim said. Jim's idea was a manually operated pump that can pump liquids twice as fast as a regular pump with its two-way handle. The idea became a reality about two years ago. Jim and Angel's pump, along with 49 separate working parts, has been patented and is ready for production. The challenge now is to market the device.

Marketing is a new experience for the Bearss, although they're no strangers to manufacturing. They have owned and operated Charlevoix Machine Products for 30 years. Both Jim and Angel work in the shop, turning out threaded bolts, pipes, and just about anything else a customer might want. Their primary customers are American Mold Engineering and Detroit Mold Engineering, but they're able to turn out custom products as well.

Designing and manufacturing the new pump has been a three year process for the Bearss. With the prototype complete, the Bearss are now delving into the marketing process. They've turned to the Private Industry Council for help in

Chamber describes goals for 1994

Retaining a Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix, monitoring and assisting local government agencies, working to attract new industry and connecting Charlevoix with the Michigan snowmobile trail system are among the goals of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce in 1994. Chamber President Dick Joseph cited the goals while speaking at the Chamber's annual meeting Thursday, Jan. 29 at Stafford's Weatherlane Restaurant.

Joseph said the Chamber board has made keeping a Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix its top priority in the coming year. He said the ship represents a payroll of more than $1 million per year and that he does not believe a final decision on where to locate new ships on the Great Lakes has been made.

Joseph also said that in 1994 the Chamber will continue to "monitor and assist local government agencies in implementing programs important to our members."

In 1993 Chamber membership increased by 82 members. Joseph said he would like to see membership continue to increase in 1994.

Another goal Joseph cited is continuing to work with new industries that express an interest in coming to Charlevoix.

A goal which Joseph said is going to receive increased emphasis this year is connecting Charlevoix into the snowmobile trail system at East Jordan. The Chamber has established a committee to work on building a connecting trail between Charlevoix and East Jordan. Charlevoix has the motel and restaurant capacity to serve the snowmobilers and the snowmobilers would help pick-up a message from Focus on the Family

The federal government has spent billions of our tax dollars since 1970 to promote contraceptives and "safe sex" among our teenagers. Isn't it time we asked, What have we gotten for our money? These are the facts:

- The federal Centers for Disease Control estimate that there are now 1 million cases of HIV infection nationwide.
- 1 in 100 students coming to the University of Texas health center now carries the deadly virus.
- The rate of heterosexual HIV transmission has increased 44% since September 1989.
- Sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) infect 3 million teenagers annually.
- 63% of all STD cases occur among persons less than 25 years of age.
- 1 million new cases of pelvic inflammatory disease occur annually.
- 1.3 million new cases of gonorrhea occur annually; strains of gonorrhea have developed that are resistant to penicillin.
- Syphilis is at a 40-year high, with 134,000 new infections per year.
- 500,000 new cases of herpes occur

annually¹⁰; it is estimated that 16.4% of the U.S. population ages 15-74 is infected, totaling more than 25 million Americans — among certain groups, the infection rate is as high as 60%.¹¹

• 4 million cases of chlamydia occur annually¹²; 10-30% of 15- to 19-year-olds are infected.¹³

• There are now 24 million cases of human papilloma virus (HPV), with a higher prevalence among teens.¹⁴

To date, over 20 different and dangerous sexually transmitted diseases are rampant among the young. Add to that the problems associated with promiscuous behavior: infertility, abortions and infected newborns. The cost of this epidemic is staggering, both in human suffering and in expense to society; yet epidemiologists tell us we've only seen the beginning.

Incredibly, the "safe-sex" gurus and condom promoters who got us into this mess are still determining our policy regarding adolescent sexuality. Their ideas have failed, and it is time to rethink their bankrupt policies.

How long has it been since you've heard anyone tell teenagers why it is to their advantage to remain virgins until married? The facts are being withheld from them, with tragic consequences. Unless we come to terms with the sickness that stalks a generation of Americans, teen promiscuity will continue, and millions of kids will suffer for the rest of their lives. Many will die of AIDS.

There is only one safe way to remain healthy in the midst of a sexual revolution. It is to abstain from intercourse until marriage, and then wed and be faithful to an uninfected partner. It is a concept that was widely endorsed in society until the 1960s. Since then, a "better idea" has come along — one that now threatens the entire human family.

Inevitable questions are raised whenever abstinence is proposed. It's time we gave some clear answers:

Why, apart from moral considerations, do you think teenagers should be taught to abstain from sex until marriage?

No other approach to the epidemic of sexually transmitted diseases will work. The so-called "safe-sex" solution is a disaster in the making. Condoms can fall at least 15.7 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy.¹⁵ They fail 36.3 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy among young, unmarried minority women.¹⁶ In a study of homosexual men, the British Medical Journal reported the failure rate due to slippage and breakage to be 26 percent.¹⁷ Given these findings, it is obvious why we have a word for people who rely on condoms as a means of birth control. We call them... "parents."

Remembering that a woman can conceive only one or two days per month, we know the failure rate for condoms must be much higher when it comes to preventing disease, which can be transmitted 365 days per year! If the devices are not used properly, or if they slip just once, viruses and bacteria are exchanged and the disease process begins. One mistake after 500 "protected" episodes is all it takes to contract a sexually transmitted disease.

The damage is done in a single moment when rational thought is overridden by passion.

Those who would depend on so insecure a method must use it properly on every occasion, and even then a high failure rate is brought about by factors beyond their control. The young victim who is told by his elders that this little latex device is "safe" may not know he is risking lifelong pain and even death for so brief a window of pleasure. What a burden to place on an immature mind and body!

In fact, the University of Texas Medical Branch recently found that condoms are only 69 percent effective in preventing the transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) in heterosexual couples. Dr. Susan Weller of UTMB conducted a meta-analysis of 11 independent HIV transmission studies. Her conclusion: "when it comes to the sexual transmission of HIV, the only real prevention is not to have sex with someone who has or might have HIV."¹⁸

This surely explains why not one of 800 sociologists at a conference a few years ago raised a hand when asked if they would trust a thin rubber sheath to protect them during intercourse with a known HIV-infected person.¹⁹ Who could blame them? They're not crazy, after all. And yet they're perfectly willing to tell our kids that "safe sex" is within reach and that they can sleep around with impunity.

There is only one way to protect ourselves from the deadly diseases that lie in wait. It is abstinence before marriage, then marriage and mutual fidelity for life to an uninfected partner. Anything less is potentially suicidal.

That position is simply NOT realistic today. It's an unworkable solution: Kids will NOT implement it. Some will. Some won't. It's still the only answer. But let's talk about an "unworkable solution" of the first order. Since 1970, the federal government has spent billions of our tax dollars to promote contraception and "safe sex." This year alone, hundreds of millions of your tax dollars will go down that drain! (Compared with less than $8 million for abstinence programs, which Sen. Teddy Kennedy and company have sought repeatedly to eliminate altogether.) Isn't it time we ask what we've gotten for our money? After 22 years and billions of dollars, some 58 percent of teenage girls under 18 still did not use contraception during their first intercourse.²⁰ Furthermore, teenagers tend to keep having unprotected intercourse for a full year, on average, before starting any kind of contraception.²¹ That is the success ratio of the experts who call abstinence "unrealistic" and "unworkable."

Even if we spent another $50 billion to promote condom usage, most teenagers would still not use them consistently and properly. The nature of human beings and the passion of the act simply do not lend themselves to a disciplined response in young romantics.

But if you knew a teenager was going to have intercourse, wouldn't you teach him or her about proper condom usage?

No, because that approach has an unintended consequence. The process of recommending condom usage to teenagers inevitably conveys five dangerous ideas: (1) that "safe sex" is achievable; (2) that everybody is doing it; (3) that responsible adults expect them to do it; (4) that it's a good thing; and (5) that their peers know they know these things, breeding promiscuity. Those are very destructive messages to give our kids.

Furthermore, Planned Parenthood's own data show that the number one reason teenagers engage in intercourse is peer pressure.²² Therefore, anything we do to imply that "everybody is doing it" results in more... not fewer... people who give the game a try. Condom distribution programs do not reduce the number of kids exposed to disease... they radically increase it!

Since the federal government began its major contraception program in 1970, unwed pregnancies have increased 87 percent among 15- to 19-year-olds.²³ Likewise, abortions among teens rose 67 percent.²⁴ Unwed births went up 83.8 percent.²⁵ And venereal disease has infected a generation of young people. Nice job, sex counselors. Good thinking, senators and congressmen. Nice nap, America.

Little Virginity

Having made a blunder that now threatens the human family, one would think the designers would be backtracking and apologizing for their miscalculations. Instead, they continue to lobby Congress and corporate America for more money. Given the misinformation extant on this subject, they'll probably get it.

But if you were a parent and knew that your son or daughter was having sex, wouldn't you rather he or she used a condom?

How much risk is acceptable when you're talking about your teenager's life? One study of married couples in which one partner was infected with HIV found that 17% of the partners using condoms for protection still caught the virus within a year and a half.²⁶

Telling our teens to "reduce their risk" to one in six (17%) is not much better than advocating Russian roulette. Both are fatal, eventually. The difference is that with a gun, death is quicker. Suppose your son or daughter were joining an 18-month skydiving club of six members. If you knew that one of their parachutes would definitely fail, would you recommend that they simply buckle the chutes tighter? Certainly not. You would say, "Please don't jump. Your life is at stake!" How could a loving parent do less?

Kids won't listen to the abstinence message. You're just wasting your breath to try to sell them a notion like that.

It is a popular myth that teenagers are incapable of understanding that it is in their best interest to save themselves until marriage. Almost 65 percent of all high school females under 18 are virgins.²⁷

A few years ago in Lexington, Ky., a youth event was held that featured no sports contest, no rock groups — just an ex-convict named Harold Morris talking about abstinence, among other subjects. The coliseum seated 18,000 people, but 26,000 teenagers showed up! Eventually, more than 2,000 stood outside the packed auditorium and listened over a hastily prepared public address system. Who says kids won't listen to this time-honored message?

Even teens who have been sexually active can choose to stop. This is often called "secondary virginity," a good concept that conveys the idea that kids can start over. One young girl recently wrote Ann Landers to say she wished she had kept her virginity, signing the letter, "Sorry I didn't and wish I could take it back."

As responsible adults we need to tell her that even though she can't go back, she can go forward. She can regain her self-respect and protect her health, because it's never too late to start saying "no" to premarital sex.

Even though the safe-sex advocates predominate in educational circles, are there no positive examples of abstinence-based programs for kids?

Thankfully, some excellent programs have been developed. Spokane-based Teen-Aid and Chicago's Southwest Parents Committee are good examples. So are Next Generation in Maryland, Choices in California and Respect Inc. in Illinois. Other curricula such as Facing Reality: Sex Respect, Me, My World, My Future; Reasonable Reasons to Wait; Sex, Love & Choices; F.A.C.T.S. etc., are all abstinence-themed programs to help kids make good sexual decisions.

A good curriculum for inner-city youth is Elaine Bennett's Best Friends Program. This successful "mentoring" project helps adolescents in Washington, D.C., graduate from high school and remain abstinent. In five years, not one female has become pregnant while in the Best Friends Program.

Establishing and nurturing abstinence ideas with kids, however, can be like spitting into the wind. Not because they won't listen, because most will. But pro-abstinence messages are drowned out in a sea of toxic teen-sex-is-inevitable-use-a-condom propaganda from "safe-sex" professionals.

Under this final item (the right to ask for help) is a list of organizations and phone numbers that readers are encouraged to call. The philosophy that governs several of the organizations includes presenting homosexuality as an acceptable life style and vigorous promotion of a teen's right to sexual expression.

Your tax dollars at work!

Surely there are other Americans who recognize the danger now threatening a generation of our best and brightest. It is time to speak up for an old-fashioned value called virginity. Now, more than ever, virtue is a necessity.

If you agree with Focus on the Family that it is time for a new approach to adolescent sexuality, tear out this ad and save it. Take it to your next school board meeting. Send it to your congressman or senator. Distribute copies to the PTA. And by all means, share it with your teenagers. Begin to promote abstinence before marriage as the only healthy way to survive this worldwide epidemic.

Please use the coupon below to obtain a valuable booklet on abstinence. There is no charge for it. However, your support is requested for an upcoming TV program for teenagers on this important topic. Your comments are also solicited.

Parish wins 189 pound division in Gaylord wrestling tournament

Keith Parish pinned his first two opponents and then took a 6-4 overtime decision in the finals to win the 189 pound division at the Northern Michigan Wrestling Championships in Gaylord Saturday. Parish was the only Rayder wrestler to win his weight class as Charlevoix placed 12th among 18 teams at the tournament.

Jason Hughes faced tough competition in the 112 pound weight class. Hughes faced five state qualifiers, two of them among the top finishers in last year's state meet, and finished the day with a 3-2 record. Hughes placed fourth, losing to a Petoskey wrestler after leading 5-0 going into the third period of the match.

Ron Haggard finished sixth at 152 pounds, going 3-3 on the day. Other Rayders winning matches were: Bruce Reinhart, 2-2 at heavy-weight; Rob Gillum, 1-2 at 160 pounds; and David Morales, 1-2 at 135 pounds.

The Rayders will wrestle Kalkaska and Rogers City at Kalkaska, Feb. 3.

Volleyball team loses despite fast start against Boyne City

After winning the first two games, the Charlevoix varsity lost the next three in losing a best of five match at Boyne City Jan. 26.

Charlevoix won the first two games 15-4, 15-5, but then momentum shifted dramatically and the Rayders lost the next three 15-9, 15-11 and 15-8. The loss dropped the Rayders season record to 2-4 overall and 1-3 in league play.

Top setters for the Rayders were Jill Dreyer and Jenny Swenor, top servers were Liz Kelly and Trina Holm. Leading the offense and defense were Liz Grunch and Gretchen Scott.

Charlevoix won the I.V. match 15-5, 8-15, 15-9. Top setters for Charlevoix were Kristen Czerkes and Aprille Pischner. Top servers were Czerkes and Jessa VanGuilder. Leading the defense were Emily Murray and VanGuilder. The best offensive players were Liz Coen and Czerkes.

Sports Boosters to host breakfast meeting

The Charlevoix High School Sports Boosters are beginning a new program. Every other week, beginning Monday, Feb. 7 the Sports Boosters will be having a breakfast with one of the high school coaches at the Flag Jack Family Restaurant. The public is invited to the meetings which will begin at 7 a.m. and last between 45 minutes and an hour. Several coaches from the school's winter athletic programs will be at the Feb. 7 meeting.

Basketball team splits with Harbor Springs and Boyne City

In the second half of Friday evening's game against league leading Boyne City, Rayder coach Jim Kanine grabbed a towel from the bench during a time out and went out and cleaned up a wet spot on the floor near the Rayder basket. It seemed like a small thing at the time, but in retrospect it was about the most productive thing a member of the Rayder team did in the offensive lane during the final quarter of the Boyne City game.

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team split a pair of home games last week with Harbor Springs and Boyne City. Tuesday, Jan. 25 the Rayders led throughout the game beating Harbor Springs 50-35. Friday, Jan. 28 the Rayder offense disappeared from the face of the earth in the fourth quarter and Charlevoix fell to Boyne City 48-45.

Charlevoix, now 2-7, played Boyne City tough, particularly on defense. Senior center David Dobulis had a monster game defensively blocking five Boyne City shots and altering several others.

The Rayder offense has struggled with consistency all year and Friday evening's game was no different. Charlevoix fell behind 17-12 at the end of the first quarter, then rallied to take a 30-29 lead at halftime.

In the second-half, both teams tightened the screws defensively and struggled to find any kind of rhythm offensively. Charlevoix got some scoring from guards Don Jess and Jerry Duhart and a few baskets from Dobulis, but beyond that nobody proved to be much of an offensive threat. By streaks this season junior forward Charlie Pop has been the other source of offense the Rayders need. Boyne City didn't appear to have anyone with the size and strength to match up with Pop, but they played good team defense and Pop got into foul trouble and just never got his game rolling.

Charlevoix outscored Boyne City 12-10 in the third quarter and went into the fourth quarter leading 42-39. Matt Norton hit two free throws in the opening minute of the quarter and the Rayders led 44-39. Then the Rayder offense went into a drought, a bad drought, the kind of drought that would kill a camel which had been watered just before the trip began. Following Norton's free throws, the Rayders did not score again until there was less than half a minute left in the game.

While the Rayders were having their offensive woes, Boyne City wasn't faring a great deal better. The Ramblers managed to score only three points during the first five and a half minutes of the game.

Boyne City finally took the lead on a controversial play with just more than two minutes left in the game. Charlevoix had the ball and turned it over to Boyne City. Boyne City guard Brandon Stadt was dribbling the ball with his left hand, pushing it hard upcourt. Duhart was trailing the play, sprinting from behind and to the right of Stadt.

It was the kind of play that you can see unfold and almost see what the players are thinking. As Stadt neared the top of the key he was looking either for one of his teammates cutting to the basket or looking for a lane so he could take the ball to the basket. Meanwhile Duhart was hauling his tail downcourt just as fast as he could thinking to himself, if he pulls up and shifts the dribble to his right hand, that ball is mine.

An instant later, Stadt did as Duhart hoped he would. Not realizing Duhart was as close as he was, Stadt shifted his dribble to his right hand. Duhart reached out and popped the ball free.

The referee on the baseline blew his whistle and called a foul on Duhart. Whether or not Duhart got a piece of Stadt's hand or arm is hard to say, but he might as well have, because that's the way the referee called it. Upset with the result of the play, Duhart smacked his hand on the cushion on the wall at the end of the court.

The referee called a technical foul. Stadt, a free throw shooting machine, went to the line to shoot four free throws, two for the foul and two for the technical. He made three of four and Boyne City led 46-44.

Matt Norton (43) takes a shot against Boyne City. In the fourth quarter Charlevoix's only scoring came on three free throws.

Normally, a two point lead with two minutes left in the game is not insurmountable, but the way the Rayder offense was going in the fourth quarter it proved to be. Stadt got two more free throws and Dobulis one to end the game 48-45.

What offense the Rayders had was balanced. Dobulis led the team with 11 points while Jess and Duhart each had eight. Pop had eight rebounds while Trevor Williams had five. Jess had six assists while Brandon Webb had four steals. Chris Pair also came off the bench and gave the Rayders four points and some good minutes.

Tuesday night against Harbor Springs, Charlevoix gave up just 16 points in the first half and only four in the second quarter. Charlevoix took a 31-16 lead into halftime and coasted home in the second half. The Rayders received their most balanced offensive game of the season from their forwards. Dobulis led the team with 19 points and 13 rebounds. Pop had 10 points and five rebounds while Matt Norton added nine points and six rebounds.

Charlevoix's junior varsity team beat Harbor Springs 87-75 and Boyne City 72-60.

The Harbor Springs game was a run and gun scoreboard toaster. Gary Leitner scored at will, leading the Rayders with 29 points. Casey Crain added 14 and Jason Smith and Mark Boss a dozen apiece.

Smith had another strong game against Boyne City, scoring 20 points. George McClellan had 16 while Crain had 12.

Charlevoix's will host Traverse City St. Francis in a homecoming game Friday evening.

Charlie Pop (55) played well against Harbor Springs, but foul trouble limited his productivity against Boyne City.

Brandon Webb goes up for a shot against Boyne City. Webb, like the entire Rayder team, had a nice defensive game against Boyne City, but struggled offensively.

Episcopal Church celebrates 100th anniversary

Christ Episcopal Church of Charlevoix will begin celebrating its 100th anniversary with a pancake supper Tuesday Feb. 15 at the American Legion hall. The supper will take place from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tickets are $5 per person and a variety of door prizes will be awarded.

The very first worship services of Christ Episcopal Church were celebrated in the summer of 1893. Fourteen people received Communion. General Missionary Rev. E.J. Babcock was appointed by the Diocese of Western Michigan to develop churches in northern Michigan. Services were maintained in the schoolhouse in 1884.

In 1885, two lots on Antrim Street were purchased. However, in 1892 the lots were sold and a new lot (on the present building site State & Clinton) was purchased for $550.

On July 30, 1894 the cornerstone of the church was set in place. Construction work was ahead of schedule. Services were held in the new church building the summer of 1895. There were then 24 communicants with a Sunday School of four teachers and 42 children.

The mission struggled for many years. It was unable to remain open on a year round basis, though regular services were held in the summer months.

In 1942, a few dedicated families resolved and succeeded in keeping the mission open year round. The mission grew. In 1953 the first resident priest was called.

Through the years, growth and financial stability continued to occur. At the 1980 annual convention, Christ Episcopal Church of Charlevoix was accepted as a parish in the Diocese of Western Michigan.

In the time of 100 years, the communicants and friends of Christ Church have been faithful stewards of their God-given gifts of time, talent and money in serving the Lord and His church with love and joy to the glory of God.

finding government agencies that might be interested in the pump. "We're just kind of feeling our way," Angel said. The process is a long, slow one for the Bearss, who have invested nearly $10,000 in patent processes and materials to develop the prototype.

"We're hoping to find a market in Third World countries where they don't have electricity," Jim said. The pump can be used as a back-up to electrically operated pumps or can function solely as a manual pump. The two way pumping action of the handle makes the pump twice as efficient as traditional pumps, which only pump on the downswing of the handle. Bearss said the pump's attachable flexible tubing would also make it handy in disaster areas where flooding has occurred.

Jim got the idea for marketing the pump in Third World countries after he and Angel embarked on a mission trip through Mexico and Guatemala. They traveled 50 miles up the Passion River into the jungle by canoe, loaded with a sawmill and the pump. There they visited a burned out mission that was being rebuilt. The Bearss brought a sawmill to the mission so the missionaries could cut their own lumber. When they saw a need to transport water without the benefit of electricity, they decided to leave a pump with them. The pump was a big success with the folks at the mission.

The government has been receptive to the pump so far. "They're fairly enthused about it," Jim said. As the Bearss continue to look for ways to market their pump, they keep themselves busy turning out products for other companies and driving children to school. Both Jim and Angel are school bus drivers in Charlevoix. Both Bearss acknowledge that the process of developing their own product has been long and challenging. Jim said Angel occasionally wishes they'd never had the idea in the first place, yet she remains supportive. "It's been a long haul," Angel said, adding, "But we've certainly learned a lot along the way."

Charlevoix's tourism industry during the traditionally slow winter months.

Among the Chamber accomplishments in 1993 Joseph cited were increased membership, a net profit of five percent, the installation of new computers and software at the Chamber office, a membership fee collection rate of 99 percent, continued progress on a downtown business plan and the success of the Venetian Festival and Apple Festival. Joseph noted that the Apple Festival is going to be expanded to a three-day event in 1994.

Three awards were presented at the meeting. Bill McDonough of Beaver Island was named the Ambassador of the Year, John Taylor, chairman of the Venetian Festival, received the President's Award. And Josh Barnes of LexaLite International received the Outstanding Citizen award.

Chamber board members for 1994 are: Dick Joseph, President; Joe Trojanek, Vice President; Julia Tucker, Second Vice President; Vel Kammerman, Treasurer; and board members Sherry Fiedorek, Walt Hufford, Jerry Russell, Reid Freidinger, Chuck Centek, Tracey Sell, Pat Donnelly and Tom Phillips.

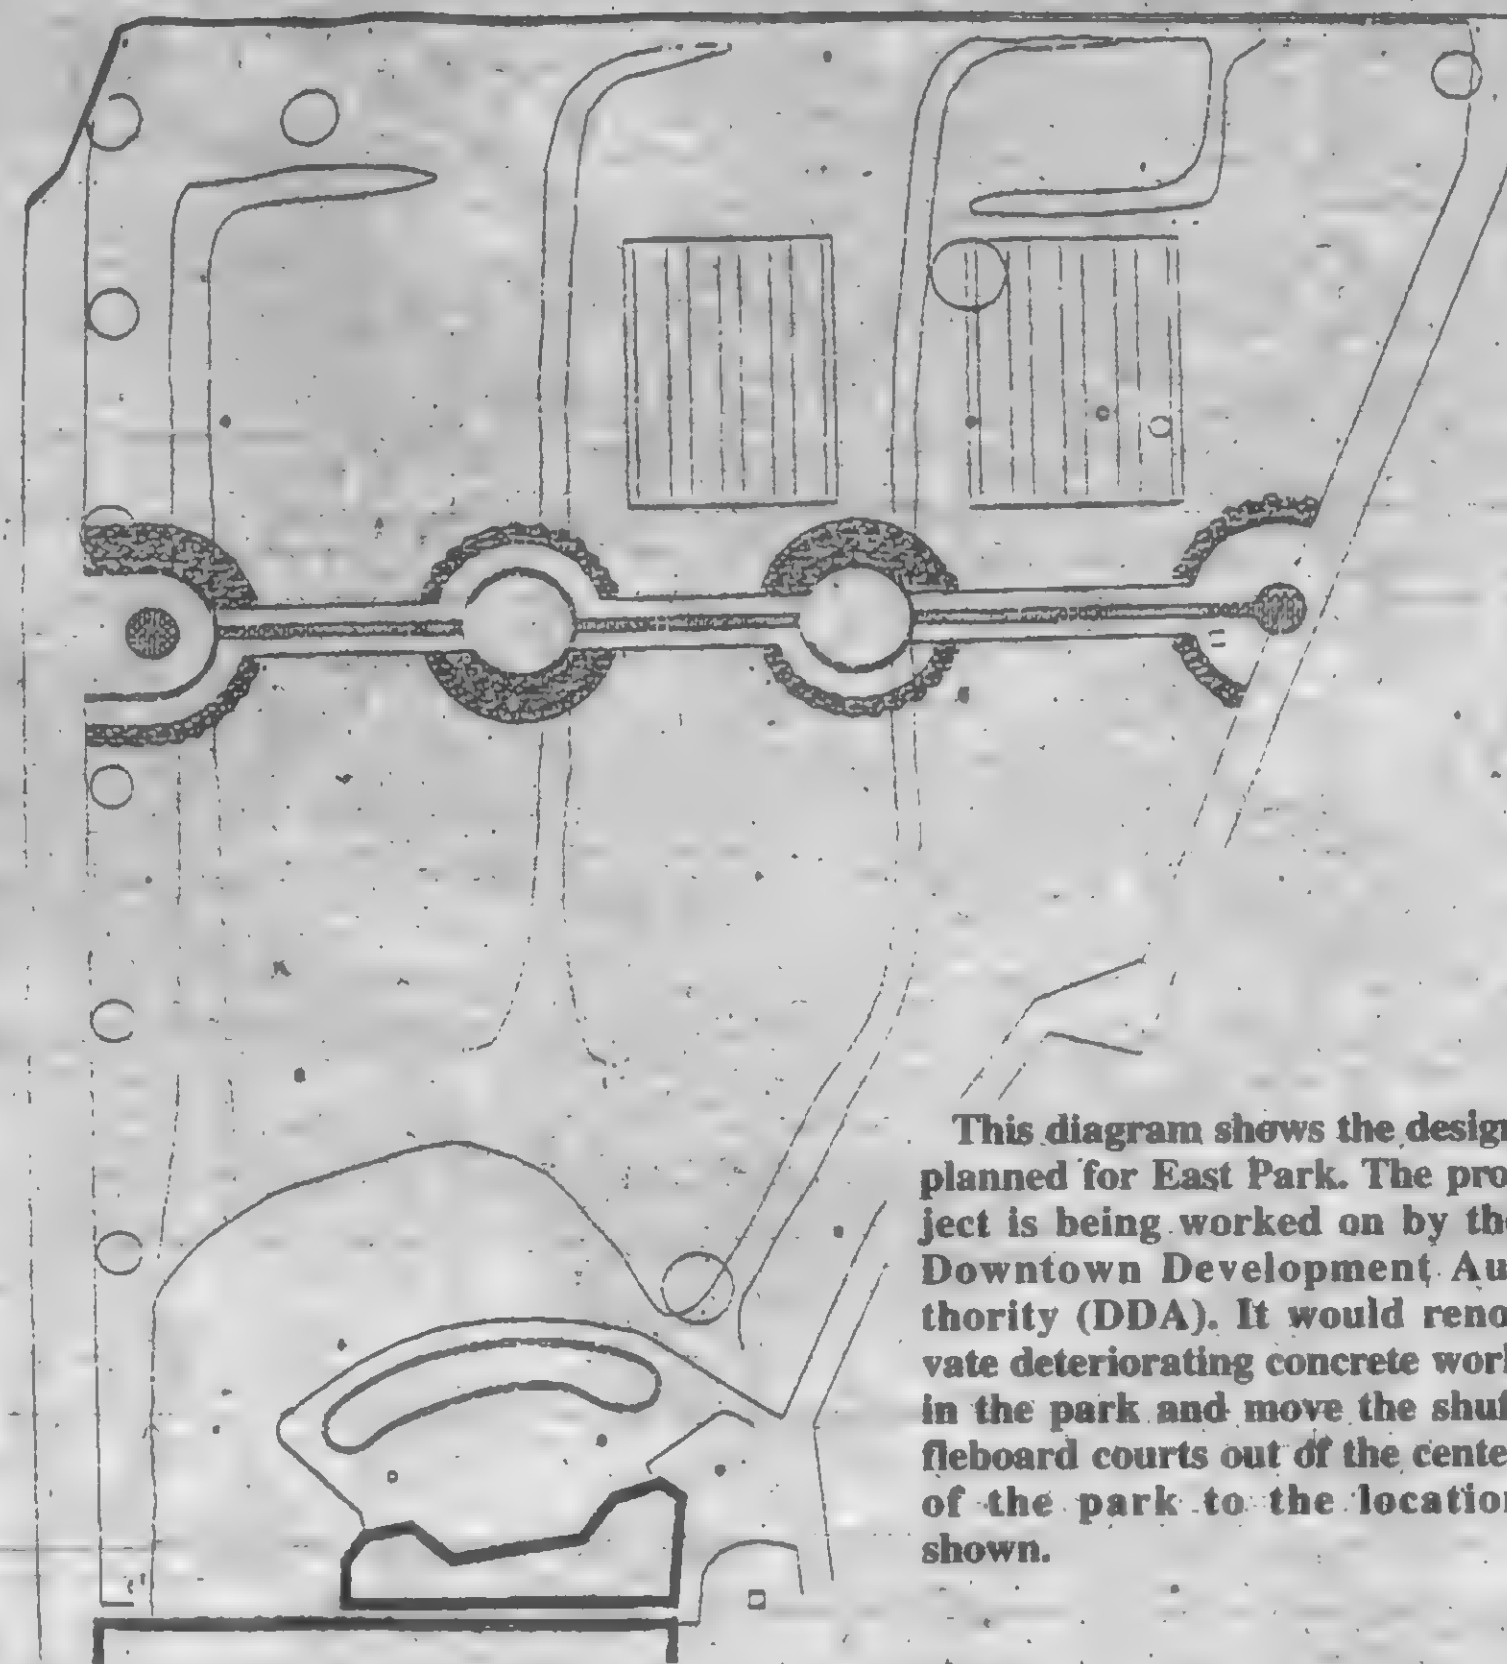

School enrichment foundation helps fund new computer

The Charlevoix School Enrichment Foundation recently contributed approximately $1,500 toward the purchase of computer equipment for the Charlevoix High School science program. High school science teacher Roger Gowell put the program together. Ultimately, he hopes to have eight computer work stations in the science lab. The Enrichment Foundation contribution, in conjunction with a contribution from a local business, helped purchase the first work station to get the program off the ground. Students have already begun to use the station, creating a video catalog of local plant life for a botany project.

The Foundation currently is working to help an Elementary School Media Center project which will use art work to help develop the students' appreciation of literature.

The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation collects contributions and invests those contributions. Interest from those investments is awarded through grants for projects which help Charlevoix school students go above and beyond the normal classroom work.

Recently, the foundation sent a letter to Charlevoix High School alumni explaining the program and soliciting donations. The mailing went out in late December and to date, just more than $500 has been received.

This diagram shows the design planned for East Park. The project is being worked on by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). It would renovate deteriorating concrete work in the park and move the shuffleboard courts out of the center of the park to the location shown.

Belvedere Avenue. The estimated cost of the project is $50,000.

City Manager Mike Wiesner discussed renovation plans for Veterans' Park. He said John Ferguson of Ferguson & Chamberlain Associates has been working with local veterans to come up with a proposed design. That design would put steps off of Bridge Street near the center of the park down to a walk which would lead to a circular brick area in the middle of trees at the center of the park. A memorial stone and flag would be placed at the center of the brick area. Additional steps and a walkway on a north-south plane would be placed toward the eastern side of the park connecting Antrim Street and Harsch discussed plans to pave a parking lot to the south of Clinton Street between Bridge and State Streets. The lot is currently a gravel lot which was created when the DDA purchased the lot and a house approximately four years ago and tore down the house. The paved lot would contain approximately 25 parking spaces. One of the questions the DDA is considering is whether to use the entire lot for parking or to leave a grassy area between the lot and Clinton Street with cars continuing to enter and exit at the south end of the lot. The estimated cost of the project is $50,000.

DDA proposes adding eight projects

By L. Scott Swanson
The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) continued work on an amendment which will add eight projects to the DDA project list. The projects include the following:

1. Buying property in Bridge Park from the state so the DDA may move forward with a $1.8 million plan to renovate the park. The estimated cost of purchasing the property is $250,000.

2. Buying and developing 15 feet of property adjacent to (immediately north of) the Pine River Building. Currently the property is owned by the state and there is a covered wooden walkway on it. The DDA proposes to purchase the property and construct a handicap accessible walkway. The estimated cost of purchasing the property is $25,000.

3. Renovating City Hall. The renovation would include elevator construction, construction of a new heating and air conditioning system, electrical system, air circulation system, office remodeling, adding a drop ceiling, new lighting fixtures, windows, drapes etc. Not all of the money would come from the DDA. At the DDA's Jan. 12 meeting, City Manager Mike Wiesner proposed having the DDA make a $15,000 annual appropriation to the renovation and the infrastructure, electric, sewer and water funds make annual appropriations totaling $63,000. The $78,000 annual appropriations would continue until the completion of the project. The project has an estimated cost of $400,000.

This project may also involve money from other city funds in addition to the DDA. The estimated cost is $25,000.

5. Construction of a storage area for the U.S. Coast Guard cutter.

Assuming a Coast Guard cutter continues to be stationed in Charlevoix, this project would construct a storage facility in the bank of what is now Bridge Park. The estimated cost is $50,000.

6. Buying and installing new street lights on State Street between Park Avenue and Antrim Streets and on Antrim, Mason and Clinton Streets between Bridge and State Streets. The estimated cost of the project is $75,000.

7. Buying the Parkside Restaurant and former Wharfside Market properties - if they come up for sale. According to the proposal the properties would be acquired "for continued short term use as a private business and possible medium term use as a public building/private business use and possible long term use as a public/private business or building demolition and conversion to park land with typical park use." The estimated cost of purchasing the property is $550,000.

8. Developing the area around Michigan Beach and the old water tower. This plan has many of the same features as the plan which the city unsuccessfully sought a state grant for in 1993. The plan includes: constructing a parking lot, walks, steps and a deck at the water tower site; paving the gravel parking lot off the end of Palmer Street; constructing a picnic area between the Fish Hatchery and the Pine River Channel; and doing a variety of landscaping work. The estimated cost of the project is $250,000.

At the Jan. 26 meeting the DDA approved having Wiesner continue to work with other staff members on the proposed amendments. Prior to the amendments being added to the DDA project list, they will have to be reviewed by the City Planning Commission and reviewed and approved by the City Council.

This will be the third time the DDA project list has been amended since the Charlevoix DDA was created in 1982.

City, DDA and School strike $124,000 deal

County commissioners decide not to participate

By L. Scott Swanson

As the ramifications of school finance reform grow ever more complicated, the City Council and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) have agreed to a one-time refund of $124,000 from the DDA to the Charlevoix school system. Char-Em Intermediate School District and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners were asked to participate in the agreement. Char-Em did, the County didn't.

When school finance reform takes place later this year, the state will establish a per pupil foundation grant figure and provide that much money per pupil to educate Charlevoix Public School students. That figure will be based on current per pupil expenditures and is expected to be somewhere between $6,300 and $6,500.

Since the DDA has been capturing tax dollars from school tax levies, the school's revenue (which the foundation grant will be based on) has been less than it would have been without the DDA. In order to make that revenue figure higher and consequently raise the foundation grant level for future years, the city, DDA and school district worked out a refund agreement.

The refund agreement had to be in place by 5 p.m., Feb. 1 since the school was required to send its budget figures to the state by that time. School, city, DDA, county and Char-Em officials met to work out the agreement Jan. 31. The agreement was adopted minutes before the Feb. 3, 5 p.m. deadline.

There's still some question as to whether the state will allow the agreement to indeed raise the school's foundation grant. If it doesn't, a provision in the agreement calls for the school to give the money back to the DDA - in effect refunding the refunded money. The county's decision not to participate in the agreement annoyed some city and DDA members.

"I'm a little upset because the county commissioners don't seem to feel it's important to work together as government bodies."

Charlevoix Mayor Dave Novotny criticizing the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for declining to participate in a multi-agency agreement involving the city's Downtown Development Authority

Prior to the Feb. 1 joint meeting of the city council, school board, DDA, and a representative from Char-Em, the respective bodies met individually as did the county board of commissioners. At their meeting, the county board of commissioners decided not to participate in the agreement although they passed a resolution saying they had no opposition to an agreement between the city, DDA and school.

At the joint meeting, Mayor Dave Novotny said, "I'm a little upset because the county commissioners don't seem to feel it's important to work together as government bodies."

In a later interview with the Courier, Don Smith, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, said the county decided not to participate in the agreement because it was a last-minute deal and there were too many loose ends. Smith said he received a call at about 4:30, Sunday Jan. 30 from City Manager Mike Wiesner who said there was a problem and the

"I think there was more to it than being a team."

Don Smith, Chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, speculating about why the city wanted the county to be party to a new agreement regarding the Downtown Development Authority city, county and school needed to work out a deal to help the school system. Smith agreed to meet with city and school officials Monday and call a special meeting Tuesday. Monday, Jan. 31 a group of representatives from the various entities met from about 2:30 to 5 p.m.

Coast Guardsmen lend a hand at school playground

By Laurie Lounsbury

A kid on the playground thought about tackling another kid - tackling him, then maybe calling him "Dogbreath." He thought better of it when a firm, yet friendly voice called out, "Hey, Remember? No tackling." The kid abandoned all thoughts of mischief when the man with the big voice introduced a new playground game, building human pyramids. The voice belonged to one of the seamen from the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station. The Coast Guard seaman is one of nine seamen who volunteer their time to work with children at the elementary school. Playground skirmishes have turned into teamwork scrimmages with the Coast Guard's guidance.

The Coast Guard's involvement at the school is part of a new Coast Guard program called, "Partnership in Education." The program is designed to increase community interaction with the Coast Guard.

Seaman Michael Koch learned about the program when a visiting District Admiral spoke to the men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard station. Koch got the ball rolling by contacting the district office in Cleveland for more information. After proposing the idea to Elementary School Principal Richard Swenor, the Coast Guard men quickly found themselves on the school playground at recess, teaching sports, social skills, and team work to elementary school children.

"One of the places we love to have more personnel is at recess

...County declines to join in DDA agreement

Smith said there were several unanswered questions, but the message he got from city officials was that if the county didn't sign off on the deal, then the school wouldn't get the refunded money from the DDA. He said that after the county board decision Tuesday afternoon, he called the city at about 4 p.m. to tell them the county wouldn't be participating. Smith said that at that time he was again told that if the county didn't participate, there would be no deal and the school wouldn't get the money from the DDA. Less than an hour later, there was a deal.

Smith says he feels the whole Feb. 1 deadline and emergency atmosphere was artificial and that the city and DDA had an ulterior motive in pushing for a deal. There is a provision in a 1990 agreement between the city, DDA, school, Char-Em and County which calls for the DDA to expire in 1998. However, the 1990 agreement also says that the agreement is void if school finance reform causes a loss of funds for the DDA. The city maintains that since there has been school finance reform, the 1990 agreement is now void. Smith said he's not so sure of that yet, because he's not sure school finance reform will indeed cause a loss of revenue for the DDA.

Smith also speculated that the city council and DDA may have wanted the county to sign off so that it would be easier for the DDA to borrow money by selling bonds to fund several proposed DDA projects.

"I think there was more to it than being a team," Smith said, adding that he feels the county did the right thing by not participating in the deal.

In an interview with the Courier following the Feb. 7 city council meeting, Novotny said the only thing the city and DDA were trying to do was help the school system. He said attorneys tell him the 1990 agreement is negated. He said the only reason the county was brought into the negotiation was to make an arrangement with the county involving county tax dollars from Grandvue and 9-1-1 which the DDA may capture.

"As far as I'm concerned, all Don's done is bite off his nose to spite his face," Novotny said.

Children invited to library hour fun

The Charlevoix Public Library will begin its winter series of Saturday Morning Adventures for children this Saturday. The six week series is from 11 a.m. to noon on Saturday mornings. It began Feb. 5 and will continue through March 12. It is open to all elementary age children. A variety of talented people from the area will be working with the children this year.

Following is a list of this year's programs:
Feb. 5 - Candy Smith of Vital Options led the children in an hour of creative movement.
Feb. 12 - Children are invited to sing songs with the Beemon Family.

Feb. 19 - Bob Roloff of the Charlevoix Fire Department will give children a tour of the ambulance and tell them what to expect if they're ever involved in a medical emergency.

Feb. 26 - Kathy Reid will share her cake decorating secrets with the children.

March 5 - Children are invited to think of spring and find out about gardening with Sue LoutseHe of "From the Wildside."

March 12 - Ray and Tami Bier of Bier Pottery will help the children create a masterpiece.

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

We've all heard about the glory days of the one room school house, and most of us believed it was gone forever.

Not so! Right here in Charlevoix County, located in Advance, there's a simple one-room schoolhouse called "Porter Creek Learning Center." It's an alternative school started in 1989 by Shelly Martin, Boyne City Community Education Director. It's her hope that this experiment in education will evolve into a Charter School, which would mean funding would be more than doubled for the forty students from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Gaylord and Petoskey.

Dave Smith, principal of the Charlevoix High School, took me to visit this innovative school last week. His van, loaded with old computers and out-of-date books, are on loan, since this equipment has since been replaced in the CHS. When we arrived, the kids merrily unloaded the van and greeted Smith with such enthusiasm, you'd think he was Santa Claus!

Smith introduced me to the Public school's only two teachers, Jeri Deitz and Richard Shultz. Not only do they teach all high school subjects from grade 9 to 12, but they also pick up kids from home and drive them to and from school when necessary. Do they feel put upon? On the contrary, Deitz says, "I look forward to coming to work." And Shultz tells me with enthusiasm that kids who have no success in traditional schools become stars in our school. "They blossom here."

This is true. The students have volunteered to remodel the building. They've put up a basketball court. They raise money and help prepare Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners. In addition, they receive credit for these practical learning projects.

Yet, it's not all smooth sailing. "This semester," Shultz continues, "we started out with 48 students and we now have 40. Some youngsters drop out, come back, drop out and come back. People learn in different ways, you see. Here the students all work at their own pace. They may spend a whole day on one subject if they wish, instead of five or six subjects each day in the traditional school. We have a number of students who would not have graduated were it not for the Alternative School, and we are proud to say that some youngsters have gone on to college."

What kind of kids are drawn to the Alternative School? Many students we're told are quite bright. There are various reasons that they choose to attend this one-room schoolhouse which lacks many of the advantages offered in the traditional school. Some have severe home problems. Some have difficult basic economic problems, such as food, clothing and homelessness. And some, as in every other school, have attention disorder deficits. Shultz sums it up, "Everyone is here for a different reason."

The Alternative School runs a full school day from 8:40 to 3:10 with a half hour for lunch. The students who graduate receive a regular diploma and often attend the graduating ceremony of their own school.

What need motivated Shelly Martin to start this experimental approach?

"The drop-out rate was too high in this county! I believe all kids can learn in the right setting. Our school is loosely structured and the kids help each other. We practice co-operative learning," Martin explained.

"Char-Em discussed this project for years, but nothing was done. We formed a chore group and started the first class in 89-90 in the basement of the Boyne City Public Library. We selected 18 potential drop-outs, who had discipline or credit problems. We invited them to try this new school and included kids from Charlevoix and East Jordan. She laughs when she recalls, "We lost $25,000 that first year!"

Fortunately there have been people since the beginning like Dave Smith from Charlevoix and Judy Pollette from the Board of Education in Boyne City who are staunch supporters of the school. In addition, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently gave the school a $1,000 environmental grant toward a wilderness experience for the students, who hope to go on a white-water river rafting trip — if they can raise another $1,000.

When I asked the teachers if any equipment is needed, a smiling girl quickly spoke up and offered the following suggestions — history books, maps, a globe — then other friendly students joined in the chorus with — a VCR, and a copy machine. Shultz added, "We have a microscope, and a drafting board, but we could use science equipment and art supplies."

"Do you teach art and music?" I asked.

"The kids bring their own electric guitars and entertain each other during the lunch period," Shultz replied. "I have a background in commercial art, but a volunteer art teacher would be welcome."

Before I left, Jeri Deitz took me through the antiquated kitchen. "We have large pots, but we could use some small saucepans, cups, glasses and forks," she confided. As we tiptoed over the damp kitchen floor she added, "We draw names for floor mopping and dish-washing."

The visit to the "Porter Creek Learning Center" is indeed timely since there is so much discussion going on about alternative education and charter schools. Pondering on the drive home I felt as if someone had turned back the clock for a few hours to the days when there

Decision not to rush into deal was proper and did no harm

A decision by the County Board of Commissioners to sit out an agreement between the City, Downtown Development Authority (DDA), Charlevoix School and Char-Em Intermediate School District may have riled some city and DDA officials, but it really did no harm and was the right move.

The agreement in question involved the DDA refunding $124,000 to the school system so that the school may possibly receive more money from the state for local education. (See related story page 1.) The agreement itself and the efforts by the city, DDA, Char-Em and school are laudable. Although it isn't a sure thing that the agreement will indeed bring more state money to the Charlevoix school system, the effort was certainly worthwhile.

The city and DDA wanted the county to be party to the agreement because the county had been part of earlier DDA funding agreements. But the bottom line is that it really wasn't necessary for the county to participate. That's obvious by the fact that the county chose not to participate and the agreement still went through.

The agreement was negotiated on a last minute basis under a state imposed deadline. City, DDA, county, school and Char-Em officials met on Monday, Jan. 31 with a deadline of 5 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 1. There was little time for county commissioners to analyze the proposal before them. Rather than act in haste when it wasn't necessary, the county commissioners chose to pass on the proposal. That makes sense.

In regard to DDA funding, there's no need for an agreement between the school and county. There's no link between those two entities. The only common ground shared by the school and county is that the DDA derives funding from both of them. If the city and DDA want to negotiate a deal with the school, it's not necessary to involve the county. The same would hold true if the city and DDA wanted to work out a deal with the county. It wouldn't be mandatory to involve the school.

The Feb. 1 deadline involved the school. The city and DDA took that time constraint into consideration as they should have. The Feb. 1 deadline didn't involve the county so the county board of commissioners chose not to be pressured by it. Why act in haste when it's not necessary?

Letters to the editor

Editor's note: The following letters were written by Charlevoix sixth grade students in an English class taught by Kathy Gowell. The students were working on a letter-writing unit and began discussing the power of the pen and how letters can influence people. The students concluded that letters to the editor provide a forum for community members to voice their opinions on public issues.

Editor,

I really think Charlevoix needs a pool. It's a lot easier to go down town than to go all the way to Harbor Springs or East Jordan, especially in the winter.

Complainers say there is no room for a pool, but just look around. There are plenty of places like down by Ferry Beach, by the tennis courts, by the Elementary School, etc.

Sometimes the lake is too cold to swim in, and half the year you can't use the lake.

I might only be twelve years old and I enjoy going to the beach with my friends. However, lots of people would prefer a pool over the lake, especially elderly people, who are unable to get in the lake. Just think of a hot tub, a ramp for handicapped people, a swim team and swimming lessons all for the pool.

"I hope you read this and try your hardest to get a pool. It would be beneficial to a lot of people."

Respectfully yours,
T.J. Christiansen

Editor,

I think a new multiplex theater downtown is a great idea. It will be better for moviegoers to line up on a side street instead of crowding the sidewalk downtown. On the other hand, the old movie theater has been around for a long time. I will miss the old theater, but I will like the new one. (I hope this theater has fresh popcorn.)

Sincerely,
Tom Wilson

Editor,

I'm in the sixth grade at the Charlevoix Middle School. I have a complaint about the way the roads are plowed. People don't like the way the plows make the snow banks so high cars and trucks can't see the other side of the road or corner. That's how a lot of accidents are caused. Also you cover people's driveways with snow. I know some people who have to shovel by hand just to get out of their driveway.

I know some of your drivers try hard to make the roads good. I think you should all try harder so less accidents are caused and people don't have to shovel by hand. Especially when the snow is deep and you only have a certain amount of time. In that case I think you should hire more drivers or put together a volunteer program. I think it would work.

Sincerely,
Angela Starr

Editor,

I'm sick and tired of going out to our mailbox every day, only to find that a snowplow has gone by and snowed us in. Every day just because of a snowplow, we have to stand outside for a long time shoveling out our mailbox and driveway. Once, we just finished shoveling, and a snowplow went by and ruined it. We're sick of standing outside, freezing, because of a snowplow.

I know many people who feel the same way as I do.

I think snowplows should go by early in the morning or late in the evening, just so they don't go by right before the mail comes.

I also, believe that snowplow drivers should be a little more careful, because I know someone who almost got hit by one. Otherwise, I think they do a terrific job.

Yours truly,
Sonya Omland

Editor,

In the past there has been talk about putting a pool in at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Lots of kids would like it because they could swim in the winter or on rainy days. Younger kids who don't know how to swim could learn in gym class at the Elementary School. It would make it so we wouldn't have to drive to East Jordan or Harbor Springs for a pool.

Sincerely,
Joel Trubilawicz

Editor,

I got to thinking about the topic of guns and how they affect the world lately. Now some people say that they should outlaw guns completely. Other people say they should make the guns more expensive.

I think that if they do all of that people (not everyone) will break in to places that sold guns and steal them. That will raise the crime rate because there is no law strong enough to stop them. Or they will have guns imported and the U.S. will lose business.

Sincerely,
Shaun MacMillan

Editor,

We are two sixth grade students at Charlevoix Middle School that are thankful to the city of Charlevoix for opening the skating rink for our use at lunchtime. We wish that you would open the warming hut, so we don't have to put our skates on sitting in the snow. We also get very cold while we are skating.

If possible, we would appreciate the use of the warming hut from 12:30 p.m. to 1 p.m. This would be our two lunch periods.

Thank you for your consideration.
Yours truly,
Susie Agnello and Jenny Wojan

Editor,

I am a sixth grader at Charlevoix Middle School. I would like to thank the city for leaving the Middle Schoolers ice skate during noon hour. We are enjoying the rink very much. We would enjoy the skating even more if the warming hut was open because we have to sit in the snow to put our skates on and take them off. Sitting in the snow makes the skating not as much fun because our clothing gets wet. The city could leave a key to the warming hut with the school. The school would open the hut at noon.

Thank you again for letting us use the skating rink.
Sincerely,
Kirsten Brendtro

Editor,

I'm in sixth grade. I go to the Charlevoix Middle School, and I'm twelve years old. I live out by Bay Shore. Lots of roads like, my road, Burnett, Murray, Villa and Maple Grove Roads hardly ever get plowed, after a storm. Lots of people need to get to work or school. I catch the bus at 6:50 - 7 o'clock.

It's not fair, just because we live on back roads doesn't mean the plow trucks can't plow these roads! I do understand that the main roads are busy in the morning, but what about the roads that the buses need to drive on?

My solution is to have a V.P.R.C. (Volunteer Plowing Roads Committee) Lots of people have plows and they could be on the V.P.R.C.

I think it should work so people who have plows, plow their own roads. If two people live on the same road, and they both have plows, they should take turns plowing the road.

Sincerely,
Anora Ruehle

Editor,

I am a sixth grade student who thinks we should have an indoor town pool. It's not fair to the people of Charlevoix to have to drive to East Jordan just to swim. I, also, think it would be a great advantage to Charlevoix. I know many people in Charlevoix who like to swim, but not in a freezing lake.

Sincerely,
Angela Foster

Editor,

We are in the sixth grade and at the Charlevoix Middle School and feel that we are not being treated fairly at school because we are younger and smaller. We are taken advantage of and would like it to stop! For example, at lunch time our basketballs are being taken from us and thrown across the gym. Also, the older kids will push us around like we're nobodies. Such as, when we're walking down the hall an older kid will rush by and bump right into us and not even say excuse me or sorry.

We're not saying that all seventh and eighth graders are like this, in fact, a lot of them are nice to us, but there are others that can really be rude.

We're writing this letter on behalf of the sixth grade and hope that in the future sixth graders will be treated better.

Sincerely,
Taya Drost
Erika Kammermann

Editor,
I think we should build an indoor pool in Charlevoix. Not only will it be a perfect source of recreation, but it would create job opportunities, too.

The pool would need electricians, plumbers, construction workers, and carpenters (all for the building's constructions), life guards, accountants for its money management, teachers for swimming lessons, and more.

Building a pool will also raise the amount of money coming in and out of businesses. People would pay a amount of money to get in. That money will pay the workers, and make improvements.

The pool will also help other businesses because the pool will have to buy equipment like a diving board, first aid kits, life preservers, and other stuff from them.

By the way, I'm a 6th grader.

Sincerely,
Luke Whitley

Editor,
I am a sixth grade student at Charlevoix Middle School. I've heard of several incidents with teenage kids smoking pot, drinking, and getting into fights in Charlevoix.

I think parents and guardians should take more precautions. You may think these things cannot happen in Charlevoix, but they can.

Sincerely,
Jamie Drew

was nothing but a one-room schoolhouse in the district. Their success depends, I'm convinced, solely on the teachers. Even tho' their pay is low, their dedication is sky high, and the students know deep down how much these teachers care.

Currently the school is financially supported by St. Ignace Adult Education Consortium, which runs the adult education program in 15 school districts, and also pays for the bussing of some of the students. Other youngsters come in on their own. If this school were to become a charter school, for starters, there would be more money for supplies and teachers' salaries would be equalized. To some kids at risk with a co-operative program such as this charter school or not is a program that deserves our continued and enthusiastic support.

FAMILY

Katherine Dillon Gambill & William H. Gambill III

Dillon - Gambill

Katherine Dillon of Charlevoix and William Henry Gambill III of Pacific Palisades, California, were married at the Little Chapel of the Flowers in Las Vegas, Nevada on November 27, 1993.

The bride is the daughter of Patricia Dillon and John Dillon, both of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Gambill II of Pacific Palisades, California.

Twenty-five guests attended the candlelight ceremony with double ring rites. The chapel was decorated with ivory roses and baby's breath.

The bride wore a wedding gown of antique ivory, heavy brocade-silk with gold woven throughout the fabric. The dress had a scoop neck with a tea length, renaissance style skirt. She wore ivory roses in her hair. The bride's flowers were ivory and crimson roses and baby's breath. The dress was designed by the groom's mother.

Renaissance folk music was played during the ceremony.

Christine Dillon, sister of the bride, served as the maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Gina Gambill, sister of the groom. They wore black silk dresses with V necks and V backs, accented with lace and cameo chokers. They carried ivory and crimson roses with baby's breath.

The best man was Alonso Domínguez. K.T. Reilly acted as groomswoman.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride at The Raters in Las Vegas.

Both the bride and groom have Master's degrees in English literature and teach at Pepperdine University in Malibu, California.

The couple will take a trip to Russia in the spring. They reside in Malibu.

Richard Fochtman

Richard A. Fochtman, 69, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 3, 1994, at his home.

His funeral was Feb. 7 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, under the auspices of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F & AM. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Fochtman was born Aug. 22, 1924, in Petoskey, the son of Angus L. and Ella M. (Cross) Fochtman. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1929, where he graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1942. He then attended Michigan State University.

Mr. Fochtman served during World War II in the U.S. Army/Air Force.

He married Bonnie W. Sutton on Oct. 8, 1949, in Charlevoix and she survives.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F & AM of which he was a life member and twice past master. He was also a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, and he helped establish the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Fochtman served as Charlevoix constable for several years and was appointed to the Charlevoix City Council in 1972. He served on the council until 1974, during which time he also served as mayor pro tem. He was a member of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission from 1973-1974. Mr. Fochtman served on the Charlevoix County Road Commission for the past seven years. He had also served as Norwood Township Supervisor, and with the Charlevoix City Charter Commission.

Survivors include his wife, Bonnie; four sons, Richard A. Fochtman Jr. of Lisle, Ill., Gerald W. Fochtman and his wife, Donna, of Kingwood, Texas, David L. Fochtman and his wife, Kelly, of Golden, Colo., and Michael Fochtman and his wife, Norma, of Oswego, N.Y.; eight grandchildren; two sisters, Mary Helen Riggle and her husband, Robert, of Charlevoix, and Esther Hammond of Largo, Fla.; three brothers, William E. Fochtman of Charlevoix, Robert C. Fochtman of Zephyrhills, Fla., and Edward G. Fochtman of Largo, Fla., and Elmhurst, Ill.

Visitation was held Sunday at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Masonic Memorial Fund, the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, or to the American Heart Association.

Gordon N. Neff

Gordon N. Neff, 78, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 2, 1994, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

His funeral was Saturday, Feb. 5, at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix with the Rev. Kenneth Bernthal of Christ Lutheran Church in Boyne City officiating. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery in the spring.

Mr. Neff was born Jan. 23, 1916, in Charlevoix, the son of Lance V. and Esther C. (Nelson) Neff. He was raised and attended school in Charlevoix, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1934.

He attended Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo and Michigan State University in East Lansing where he studied forestry. He graduated from the Detroit Business Institute as a court stenographer in 1943.

On Jan. 22, 1938, in Chicago, Ill., he married Catherine J. Walgren and she survives. Mr. and Mrs. Neff moved from Grosse Pointe Farms to Charlevoix in 1944.

Mr. Neff worked for 20 years with his wife, Catherine, and his brother and sister-in-law, Bob and Eleanor Neff, at Neff Brothers Grocery in Charlevoix, which is now the Wharfside. He and his brother donated two docks behind their store as a gift to the city. Mr. Neff retired in 1970.

Mr. Neff was a well-known woodcarver and worked primarily in shore birds. For a period of time, he owned a gift shop named Neff's Birdhouse in the Market Mall in Charlevoix. He gave several of his birds to the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Mr. Neff was a founding member of the Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. He was a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and Trout Unlimited.

He was a former member and contributor to several civic organizations in the Charlevoix community including the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Development Corp.

Mr. Neff and his wife, Catherine, were employed at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey for a period of time.

Mr. Neff was a well-known sportsman and outdoorsman. He contributed several outdoor articles to the Petoskey News-Review. He was also the author of two books, "Memories of Yesterday" and "Northern Ontario and Alberta Moose Hunting."

He is survived by his wife of 56 years, Catherine, of Charlevoix; one son, Gordon Brian Neff and his wife, Betty, of Petoskey; two daughters, C. Marilyn Gibbons of Charlevoix, and Karen M. Hoffman and her husband, Donald L., of Petoskey; 10 grandchildren; one great-granddaughter; one sister, Edna Marie Kennedy and her husband, Basil, of Traverse City; one brother, Robert L. Neff and his wife, Eleanor, of Stuart, Fla.; several nieces and nephews; a cousin, Joan Nelson of Charlevoix and many other relatives.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Northern Michigan Hospital Heart Association, Bethany Lutheran Church of Charlevoix, or directed to the family. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Willard H. Pischner

Willard H. Pischner, 79, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 2, 1994, at his home.

His funeral was Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Pischner was born Aug. 2, 1914, on Beaver Island, the son of Herman R. and Ellen I. (Allers) Pischner.

On Dec. 25, 1939, he married Mary E. Boyle on Beaver Island. She preceded him in death on Feb. 4, 1992.

Mr. and Mrs. Pischner moved from Beaver Island to Charlevoix in 1959.

Mr. Pischner worked as a logger for many years. He was also a sailor and sailed for 15 years on the Mackinac Islander, one year with the Arnold Line, and six years on the Medusa Challenger.

Survivors include one son, David A. Pischner of Charlevoix; one daughter, Karen Campbell and her husband, Gabe, of Charlevoix; nine grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Evelyn Prokop of Anchorage, Alaska. In addition to his wife, Mr. Pischner was preceded in death by his son, William O. Pischner, on Aug. 2, 1993.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the St. Mary's Education Foundation.

BUSINESS

CPI Products sold to Northern Michigan business group

On Feb. 1, Donald Hufford of Charlevoix announced the sale of a majority interest in CPI Products, a company he founded in 1982, to a group from northern Michigan. They are Charles Konieczny of Traverse City, Nielson Industries Limited Partnership of Traverse City, and Gerald Talbot of Saginaw.

CPI Products, with manufacturing operations in Charlevoix and an engineering and sales office in the Detroit area, is recognized internationally as a leader in the design and manufacture of robot tooling and automation components. CPI's markets include the automotive, aerospace, and appliance industries and their customer list includes Chrysler, Ford, and General Motors. Their products are used globally with regular shipments to Canada, Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Sweden.

CPI employs thirty people in Charlevoix and fifteen in Detroit. The company will continue existing operations and expansion plans are expected later this year.

Hufford, who retains an ownership position, will assume the role of Engineering Manager responsible for design, engineering, and new product development.

Douglas Hellyar of Traverse City has been named General Manager and will direct the operations at both locations.

Economic Alliance receives $5,000 grant

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance recently received a $5,000 annual grant from the Small Business Administration (SBA) and designation as a permanent Small Business Development Center (SBDC). In 1993, the Economic Alliance received a one-time $3,000 SBA grant to provide business counseling in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. During the year, the Economic Alliance exceeded its program goals of providing free counseling to business start-ups and to companies which are expanding, and was awarded permanent status.

Personalized counseling is offered by the Economic Alliance on developing business plans, identifying sources of financing, marketing, exporting, understanding government regulations, training opportunities and technology transfer.

"The permanent formal tie with the SBA will further increase the Economic Alliance's ability to serve local businesses," said executive director Tom Johnson. "The SBA has access to resources helpful to small companies such as information on government guaranteed loans, cash flow management, exporting and minority business services."

For more information contact Tom Johnson at 616-582-6482.

Business and Professional Women offer college scholarships

The Petoskey Business and Professional Women's Club is offering four educational scholarships.

Two $200-$300 scholarships are available to recent high school graduates (1993-1994) who plan to attend North Central Michigan College. Recipients must be a resident of Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego or Charlevoix county and have a minimum 3.0 grade point average.

A $200-$300 scholarship to any college or university is available to recent high school graduates (1993-1994) who are residents of Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego or Charlevoix county and who have a minimum of 3.4 grade point average.

A $200-$300 scholarship is being offered to any college or university to people who are at least five years out of high school. This scholarship is open to the public as well as BPW members.

Applications must be postmarked by May 5, and received by May 8.

You could quit smoking

Successfully quitting smoking and having fun in the process is the goal of the "Freedom from Smoking" program which is sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Association. Weekly sessions beginning at 7 p.m. in the new meeting room will run from Tuesday, March 1 through April 12 with two sessions during "quit week" on March 22 and 24.

Cheryl Jacobs, respiratory therapist and program leader, says, "The program really works because we don't quit 'cold turkey' the first night and people find the support they need in the group to make breaking the habit permanent." The first session is an orientation meeting when the program outline will be explained. "Quit night" will be

Pre-registration is required. A minimum of 12 registrations must be received in order to hold the class. Cost for the program is $65.

Never a doubt - well maybe just a little:
Rayders hold on for 47-46 homecoming win

A last second tip by Traverse City St. Francis hung on the rim with one second remaining before falling off and making Charlevoix a 47-46 homecoming winner Friday evening. The Rayders scored just two points in the final quarter, but put together three strong quarters prior to that and hung on for the win.

Problems scoring and rebounding have plagued the Rayders this season, but that wasn't the case in the first half against St. Francis. Senior forward David Dobulis has been the Rayders' most consistent player all season. St. Francis had nobody who could match his height, mobility and leaping ability and he took advantage of that in the first half.

While Dobulis has been consistent, the Rayders' other forwards, Charlie Pop, Matt Norton and Trevor Williams have been less consistent, but Friday evening the Rayders got contributions from all three.

In the first half, Norton and Williams came off the bench and helped the Rayders at the forward position. Williams gave the Rayders a Rick Mahorn type performance. He didn't score much, but he played aggressively, knocked some bodies around, playing sound defense and finished the game with half a dozen rebounds.

Norton has had a difficult time offensively for much of the season, but in Friday's game showed signs of correcting that problem. In recent games he frequently altered and double clutched his shots. The end result was that the shots didn't get blocked, but they didn't go in either and Norton seldom got fouled. Against St. Francis, Norton was more aggressive and it paid off. Midway through the second quarter he took a pass near the free throw line and turned to shoot. As he turned, a St. Francis player lunged at him. Rather than attempting to avoid the defender, Norton just continued with his shot. The defender crashed into him, a foul was called and Norton went to the line to shoot the free throws.

Brandon Webb also played well in the first half off the bench. Webb has started at guard for much of the season, but against St. Francis, Rayder-coach Jim Kanine started Chris Pair who is taller and a better perimeter shooter. But when the other starting guard, Don Jess, got off to a slow start, Kanine quickly went to Webb. Webb had an excellent defensive first half harassing the Gladiator guards and forcing turnovers.

By halftime the Rayders were up 32-26. They continued to play well in the third quarter, particularly at the defensive end. Dobulis had two steals and Pop one that looked almost identical. When the St. Francis guards tried to dump the ball to players in the lane, Dobulis or Pop stepped around the post player and stole the pass. Both Dobulis' steals led to Rayder baskets.

Charlevoix began the fourth quarter leading 45-36 and looking like they were on the way to a relatively easy win. Then the offense went stagnant. A week earlier, against Boyne City, the Rayders mustered only three points in the fourth quarter. Against St. Francis, things were even worse. The Rayders got only two points, which came on Dobulis' free throws.

In the fourth quarter, St. Francis went to a 1-2-2 zone defense which gave the Rayders problems. Charlevoix moved the ball well and got good shots, but the shots just wouldn't go in.

With just more than four minutes left in the game and Charlevoix's lead cut to one, Kanine decided he'd seen enough. He called time out and ordered his players to hold the ball until St. Francis came out of the zone defense and came out and guarded the man with the ball. The Rayders burned more than two minutes off of the clock before St. Francis came out and had to foul to get the ball back.

Missed free throws by Charlevoix gave St. Francis a chance to win with eight seconds left. Coming out of a time out, the Gladiators passed the ball inbound to their leading scorer Dan Zanotti. Zanotti drove to the right, got a screen and put up a shot. The shot bounced off the rim and was tipped back up by another St. Francis player with two seconds left. The tipped ball went up on the right side of the rim, hung there a second and then fell out.

Individually for Charlevoix, Dobulis finished the game with 16 points and eight rebounds. Jerry Duhart had a nice overall game and finished with nine. Jess recovered from a bad start and ended up with eight points.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game 63-56. Jason Smith went into a zone of his own in the second half and finished the game with 31 points. Gary Leitner added 13.

Trevor Williams (41) goes up for a shot in the midst of a cluster of other players. Williams came off the bench Friday night to collect six rebounds.

Rayder ski teams rule the hill in two races

Charlevoix dominated both the boys' and girls' races at a three-team ski meet at Schuss Mountain Feb. 3. The other two teams participating in the meet were Traverse City St. Francis and Mancelona.

Charlevoix's girls' team placed first with 23 points, followed by Traverse City St. Francis with 61 points and Mancelona with 105 points. The Rayder boys' team finished first with 24 points while Traverse City St. Francis took second with 55 points and Mancelona finished third with 97 points.

In the B Team boys' race Charlevoix's Kevin Meier, Brian Liotta, Kurt DeGrow and Mike Bennett took first, second, third and fourth respectively. In the B Team girls' race Meg Spang took first and Sarah Warner sixth.

Jan. 31 both the boys' and girls' teams placed first in a nine-team meet at Crystal Mountain. Heck won both the slalom and giant slalom races. Kline won the slalom and Miller won the giant slalom.

Other Rayders finishing among the leaders in the boys' races were: Boyer, 2GS, 4S; Bunting, 2S; Lord, 8GS. Other Rayder girls finishing among the leaders were: Kline, 8GS; Miller, 4S; Mosher, 8S.

The Rayders' next meet will be Feb. 9 at Hansen Hills.

Volleyball team places second at Elk Rapids Tournament

Charlevoix to host District Tournament Saturday

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball team placed second among four teams at the Elk Rapids Invitational Volleyball Tournament Saturday. The Rayders finished pool play with the tournament's best record at 5-1, but lost in the finals 10-15, 15-12, 15-9 to Elk Rapids. Two Rayders, juniors Liz Grunch and Gretchen Scott, were named to the All-Tournament team.

The Rayders opened pool play by sweeping Gaylord St. Mary's and Leland, then splitting with Elk Rapids. In the semi-finals, Charlevoix beat Gaylord St. Mary's 15-2, 15-2 to advance to the finals against Elk Rapids.

Grunch and Jill Dreyer led the Rayders in setting, while Charlevoix's top servers were Trina Holm, Jenny Swenor and Grunch. Leading Charlevoix's defense were Dreyer, Grunch and Scott while Liz Kelly, Grunch and Scott were the team's most effective offensive players.

Earlier in the week, Charlevoix swept three games from Traverse City St. Francis in Traverse City. Charlevoix won 17-15, 15-10 and 15-9.

Top setters for the Rayders were Grunch and Dreyer. Top servers were Scott, Holm and Swenor. Leading the defense were Grunch and Scott while best on offense were Grunch, Scott and Kris Blanchard.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game 16-14, 15-11. Top setters for the Rayders were Jessa VanGuilder and Kristin Czerkes. Top servers were VanGuilder and Liz Coen. Best defenders were Coen and Courtney Webb. Leading the offense were Coen and Kerry Seibert.

In a make-up game played Feb. 2 Charlevoix lost to Elk Rapids 15-9, 10-15, 15-3, 15-9.

Top setters for the Rayders were Dreyer and Swenor. Top servers were Swenor, Grunch and Kelly. Leading the defense were Grunch and Scott and best on offense were Grunch, Scott and Blanchard.

The junior varsity team won 15-13, 15-0. Top setters were VanGuilder and Czerkes. Top servers were VanGuilder and Melissa Darrah. Best on defense were Darrah and Liz Coen who also led the offense.

This Saturday, Charlevoix will host the District Volleyball Tournament.

Scrapbook

The winter of 1994 will certainly go down in the annals as one of the worst we've ever had, but by the looks of things, the winter of 1945 brought lots of snow and ice too. This photo of Camille Gennet at North Point on Lake Michigan shows some interesting snow formations.

Odd Fellows peck away at Masons' cribbage lead

The Odd Fellows whittled a little off of the Masons cribbage tournament lead last Thursday night, but not much. The Odd Fellows picked up 77 points, but the Masons still lead the annual tournament by 1,157 points.

High scorer for the Odd Fellows was George Lenton with 948 points. High scorer for the Masons was Kenneth Ketchman with 967 points. The tournament which is now at the halfway point will resume this Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple.

Fifth grade students perform "A Midsummer Night's Dream"

Fifth grade students of teachers Carol Elliott and Kim Martin performed Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" last week. The play began as a class project and grew to be a fundraiser for the Six Mile Lake natural area. The Little Traverse Conservancy and the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy are both working to acquire the property and retain it as a nature preserve. The students raised more than $500 in donations from the play.

At intermission, the Executive Director of the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy, Glen Chown, presented a check for $30,000 for the project from an anonymous donor.

Martin and Elliot were very pleased with their students' performances. "The kids put on a very difficult play and they did a wonderful job," Elliott said. The students designed their own sets and made their costumes, with the help of parents.

Couple celebrates 25th anniversary on Valentine's Day

By Laurie Lounsbury

Cecil Wynkoop knows the secret to staying happily married for 25 years. "Don't put your socks in the clothes hamper inside out," Wynkoop deadpanned. Wynkoop and his wife Jeanne will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary on Valentine's Day.

Jeanne claims it was Cecil's idea to get married on Valentine's Day. "He said Valentine's Day is a day for lovers," she recalled. "He also said it would be easier to remember our anniversary."

Over the years the Wynkoops have celebrated their Valentine anniversaries by going out to dinner. Jeanne's hoping for a little surprise this year, though Cecil claims there won't be any. "That's how you stay married for 25 years - with no surprises." Having a good sense of humor probably helps too. Cecil is well endowed with that. "Marriage is like taking a bath. Once you get in, it's not so hot," Cecil joked, quickly adding, "Just kidding - we have a good marriage."

During their marriage the Wynkoops have raised five children and now have 15 grandchildren.

Jeanne is employed at Glen's Market in Charlevoix and Cecil works at his business, Wynkoop's Body Shop.

Svanda visits Charlevoix to announce congressional candidacy

By L. Scott Swanson

Congressional candidate David Svanda (R-Marquette) was in Charlevoix Feb. 3 as part of a 28-county tour to announce his candidacy for the First District congressional seat currently held by Bart Stupak (D-Menominee). Svanda said he was making his campaign announcement in each of the district's 28 counties in the upper and northern lower peninsulas to demonstrate the type of congressman he plans to be - very accessible.

Svanda spent several years as the city manager for Marquette. In recent years he has been Governor John Engler's northern Michigan representative. Svanda is one of two candidates for the Republican nomination. The other is Kalkaska businessman Gil Ziegler.

Svanda's announcement in the back room of 218 Bridge was attended by a handful of local Republicans. After making his campaign announcement, Svanda fielded questions on a variety of issues.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stropf asked how the federal government can send billions of dollars in emergency relief to California when there's already a huge federal deficit. Svanda said increasing the deficit isn't a suitable way of handling emergencies.

He said he would have cut expenditures in other areas to fund relief for California. Asked to name specific areas he would cut, Svanda cited tobacco subsidies saying that right now the federal government is subsidizing tobacco growth at the same time the Surgeon General is running around telling people about the dangers of smoking. He also said the whole area of social services is a place which could stand improvement.

In discussing proposals for health care reform, Svanda said, "My thinking is that this country has created the absolute best health care system that this planet has seen without the government." He said some people view a Canadian type system as being better, but that he sees such a system as a "great mediocrity." He noted that when Canadians need specialized care, they often come to the United States.

Svanda said a government run health care system might end up having the "compassion of the IRS, the efficiency of the Postal Service and the cost control of the Defense Department."

"There are things we can do to fine tune (health care). I do not agree with starting all over again to create a government program," Svanda said. He noted that many of the problems associated with health care are not so much health care, but insurance problems.

On other issues Svanda said: "He opposed the Congressional budget deal approved last summer in part because the BTU and gas tax adversely affect northern areas and areas which depend on tourism."

*He supported the NAFTA agreement because he feels it will benefit many northern Michigan industries.

*He subscribes to the philosophies of the National Rifle Association regarding gun control.

*In regard to crime, he favors community policing and working with young people to prevent crime and feels northern Michigan should create an atmosphere where law abiding citizens feel safe and criminals don't.

*He supports a balanced budget amendment and feels the budget should be balanced by squeezing expenditures rather than increasing taxes.

City asks people to run water

Due to the extremely cold temperatures the City of Charlevoix is requesting that all city water customers keep a stream of water approximately the size of a pencil running from one of the faucets in their home or business. This will minimize house service line and city water main freeze ups. There will be an adjustment made to water and sewer bills by averaging past usage so that customers will not be charged for the higher use. The water running request is effective until further notice.

All homeowners need to file for homestead property tax exemption

This week Michigan homeowners will be receiving a tax form titled the "Affidavit For Homestead Exemption From School Property Taxes." Homeowners must complete the form and turn it in to either their city or township treasurer by March 1.

Filing out the form is necessary because both of the state's school finance reform set different tax rates for a person's primary home (a.k.a. homestead) as opposed to second homes or businesses. The March 15 ballot proposal sets the homestead rate at six mills while the legislative proposal sets the homestead rate at 12 mills. Both proposals set the rate for second homes and businesses at 24 mills. Even if you don't own a second home or business, unless you complete and turn in the exemption form your home will be assessed at the higher (i.e. 24 mill) tax rate.

Another wrinkle to the issue is that homeowners who own adjacent property with a different tax number can in some circumstances arrange to have that property included as part of their homestead.

City Treasurer Rick Brandt said the homestead issue is creating a certain amount of confusion.

"A lot of people are associating homestead with being over 65 or having a limited income," Brandt said. "It's not that at all." This form involves all homeowners regardless of age or income level.

Most people should be receiving the form in the mail. If not, they can pick one up at the city treasurer's office.

Despite attempts to make people aware of the need to fill out a form, Brandt is still anticipating problems. The problems will occur when people don't fill out a form, get billed at a higher level and then have to get the property tax changed. That's not going to be a simple endeavor.

Barbershop singers offer to deliver singing valentines

The local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America will be delivering singing valentines Feb. 14. For $25 you can have a barbershop quartet deliver someone a card and a long-stemmed rose and sing "Heart of My Heart." The group will also take a photo of the event. Water lines freezing throughout Charlevoix

City asks people to leave water running

By L. Scott Swanson

You've heard the phrase pay me now or pay me later. Well, in Charlevoix there's kind of a similar phrase which applies to household water faucets - run one now, or you may not be able to run any later.

The City water department is asking that all city water customers keep a faucet running in their home or business to help avoid line freeze-ups. Think your lines won't freeze? Guess again. For about three weeks now city water and electric workers have been responding to as many as 15 to 20 calls a day all over town. From sun-up to sun-down, that's pretty much all they've been doing.

"We're getting places that never froze before - places that I never thought would freeze in a hundred years," City Water Superintendent Ed Whitley said.

This winter's cold temperatures have driven frost to more than six feet below ground in many places. Whitley noted that he has been working for the city for nearly 20 years and he's never seen the number of freezing problems there have been this year and he's seeing them in places where there have never been problems before.

Although problems have occurred almost everywhere in town, some particularly bad places have been on Bridge Street from between Carpenter Street and the bridge; along Antrim, Upnigh and Lincoln Streets; on May Street between Garfield and Belvedere Avenue; and on all of the side streets on the north side.

Thawing out the frozen pipes, in addition to being an uncomfortable job, can also be dangerous. The pipes are thawed by hooking an electric welder to them and sending 600 amps of current through the pipe. Since the electrical systems of virtually all homes and businesses are grounded to the water system, running current through the pipes creates a danger of fires. In some communities homes have been burned down by fires caused by pipe thawing. That hasn't happened yet in Charlevoix, but there have been three close calls in recent weeks. As Whitley describes it, we've been lucky, but it's a dangerous game.

Early last week the city began asking water customers to begin leaving their water running to avoid freeze-ups. Water bills will be based on past averages so running the water shouldn't cost any extra. Sam Creswell from the city water treatment plant said people are beginning to comply with the request. He said that average water use in the city at this time of the year is around half a million gallons of water a day. If everyone leaves their water running, that would increase by approximately a million gallons a day. A total usage of 1.5 million gallons per day would still be well within the treatment plant's processing capacity.

Whitley notes that in addition to the all-too-frequent subzero temperatures we've been having this winter, the new water treatment plant may also be a factor in the additional line freezes. When the city drew their water from a well, the water came into the system at 45 to

Hospital to celebrate completion of building project

Charlevoix Area Hospital will begin celebration of its 75th year with the dedication of a new $4 million building Sunday, Feb. 20, 1994.

The hospital's articles of incorporation were signed Feb. 17, 1919, making this event timely for both the anniversary and dedication ceremonies.

Speakers at the ceremonies which begin at 2 p.m. include Representative Beverly Bodem and Senator John Eridnia. Following the ceremonies the public will be invited to tour the new facilities and enjoy refreshments between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.

The building program includes a new surgical suite, maternity unit, central sterile supply, waiting area, lobby, kitchen, cafeteria, meeting rooms, and gift shop. More than $1.65 million was raised in a community campaign to help fund the building program, including a $150,000 grant from the Frey Foundation.

The surgical suite replaces one built in 1954 and will better accommodate the equipment and staff necessary for today's growing number of outpatient surgical procedures. The maternity unit is the first in northern Michigan to allow for the single-room concept of childbirth.

Richard Krueger, president, says, "This is a bold step for a hospital our size given today's health care climate, but we know this will be a facility that will serve our patients well into the next century. It is a facility that offers opportunities for new services and improved patient convenience and privacy. We invite everyone to come and share our pride on this day."

Fire destroys the second floor of home on Loeb Road

By L. Scott Swanson

Four fire departments responded to a house fire on Loeb Road shortly after 5 p.m. Feb. 10. The home was owned by Toni Holtzman. Holtzman and six children between the ages of two and 14 were in the house when the fire began, but escaped without injury. The fire is believed to have been started by a candle in an upstairs room. When the fire department arrived, the entire second floor of the home was on fire and flames, which could be seen from M-66, were shooting through the roof.

Firemen used a city back-hoe to pull away a portion of the roof so they could get at the fire. Much of the first floor of the home was saved, but suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Firefighters from the Charlevoix City Fire Department were assisted by firefighters from the Charlevoix Township, Banks Township and East Jordan fire departments.

Monday, Feb. 14 at approximately 10:30 a.m. Charlevoix City firefighters put out a fire at Harbor Industries. The fire started on the inside of a dust collector near the north wall of the factory. Once firefighters were able to get hoses into the dust collector they had the fire under control in a matter of minutes.

Monday morning the Charlevoix City Fire Department extinguished a fire in a dust collector at Harbor Industries.

47 degrees. With the new system which went on line in 1986, water is drawn from the lake and comes into the system at 32 or 33 degrees.

Whitley said people who have had problems with lines freezing have been very cooperative in working with and waiting for the city to get them back on line. He said that so far usually the longest someone has been off is for a day and a night.

Despite a bit of a warm up in weather temperatures in recent days, Whitley said the problem with pipes freezing is likely to continue for at least another three weeks. In order to avoid problems he is asking people to continue running their water - and constantly, as in 24 hours a day, not just during the night or not just a little now and then. By running their water people will assure that they continue to have water, help the city and reduce the risk of fires caused by thawing.

Scott Blanchard and other crew members of the city water and electric departments have been busy all over town thawing frozen water service lines.

St. Mary school to host open house

Charlevoix St. Mary School will host an open house from 7:45 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 24. St. Mary is a pre-K through fifth grade elementary school. The school's philosophy is to develop the total student - spiritually, intellectually, socially and physically. Staff members are certified and utilize up-to-date educational methods. The school offers a complete educational program including music, art and physical education. The school's 1994-95 registration will take place later this spring.

OPINIONS

Letters to the editor

Editor's note: The following four letters were written by Charlevoix sixth grade students in an English class taught by Kathy Gowell. The students were working on a letter-writing unit and began discussing the power of the pen and how letters can influence people. The students concluded that letters to the editor provide a forum for community members to voice their opinions on public issues.

Editor,

I am a sixth grade student at Charlevoix Middle School. I'm speaking on my opinion about the castle in Charlevoix. I know it was old to the 4-H, but I think there should be rock concerts.

When Del Leppard played at the castle I was coming home from the Venetian Festival and I saw Del Leppard at the intersection. That was my first time ever seeing a rock star. Please just think about my opinion on the castle.

Sincerely,
Dena Sheldon

Editor,

I think an indoor pool would be a great way for kids to stay out of trouble. I say this because I get in the most trouble when I have nothing to do. An indoor pool would give kids one more thing to do. Also, I think it would be good for the winter because if you try swimming in the lake you'd freeze. The nearest indoor pool is in East Jordan and if there was one in Charlevoix people could go on rainy or foggy days.

To help get money for this you could hold a bake sale, auction, sports events, or something like that.

I hope the people in Charlevoix will consider this.
Sincerely,
Brittne Browe

Editor,

I agree with Christine Knight about the stealing of snowboards, skis etc. I also have some ideas on how to prevent it. One idea is to get security guards to watch the skis while the owners are warming up. My second idea is to have people buy locks at the ticket booth (if they want to) and at the end of the day they can return it and get their money back. I hope some of these ideas can help some of the unfortunate victims.

Sincerely,
Chris Tilley

Editor,

I am a concerned sixth grade student at Charlevoix Middle School. My problem is all these high school students who sexually harass young teenage people. When boys and girls do these things to people all they are doing is making people mad. So why don't people try to do something about this problem? It's just getting worse.

People might think about talking about this problem on television or radio stations. Please let's try to help solve this problem.

Yours truly,
Anne Phillips

Road crews commended

Editor,

We would like to compliment and thank the county road crews for the super effort that they have made this winter. They all must deserve some kind of medal for keeping the roads passable under most difficult conditions.

As Larry Hamlin says, "They are all heroes." Most likely everyone in the county would agree and would wish to join in giving them a special thanks.

With warm regards to all on the Courier staff. You are publishing a very interesting, useful paper.

Courage - warm weather Must be on the way.

Cheers,
Mr. and Mrs. James Hisey

Entertaining ourselves during a long, cold winter

It has been a tough winter in Charlevoix. Since the end of December we've had more than 100 inches of snow and the temperature has spent more time below 15 degrees than above it.

Yet, the community seems to be making it through.

Saturday was a prime example of how people in northern towns like Charlevoix find things to do to keep busy in the winter.

It was a great day for sports in Charlevoix. During the day the conference volleyball tournament took place at the high school. More than 100 spectators showed up. The Sports Boosters had a concession stand and the local Rotary Club sold hot dogs. The Rayder team entered the tournament seeded fourth among seven teams, but ended up playing better than they have all season and won the tournament.

The volleyball team's upset tournament win had barely settled when the basketball team came through with a big upset win of their own. Saturday night the Rayder basketball team and its entourage of fans traveled north across the big bridge to St. Ignace. The Saints team came into the game with a record of 14-0 and ranked seventh in Class C. Charlevoix came into the game at 5-8 and without a non-conference win. But surprise, surprise, Charlevoix got a big game from several players and came away with an 80-79 win. It was northern Michigan's biggest basketball upset so far this season.

For people who aren't into sports or traveling to St. Ignace, Saturday also offered the Mount McSaubia Sno Challenge. The demolition derby was a flop, but the other events went well. People kept warm around a bon fire and watched the truck and snowmobile events.

The fireworks, shot from the top of Mount McSaubia, were as always spectacular. A fine snow was falling during the fireworks. While adults faced skyward and squinted to watch the fireworks, but keep the snow out of their eyes, small children faced skyward with their mouths open to catch the snowflakes.

Saturday was another cold winter day, but it was a fun day. Yes, it has been a long cold winter. But we find ways to amuse ourselves and we endure.

Legislature hijacked education reform on Christmas Eve

Editor's note: Here at the Courier, we receive all kinds of mail from around the state related to various issues. This week we're beginning a section entitled "Opinions from around the state" which will utilize some of the opinion pieces we're sent. As always, we welcome feedback from Courier readers and would enjoy hearing what you think of the section. Readers are also welcome to write letters to the editor commenting on any of the issues raised in "Opinions from around the state."

The Christmas Eve Hijacking
by Lawrence W. Reed, President
Mackinac Center for Public Policy

Last summer, the Michigan Legislature stripped away property tax funding for public schools and inaugurated a great debate about the kind of educational system we should have and how it should be funded.

In early October, Governor John Engler weighed in with a package of quality reforms that promised to revolutionize the schools. His proposals would have injected a great measure of choice, competition and accountability into a failing monopoly, empowered teachers and entrepreneurs to usher promising innovations into the educational process, encouraged containment of runaway costs, and delivered a small net tax cut to the citizens of this state.

As late in the debate as early December, school reformers still had reason to be optimistic about what this unique opportunity for change might bring. But when Michiganians awoke on Christmas morning they discovered that Michigan's "education revolution" had been hijacked. The Legislature flunked the test. Sweeping school reform, so desperately needed by the children of this state, must await another day.

The compromise finance package worked out in the final hours before Christmas contains a March 15 ballot proposal and a statutory plan that will take effect if voters reject the ballot question. The fact that Michiganians need a degree of "choice" in the matter is little consolation in the face of this fact: If each plan could be judged on its own merits in isolation from the other, neither would earn a passing grade.

On the "plus" side, the ballot proposal puts an emphasis on taxing consumption, rather than work, savings and investment, because it hikes the sales tax, cuts the income tax and keeps the Single Business Tax (SBT) at its current 2.35 percent. That's preferable to the statutory plan's emphasis on boosting both the income tax and the SBT, which would send a powerful signal to entrepreneurs that Michigan is not a friendly place to be productive. Property taxes, for most Michiganians, go down under both plans.

Both plans require school districts to pay retirement costs and Social Security taxes out of the state's guaranteed per pupil "foundation grant," which starts at $4,200. The State now picks up both, at a cost of almost $900 million. The new policy would encourage districts to be more cost-conscious at the bargaining table.

On balance, the ballot proposal would appear less unpalatable, but mainly because the alternative seems even more so. The question Michiganians need to ask is, "What are we getting for our time, trouble, and money, whichever plan ultimately takes effect? That's where the rubber hits the road."

Charter schools — new public schools that can be created by universities, community colleges and certain other public entities — are now authorized, but under conditions much more restrictive than what the Governor initially proposed. Cross-district school choice was completely dropped. Almost no incentives for the schools to spend public money more wisely were passed, even though it is known that substantial savings can be delivered through more competitive bidding of teacher health insurance, food services, transportation, and custodial services. Reforms of teacher tenure and certification were minimal and confined to the new charter schools.

Incredibly, schools came through the debate with about a 9 percent increase in total funding — in spite of an endless stream of studies nationwide that show no positive correlation between spending and student performance in public education. For this reason, Michigan will not get a much-needed net tax cut under either plan.

Furthermore, schools under both plans will be largely freed of millage elections, meaning that the voters' one best way to hold schools accountable has been nearly swept away. That might be tolerable if the foundation grant were to go directly to the parents, who in turn would shop for the school of their choice. But the grant goes to school districts and their administrative bureaucracies, not to parents. And without enhanced choice, most parents will be stuck with the schools to which they are assigned by geography — schools whose administrators now won't have to ask voters for periodic funding renewals. Are the few quality measures gained in this whole debate really worth the loss of local control implicit in further centralization of school funding at the state level?

The Legislature's work is also top-heavy with new mandates from Lansing. One calls for schools to add more hours of instruction per day or more days in the school year. In the absence of the kind of reforms that would spur excellence, such a mandate is reminiscent of the old canard, "We're losing on every unit we sell, but somehow we'll make it up in volume."

The status quo in Michigan education has emerged in Lansing relatively undisturbed. That will probably please the Michigan Education Association, which fought hard to keep its power and purse intact, but it ought to infuriate parents, taxpayers, teachers and children who had hoped for so much more.

The German leader Otto von Bismarck once said that there were two things people should never see being made: laws and sausage. In light of the way Lansing handled school reform, that comment does a disservice to sausage.

Sales tax or income tax increase - there's another choice

By James M. Brennan

There is a Third Choice!

Proposal "A" and the "Blackmail" backup statutory plan do not represent a choice between the sales tax and the income tax, nor the Democratic plan versus the Republican plan. They represent the actions of an arrogant and deceitful government who, having lost fairly several elections in the past, is now trying to force you to accept a massive tax increase and the loss of your constitutional right to tax limitations and tax fairness.

The uniformity clause in the (state) constitution is destroyed by Proposal "A" and seriously violated by the statutory plan. This includes both the uniformity of property assessments and property tax millages levied. The door will be wide open for tax discrimination! Both proposals immediately discriminate against business people, renters and other people foolish enough to have invested in Michigan. Under Proposal "A," they will pay 4 times the property tax of single family owners, twice as much under the "Blackmail" plan. Remember, if you grant the government the power to do this to your neighbor, you give them the right to do the same damn thing to you!

Both proposals also nullify the property tax limitations of Article 9, Section 6 of the constitution. A state education authority is created for the sole purpose of levying property taxes which will be exempt from these limitations. Local school boards may vote to become authorities, thus exempting their taxes from these limitations. The stated property tax limits in these proposals of 6 or 12 mills on home-steads and 24 mills on non home-steads are untrue. They allow additional hold harmless, enhancement and sinking fund millages. Many property owners will pay more property taxes than they currently do!

To add insult to injury, Proposal "A" takes away your right to vote on future school tax increases and grants this right to the legislature!

The proposed sales tax or income tax increases are less than .18 percent of this total school spending program, which has been increased by 1.2 billion dollars. Obviously, many other taxes are increased, such as land transfer taxes, single business taxes, cigarette and tobacco taxes and telephone taxes.

All of this is supposedly being done for education and school finance reform. Neither of which is accomplished by either proposal! The funds behind each student will still be unequal and the little education reform involved pushed us further down the path of outcome based education and school intervention in student privacy and parental rights. The funds raised by these proposals are not earmarked for K-12 education. They may be used for higher education and school employee retirement costs, the proportion of which will be determined by the legislature.

You do not have to choose the lesser of these two evils! Defeat Proposal "A" at the ballot and support Taxpayers United in mounting a legal challenge to the unconstitutional and illegal statutory plan. Then support the simple constitutional 20 percent property tax reduction contained in Senate Bill 667.

Charlevoix High School performing arts students are shown working on the set for the original play "Homeland." The students will perform the production for the public Feb. 26 and 27 at the high school.

Performing Arts students to present "Homeland" Feb. 26 and 27

Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students received a rating of II for their district competition of "Homeland," an original play written by Connie Ford, at Grand Rapids Godwin Heights High School Feb. 3. Original tunes from the '40s with a special song "Who Are You" written by Sulane Hamilton are the featured music in "Homeland."

Excellent awards were received by Becky Blisset, pianist, Marcy Wojan, for her portrayal of the woman's nurse corps sergeant, and Sven Gargenbrocher for his portrayal of the German immigrant father.

"Homeland" dramatizes the changes in society from the beginning of the Second World War to its conclusion focusing on the changes in the life-style of women and their entry into formerly male-dominated jobs.

The performance was particularly gratifying, stated Connie Ford,

Drama Coach, since the team was performing under adverse circumstances. The original date of the district competition was canceled due to downstate weather conditions. In addition, Charlevoix students' exam schedule the previous week was disrupted due to the weather.

The public performance of this original play will be offered the weekend of Feb. 26 and 27 at the Charlevoix High School gym.

The family of Eva Peterson is holding an Open House Sunday, Feb. 20 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the American Legion Hall on Main St. in East Jordan in honor of her 90th birthday. All Eva's friends and family are invited. No gifts please.

Language isn't always a barrier to foreign travel

By Ralph McRae

Often in visiting foreign countries, the language spoken there is a handicap. But not in Holland. In that country all Dutch students are taught English for six years. Holland, or the Netherlands as it is also called, is an extremely productive little nation. Although it is only one-fourth the size of Michigan geographically, it has about twice as many citizens.

Holland has a violent history. It has been run and ruined by four conquerors. In addition to armies, the country has forever battled the North Sea. In a way, the people have created their own country. Eighty percent of the present territory was once under water. The Zuider Zee, a man-made ribbon of land 200 feet wide with a paved highway on top of it, is a 20 mile long barricade against the pounding waves of the North Sea. For centuries thousands of windmills have pumped thousands of square miles of land dry. It is a long and costly process. After the land is dried out it is planted with soil-enriching plants for several years. Then, by a lottery drawing experienced farmers are each given plots of land.

By spending billions of dollars on dams, dikes and canals Holland has lessened the chances of floods. These days electric pumps have replaced the picturesque windmills. Instead of using fences, property owners mark their boundaries and contain their animals with water-filled ditches. Since everyone lives close to open water, there are no fire hydrants.

Holland is internationally known for its harbors and waterways. Many of them, entering into the Ruhr River Highway to Germany. Holland's second largest city is the port of Rotterdam. The world's largest seaport, Rotterdam docks 30,000 large ships each year. It is the home port of 300 shipping firms. Rotterdam shipyards build ocean-going vessels weighing as much as 130,000 tons. In the last world war, the Germans destroyed the harbor and thousands of surrounding buildings.

Holland is the world's second largest exporter of beer and also exports huge quantities of dried milk and cheeses. The country is noted for its flowers, especially roses and tulips. There is a tremendous flower auction complex - all under one roof - it is larger than 50 football fields. In 50,000 daily transactions more than 800 million flowers and 70,000 plants are sold. More than 900 million roses and 150 million tulips are auctioned off each year.

The roses and 1,000 other species of flowers are raised in greenhouses owned by 4,000 growers. Heated by natural gas the greenhouses use special lights to grow the plants. At night the glowing greenhouses are a dazzling sight.

Except near the Belgian border, Holland is a very flat country. From almost any open space in the country, you can see the church spires of surrounding villages. Dikes accent the lowlands. Spaces between the dikes are often filled with canals or wide waterways. One of them, the busiest in Europe, is used by scores of freighters.

Among the other interesting things about Holland: One small village can only be visited by boat, or by walking or bicycling. In another small town all of the homes are painted white. In another area there are little tea houses built for the owners of small estates. The tea houses look like enclosed bandshells and six or eight ladies will often gather in them for an afternoon of tea drinking and card playing.

Holland has a giant airline, the KLM company. KLM was the first company to fly people for money on its route from Holland to England. It also was the first commercial operation between Europe and the United States. Its jets now fly to 130 cities in 80 countries. Holland's major airport, Schiphol, is a transfer station for millions of passengers.

Holland's best known manufacturer is the Philips company which makes CDs and scores of other technical products.

It seems that everyone in Holland has a bicycle. Kindergarteners ride them to school. Old ladies ride them to church. There are so many bicycles that special paved paths with stop lights are necessary.

Owning a car in Holland can be very expensive. To begin with the only driver training classes are through private instructors. At age 18 a person can hire an instructor for $40 per hour with the entire program costing about $750. Car insurance for drivers younger than age 24 is high priced. License plate costs are about $150 annually. After being driven for three years, all cars must have a garage inspection annually. The price of fuel to run a car is out of sight. Diesel fuel is about $3.30 a gallon. Gas is about $2.60 a gallon and propane about $1.55. On the bright side, Holland has excellent expressways which are fully lighted. Streets in the villages are very narrow having been unchanged for decades.

Property taxes in Holland are low with no school property taxes. Individual income taxes are much higher than in the United States.

Marguerite L. Clark

Marguerite L. Clark, 78, of Charlevoix County, died Feb. 9, 1994, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Her funeral was Friday, Feb. 11, at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church. The Rev. Wilbert Hegener, O.F.M., officiated. Burial will take place in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

Mrs. Clark was born April 7, 1915, in Boyne City, the daughter of Henry and Emma (Wanek) Kaden. She grew up and attended school in Boyne City.

On Sept. 10, 1940, she married Hersel G. Clark in Boyne City. After a period of moving, the couple settled in Charlevoix County in 1947. Mr. Clark preceded her in death in 1968.

Mrs. Clark had been employed by Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey and worked in the kitchen for 23 years, retiring in 1980.

She was a member of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church and St. Francis Altar Society.

Survivors include five daughters, Louise Houghton and her husband, Bob, of Charlevoix; Patricia Burke of Petoskey; Betty Myers of Petoskey; Ellen Daniel of Petoskey; and Elaine Houghton and her husband, Albert, of Charlevoix; 22 grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; and her niece, Judy Jenkins and her husband, Rex, of Boyne City. Mrs. Clark was preceded in death by her grandchildren, Suzanne Burke and Bonnie Jean Swadlow; her great-grandchildren, Garrett McMahon and Alexander Daniel; her sister, Catherine Kaden; and her sons-in-law, Dale A. Daniel and Allan Myers.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the St. Francis Endowment Fund. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey.

Meta M. Parsons

Meta M. Parsons, 89, of Petoskey, died Feb. 11, 1994, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

A service will be held in the spring. Burial will be in Perry Mount Cemetery in Pontiac.

She was born Feb. 13, 1904, in Berlin, Germany, the daughter of Robert and Meta (Murray) Fritz. She attended school in Germany and moved to the United States with her husband, Ira Lewis. He preceded her in death.

On Dec. 17, 1937, she married Fred E. Parsons in Angola, Ind. The couple made their home in Pontiac. Mr. Parsons preceded her in death in 1956.

Mrs. Parsons worked as a nurse's aide for several years. She moved to Mikado in 1966 where she made her home until 1989 when she moved to Petoskey.

She was a member of the Gold Star Mothers Chapter No. 9 in Pontiac.

Survivors include one son, Frederick L. Parsons and his wife, Letha, of Charlevoix; four grandchildren, Marie Strecker, Daniel R. Lewis Jr., Joni Hosler, and Lori Laurita; and five great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by two sons, George Lewis, who died while serving in the Navy during World War II, and Daniel Lewis.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the St. Francis Endowment Fund. There will be no visitation. Arrangements were handled by the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey.

Lutheran Church plans special services

Ash Wednesday Service at Bethany Lutheran Church will usher in the period of Lent. Holy Communion will be offered at the 7 p.m. Feb. 16 service.

Maundy Thursday will be observed March 31 at 7 p.m. with Holy Communion. Good Friday service will be April 1 at 7 p.m.

Easter Sunday will offer a Sunrise Service at 7:30 a.m., followed by an Easter Breakfast at 8:30 a.m. and the Festive Easter Service will be at 9:30 a.m. with Holy Communion.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

OF BLESSINGS

Walk into the high school sometime and go by the Student Services Office. They have a dual countdown going on. For the seniors, it is the number of days left until graduation. To me, the more important countdown is the one until spring break! Am I the only one, or have you ever noticed that there are moments where we seem to almost wish our lives away?

The traditional wishing goes along with being a young person. They can't wait for Christmas to come. They can't wait until they get into high school. They can't wait until they turn 21. But it doesn't stop when you come of age. A young couple cannot wait for their wedding day. A mother-to-be understandably gets the inner longing for her pregnancy to be over with so she can get acquainted with her feet.

There are days where parents look forward to their children growing up and being on their own. How many people cannot wait for their income tax refunds to come back? You send your child off with the family car for the first time and you can't wait for them to return home safe and sound. My own daughter has begun to dream about her own wedding. That, I'm not sure I'm ready to contemplate yet!

The Psalmist penned, "Teach us to number our days aright, that we may gain a heart of wisdom." There are a lot of longings within every heart, all kinds of dreams and concerns. But let us not find ourselves so wishing for the future to unfold that we miss out on the blessings of the present. Each and every day holds special blessings and treasures from the Lord if our hearts and eyes are open to see them.

There was a "snowbow" in the early morning sky not all that many days ago. A rainbow is positively magical. A snowbow has an almost fairy tale quality about it. Especially if you realize that they are reminders of God's promised love to His children.

Maybe you were among the fortunate ones to be captivated by the fifth grade's performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Watching children come into their own speaking their lines and interpreting their characters brought an assurance that the Lord will take and shape those young lives into truly special adults.

I know the winter has been long and cold. I know the longing for change and its passage is deep within a lot of hearts. But don't wish your life away too fast. God is good (all the time). He has lots of blessings to share with every person that leaves the counting of life's precious moments to Him.

Street crews create a little mountain range

By Laurie Lounsbury

Mountains of snow seem to have fallen this winter. It's been enough to stagger the average citizen who's attacked the white nemesis armed with only a snow shovel. Fortunately, the deluge of snow hasn't bothered the city road crews. Crews last week loaded dump truck after dump truck full of snow to empty lots around town. City Street Department Superintendent John Martin said the road crews have taken the ten feet of snowfall in stride. "We've had it so light the last few winters, this is really just an old fashioned winter," Martin said.

The road crews have put in some overtime plowing roads and hauling snow, but not as much as expected. The bulk of the snow fell conveniently on weeknights, so the crews could plow it during their regular work hours, from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. Last winter brought less snow, but it fell on the weekends, requiring overtime work on the part of the road workers. The city road crew consists of three plow drivers, one road sander, one side-walk plow, and two drivers who do parking lots and miscellaneous plowing.

Plowing hasn't been as much of a challenge as hauling and piling the excessive amounts of snow. Snowbanks are frequently cut back when they get too high, and the snow is hauled to a dumping site. The empty lot on State Street by the airport is filled to capacity with a mini mountain range of snowpiles. The road crew started filling up the Ferry Beach parking lot with snow last week. On the north side of town, snow is being piled up by the empty lot next to the Community Reformed Church. When the snow quit falling for a few days, the crews worked on cleaning the corners of intersections and business driveways on Bridge Street. City worker Gene Liotta said, "We're slowly but surely catching up." Liotta wasn't complaining. He noted that the city water department is much busier than the road crew, with water pipes freezing all over town.

Man finds he can't get his road plowed

By Laurie Lounsbury

William Block is willing to work with the Charlevoix County Road Commission, but he claims they aren't willing to work with him. Block lives on Beck Road in Norwood Township, a road that is considered seasonal by the road commission. The road commission has a policy of not plowing seasonal roads in the winter. Block was unaware of this policy when he bought the old Beck farmhouse and restored it for his retirement home. "Everybody told me if you live on a county road, then they (the county road commission) have to plow it," Block said. The reality who sold Block the home never mentioned that it sat on a seasonal road, but Block knew it hadn't been plowed by the county in recent years.

When Block went to the road commissioners for help, he was given a less than satisfactory answer. "They all told me, 'You shouldn't have moved here,'" Block said.

This is Block's second winter on Beck Road. He has written the county road commission numerous letters asking for plowing, or at the very least, some minor upgrading of the road so his private plow can plow the road. The road commission responded by telling him that bringing the road up to county standards would cost $55,000. The road commission said it is the township's responsibility to upgrade the road. The Norwood township supervisor told Block it's the road commission's responsibility to upgrade and plow the road.

Block noted that the road commission does plow Beck road as far as his neighbor's home. The road is well used when it isn't snowbound. School buses travel it four times a day before and after the winter snow season.

Block would be happy if the road commission would offer to plow his road on an emergency basis, but the road commission won't make any such commitment. "The things I'm paying taxes for - fire, police - I'm being denied because of the road," Block said.

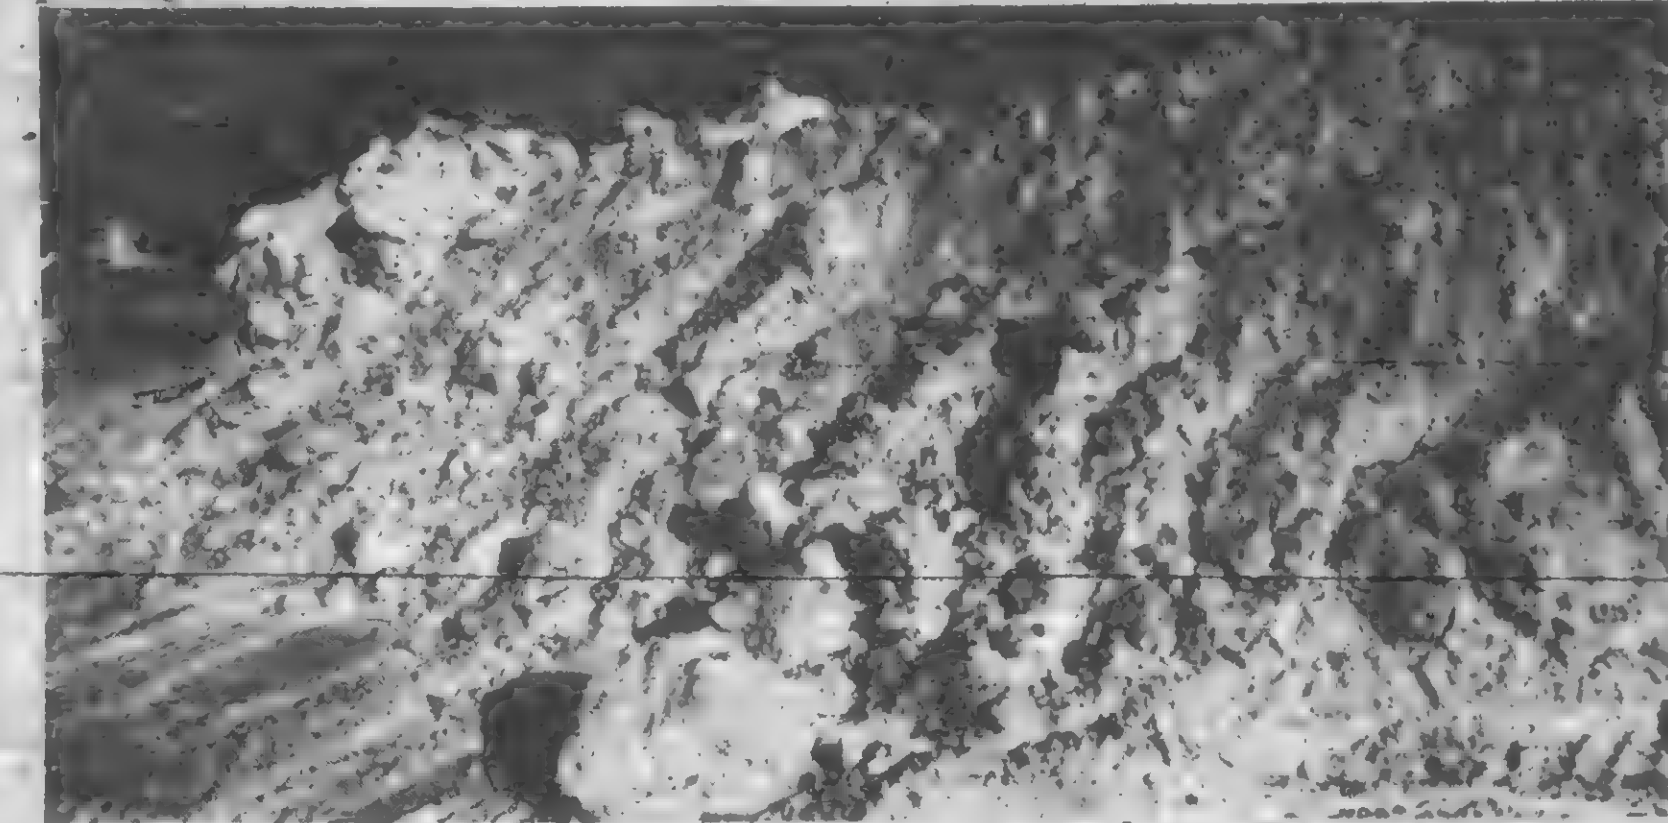

County road manager Larry Hamlin said that the commission has always had the policy of not plowing seasonal roads. Other residents living on seasonal roads have gone to the road commission with plowing requests and been turned down. "Some people feel it's unfair," Hamlin said. "They tend to be angry at the policy, not at us."

Block is increasingly frustrated. "The thing that aggravates me now is their attitude. They ignore my letters. It's a frustrating thing for me," Block said.

Lori Rosema Drost of Charlevoix was one of several dental technicians to offer instructional mini-clinics at the Michigan Association of Commercial Dental Laboratories' annual Technicians Day which took place recently at the Novi Hilton. Drost is a 1989 graduate of Ferris State University. She has spent four years working in the porcelain department of Baker Dental Lab of Traverse City.

Patrick Nestor has been named the new executive director of Chip Counseling Center. Nestor will replace Preston Greene who will remain with the agency, but will specialize in the clinical aspect of the organization. Nestor has been involved in various aspects of health care for the past 10 years and has a Master's Degree in health administration.

Community Foundation awards $7,000 in grants

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has approved grants totaling $7,000 to help a variety of area non-profit programs. The grants were made possible through interest earned on the Foundation's endowment, now standing at nearly $1.3 million.

According to Community Foundation President Scott Beatty, a distribution committee made up of representatives from throughout Charlevoix County selected seven projects from among 21 grant applicants.

"We wanted to fund programs that serve a diverse group of people and that solve problems or meet community needs," he explains. "The programs we chose support education, the arts, health, social services, and the special needs of young people."

Projects that will receive Community Foundation funds, and the amount of their grants include:

-Charlevoix County 4-H: $750 for a property appraisal to expedite plans for the purchase and development of Castle Farms as a community center for youth activities.

-Porter Creek School: $1,000 to support an intensive wilderness experience for the school's students.

-Jordan Valley District Library: $500 to underwrite two live performances of a children's musical based on E.B. White's classic, Charlotte's Web.

-Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood: $1,500 to help fund the organization's education program, TROUPE Teen Theater, aimed at teaching young people how to resist peer pressure.

-Camp Daggett: $1,300 toward the purchase of a new internal communications system to project the safety of campers and staff and improve response time in emergencies.

-District Health Department #3: $750 to support WOMANCARE, a free breast and cervical cancer screening program that targets low-income women in Charlevoix County.

-Boys' Area 4-H Hockey Association: $1,200 toward the development of this area's only official outdoor hockey rink.

This is the second group of grants made since the Charlevoix County Community Foundation began. Earlier last year, the Foundation awarded nearly $10,000 in grants to local agencies, and $15,000 in scholarships to area students. Robert Tambellini, director of the local foundation, says applications for funding will be accepted again in April when another grant-making cycle will begin.

"Giving back to the community is really what our foundation is all about," Tambellini says. "We're beginning to see the benefit of building a permanent endowment that generates earned interest — money that we can use, in turn, to meet community needs. Thanks to the generosity of area residents, and matching funds from the Kellogg and Frey foundations, we're off to a very promising start."

Started in 1992 by a group of civic leaders, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations and manages them in a pooled endowment. Income from the endowment is given back to the community in the form of grants. For more information about the Community Foundation, call 616-536-2440, or write c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan 49727.

Fund initiated to reduce teen pregnancies

A special fund aimed at reducing teenage pregnancy has been established within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The $7,000 endowment was given by Virginia V. Gambrell in memory of her brother, Eugene B. Renkiewicz, a Charlevoix area resident who died in December, 1987. The new endowment will be known as the Eugene B. Renkiewicz Memorial Fund.

In designating that the fund be used to support reproductive health education programs for teens, Gambrell says she hopes to help young people understand the importance of parenthood and the lifelong responsibilities involved in raising a child. "Too often, young people don't think of the long-term consequences of early, unplanned childbirth," she explains. "I'd like to use this endowment to fund programs that can help young people make good choices about their future."

In keeping with Gambrell's wishes, projects funded by this endowment will give special emphasis to teenage boys and their role in preventing unintended pregnancies. Only interest earned on the endowment will be used to fund programs.

Rayder basketball team pulls area's biggest upset

80-79 overtime win stops Saints 14 game streak

Going into Saturday night's game against visiting Charlevoix, St. Ignace was undefeated. They aren't anymore.

In what is to this point northern Michigan's biggest upset of the season, Charlevoix beat St. Ignace 80 to 79 in overtime. Charlevoix got big games from a number of players and raised their season record to 6-8. St. Ignace entered the game 14-0 and ranked seventh in Class C.

As has been their pattern in recent games, the Rayders got out to a good start. The difference was they didn't have an offensive collapse in the final quarter.

After the first quarter the Rayders led 18-9. By half time St. Ignace had closed the gap to four, at 39-35. Charlevoix bumped the lead back up to nine at 60-51 entering the final quarter. By the end of regulation the game was tied 75-75.

In overtime the Rayders' Jerry Duhart outscored the Saints 5-4.

Don Jess drew two charging fouls against St. Ignace in overtime. Jess had an exceptional all-around game. In addition to scoring 22 points, he had 10 assists, eight rebounds and a blocked shot. Duhart had 19 points, three assists and two steals. Charlie Pop had 17 points and 11 rebounds. David Dobulis, despite limited minutes due to foul trouble, had 16 points, nine rebounds, five assists and four steals.

Charlevoix's junior varsity team also won 77-61. Jason Smith had 23 points, Josh Miller and Mark Boss 16 and Gary Lettner 12.

Charlevoix's next game will be Friday night at East Jordan.

Liz Grunch bumps the volleyball up to one of her teammates in the front row in Saturday's conference volleyball tournament.

Charlevoix entered the conference volleyball tournament with a 2-4 conference record, but ended up winning the tournament. During the course of the day, Charlevoix beat all of the top three rated teams in the tournament.

Wrestlers place fifth at Lake Michigan Division meet

Keith Parish won his third conference wrestling title as Charlevoix placed fifth among eight teams in the Lake Michigan Division meet Saturday. Rogers City won the meet, followed by Grayling, Whittemore-Prescott, Onaway, Charlevoix, Mancelona, Elk Rapids and Kalkaska.

Parish owned the 189 pound weight class winning his two meets by pins in a total of less than three minutes. Parish won his preliminary match in 46 seconds and in the finals pinned his opponent in 1:58. Parish is now 24-2 on the year.

Jason Hughes placed second at 112 pounds. Hughes beat his first opponent on a pin in 2:32, then lost in the finals on a 15-4 decision. Hughes is 26-7 on the year.

David Morales took second in the 135 pound weight class. Morales opened the day with a pin in 23 seconds, then pinned his second opponent in 1:36 before losing on a pin in 4:37 in the finals. Morales is 24-7 on the year.

Rob Reiter, a freshman, finished third at 103 pounds winning the consolation finals on a pin in 3:56.

Ron Haggard also took a third, wrestling at 160 pounds. Haggard is 24-8 on the season. He lost a 4-2 match in the semi-finals before winning the consolation finals on a pin in 2:49.

Bruce Reinhardt was 1-2 in the heavyweight division.

Charlevoix will compete in the Class C Team District Feb. 16 at St. Ignace.

Middle School girls' basketball results

Elementary Division-

The Swishers beat the Cougars 17-11. Abbey Schaperkotter had 11 points to lead the Swishers.

The Hotshots defeated the Lucky Ten 12-10. Emily Hughes had six points for the Hotshots while Sabrina Wynkoop had all ten of the Lucky Ten's points.

The Suns were three better than the Lakers 14-11. Lisa Miller led the Suns with six points while Laura Potter also had six points for the Lakers.

The Knicks beat the Sonics 18-14. Kelly Dryer had eight points for the Knicks while Dana Craig had six points for the Sonics.

Junior High Division-

The Gems beat the Maniacs 29-28. Ann Marie Terryberry had a dozen points for the Gems while Sara Firman led the Maniacs with 11.

The Bulls turned back the Bombers 26-21. Lyndsey Blechel had 14 points for the Bulls while Angie Potter had six points for the Bombers.

The Rejectors defeated the Sharpshooters 44-13. Amanda Eaton had 22 for the Rejectors while Jamie Gowell had six for the Sharpshooters.

The Foxes were eight better than the Crusaders 35-27. Andrea Arnold had a dozen for the Foxes while Lisa Parrish had 25 for the Crusaders.

Rayder volleyball team wins conference tournament

Charlevoix hosted the Lake Michigan Division conference volleyball tournament Saturday. And the Rayders had a little surprise in store for their guests.

Charlevoix entered the tournament with a 2-4 conference record and was seeded fourth among seven teams. Eight hours later when the dust had settled the Rayders were conference tournament champions.

As some of the Charlevoix fans noted following the tournament, watching high school volleyball hasn't been that much fun in a long time.

In the tournament, teams were separated into two pools for preliminary play. The top two teams from each pool advanced to the semi-finals.

The Rayders tuned up in pool play with two wins against Boyne City, 15-8, 15-8. Next, Charlevoix faced Harbor Springs. The Rams entered the tournament with a 6-0 conference record and looked to be the tournament favorite. In the opening game of a two-game match, Charlevoix pounded them 15-2. Harbor Springs recovered in the second game and rode a good start to a 15-8 win.

At 3-1, Charlevoix had the top record in pool play and advanced to the semi-finals against Kalkaska. The semi-finals were played in a best of three format. Charlevoix took the first game 15-10, but faltered in the second game and lost 15-9. In the third game Tina Holm, one of only two seniors on the Rayder team, had perhaps the best game of her high school career. After Kalkaska took a 2-0 lead, Charlevoix got the ball back and Holm went on a serving binge. Holm has had an interesting high school career. As an underclassman despite being the smallest player on the team she had an aggressive hitter mentality. The problem was that it was in the team's best interest to have the taller players, not the shorter players hitting at the net. The solution to the dilemma occurred when Holm developed into one of the team's best servers. Ironically, a few years ago she wasn't a particularly strong server.

By the time Holm finished serving in the deciding game against Kalkaska, Charlevoix had gone from being behind 2-0 to being ahead 9-2.

While Holm initiated the offense from the back row, the remainder of the Rayders quickly mopped up any serves that were returned.

Juniors Liz Grunch and Gretchen Scott have been the Rayders' most consistent players. Grunch is a third year varsity player. Don't be surprised if at the 1995 Charlevoix High School commencement exercise Grunch walks across the stage and a great whoop of joy goes up from a group of people from out of town. The group will be coaches of opposing teams, tickled to death to finally see her go.

The problem for opposing players trying to defend Grunch is that she not only has exceptional hand-eye coordination, she also plays smarter than anyone else on the floor.

In the third game against Kalkaska, Grunch altered power hits with gentle taps and had her opponents so off balance they didn't know whether to rush the net, fall back or just stand still and think about it until their brains began to make a sizzling sound.

While Grunch is quietly effective, Scott by contrast is vocally effective. Scott is a cheerleader in the fall, but during the winter months, in order to play volleyball, gives up cheerleading...at least to some degree. In addition to keeping her teammates focused and motivated, Scott is one of the Rayders' most versatile players. She's tall enough to play on the net and agile enough to play off the net. With Scott at one end of the net and Grunch at the other, Kalkaska had a difficult time finding a place to hit where the ball wouldn't be dug and returned.

On more than one occasion the Rayder back row players didn't get an opportunity to make a dig. Christie Kaczynski terminated some of Kalkaska's best hits at the net. On one occasion Kaczynski went head to head with Kalkaska's tallest player. The Kalkaska player got a good set, went high and hit hard. Kaczynski timed her block perfectly and sent the ball back stamped "DENIED!"

Kaczynski is one of five sophomores on the varsity team. Three others also saw significant time Saturday. Jenny Swenor is one of the team's better setters and more stable players. Liz Kelly, who also played varsity basketball, in addition to being one of the team's most coordinated athletes also is among the most intense. Kris Blanchard is another good athlete, who along with Kaczynski is eventually going to give Charlevoix enough quality height to create a book-end burden for other teams.

After turning back a late Kalkaska rally and taking a 15-11 win in game three, the Rayders moved to the finals against Elk Rapids. In an earlier tournament at Elk Rapids, Charlevoix had split with the Elks in pool play and lost in the finals.

The first game of the finals was close throughout with both teams playing exceptionally well. There were several long volleys with both teams hitting some shots that were dug and returned. The game went into overtime with Charlevoix taking a 16-14 win.

The second game was nowhere near as close. Charlevoix setter Jill Dreyer, a junior, had been somewhat inconsistent earlier in the day, but in the final game she and Grunch were in perfect synch. With Dreyer giving her nice sets, Grunch adopted a Tim the Tool Man Taylor philosophy of hitting. "More Power!" Elk Rapids, on the other hand, was dealing with one of the fundamental laws of volleyball - It's not easy to return any ball hit hard enough to leave a vapor trail. Charlevoix won the final game 15-2.

The final overall conference standings were based on a combination of season and tournament results. In the combined scoring Charlevoix finished in a third place tie with Kalkaska. Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids tied for the overall championship.

Horton Bay makes plans for annual Winter Olympics

It has been a tumultuous time leading up to the Horton Bay Winter Olympics, a time fraught with controversy. First, there was the big fuss which occurred when one of the competitors in the frozen fish toss allegedly attempted to disable one of the other competitors by hitting him in the leg with a frozen fish prior to the competition. Scandal. Scandal.

And as if the frozen fish toss problem wasn't enough, there was the controversy over the Bobbit weenie toss. There was some debate over whether or not this event should be included in the games.

Some people argued that its inclusion was justified and others argued that it was not. Still others made no argument either way - they just cringed at the thought. Ultimately, the ruling committee decided to include the Bobbit weenie toss in this year's games as a test sport. After the games a jury will ponder whether or not that action was appropriate and whether in future years the event is one participants will become attached to.

Jordan River group to host seminar

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed will be sponsoring a seminar on the Jordan River from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 26 in the Jordan Valley District Library Community Room.

Featured speakers at the seminar and their topics will be:

John Van Dyke, Historian, - The History of the Jordan River Fishery.

Dan Pearson, Statewide Coordinator for the Natural Rivers Program, - The Natural Rivers Program.

Steve Swan, District Fisheries Biologist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, - Current Status and Assessment of the Jordan River Fisheries.

Ellie Koon, Sea Lamprey Barrier Coordinator from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, - Sea Lamprey Control and its Impact on River Ecology.

Gaylord Alexander, Biologist in Charge of the Department of Natural Resources' Hunt Creek Research Station in Lewiston.

People who would like to attend are asked to contact The Friends of the Jordan by Feb. 23 either by writing to 800 Water Street, East Jordan 49727 or by calling 536-3132.

Unlike those Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, the Horton Bay Winter Olympics will not be a drawn out affair. This year's Horton Bay Winter Olympics will take place from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 26 on the Lake Charlevoix ice off the foot of Lake Street, within easy walking distance of Horton Bay's urban center.

In addition to the aforementioned events there will also be a huge event (which an American is favored to win), a snow shovel board race, turkey curling, and a rotten fruit throw at a Rush Limbaugh look-a-like.

All proceeds benefit the Horton Bay Fourth of July Parade. For additional information, contact Melissa at the General Store, 582-7827.

Welcome Wagon Club to meet for lunch

Newcomers to the Welcome Wagon Club of Charlevoix will meet for lunch at noon, Feb. 23 at Juilleret's Restaurant. Following lunch, Maria Affhalter of the Little Traverse Conservancy will present a program about the Conservancy and its Environmental Education program. As part of the presentation, Affhalter will also share some of the Conservancy's Native American Storytelling program.

For reservations or additional information, phone Marilyn Izor, 547-6733.

Odd Fellows gain ground slowly

Slowly, but surely the Odd Fellows continue to erode the Masons' lead in the 1994 cribbage tournament. Last Thursday night the Odd Fellows cut 44 points off the Masons' lead, but the Masons' still lead by 1,113 points.

There were six tables in play. Rod Trimble was high scorer for the Masons with 962 points while Melvin Plum led the Odd Fellows, also with 962 points. Play resumes this Thursday evening at the Masonic Lodge.

Charlevoix Area Hospital completes remodeling project

Community and staff support make building program possible

Charlevoix Area Hospital is unique among the small hospitals of today.

It's no secret that most small hospitals are struggling. Reimbursement from Medicare and Medicaid doesn't meet the cost of doing business, it's hard to recruit physicians and skilled staff, and fund-raising is difficult. Those are just some of the problems. But Charlevoix Area Hospital is growing in spite of these obstacles.

Because of overwhelming community and staff support, a major building program has been completed at the hospital. Situated on the shores of Lake Michigan, the hospital is remodeling an area to house a new maternity unit. That unit is the first of its kind in northern Michigan. It includes four homelike private rooms overlooking the lake where the mother will labor, deliver, and stay with her baby throughout the entire hospital stay.

"We have always been a very family-centered hospital as far as the birth experience goes," says Mary Terryberry, R.N., supervisor of the obstetrical unit. Liberal visitation hours for siblings, fathers, grandparents and friends promote a relaxed atmosphere for the family. "Our new unit just carries our usual patient care a step farther," she says. The single-room maternity concept is one new parents have been demanding in recent years. "It provides the closest thing to having a baby at home, yet we have the security of hospital services nearby should they be needed," she says.

The major part of the building program, however, is an addition to house a new surgical suite, outpatient procedure room, central sterile supply, kitchen, cafeteria and meeting rooms. The new surgical suite will better accommodate outpatient or ambulatory surgery, says Richard Krueger, president. "Our present surgical suite was built in 1954, and does not provide space for our modern technology," he says. It takes more people in the operating room, plus sophisticated equipment, in order to do some of the surgical procedures such as gallbladder removal on an outpatient basis.

"We see ourselves as preparing for our role in the next century," says Krueger. As our inpatient census may continue to decrease, we will position ourselves as a provider of outpatient services, he says. This will be the role of most small hospitals in the future and one that is promoted by the government.

The $4 million building program is possible because of a fund-raising campaign that raised over $1.6 million including a $150,000 grant from the Frey Foundation. "We have very strong support for our hospital," says Krueger. "We're 75 years old and proud that we will be improving our accessibility and availability of services to all who have depended on us over the years. We plan on serving the area for a long time to come."

The hospital has 186 employees and 20 physicians on the active staff in specialty areas including general surgery, orthopaedic surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics and internal medicine. Visiting physicians provide ophthalmology, otolaryngology, and urology services.

Charlevoix Area Hospital will host a dedication ceremony and open house at 2 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 20. State Representative Beverly Bodem will give a dedication address. Tours of the new surgical and maternity units and refreshments will be available from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Dr. Jeff Porter, fundraising chairman for the hospital building project drive, is shown updating the drive thermometer in the summer of 1991.

New hospital facilities designed to improve service as well as patient and visitor convenience and comfort

Charlevoix Area Hospital's new facilities have been designed to give patients and visitors the full benefit of the hospital's scenic setting.

Upon entering the hospital, visitors will be directed to a circular waiting area overlooking Lake Michigan. This will provide a restful place for those waiting for someone having outpatient surgery or procedures. On occasion it may be used for receptions and special meetings.

Below this waiting area is the new kitchen and dining room taking the exterior circular expanse of glass a full two stories. In the summer months employees, medical staff and visitors will be able to enjoy dining on the adjacent water-side patio area.

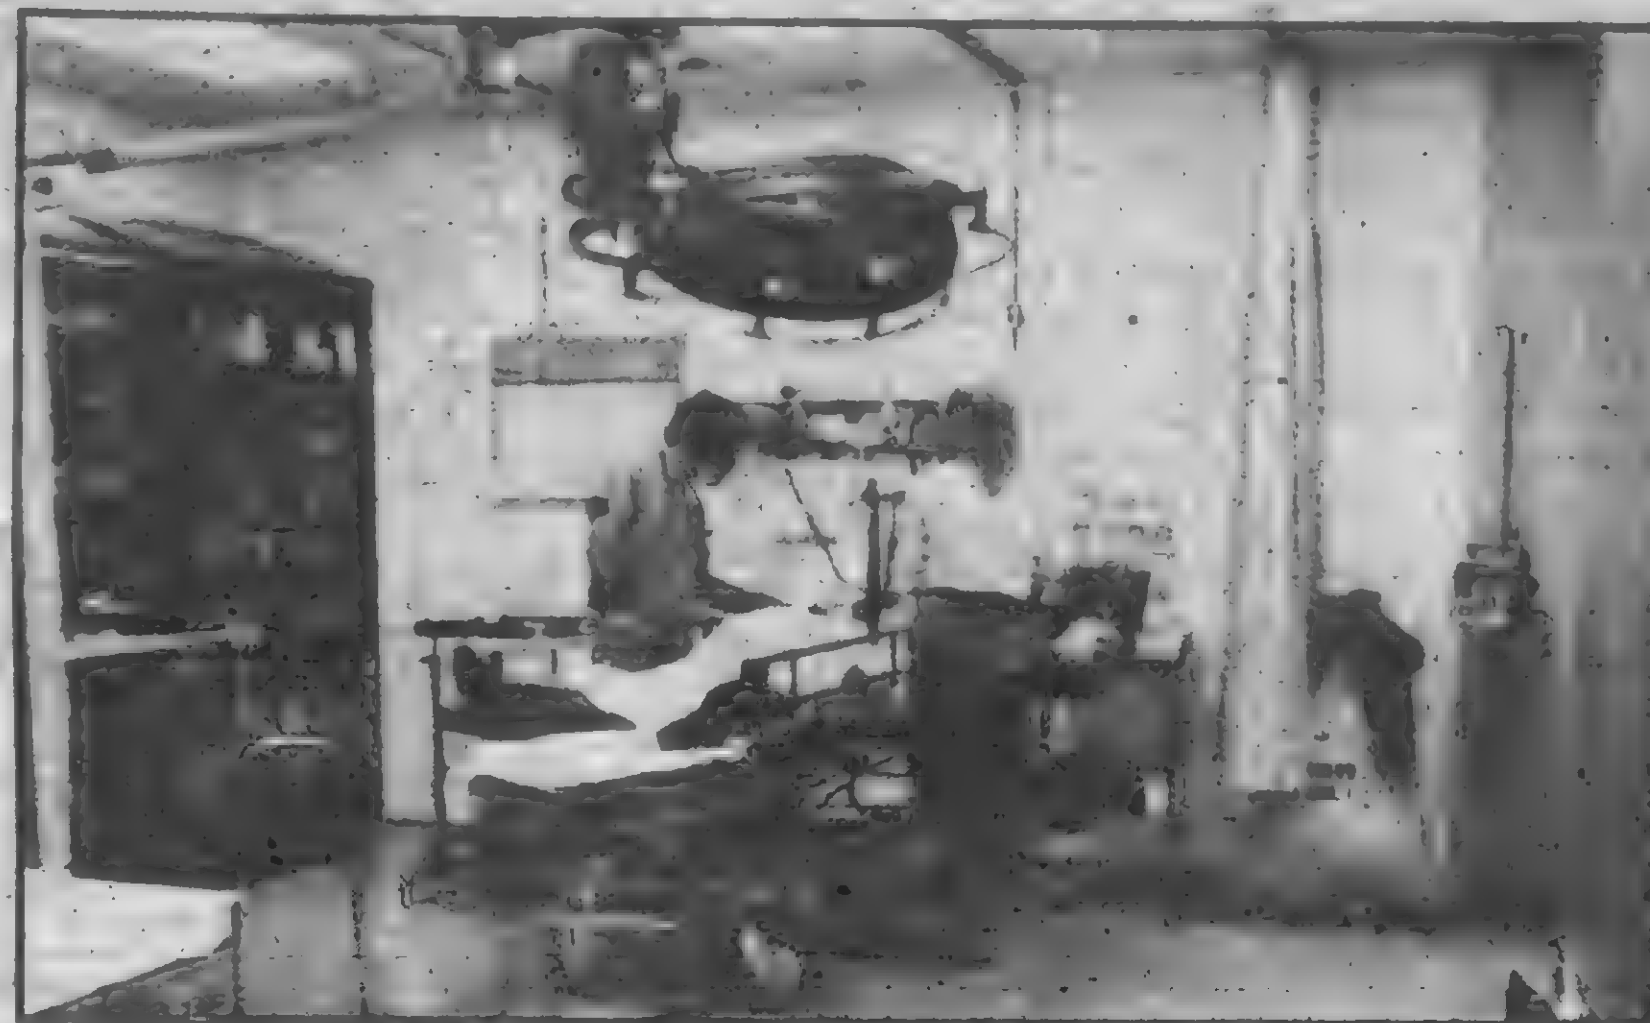

The maternity/obstetrical unit has been moved to the ground level at the water's edge. This area has been remodeled to provide for the modern single-room maternity concept. It is designed with four private rooms where the mother will give birth and remain her entire stay with her baby. This will provide the ultimate in privacy for the family in a setting unequalled in the area hospitals.

Replacing the 1954 vintage surgical suite and central sterile supply makes up the major portion of the building program. The new suite is designed to accommodate the rapidly growing volume of outpatient (same day) surgeries being done. Along with two new operating rooms, there is a separate room for endoscopic procedures which were formerly done in one of the operating rooms. The operating rooms will be much larger in order to house the necessary technology for today's surgical procedures. Five "pre-op" rooms will provide privacy for patients prior to and following surgery.

Convenience for the more than 19,000 patients who come to the hospital each year is much improved by a new admitting, registration area, and waiting area. In addition, there is a new and expanded Guild Showcase Gift Shop.

Of the $4 million total cost, over $1.6 million was raised in contributions: The Frey Foundation, of Grand Rapids, awarded a $150,000 grant for the project.

The new hospital building additions were designed not only to improve patient care, but also to create the most comfortable atmosphere possible.

New surgical unit compatible with new techniques

Charlevoix Area Hospital's new surgical suite was built with the future in mind. It has been suggested by health care futurists that by the year 2000 more than 75 percent of surgeries will be done by the endoscopic technique.

Already Charlevoix Area Hospital's surgeons have used the procedure for many gallbladder removals. Hysterectomies and appendectomies are also being done in this way. Now, some hernia repairs have been done by this method.

Laparoscopic surgery (endoscopic surgery of the abdominal area) became a possibility with the development of special scopes which can be inserted into the body through very small incisions. While viewing the internal body, the surgeon is able to remove the necessary organs without major surgery or incisions. The main benefit is to the patient who has a much shorter recovery time. They usually return home the following day and can go back to work within a week. Formerly, recovery time could be up to six weeks.

These procedures have been done at Charlevoix Area Hospital by Drs. Merle Plagge and Marc Lame for the past several years. "We have done them mostly in cases of recurring hernias," Dr. Lame says. He feels that laparoscopic hernia surgery will become the standard before long.

Until recently, a hernia repair patient faced three to five weeks of at-home recuperation, a long abdominal scar and significant post-operative pain. But now with laparoscopic hernia repair, a patient returns home with only three or four tiny marks, experiences minimal discomfort and, in many cases, can return to normal activity in as little as two days.

A hernia occurs when the inner layers of the abdominal wall weaken and then bulge or tear. In the same way an inner tube pushes through a damaged tire, the inner lining of the abdomen pushes through the weakened area to form a balloon-like sac. This, in turn, can cause a loop of intestine or abdominal tissue to slip into the sac, causing severe pain and other potentially serious health problems.

Instead of the traditional three to five inch abdominal incision, laparoscopic hernia repair is performed through three or four tiny openings, each less than a half inch in diameter. The surgeon inserts a trocar — narrow tube-like instrument — into the navel to gain access to the abdomen. A laparoscope — a tiny telescope — connected to a camera is inserted through the trocar, giving the surgeon a magnified view of the patient's internal organs on a video monitor. Two or three additional trocars are inserted to accommodate special instrumentation.

The surgeon pulls the hernial sac back into the abdominal cavity and exposes the defect in the abdominal wall. The defect is covered with a mesh patch that is anchored securely to the inside of the abdominal wall using a special stapler.

Following the repair, the small openings are closed with a suture or two or with surgical tape. Within a few months the incision scars are barely visible.

"Because the new laparoscopic technique eliminates the need for a large incision," says Dr. Lame, "patients experience less post-operative pain and recover more quickly." In addition, the mesh patch used to cover the abdominal defect is placed on the inside of the abdominal wall instead of the outside. This method works with the natural outward pressure of the abdomen to secure the repair and promote healing.

This is one more surgery that moves into the "outpatient" classification for Charlevoix Area Hospital. Presently, nearly two-thirds of the 1,100 surgeries performed at the hospital each year are done on an outpatient basis.

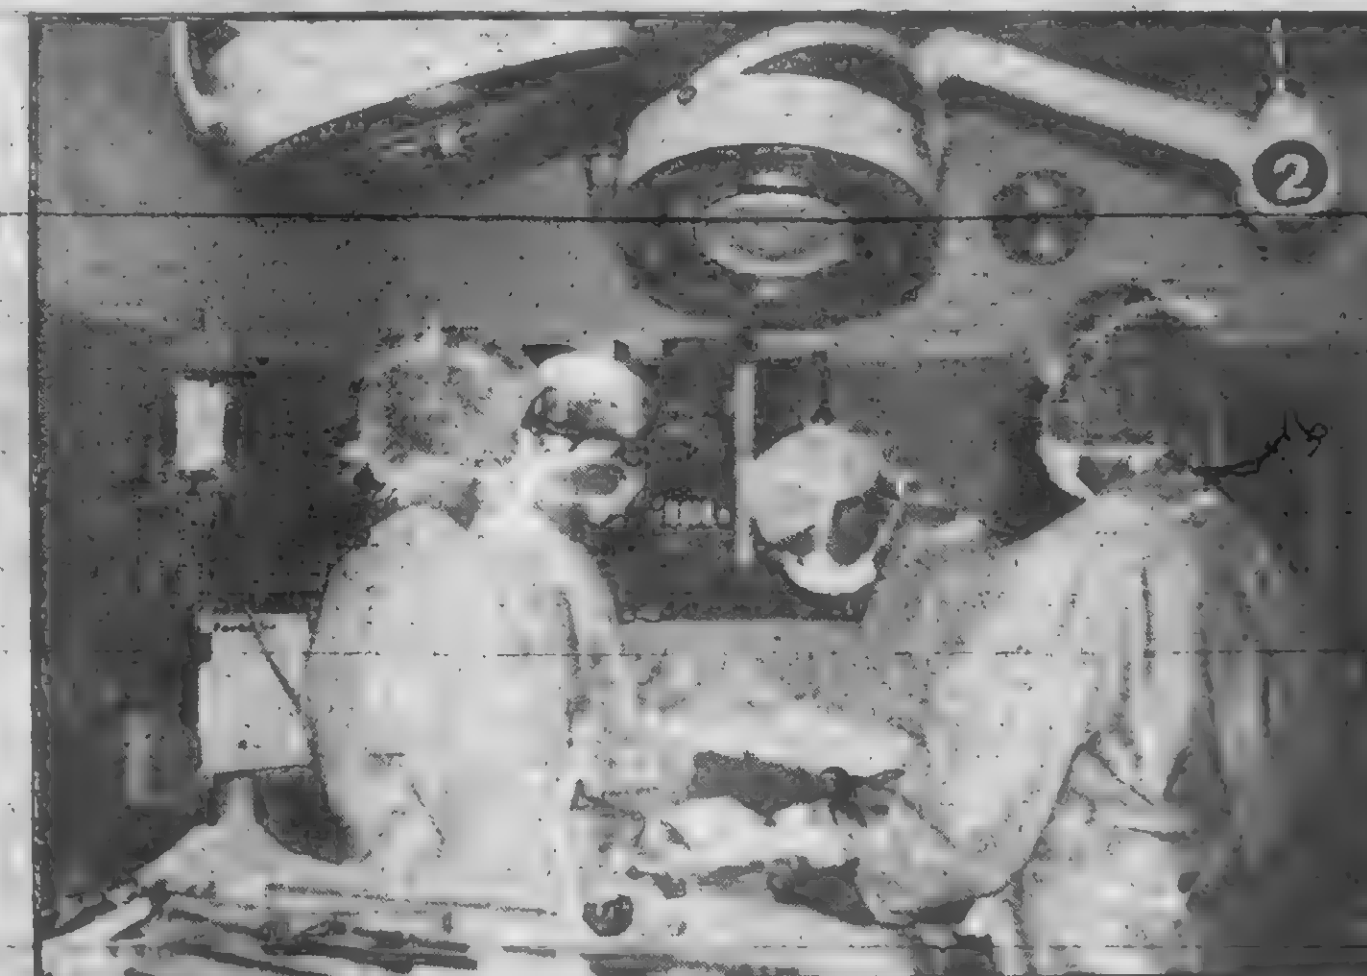

Charlevoix Area Hospital is the site of approximately 1,100 surgical procedures each year.

The new surgical unit has been designed to work well for surgeries done on an out-patient basis.

The new surgical suite in the hospital will give surgeons additional room needed for new surgical equipment and procedures.

New surgical rooms will more easily accommodate endoscopic surgery techniques which allow patients to recover sooner.

New obstetric unit among northern Michigan's finest Excitement is running high at Charlevoix Area Hospital as the new obstetrical unit opens.

Each item included in the new unit: down to the chairs, TVs, and beds, has been chosen so as to contribute to the entire concept of family-centered, single-room maternity care. "This is not just a new facility," says Mary Terryberry, OB supervisor. "This is a place that promotes family relationships and a birth experience that surpasses anything ever offered in northern Michigan."

The traditional form of childbirth, which has been the practice at Charlevoix Area Hospital, is to have the mother labor in a separate room; go to the delivery room for the birth; and then to her room for the remainder of her stay. For some, a short stay in the recovery room was also included. This meant a constant shuffling of the father, or support person, along with mom and baby, in and out of sterile and unattractive surroundings.

In the 80's, many hospitals made a move to using a single, more homelike, room for the actual birth experience. Following the birth, the mother would be moved to her room, which was often a semi-private room, and the baby would be brought to her on demand from a central nursery. This was called the LDR (labor, delivery, recovery) method of childbirth.

Now, Charlevoix Area Hospital takes that concept one step further. The entire birth experience will be in one attractively decorated room.

The father or support person will be able to remain at bedside throughout the labor, delivery, recovery, and postpartum (LDRP) stay. Meals will be served at a table for two in the room, or from a lap tray, if mom wishes.

This is an expansion of Charlevoix Area Hospital's maternity care. "We have always tried to be very accommodating to our patients, as far as visiting hours, sibling visits and inclusion in the events," says Terryberry. "And, our setting overlooking the lake has been a real plus for our patients."

"By further accentuating the family-centered aspects of birth, and allowing the bonding of family relationships in pleasant surroundings from the moment of birth," she says, "we will have happier new parents and happier babies."

In order to provide an atmosphere of home comfort, as well as have all the emergency equipment and delivery facilities close at hand, expensive cabinetry and special furniture is required. Included are attractive sleeping chairs for the father or support person, jacuzzi hot tubs to aid in healing, concealed televisions and equipment, along with dining table and chairs. The hardwood floors, attractive wall coverings, draperies and bedspreads make the rooms very different from the usual hospital setting. There are four such private rooms overlooking the Lake Michigan beach.

This concept doesn't come cheap; however, the infant bassinets are $1,300 each. The patient bed which adjusts for the delivery is $9,500. Necessary equipment such as fetal monitors are $10,000 and special lights range up to $9,800 for each room. The Kappa Sigma Home Tours for the past several years and gifts from the Zonta Club of Charlevoix have helped to pay for some of this equipment.

The unit also includes a family waiting room for other family members who are present; a testing room that can be converted to a patient room if needed; and an antepartum overnight room with two beds for women who are being observed for some reason during their pregnancy. There is also a nursery so that mothers who wish to have their babies out of the room may do so. An adjacent delivery room will be used for Caesarean section deliveries.

Administrators and key personnel planned the unit carefully by visiting other LDRP facilities around the state. They have adopted the most economical and efficient ways to carry out the concept. "We wanted a unit that is attractive so that you don't realize you are in a hospital," says Terryberry. And, everyone involved knows that takes more than just a facility. It is an all encompassing concept that will attract people from a wide area of northern Michigan. Charlevoix Area Hospital averages about 160 births each year.

Approximately 160 babies a year spend the first day of their lives at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

New labor, delivery, recovery rooms in the hospital's obstetric unit promote a family atmosphere.

This is one of the new labor, delivery, recovery rooms which overlook Lake Michigan.

Charlevoix Area Hospital changed through the years to continue meeting community's health care needs

By Dr. Gilbert Saltonstall

The original Charlevoix Hospital began in 1917 with the purchase of a two story frame house on West Hurlbut by a group of public-minded business and professional men for $2,000. After two years of fund raising and remodeling, it was opened to the public in 1920 with a board of trustees consisting of Harry Nichols (banking and lumber), Jacob L. Crane (dry goods), Lyle Shanahan (attorney), Ira Adams (newspaper editor), W. A. Miller (Belvedere Resort), Alvah Crimmins (banker), Albert F. Bridge (banker), William Finucan (Captain of the S.S. Manitou), Robert Bruce Armstrong M.D., was the manager in complete control of the operation. There were 17 beds, mostly in two wards (men's and women's).

In 1924-25 an addition was built on the east side of the original structure which increased the bed capacity to 27 with a labor-delivery room and an obstetrical ward. The x-ray department consisted of a portable machine and a hand-held fluoroscope (which belonged to Dr. Armstrong). The only microscopes were in the doctors' offices so no blood counts or matches for transfusion were possible. Urine could be checked for sugar and albumen but that was the extent of laboratory procedures.

Many improvements came in the late 1930s and early 1940s. A laboratory with a registered technician, the discovery of antibiotics, newer safer anesthesia and new technology were added. The need for staff to carry stretchers between floors was eliminated with the advent of a rope-pulled elevator and then a second-hand elevator — a discard from the Charlevoix Co-Op.

In 1949 an inspection by the State Fire Marshall warned the hospital board that the present structure was too much of a fire hazard and threatened closure unless extensive and costly renovations were put in place. Fortunately, the Hill Burton Act had been passed by Congress which gave financial assistance to state approved areas for the construction of needed hospitals.

Again a drive began for funds and the citizens of Charlevoix, the summer visitors and the surrounding area all joined in raising the necessary one-third to get the additional two-thirds in matching funds from the Hill Burton money.

The City of Charlevoix gave its trailer park on Lake Michigan to the cause for $1, and by 1954 the modern beautiful new 44-bed hospital was opened and dedicated to the service of the people in this area. Since that time the hospital has continued to grow both physically and in services offered including emergency rooms, physical therapy, pediatrics, inhalation therapy, etc. In 1972 a coronary and intensive care unit was constructed, and in 1978 ultrasound was added to the x-ray department with a full-time, skilled radiologist.

With changing times, and pressures for cost containment growing, the outpatient departments were increasingly taxed and the need for expansion started the drive for funds to build a new wing on the front of the hospital. This allowed for relocation of beds and expansion of all service areas including outpatient departments, a classroom, etc. This addition, dedicated in 1981, while adding no new beds, cost considerably more than the entire new building back in 1954.

A later addition to the hospital was the fully-equipped "Stress laboratory" where non-invasive ultra-sonics and dopler tests give new insight into cardiac and vascular diseases never dreamed of back when the hospital began.

With a fine medical staff, including most specialties and generalists, competent and caring nurses and aides, and all the supporting administrative and technical staff, the Charlevoix Area Hospital is one that our locality can truly be proud of.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's former location was on Hurlbut Street. The hospital opened in 1920.

What looked like an accident was really the seamen from the Coast Guard Station working on ice rescue maneuvers. Seaman Mike Koch spent a fair amount of time in the water last week as the three men pushed, pulled, or drove the rescue boat from the Coast Guard Station on Lake Charlevoix past the lighthouse on Lake Michigan.

"We were out practicing and having some fun," Koch said. The Coast Guard men chose a warm, sunny day last week to work on their ice rescue skills.

On the ice with Koch were Tom Leckrone and Jeff Zapfen.

Pre-school program needs a new home

By L. Scott Swanson

About three dozen cute little kids between the ages of three and five need a room to call their own. The Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery pre-school program has a teacher, supportive parents and children who want to learn, but they don't have a place for the program. Much like the old Star Trek television series, space is the final frontier.

The Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery was founded nearly 20 years ago. For the past several years it has operated out of a room at the K-5 school. But next year the public school will need that room for its Young 5 and Special Education programs. Although the Cooperative Nursery program and the school system would prefer to keep the program at the school, there just isn't enough space.

Cooperative Nursery board members understand the school's need for the room, but are saddened by the thought of disbanding the nursery school program.

"It's really sad to see something like this go, but we've lost our home literally," said Danya Drost. Drost has been on the nursery school board for nine years. All four of her children have gone through the cooperative nursery program.

She said that for many parents one of the best parts of the program has been having it at the elementary school. For the children, having the nursery school program at the K-5 school meant that they became familiar with the teachers, the principal, the building, playground and busses. Drost said, due to that familiarity her oldest child "went to kindergarten the first day without a tear." In addition to allowing the children to emotionally phase in to the school setting, Drost said having the kindergarten teachers right next door encouraged communication and educational program coordination between the nursery school and kindergarten teachers.

K-5 School Principal Dick Swenor expressed similar sentiment. "It was such a nice bridge between pre-school and the school program," he said.

The Cooperative Nursery may not be the only program affected by the loss of the room. The Sunshine Club, a before and after-school daycare program may also be displaced. Approximately 27 children belong to the Sunshine Club. The program operates out of the same room as the nursery school. Children may come to the Sunshine Club from 7 a.m. until school starts and from the end of the school day to 5:30 p.m. The Sunshine Club is open additional hours when the school has half days or snow days.

In addition to having the Sunshine Club and the Cooperative Nursery in the same room, the programs also are under the direction of the same person. Pam Gregory serves as director of the Sunshine Club and as the nursery school teacher.

The Sunshine Club is sponsored by the Community Reformed Church. At one time the program was located at the church, but a couple of years ago was moved to the school while the church was in the midst of a remodeling project. Having the Sunshine Club at the school worked so well that even after the church remodeling project was completed, it stayed at the school. Jan Boss, who coordinates the Community Reformed Church's youth ministries, said having the program at the school has been ideal. Parents feel very comfortable dropping their children off at the school and having the program at the school also eliminates confusion caused by bussing the children in the afternoons. Boss said that when the program was considering going back to the church, some of the K-5 teachers stepped forward and said they wanted to see the pro-

Two Charlevoix Odyssey of the Mind teams qualify for State Finals

Two Charlevoix Odyssey of the Mind teams have qualified for State Finals competition April 17 at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant. The Middle School Believable Music division team and the Elementary School Set It Free division team both placed second to move on to state competition. The Believable Music team is made up of Jessica Corey, Nicole Harbison, Laura Schairbaum, Kris Staton, Jenny Wojan and Alyssa Westenbroek coached by Kathy Staton and Kathy Stangis. The Set It Free team is made up of Christine Johnson, Jarad Johnson, Philip Morris, Bobby Roloff, David Ruhle and Troy Smith and is coached by Audrey Roloff, Kelly Morris and Mary Lou Smith.

Charlevoix public schools had nine teams competing in the Regional Competition, Feb. 19 in Alpena. All four middle school teams placed among the top six places. Each division had at least 10 teams with the top two qualifying for state finals.

Pre-school seeks new home

gram stay at the school. One of the reasons cited was that having the Sunshine Club at the school made it easier to provide a little extra help to students who needed it before or after school.

Boss said the school system has been wonderful in its cooperation with the Sunshine Club and she feels the school still wants to work with the program. The problem is just a matter of space. If no space can be found at the school, Plan B is to have the club go back to the church.

Members of the Cooperative Nursery board have been looking for an alternative location, but haven't had any luck finding one. There are a variety of state licensing regulations that an alternative site would have to meet. In addition to fire and safety regulations, a site would have to have an outdoor play area available to be licensed.

tive Nursery board member, said the program has 36 students this year. Younger students attend two days a week, either from 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. or from 1 p.m. to 3:15 p.m. Older students attend three days a week, also for two hours a day. Tuition is $180 per semester for the twice a week program or $232.50 per semester for the thrice a week program.

Cost is another challenge in finding an alternative location for the program. The school has not only been gracious enough to allow the program to use the room for several years, they've also allowed them to use the room rent-free. The challenge in moving will be able to find an alternative site without picking up a rent payment which drives tuition rates up so high that the program isn't competitively priced.

The nursery school board is hoping to find a possible solution to the problem soon. Registration for the next school year normally takes place in March or April. Anyone with information which might help find a new home for the nursery school may call 547-6632 or 547-4282.

Editorial

The need for just one room

Editorial nursery school 2-23

Here's something that we as a community should fix. In a world where there are lots of things that are wrong, we have something which is very right and yet it's going down the tubes for lack of one thing - a room. Nothing more than that. Just a room.

For the past several years the Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery School program has operated out of a spare room at the elementary school. The room is located next to the kindergarten classrooms. This year about three dozen children between the ages of three and five attend the Cooperative Nursery. In addition to that another 27 elementary aged children are in the room either before or after school for the Sunshine Club day care program.

At the end of this year, the room will no longer be a spare room. The school needs it for a couple of things - their Young Fives program and an additional Special Education room necessary because of state regulations. Consequently the Cooperative Nursery program no longer has a home. People are trying to make arrangements to keep the Sunshine Club at the school, but it remains to be seen if that can be done.

Interestingly enough, nobody wants either the Cooperative Nursery or the Sunshine Club programs to leave the elementary school. It's just a matter of space, the need for a room - just a room.

Why do people like having the Cooperative Nursery and Sunshine Club at the elementary school? What's right about it? Well, there are a number of things.

Having the Cooperative Nursery program in the elementary school allows children to make a comfortable transition into the educational system. Elementary principal Dick Swenor described it as "a bridge" into the school system. When they get to be three or four years old, children can begin attending the pre-school program two or three times a week. While they're doing that, they meet the staff of the school, they get to know the building and the playground, they see how the busses come and go, they get a feel for how things operate.

In addition to that the pre-school teacher is right next door to the kindergarten teachers. They can work together and make sure that educationally the pre-school and kindergarten programs are on the same page and that one flows seamlessly into the other. During recent years the school staff has been doing all kinds of work to get the curriculum "aligned." In this instance, the curriculum is already aligned.

When it comes time for their first day of kindergarten, children are not entering a new and foreboding setting, they're just taking a comfortable step forward and finding solid ground the first time they put their little feet on the path of formal education. That's good for parents. That's good for school personnel. And most importantly it's good for the children. It's something that is right in our community.

The Sunshine Club uses the classroom from 7 a.m. in the morning until school begins and again in the afternoon, from 3:30 when school gets out until 5:30. The pre-school teacher is also the director of the Sunshine Club.

In addition to mitigating day-care problems for several community families, there are some other things that are right about the Sunshine Club which might not be obvious at first glance.

The Sunshine Club is sponsored by the Community Reformed Church. Jan Boss who coordinates the church's youth programs pointed out that the Sunshine Club isn't really a religious type thing, it's just something which helps a lot of children and parents and the church has taken on the responsibility for coordinating it. While the Sunshine Club may not espouse any particular religious doctrine, love for God's children, compassion for your fellow man and a willingness to work toward making the world a better place normally are concepts generally found near the core of any religion. That one of Charlevoix's churches has taken these concepts beyond talk and has undertaken a program which makes these concepts a reality is another thing which is very right in our community.

Until about three years ago, the Sunshine Club was located at the church, rather than at the school. After school, kids were bussed to the church. Even though kids occasionally got confused and didn't get off at the right place, generally speaking the program worked all right. Then, due to a remodeling program at the church the Sunshine Club had to find new quarters temporarily. An arrangement was made to have the program in the Cooperative Nursery School classroom. This arrangement worked so well that even after the church remodeling was completed the program stayed at the school.

Among the people who wanted to keep the Sunshine Club at the school were some of the elementary school teachers. Why? Because having the program there made it possible and convenient to give some of the students who needed a bit of extra help the help they needed either before or after normal school hours. In an era where the American education system has more than its share of shortcomings and often is a source of frustration, some of the Charlevoix Elementary School teachers were not only willing to take the extra time to assure their students were going in the right direction, but beyond that they were willing to speak up for the program which provided the opportunity to take the extra time. That kind of commitment is something which is very right in our community.

All of these things which are right are going to be eliminated or at least diminished by a simple lack of space - just a room. When you look at that, you can't help but feel very frustrated. What's a community to do?

Performing arts students present World War II musical

As the Western World prepares to commemorate the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Normandy Invasion, better known as D-Day, the Performing Arts students of Charlevoix High School are presenting their original play, Homeland, at both competitive drama festivals and Feb. 26 and 27 for the community.

Homeland is a dramatic and musical tribute to the heroes of World War II who served both at home and abroad. Written by their teacher and director, Connie Ford with the assistance of SuLane Hamilton and Marvin Witthoft, these 63 students added research and writing to bring to the audience a nostalgic and heart-tugging look at the World War II era.

The ensemble cast of 63 recently competed at the District Drama Festival in Grand Rapids where they were successful and continued on to Regional Competition at St. Johns' Art District Competition, three awards for dramatic excellence were presented to: Sven Gartenbroeker, exchange student from Germany; Becky Blisset, pianist who played to perfection without lighting and to Marcy Wogan as Major O'Leary.

At Regional Competition, the cast was recognized for Excellence in Set Design. Additional awards for Excellence were presented to Ellen McKinney for choreography, David Skeel for drama and Jessie Wheat for musical arrangement.

Homeland will be presented for the community at Charlevoix High School Saturday Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday Feb. 27 at 2 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the High School office or at the door. Family tickets are $14, adults $4 and students and senior citizens $3. The students are excited to be performing for local World War II veterans. Proceeds from ticket sales are used to support the many activities of Performing Arts which include Debate, Pentathlon, Drama, Individual Events and Dinner Theatre. All donations are appreciated and tax-deductible.

Middle School students carve their own totem poles and canoes

The Native Americans along Canada's Pacific Coast between Vancouver Island and Southern Alaska carved totem poles out of large trees. These brightly painted carvings commemorated a special event, identified a family by its emblem or marked a grave. For two weeks the students in Mrs. Evelyn Wujcik's social studies class, with the aid of former social studies teacher Mr. Van Green, carved totem poles. They worked in teams to design, carve and paint their totems. Before carving, the teams researched animals' significance to the tribes, then chose meaningful animals to depict on their totem. In addition to the totem pole, each team carved a small canoe and paddles modeled after those used by the Northwest Indians. The totem project was enjoyed by all who participated, and students gained a greater understanding and appreciation of the people who create these magnificent pieces of art.

The children of the Growing Tree pre-school visited Bolt's Grange Hall Pottery Studio on Marion Center Rd. Monday Feb. 7 and made clay valentines.

Clay demonstrations were presented by Russ and Susan Bolt. Lori Bolt, Russell Bolt Jr., and Robert Bolt. All are family members of Bolt Designs Inc.

Growing Tree teachers Renee Golovich-Keie and Jan Medford Hoffman were joined by Roger Michaud (dad driver).

Children in attendance were: Andrew Whitley, Jordan Holescheck, Logan Priess, Phillip Michaud, Luke Harriman, Kaitlyn Wojan, Brecklin Golovich-Keie, Joshie Manker, Allyson Hoffman, Elizabeth Hasseld.

Boulder Park hosts Sweetheart Luncheon

Boulder Park Terrace Health Care Facility hosted their Annual Sweetheart Luncheon Feb. 14, Valentine's day. All residents were served a meal of Chicken Cordon Bleu, fresh asparagus with hollandaise, herbed rice and a special dessert. Following the lunch residents were invited to listen to music provided by Mr. Jim Genc.

Husbands and wives were served a champagne lunch in a decorated private dining room. During their lunch the couples listened to love songs played by Mr. Genc on the piano. The couples enjoyed their favorite songs. The couples were invited to share their first love experience. Each couple received heart-mints and a photo as a reminder of the delightful afternoon. Hand-made valentines were provided by Charlevoix Elementary School children for all residents to enjoy.

Volunteers help make Charlevoix a better place

By Laurie Lounsbury
Sara Cummings was awakened at 6:30 in the morning a few days ago with a phone call from an emergency response company. Could Cummings please check in a 92-year-old lady in the neighborhood? The lady's power went off and she was panicky. Cummings quickly dressed, and without complaint she drove to the elderly lady's home to reassure her that the power would be back on soon.

Cummings spends many hours

Sara Cummings

each day reassuring the elderly, bringing them baked goods, or taking them to the grocery store. Cummings is one Charlevoix resident who daily gives the most valuable thing she has to offer people - her time. Cummings does volunteer work through the Charlevoix Department of Social Services, the Barnard Grange, and at the Rainbow Shop. Last year Cummings racked up more than 1,000 hours in volunteer time for the department of social services alone. "I guess I'm just a person who wants to help somebody," Cummings said.

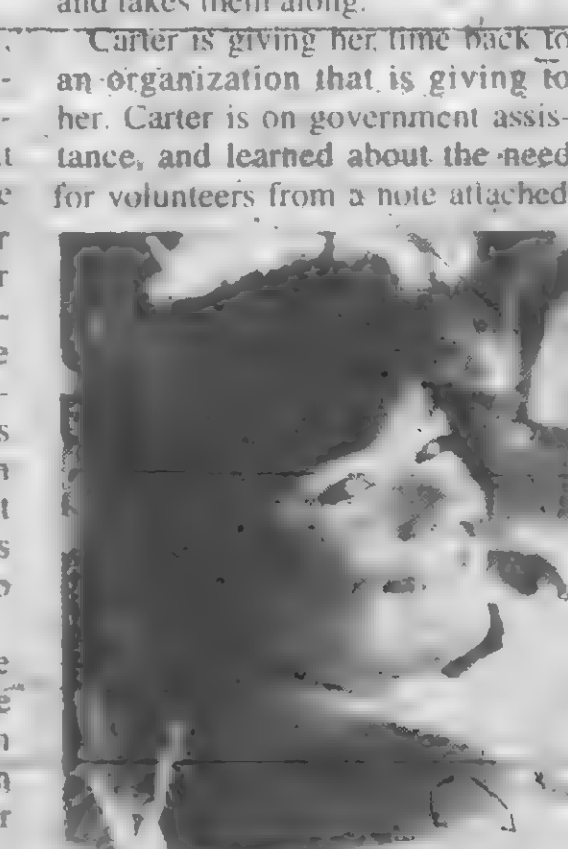

Cummings has been an active volunteer for the past six years. She was enjoying her retirement from her job as a nurse of 30 years when she suddenly had to undergo major surgery. After her recovery, she decided to become a volunteer. "I figure the good Lord left me here for a reason. That's when I came to the decision that there are people out there that need help," Cummings explained.

Cummings' work for social services covers a variety of duties. She makes reassurance calls and friendly visits to the elderly. She's taken people grocery shopping and helped them clean their homes. She spent a short time taking foster children to court dates and sitting with them, but she asked to be removed from that job. "I couldn't take it - There would be a mom sitting on one side of the court room, dad on the other side, daggers going in between their eyes and the kid in the middle," Cummings said.

Cummings is a regular at the senior citizens center, helping them with their monthly birthday dinner parties they give for everyone born in that month. Whenever she's at home baking banana bread, she thinks of her elderly neighbors and bakes a few extra loaves for them. The amount of time Cummings spends helping elderly neighbors or volunteering for different organizations almost adds up to a full time job. "I don't think of it as a job. It's just something that comes naturally," Cummings said.

Volunteering time isn't something limited to retired people with time on their hands. Julie Carter is a young woman attending college while she raises two children. She also volunteers her time to social services as a transporter. "I like to drive, and I like to talk, and I can do both as a transporter," Carter said. Carter transports foster children to and from counseling, therapy, and court dates. When she's in school she reduces her driving time to accommodate her class schedule. Summers are a different story. "In the summer I'm going all the time. Some days I drive from six in the morning to six at night," Carter said. On the long summer days, Carter loads her two children, aged seven and eight, into the family car and takes them along.

Julie Carter

to her food stamps. "This is a good thing for me to do right now. After I get my degree and a job I'll probably have to retire from transporting," she said.

Carter said she rarely has any problems with the people she transports. She has found it emotionally taxing on occasion. She once drove two girls who were being removed from their foster home and placed into a temporary shelter. "They cried all the way there. It almost broke my heart," Carter said.

Carter's naturally caring disposition allows her to be more than just a driver to foster kids. A 17-year-old teen-ager she frequently transports calls her for advice, or sometimes just to talk. "I really feel like I'm doing something to help others," Carter said.

A winter sleigh ride

Despite near zero temperatures, Barnard Grange members and friends enjoyed their annual sleigh ride with four large Belgium teams and sleighs earlier this month. Following the sleigh ride, everyone returned to the Grange Hall to warm up with chili, home-made bread, cookies and hot cocoa. Archie Potter is driving the team of horses shown in the above photo.

Funeral was held 11 a.m., Feb. 21, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Saunders was born Jan. 29, 1963, in Charlevoix, the son of Wayne O. and Sally J. (McNeal) Saunders. He attended East Jordan High School and graduated in 1981 from Charlevoix High School. He attended Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City.

On Dec. 15, 1984, he married Dottie Jo Sonnenberg in Petoskey and she survives. The couple made their home in the Iron-ton area where he farmed the Saunders' family farm and later operated the Saunders produce farm. He most recently worked for Jamie and Mary Kay Martin Builders in Harbor Springs.

Mr. Saunders was a member of the Iron-ton Congregational Church. He was a collector of model tractors and had attended Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers conventions in Buckley and Walloon Lake.

He is survived by his wife, Dottie Jo, a daughter, Blair Marie; two sons, Blain Milford Jr. (Bud), and Benjamin Michael, all at home. He is also survived by three sisters, Virginia Metzger and her husband, Dick, of Durham, N.C.; Susan Schwenke and her husband, Mark, of Pound, Wis.; and Diane Lawson and her husband, Gifford, of Lodi, Calif.; his parents, Wayne and Sally Saunders of Iron-ton; his mother-in-law and father-in-law, Gus and Joan Sonnenberg of Charlevoix; maternal grandfather, Jim McNeal of East Jordan; and his grandparents-in-law, John and Ann Sonnenberg of Grand Island, Fla. and Alice Vernier of Charlevoix.

Arrangements were handled by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

John G. Sevestian

John G. Sevestian, 79, of Norwood, died Feb. 18, 1994, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

His funeral was Feb. 21, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neff officiated.

Mr. Sevestian was born April 29, 1914, in Detroit, the son of John G. and Anna (Shomka) Sevestian. He grew up in Detroit and graduated from Pershing High School in Detroit in 1932.

On Sept. 27, 1941, he married Mary A. Kotowski in Detroit and she survives.

Mr. Sevestian served in the U.S. Navy during World War II from 1942-1944.

He worked for the Chrysler Highland Park plant for 26 years in shipping and receiving, and retired in 1974. The couple then moved to Norwood.

Mr. Sevestian was a member of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix; the Knights of Columbus Pierre de Charlevoix Council No. 7172, the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mary A.; a son, John G. Jr., of Detroit; a sister, Mary Rachilla, of Detroit; and a brother, Mitchell Sevestian, of Dearborn Heights.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society. Envelopes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Methodist Church to host Lenten supper

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church will host its annual Wednesday Night Lenten Soup Supper and Devotional Time beginning Feb. 23 at 6 p.m. The program will continue each Wednesday in March, i.e., 2, 9, 16 & 23. The focus of the devotional time is "Jesus, Then and Now" which covers themes of Jesus' passion and death. The public is welcome. Please call a day ahead if you are planning to attend the Soup Supper.

Jesus showed us this kind of self-giving love in the example of his life. He struggled for the sake of others. He went to difficult places and spent time with difficult people, because he knew true love takes risks for others. True Love lays down its life for others.

Decades after Jesus' death and resurrection the Apostle John recorded his words: "My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." Reminding us today, that the love we seek is still found in His way. In the give and take of human relationships. In the struggle which does not give up. In intimacy which wrestles for the truth. In friendship which gives its life for others. The real thing is found there. May you have the grace and courage to seek it.

(Rev. Dale Ostema is pastor of the Charlevoix and Greensky Hill United Methodist Churches. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Ostema and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

City Council listens to complaints about cable TV

The Charlevoix City Council hosted a public hearing on cable TV rates Feb. 21. Although there were only a few people at the meeting, they voiced a number of complaints.

City attorney Jim Young said he had been contacted by a resident complaining that the selection of channels for subscribers to basic service have been narrowed. Third ward councilman Bruce Reid said he received a complaint that the cable company was charging a termination fee when people requested to have a premium channel discontinued.

June Cross said she feels that the cost of cable TV is high in Charlevoix for the service the community receives. She said she has talked to people in other communities who have said they pay less for similar or better service.

Polle VerWys noted that a new station had recently been added and carried some programs she doesn't like. She wanted to know if that station is going to remain and if she is going to be charged more. Council members said it is their understanding that the station is just being tested and unless people request to have it remain, it will soon be removed. VerWys also said she felt the cable company was discourteous in responding to her questions.

Bill Supernaw said he had taken issue with the cable TV company over some costs and ended up paying the cost, but was frustrated with the red-tape he encountered in attempting to resolve the matter. He suggested having some type of customer advocate appointed to deal with the cable company.

Former council member Bob Timms characterized the cable TV industry as "a monopoly." He objected to the company's charging late fees even though requiring customers to pay for services at least a month in advance.

Mayor Dave Novotny said that when his mother died, she had paid in advance for a year of cable service. He said there was more than $300 involved and it took him nine months to get a refund. He also said he received complaints about the company changing the availability of stations despite the wishes of subscribers.

"Personally, I think they should be regulated just the same as the electric and gas companies," Novotny said.

The public hearing is part of a process the city is going through in reviewing local cable TV rates. Nobody from the cable TV service was at the hearing.

In other matters at the Feb. 21 meeting the council approved a development plan for Charlevoix Cinema to construct a few multi-screen theater on Antrim Street. The council also voted to participate in a special joint meeting with the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners regarding the Downtown Development Authority. The meeting will begin at 5 p.m., Feb. 23 in the County Building annex.

VFW Auxiliary to sell pins for cancer aid

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post #1153, met at the Post home Thursday, Feb. 3. President Angelina Borths presided at the meeting. It was noted that all quotas had been paid to District and National Auxiliaries. The Auxiliary now has 50 paid members plus nine Life Members.

The Auxiliary continues the National Auxiliary project of selling the small attractive pins for $2, with all proceeds going for Cancer Aid and Research.

Thank you notes were read from those receiving remembrances at the holiday season, and for the contribution to VFW National Home for Children, Eaton Rapids, in memory of Douglas Knudsen, father and brother of two Auxiliary members.

Chairmen reported that 200 hours were volunteered for Community Service projects.

Get well cards were signed to be sent to members who are ill. Discussion was held regarding the Vietnam trade embargo agreement. Citizens are asked to write their congressmen as to their opinions, pro and con, on this trade embargo.

It was voted to contribute $225 for one scholarship to send one girl to the American Legion Auxiliary Girls' State to be held at CMU, Mt. Pleasant, in June.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be Thursday, March 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Hospital dedicates building addition

Charlevoix Area Hospital's new building addition was officially dedicated in a ceremony this past Sunday. Participating in the ribbon cutting were State Senator John Pridnea, State Representative Bev Bodem, Hospital Director Richard Krueger, Hospital Board Member Norm Perkins and Fundraising Drive Chairman Dr. Jeff Porter.

State Representative Bev Bodem offered the dedication address Sunday at the ceremony opening the new hospital building addition.

Hospital Board Member SuLene Hamilton is shown in one of the hospital's new child-birth rooms. (When the photo was being taken, Hamilton made sure to note that she has no plans on personally needing the room's services any time in the near future. She's simply a hospital board member who was gracious enough to guide tours of the new hospital facilities on the day of the ceremony.)

The hospital's new surgical rooms are much roomier than the old ones and allow utilization of large pieces of equipment used in many out-patient surgical procedures.

Charlevoix merchants to host big sale to cure cabin fever blahs Feb. 25 and 26

All right, so normally a few days of good weather isn't enough cause for jubilation, but after the winter we've had this year a few days of good weather are so welcome that we might as well just go ahead and declare it spring.

Sensing the pent up energy in the community, the Retail Promotions Committee of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is coordinating a two-day Cabin Fever Sale, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 25 and 26.

As Pat Henige of the Retail Promotions Committee explained, many of the local stores have sales this time of year, but this year the committee is hoping those sales will be better promoted through a coordinated effort. She said the purpose of the Cabin Fever sale is two-fold, to promote shopping in Charlevoix by local people and to promote the good of the community.

This year's Cabin Fever Sale is kind of a trial run, but if things go well the event could grow in coming years with different activities being added.

Sherman, Ohle and Reed join Foundation board

Three area residents have been appointed to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Board of Trustees. The appointments were announced by Scott Beatty, President of the Foundation, at the group's January meeting.

Named to serve three years on the governing board were William R. Sherman, a Charlevoix resident and President of Burnette Foods, Inc.; William H. Ohle, Horton Bay

Author, local historian, and retired advertising account executive at Leo Burnett in Chicago; and Joseph D. Reed of Beaver Island, a retired AT&T vice president and former CEO of Leadership for Quality Education — a Chicago based group working to improve public education. The three join a board of 13 other volunteers representing communities throughout Charlevoix County.

Beatty noted the newcomers' diverse backgrounds, praised their enthusiasm, and thanked them for sharing their time and talents. "Our new trustees bring a wealth of experience to this board," Beatty said. "They represent a cross-section of our county and a wide range of interests. We're fortunate to have them as part of our group."

In one of their first tasks, the new trustees will review grant applications and award funds to area non-profit groups later this spring. The Foundation, which now has assets of $1.3 million, expects to increase its grantmaking this year.

Started in 1992 by a group of civic leaders, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations, manages them in permanent endowment, and redistributes earned income to meet a variety of local needs.

Charlotte's Web to be presented Friday evening

The Jordan Valley District Library received a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to partially finance two 50-minute musical play performances of E.B. White's classic tale of Charlotte's Web Friday, Feb. 25. It's a delightful story about Wilbur the pig and his very special friend Charlotte the spider. Wilbur is the runt of a new litter of pigs, whose life is spared when young Fern begs her father not to kill him. Instead, she agrees to raise him until he's strong enough to go to her uncle's farm. There, Wilbur meets Charlotte who does some pretty fancy web spinning to save Wilbur's life — again.

Zonta hosts brunch

A brunch for prospective members of the Charlevoix Zonta club took place Feb. 19 at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. Prospective members were invited to acquaint themselves with the goals and service projects of Zonta.

Ten Zontians introduced themselves, answered questions from the guests and encouraged them to be a part of Zonta. Zonta encourages women to give their time, talent and energy especially in the area of women's development, health, education and cultural needs.

The play will be performed by For A Good Time Theatre Company, which is Michigan's critically acclaimed and most experienced touring theatre company, located in Saginaw. Co-Producers are Pat

Parker and Lee-Perry Belleau. First performance will be in the afternoon for kindergarten through sixth graders. The second performance will be performed free for the community at 7 p.m. Both performances will be located in the East Jordan Middle School Gym.

DDA approves design contracts

By L. Scott Swanson.

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) approved approximately $100,000 in design and engineering contracts at their Feb. 17 meeting. The contracts concern several DDA projects which will only go forward if the March 15 school finance reform ballot proposal is rejected by Michigan voters.

The projects hinge upon the March 15 election because the election will determine whether or not the DDA can continue to capture tax revenues from educational millage. If the ballot (i.e. sales tax increase) proposal passes, the DDA will no longer be allowed to capture educational millage. If the ballot proposal is rejected, then the state statutory (i.e. income tax increase) will go into effect. The statutory plan would allow the DDA to continue to capture educational tax revenue to repay money borrowed to finance DDA projects. The local school district would be reimbursed by the state for the captured money.

The net effect for Charlevoix's DDA is that if the ballot proposal fails, the DDA wants to borrow money through bonding for several projects. The portion of the money to pay off the bonds which will come from school tax dollars will be reimbursed to the school by the state. If the ballot proposal passes, the whole deal is off.

In order to qualify for the state reimbursement, the DDA had to have design and engineering contracts in place by March 1. Since the contracts have to be in place by March 1, but the DDA won't know for sure until March 15 if they're going through with the projects, the contracts contain a clause which says they will be voided if the ballot proposal passes.

At the Feb. 17 meeting the DDA approved an architectural design contract with H. Jack Begrow Architects and Planners of Charlevoix for work on the Chamber of Commerce/Harbor Master building. The prices on the contract are $2,100 for a preliminary study to determine whether the present building should be demolished and a new building constructed. If after reviewing the study, the DDA determines remodeling is the way to go the contract calls for an architectural fee not to exceed $14,960. If demolition and reconstruction is the direction taken the fee would be up to $18,950.

In reviewing the proposal the DDA added a provision that if for some reason the DDA decides to put the building in a different location, they can pay for architectural services up to that point in time and end the contract.

The other contract approved by the DDA was for engineering and design services from Performance Engineering of Charlevoix. That contract concerned several downtown park and street projects. The contract calls for a not to exceed price of $79,960 if the projects were all done at the same time or $83,870 if they're reconstructed separately.

The projects include the following: Veterans' Park improvements; East Park improvements; work on Antrim Street between Bridge Street and Round Lake; design work on the White Parking Lot (that's the gravel lot off of Clinton across from the library); work on East Mason Street between Bridge Street and Round Lake; work on State Street from Antrim Street to Park Avenue; work on Antrim Street between State Street and Bridge Street; work on Mason Street from State Street to the alley and on the alley which runs between Mason and Clinton Streets; work on Clinton Street from State Street to the alley; work on Park Avenue from State Street to the alley; work on the alley between Clinton Street and Park Avenue.

The engineering work will begin this spring and be completed by August of 1995.

Children's group seeks donations

The Charlevoix County LOVE for Children chapter is collecting items needed by area children. Items the group is currently seeking include: knitted slippers and socks for children ages three to five; toys for children younger than three; videos and Disney children's tapes; and diapers. Items may be dropped off between 9 a.m. and noon, Feb. 16 - 28 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix or the Trinity Fellowship Church in Boyne City.

Two Charlevoix wrestlers qualify for regional competition

Parish wins three matches in a total of less than two minutes

Keith Parish pinned three opponents in a total of less than two minutes to win the Class C individual district 189 pound title Saturday. Ron Haggard joined Parish in qualifying for regional competition as he placed fourth at 152 pounds. The district meet took place at Midland Bullock High School.

Parish, who now has a season record of 28-2, opened the day by pinning a Frankfort wrestler in 20 seconds. In his second match he pinned a Manclona wrestler in 30 seconds. In the 189 pound finals Parish pinned a Whittemore-Prescott opponent in 45 seconds.

Haggard, a sophomore who is now 26-14 on the year, opened with a win on a pin in 2:46. He then lost 10-6 and finished the day with an 8-7 overtime loss.

Other Rayders wrestling, but not placing were Rob Reiter at 103 pounds and Kyle Russell at 135 pounds. Due to illness and injury, Charlevoix had only four wrestlers competing in the tournament.

The Regional tournament will take place Saturday, Feb. 26 at Ithaca.

Girls' ski team qualifies for State Finals next week

Charlevoix's boys' ski team qualified for state finals with a second place regional finish Feb. 17 at Boyne Mountain. The top two regional teams qualify for state finals. Harbor Springs won the boys' race with 53 points. Charlevoix finished second with 81 points and Petoskey third with 129.4 points. Fourteen teams competed in the race.

In the girls' race, Charlevoix placed fourth behind Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Gaylord. Thirteen schools competed in the girls' race.

Individually, Charlevoix's J.H. Heck placed sixth in the boy's slalom and second in the giant slalom. Robbie Bunting placed seventh in the slalom and sixth in the giant slalom. Scott Boyer placed tenth in the slalom. In the girls' races, Jessica Kline of Charlevoix took tenth in the giant slalom.

The state finals will take place Feb. 28 at Crystal Mountain in Thompsonville.

Rayder basketball team splits two games with East Jordan

Charlevoix's five game winning streak in varsity basketball came to an end with a 73-65 loss at East Jordan Friday night. Earlier in the week the Rayders had beaten the Red Devils 68-56 in Charlevoix.

East Jordan's Jim Lord had a monster first quarter and game to lead East Jordan Friday night. Lord scored 13 points in the first quarter and 27 on the game. He also had 15 rebounds and three blocked shots. In Tuesday evening's win at Charlevoix, the Rayders did a better job of keeping Lord off the glass.

In Friday's game when Lord cooled off, Steve Wilfong picked up the slack scoring 13 of his 15 points in the second half.

Charlevoix's scoring was less balanced than it had been during the winning streak. Don Jess had 20 points, including two three-point baskets late in the game to keep the Rayders within striking distance. David Dobulis had 17 points and 10 rebounds while Trevor Williams and Charlie Pop each had five rebounds. Brandon Webb had three steals in the loss. In the second half of the Rayder win Webb had simply wreaked havoc on the Red Devils' offense and finished the game with six steals.

Ferry Beach to host volleyball tournament

The Second Annual Cabin Fever Co-Ed Classic Outdoor Volleyball Tournament will take place March 5 at Ferry Beach. The double-elimination tournament will begin at 10 a.m. Teams will be 6 person co-ed teams. There is a 16-team limit. The registration fee is $10 per person with a deadline of 6 p.m., March 4. Awards will be presented to the top three teams. The tournament is sponsored by Townhouse, Whitney's Oyster Bar and WKHQ. For more information or to register phone 547-1025 or 547-0818.

with six steals.

Earlier in the season the Rayders were getting hurt when their offense would for reasons unknown to mortal man only show up for three of the four quarters. During the winning streak the offense has been more consistent and even in the loss remained consistent.

At the end of the first quarter, East Jordan held an 18-16 lead. By halftime they had extended that lead to 37-33. Both teams played to a 14-14 draw in the third quarter and East Jordan entered the final quarter still holding a four-point lead 51-47.

As the clock wound down Charlevoix was forced to foul to get the ball back, but East Jordan was stone cold steady at the free throw line and hit the crucial free throws to seal the win.

In Tuesday's win Dobulis led Charlevoix with 23 points and 11 rebounds. Jess and Jerry Duhart each had a dozen points. Trevor Williams came off the bench and did some ugly work in the lane, bumping and knocking around to pick up a few rebounds and eight points.

Charlevoix won both junior varsity games against East Jordan. Tuesday evening the Rayders won 74-71. Jason Smith had 21 points, Gary Leitner 16, Josh Miller 13 and Casey Crain 10. Friday night the Rayders won 60-46. Smith had 18 points, and George McClellan 17.

Chris Pair found it necessary to risk a floor burn in order to retrieve a stray ball in the Rayders' win over East Jordan.

Approximately three dozen students from the Charlevoix Elementary School special needs program went bowling last week at Paul Bunyan Lanes. Paul Bunyan Lanes provided the bowling while the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club provided pizza and pop. The event served as a topic for a student writing assignment later in the week.

Legion Auxiliary accepts candidates for Girls' State

The Ladies Auxiliary to Leslie T. Shapton Unit #226, American Legion, Charlevoix, held their monthly meeting at the Post Home Tuesday, Feb. 1. President Katie Curtis presided at the meeting.

Thank you notes were read for contributions made to the D.J. Jacobetti Veterans Hospital to help purchase an Argo Lift Chair, and for other hospital equipment, from the Charlevoix Hospital, and from other groups.

It was reported that Auxiliary member Han Hoffman, who is teacher's aide at K-5 Elementary School, promotes a program for her Kindergarten through third grade children to make valentines and valentine cookies for the veterans at the Jacobetti Veterans hospital. This is the third year for the project which is greatly appreciated by the hospitalized veterans.

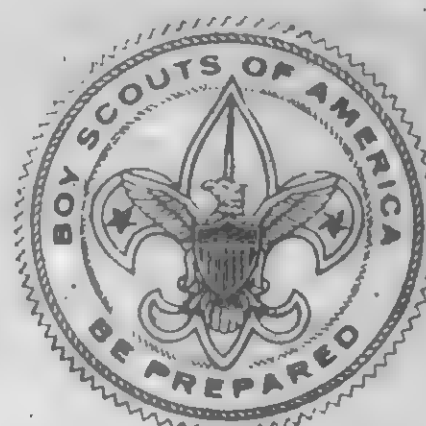

Nancy Wood, Girls' State chairman, reported that four girls have been accepted as candidates to attend the Girls State Program, at CMU. Mt. Pleasant, the week of June 11th. Those planning to attend include Tonia Mathers, Lisa Borths, and Tabatha Potter, of Charlevoix, and Mary Kay McPherson from Beaver Island.

Plans were made by the Post and Auxiliary to host the 19th District meeting of the American Legion, to be held in Charlevoix, Sunday March 13. A dinner will be served by the hosts. All Legionnaires and Auxiliary members are urged to plan to attend.

It was also announced that anyone wishing to purchase American Flags may purchase them through the American Legion. These are nylon flags in sizes 3'x5', 4'x6', etc. The flags are available at Birdie's Beauty Shop.

The Auxiliary meets the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m., and the Legion meets the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 8 p.m. All members and visiting members are urged to attend.

School and teachers reach tentative agreement

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix Board of Education and the Charlevoix Education Association have reached a tentative agreement on a new contract for teachers in the Charlevoix Public School System.

Neither side will disclose terms of the agreement until after ratification which is likely to occur near the end of this month.

A labor relations officer with the Michigan Association of School Boards was not involved with the Charlevoix negotiations, but said that based on what's been happening in contract negotiations throughout the state, Charlevoix's tentative agreement is likely to call for a teacher pay increase of somewhere between nothing and 3.5 percent.

Harlow Claggett, Associate Executive Director of Labor Relations for the Michigan Association of School Boards, said that early in the school year the statewide average pay increase for school contract settlements was 3.12 percent. He noted that since that survey came out, several school districts have settled at figures which called for lower pay increases. He said that in general terms, the later the settlement has occurred, the lower the pay increases have been.

Claggett also noted that the average pay increase for this year in multiyear contracts negotiated prior to this year was 4.3 percent. He said the trend in average teacher pay increases throughout Michigan is definitely going downward.

Claggett said another trend in contract settlements this year is one-year contracts rather than multiyear contracts. He said much of the reason for that is likely the uncertainty over school finance reform.

"It became a situation where neither side had a real feel for what the finances would look like," Claggett said.

Claggett noted that this year there were only two teacher strikes in Michigan schools. He said that next year there will be more schools bargaining than at any time since collective bargaining for teachers began in the mid 1960s. He said that he doesn't expect next year to be as quiet throughout the state in terms of bargaining disputes.

Friends of 4-H open fund-raising office

The Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H have opened a fund-raising office in the Oleson Shopping Plaza. The office will serve as the center of the drive to raise money to purchase Castle Farms.

The Friends of 4-H board (top) have been meeting at the office and making plans. There will be an open house from noon to 8 p.m., March 4.

The Stonehedge 4-H Club (bottom) has pledged to raise $1,000 toward the Castle purchase.

City Council approves DDA amendment

By L. Scott Swanson

Although the decision may bring legal action from the county, the city council has approved a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) plan amendment which will add five projects to the DDA's project list and extend the DDA program to the year 2013.

The council made the decision on a 4-2 vote. First ward councilman Don Meggison and second ward councilman Butch Russell opposed the amendment. Meggison said he objected to the council's lack of control over the DDA undertaking projects once they're in the plan. Russell said he has a problem with extending the DDA and its ability to capture taxes until 2013.

Third ward councilman Bruce Reid said in response to Meggison's concern that the reason the council reviewed the list prior to adopting the amendment was to determine what projects the DDA should be allowed to pursue.

First ward councilwoman Cheri Hoffman said that extending the DDA is necessary to make bonds marketable should the DDA need to borrow money through bonding. Second ward councilman Ted Felter noted that just because the present city council extends the DDA to 2013 doesn't mean that future councils can't alter that date.

city council and county commissioners. Don Smith, chairman of the county board of commissioners, questioned the legality of the DDA's establishment in 1982 as well as the legitimacy of some of the proposed projects and said that unless the city council is willing to work with the county on the DDA, the county may end up taking legal action.

"It may take some time and some money, but some day we'll find out who's right and who's wrong," Smith said Monday evening.

Smith has contended that the state law which provides for the establishment of tax increment financed authorities such as the DDA require that they be set up to stop deteriorating property values in the district they encompass. Smith maintains that the downtown area encompassed by the Charlevoix DDA in 1982 was not suffering from deteriorating property values. Smith said the DDA was established based on nothing more than a survey by the city manager at that time which found that some tourist related businesses in the downtown district were closed for the winter.

Smith also maintained that some of the DDA's projects are simply city capital improvement projects which should be paid for by the city rather than by capturing property tax funds from county and school taxpayers. Smith said that the DDA has already captured more than $2 million tax dollars and if it is extended to the year 2013 will capture an additional $4 million.

Dan Barron, a member of the DDA board and a long-time advocate of the DDA, said that granted there have been a lot of DDA expenditures, but there have also been a lot of DDA benefits. He said that DDA expenditures have resulted in higher property values which consequently have meant higher property tax revenues for the county and school. Barron said the DDA program should be viewed as a long-term investment. In regard to opposition from Smith and others, Barron said, "People can try to explain away success. And that's kind of sad."

Smith and Barron were among approximately a dozen people from the audience who offered comments on the amendment and the projects it contained.

In addition to extending the DDA to 2013, the amendment listed nine projects with a total estimated cost of $1,675,000. After reviewing the project list, the council removed four of the projects and left five.

The projects removed were: City Hall renovation, $400,000; eventually acquiring the Wharfside and Parkside buildings, $550,000; developing the Michigan Beach and Water Tower sites, $250,000; and purchasing and installing a sound system on Bridge Street, $50,000. (Total estimated cost of projects deleted $1,250,000.)

The projects the council left in the amendment were: purchasing Bridge Park property from the Michigan Department of Transportation, $250,000; purchasing a strip of property next to the Pine River Building from the Michigan Department of Transportation, $25,000; water main work on Antrim, Mason and Clinton Streets between Bridge and State Streets, $25,000; constructing a storage area for the Coast Guard as part of Bridge Park renovations, $50,000; purchasing and installing street lights on State Street from Antrim Street to Park Avenue and on Antrim, Mason, Clinton and Park Avenue between Bridge and State Streets, $75,000. (Total cost of projects left in $425,000.)

Several of the projects left in the amendment are related to other projects already included in the DDA plan.

OPINIONS

EDITH

by DICK JOSEPH

First, Edith plied me with drink. Then, a traditional, "Red Fox" dinner was forced into me (together with seconds), then, if that wasn't enough, more drink.

At just the right moment, as the dishes were being cleared away (from the proper side of course), Edith ever-so innocently asked, "would you write my column while I am on vacation?" Someone at the table, I am not sure who, said yes. I am not sure who responded because my mind was racing. Me, write a column? The word Pulitzer Prize immediately flashed into my vision. Then, of course, there would be book signings and those awful appearances on Oprah and Letterman. Suddenly, in the dark cold of winter, the casinos of Monte Carlo seemed just around the corner (I should mention that money never came into my mind because I realized at all times that I would be writing for the Courier).

What would be the topic of my article, I wondered to myself. Man's inhumanity to man was a topic that popped into my mind. A critique of the economic theory of eastern Europe also might be a fun topic. Then, as she properly poured yet another after-dinner liqueur, Edith politely said "you will write about house guests."

House guests? I thought. House guests wouldn't even get me Roxanne Pulitzer much less Letterman and Monte Carlo. I only have one bathroom. I hate house guests.

"House guests," Edith said, "is my most popular topic. You will write about house guests."

Now I was beginning to get nervous. I very nearly ate a bite of dessert with my salad-fork. Oh well, I thought, house guests as a first journalism assignment would be better than writing obituaries. I quietly drank the liqueur and changed the subject.

There is only one rule which pertains to house guests. It is The Rule. I believe it should be declared a Maxim and made a part of our Constitution. The Rule is very simple and we have all heard it before: House guests and fish both start to smell after three days.

Living in a resort community, we all know about house guests and we all know about The Rule. Every now and then I run into someone who has allowed house guests to run rough-shod over The Rule. You see these people beginning at the end of July or the first part of August. They are stumbling along Bridge Street with a glazed look in their eyes. Their appearance is somewhat jumbled since they have not been allowed into their bathroom in weeks. Their clothing is rumpled since the house guests have been using the washer and dryer constantly except, of course, when the hot water is all gone. They often have a smoked white fish under their arm - the 147th that they have purchased since Memorial Day as they vainly attempt to show their house guests that good old Charlevoix hospitality. As they approach on the sidewalk, I will often ask if they are enjoying their summer. They will mutter something to the effect that they have had company since before Memorial Day. Before they can invite me over for their next cook-out, I will run to the other side of the street. The second most important rule with regard to house guests should be: "Don't try to pawn them off on other locals."

Like any good rule, The Rule has exceptions. House guests and fish smell after three days, except, when the house guests are college students. College students, particularly when they are not your children, begin to smell fishy immediately.

Recently, my nephew, who is a sophomore at U of M, called to see if it was ok if he could bring a group of his friends up for a three-day weekend. Of course, with all of their responsibilities, it was hard for them to get packed on a Friday

DDA poses ethical and practical questions

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has easily been the most interesting story of recent months in local city politics. An amendment which would extend the DDA's life span to at least the year 2013 and also add several projects to the DDA's project list stirred an interesting debate at Monday evening's city council meeting. There were between 40 and 50 people at Monday evening's city council meeting. Curiously, there are never more than a handful at DDA board meetings. Sometimes it's questionable whether the DDA board itself will have enough members in attendance for a quorum.

One of the more fascinating aspects of arguments about the DDA is that often they require weighing ethical standards against practical standards. Ethically, tax increment financing, the funding system which is the foundation of the DDA, is a pretty shaky deal. Practically, in order to maintain and improve sidewalks, parks and other things which make a downtown business district attractive and viable, some form of public funding and investment program is necessary.

To understand the ethical problems of the DDA, it's necessary to have an understanding of how tax increment financing works. Such an understanding is not easily acquired. There-in lies one of the ethical problems of the DDA. It relies on a tax structure which obfuscates tax issues and confuses many taxpayers. If we are to have a government of the people and by the people, that government should strive to make issues of taxation and government easy for the general populace to understand, not confusing.

A greatly simplified definition of tax increment financing is that it allows one unit of government (in this case the City of Charlevoix) to capture a certain portion of tax dollars which otherwise would go into the general tax revenue pot and be disbursed among several units of government (in this case, the city, the county, the school, and the intermediate school district). The ethical dilemma here is that tax increment financing allows City Council members and DDA members to determine the use of tax dollars paid by county and school district voters who have no vote in city council elections or DDA appointments. In a nation founded following an uprising over taxation without representation, this situation can't help but generate some uneasiness.

On the practical side there are DDA accomplishments. Among the highlights of the program have been the development of an additional public parking lot off of Clinton Street; refurbishing of Bridge Street sidewalks; the expansion and beautification of Ferry Beach; and the development of Hoffmann Park. All of these projects have at the very least made the community a more attractive place to live and work.

Quantifying the economic benefits of DDA programs is for all intents and purposes impossible, but listening to DDA opponents and proponents try has been amusing. DDA opponents claim that most economic growth which has occurred with the DDA probably would have occurred even without it - as if a $2 million public investment program could avoid having some kind of significant beneficial effect. DDA advocates, on the other hand, claim the DDA is just about the most wonderful thing ever to land in Charlevoix - as if the sun wouldn't rise over Charlevoix if it weren't for the DDA. Lately, both sides have taken to bantering about a variety of figures, but then figures can often be tailored to suit a position.

After mulling over both the ethical and practical concerns of the DDA, the final and inescapable question is what should its future be? What direction should its governing body, the city council, take?

The city council should do the following things:

1. Promptly negotiate an agreement with the county to return all tax dollars the DDA would otherwise derive from money voters approved to fund Grandvue, County Transit and 9-1-1.

2. View the prospect of bonding (i.e. borrowing approximately $2 million) with a great deal of skepticism. The DDA bonding proposal is based on the assumption of state reimbursement to the school of as much as $200,000 per year. Bring up the subjects of recapture and Social Security reimbursement to anyone familiar with school finance and you will quickly find out that the state's track record of reimbursement to schools leaves something to be desired. If the city council approves DDA bonding and a few years down the road the state falters on reimbursements, local taxpayers are going to be left holding a pretty heavy bag.

3. In negotiating with the county, agree to a fixed list of projects and a firm termination date for the DDA. There's no need for the program to go on forever. The DDA should not become an eternal pet project fund. Assuming acceptance of tax increment financing as an acceptable way of funding projects, there should first be a defined list of projects with a defined time table. Tax increment funding can then be used as a means of funding those projects. Without a defined project list and timetable, tax increment financing ends up being a means of getting money which the DDA then finds ways to spend.

Do some STOMPIN!

By Laurie Lounsbury

Like a treasured family heirloom or a terrific family recipe, the art of fiddling is passed from one generation to another. If a grandparent played a fiddle left-handed or backwards, the generations to come will follow suit. These unique family traditions will be apparent at the Fiddlers' Jamboree in East Jordan, March 5. The East Jordan Fiddlers' Jamboree is the first of twelve upcoming jamborees held throughout the state.

Gary Stutzman, chairman of the jamboree, said fiddling traditions go back through generations to their origins in Europe. Finnish fiddlers from the Upper Peninsula will bring their own, traditional brand of Finnish music with them. Irish descendants will put their own spin on plucky Irish jigs. An elderly fiddler who crosses his hand over the neck of the fiddle will have a son playing in the same, quirky style. "That's the uniqueness about it," Stutzman said. "So much family tradition is handed down."

Fiddling is an art that survives only if the younger generations pursue it. Perhaps that's why the children's presentation at 3 p.m. on Saturday is one of the highlights of the day. Kids who take an interest in fiddling may learn from their parents or learn from Krista Knight, a local violin teacher. "Krista has had a major impact in the area with fiddling," Stutzman said, adding, "She's so outstanding herself." Knight teaches classical violin to area children, but is happy to change tempos and work on fiddling for the jamboree. She understands the importance of new generations of fiddlers to the older generations. "It's become the focal point of the jamboree because seniors like to see this carried on," Knight said of the children's presentation.

The fiddling Jamboree will be from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the East Jordan Civic Center. Stutzman said anybody is welcome to bring a non-electric instrument and join in the activities. At 7 p.m. square dance callers will limber up their vocal chords and start calling popular square dances. Callers come from all over the state, but some of the best callers are from the local area. Lloyd Cummings, Harry Pearsall, and Dave Stolt will be on hand to call some dances. Years of square dancing lessons aren't necessary to join a square and clamor left. Stutzman said each square will have experienced dancers to lead the way. "Once you see the pattern, anyone can do it," he said of the dances. "Just come with a smile on your face and be willing to have some fun."

Teens to distribute grant money

For more than a year, 18 teens who make up the Youth Advisory Committee for the Charlevoix County Community Foundation have been learning about philanthropy, surveying their peers and teachers to determine problems and needs, and thinking about ways to make life better for area youngsters.

Now, they're ready to get to work. Using income earned on a $303,000 permanent youth endowment within the Community Foundation, these young people will help select worthy projects and give away more than $6,000 in grants this June.

"This is a chance for us to help make a real impact on our community," said Belgie Caballero, a senior at East Jordan High School and Chairwoman of the Youth Advisory Committee. "We know the kinds of programs young people want and need — and it's exciting to think that we can help fund them."

The Youth Advisory Committee is made up of three students from each of the six high schools in Charlevoix County: Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Porter Creek. The students meet monthly to discuss common issues, develop community leadership skills, and assist in the Community Foundation's fundraising and philanthropic efforts.

In preparing for their first grantmaking venture, members of the Advisory Committee surveyed 850 students from throughout the county, and talked to teachers and other adults to find out more about community needs. From their survey findings, committee members ranked youth concerns in this order: drunk driving, lack of recreational activities and things to do, alcohol and drug abuse, child abuse, juvenile crime, teen pregnancy, and conservation and environmental issues.

Although grant requests need not be limited to these programming areas, the Community Foundation and the Youth Advisory Committee will make an effort to address some of these concerns. Other categories eligible for funding are health, social services, arts and culture, community development, education, and civic affairs.

The Foundation will accept grant requests for youth projects until March 31, 1994. Applicants should be nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, or municipalities that serve children or teens in Charlevoix County.

Money for the youth endowment — called the Charlevoix County Youth Fund — comes from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, which has matched local donations, fifty cents to every dollar. Over the next three years, the Community Foundation has an opportunity to receive up to $700,000 in additional money, if it meets the Kellogg Challenge.

Charles L. "Topper" Carey

Former Charlevoix resident, Charles Lafayette "Topper" Carey II, 48, died Feb. 24, 1994, at home in Traverse City.

His funeral was Tuesday, March 1, at the Central United Methodist Church with the Rev. Dean Bailey officiating. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Carey was born July 13, 1945, in Charlevoix; the son of Charles L. and Margaret J. (Campbell) Carey. He graduated from Cheboygan High School in 1963. He served two years in the U.S. Army, and then attended Ferris State University. He graduated in 1972 from Michigan State University and remained a member of the MSU Alumni Association.

Mr. Carey was the president and owner of Topper's Painting Inc., which he operated for 20 years in Charlevoix, and since 1988 in Traverse City.

He was an avid skier, loved his boat and loved his job.

In the Charlevoix area, he was the chairman of the Venetian Festival Street Parade for many years with the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the Northwestern Marine Yacht Club and a former member of the Charlevoix Lions Club. He was active in the early years of the Charlevoix Independent Basketball League. He also received the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Citizens Award for pulling a woman out of a burning car.

After moving to Traverse City in 1988, he became a member of Central United Methodist Church where he served on the administrative board. He also was a member of the Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce, the Builders Exchange and the Grand Traverse Area Homebuilders Association.

On Sept. 23, 1989, he married Nina Francine Collins of Traverse City and she survives.

He is also survived by a daughter, Lauren, at home in Carrollton, Texas; his parents, Chuck and Jeanne Carey, of Charlevoix; two brothers, Peter Carey and his wife, Betsy, of Neenah, Wis., and Randy Carey of Charlevoix; his grandmother, Mildred Campbell, of Charlevoix; eight nieces, nine nephews, four uncles, two aunts, many cousins and one great-niece, Khia Marie Fay, of Traverse City. He was preceded in death by his grandparents; a cousin, Peggy Northway; an uncle, Bob Carey; and a niece, Morgan Victoria Collins.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Topper Carey Benefit Fund, in care of Charlevoix Bank. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home in Traverse City.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Thursday, March 3, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Craig Adams of the Horton Bay United Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will take place in Roscommon Township Cemetery, Houghton Lake.

She was born Dec. 2, 1950, in Midland, the daughter of William and Dorothy (McKee) Kinsel. She moved to Auburn as an infant and was raised there. She graduated from Bay City Central in 1969, and then attended Delta College.

On June 6, 1970, she married Ronald B. Potter in Auburn, and the couple made their home in Charlevoix.

She worked for ITT in East Jordan from 1972-79.

She was a member of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, and enjoyed bowling, cross country skiing and camping. She also knitted and crocheted sweaters and afghans.

Survivors include one daughter, Renee L. Potter, and one son, William K. Potter, both of Charlevoix; her parents, William and Dorothy Kinsel, of De Leon Springs, Fla. and Prudenville, one brother, Bob Nichols and his wife, Hannalore, of Ionia; three sisters, Wendy Zepeda and her husband, Carlos, of San Francisco, Calif., Denise Kinsel of San Francisco, Calif., and Kim Leavenworth and her husband, Ben, of Alexandria, Va.; and several aunts and uncles.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the charity of choice or to Neuromuscular Research and Clinical Care, University of Michigan Hospital.

Visitation will be held 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

High School debate team places fifth in state

The Charlevoix High School Debate Team received fifth place over all at the C-D State debate finals Feb. 5 at Holiday Crown Plaza in Grand Rapids.

Charlevoix debaters: senior Jesse Wheat, juniors Mark Schairbaum, Lisa Borths, Kaylee Manker, Bethany Martinus and Angela Buday and sophomores Mike Staton, Maribeth Gagnon, and Allison Beatty lost two ballots to Ithaca, split ballots with Ann Arbor Community, took three out of four ballots against Homer, both ballots against Cass City and lost two ballots to Elk Rapids.

Ithaca High School is the champion debate team for the C-D schools with Elk Rapids, Ann Arbor Community and Grand City competing in the semi-finals.

The team is looking forward to next season since the team has one senior, Jesse Wheat. The five juniors have competed as a team for three years.

Masons closing in on cribbage victory

With only two weeks left to play the Masons have pretty much salted away this year's Masons and Odd Fellows cribbage tournament. This past Thursday the Masons extended their lead by 96 points and now lead the tournament by 1,317 points.

Dick Foster and Charles Dhasleer tied for high honors among the Masons, each with 941 points. Joe Stutzman led the Odd Fellows with 939 points.

Play will resume this Thursday evening at the Masonic Temple.

by REV. LOWELL ANDERSON

Usually there is a special reason for the names people choose for their children, pet, boat, etc. In Scripture, names are particularly significant. Names of children were selected to reflect on the child's character or particular purpose in life. They were often prophetic of the child's future.

Throughout Scripture God identified Himself in a number of different names which are all descriptive of His many attributes. Probably one of the better known names of God, found in the Old Testament is Jehovah Jireh which means "God our Provider." It expresses the attribute of God's Care and Provision for His people. And so, the many names of God reveal His manifold attributes.

A name of God that particularly caught my attention recently is found in Exodus 34:14, "Do not worship another god, for the Lord WHOSE NAME IS JEALOUS, is a jealous God." Isn't it interesting that jealousy in human relationships is often condemned in Scripture as sinful, yet God is jealous! I'm aware that anyone familiar with the contents of the Bible knows that God's jealousy is indeed a holy kind, while man's is indeed often sinful. But my purpose here is not to focus on this curious paradox.

My focus is rather in what's in this Name of God. God is jealous of His people with a righteous jealousy because of His singular love and affection for them! To His people Israel in the Old Testament He said "out of all the peoples on the face of the earth God has chosen you to be His TREASURED POSSESSIONS" (Deut. 14:4). He said, "You will be FOR ME a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (Ex. 19:6).

God's love and affection for us is singular, holy and eternal! His love for us is costly ... for God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son ... it cost Him the very greatest thing He had! God's love for us is not based on our merit or worthiness but on His sovereign will and choice! His relationship with us, and ours with Him, is so important to Him that He will not share it with another! His commitment to our relationship with Himself is so deep and profound as to be unexplainable in human terms!

I do not fear God's jealousy (though I should if I violate it), rather I rejoice in it. I rejoice because His jealousy is in perfect harmony with His love. So, what's in a name? In the names of God is the revelation of His wonderful Person!

Fifth graders from Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Elliott's classes recently performed "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to raise money for a natural area. The performance itself raised $550. An anonymous donor contributed an additional $30,000.

Fifth grade production inspires $30,000 donation to natural area

A benefit performance by two Charlevoix fifth grade classes of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," not only raised $550 for the St. Clair - Six Mile Lake Natural Area, but also inspired an anonymous donor to contribute an additional $30,000.

The students are in Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Martin's classes. In addition to performing in the play, they also designed the set and their own costumes.

The Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy will use the proceeds from the play and the donation to help purchase a 59-acre piece of property which adjoins the Lawmaster Preserve in the St. Clair - Six Mile Lake area near Ellsworth. The property will be purchased in the name of the Skow Family, one of Ellsworth's founding families. Supporters of the project need to raise an additional $4,700 by March 21 to complete the purchase.

For additional information, contact Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy Executive Director Glen Chown at (616) 929-7911.

Rotary seeks host families for exchange student

The Charlevoix Rotary Club is looking for one or two families to help host a 16-year-old Mexican exchange student who will be arriving in Charlevoix in August. The Rotary Club hopes to find four local families who will each host David Ramirez for a three month stint. The Rotary has people lined up for the first and last three-month stints, but is looking for host families for the middle two stints.

Ramirez is from Leon, Mexico. His father is a plastic surgeon and his mother is a housewife. After completing high school, he hopes to attend college and study humanities and literature. His hobbies include reading (particularly science fiction) and scuba diving.

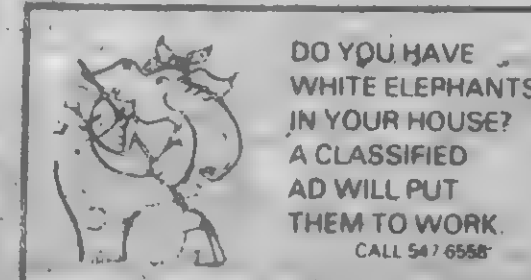

In his Rotary International Youth Exchange application, he wrote, "I hope to be a part of the families that receive me as a member and not just as a visitor, to learn their customs and traditions, to make friends in the community, and to let my new friends know what Mexico is like and how we think and what our customs are like, and what young people like to do."

Any local families who might be interested in hosting Ramirez are asked to contact Susan VanWieren at 547-9947 or 547-2195.

Names in Business

A collection of notable events involving people from the Charlevoix business community.

Realtors with RE/MAX of Charlevoix were recently honored by the RE/MAX Real Estate System for outstanding sales and service in 1993. They received their awards at the RE/MAX of Michigan 15th Annual Regional conference held Feb. 3-5 at the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City.

Sales Associates Greg Bryan and Katherine Engle were each recipients of the RE/MAX President's Club Award for helping between 12-21 families with their real estate transactions in 1993, which is above the national industry average of 7.5 transactions per year. Sales Associate Judy Petkewicz was awarded Executive Club honors for 22-35 real estate transactions (3 to 5 times the industry average). Broker/Owner David L. Campbell and Sales Associates Joe Vogelheim, Patricia Kenney, and Steve Andrease were each presented with the prestigious RE/MAX 100 Percent Club Award for helping 36 or more families with their 1993 real estate transactions (5 times the industry average).

Gil Ziegler, candidate for Congress in the 1st Congressional District, has announced the appointment of Dan Barron as a Ziegler for Congress Charlevoix County Chair.

Barron, an attorney with Barron and Golski in Charlevoix, will be responsible for coordinating volunteer activities in Charlevoix County during the campaign.

"Unlike any other candidate, Gil brings with him the perspective of an accomplished businessman, rather than an aspiring career politician," Barron said. "Gil knows, first hand, how to make the free enterprise system work. Gil strongly supports term limits and a return to the era of a citizen legislature."

Ziegler, a small business owner in Kalkaska and Traverse City, supports Congressional term limits and is running without special interest Political Action Committee (PAC) money. He is concerned that uncontrolled federal spending and growing deficit jeopardizes employment and the economy.

Barron has successfully managed several local city council campaigns. He is a member of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and a past president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. He has been in private practice in Charlevoix since 1984 and he and his wife, Paula, have two children.

Interested volunteers can contact Dan Barron at 547-9950.

afternoon, which quickly became early Saturday morning, which then became Saturday evening, which is when they arrived. Equally certain, is the fact that my wife and I waited for the college students to arrive from early Friday evening to late Saturday night. Of course, we left the lights on all night, but only after we put away all of the munchies and other treats (I wanted to return the munchies to the store and get my money back, but I was reprimanded for even entertaining such a thought). This, of course, leads me to my third rule regarding house guests which is: "Do not shop until the house guests arrive and then suggest that they go with you."

In any event, promptly at 10 p.m. on Saturday evening, the college kids arrived. They quickly sized up my house and placed their "luggage" exactly in the center of the living room. They then began making minestrone soup, from scratch. This brings me to the fourth rule regarding house guests, which only pertains to college students: "Never let your house guests go shopping for food alone."

The soup was completed by midnight and consumed five minutes later. Then, the college students decided it would be great to play football in the snow. Of course, these future leaders of tomorrow who can actually look in the mirror and, with a straight face, blame their bleak, employment future on the baby boom generation, did not bring any boots, hats, or gloves for their northern Michigan snow vacation.

"No problem," they said, as they quickly opened our closets and began reviewing our inventory of winter clothing. One of them, after examining each pair of boots in the closet, actually asked whether we had anything in a larger size. "I really wear a size 12," he said, "but these size 8s will stretch, I suppose."

An hour or so later, the college students returned from their snowy game of football. All of the boots and most of the gloves and hats returned with them. Of course, nearly all of the snow in the front yard also came in with this cold, wet, cheerful group. "No problem," they said, as they quickly began disrobing leaving piles of clothing in various stages of frozen hardness.

My wife and baby had long since gone to bed. I decided to join them and mumbled good night. As I walked quietly to the bedroom I smiled to myself. I knew that the college students would rise early in order to get to the ski area before the crowds. I knew that they would likely be gone before I got up and that my life could then return to normal. As I opened the bedroom door I heard the snack cupboard open followed by the simultaneous ripping of several bags of munchies. I quietly opened the bedroom door just as the sound from several twist off caps popped from the kitchen.

As I silently closed the bedroom door I heard one of the college students say "this place is great." "Yeah," another responded "there's enough beer here to last at least until the morning." I settled into bed safe in the knowledge that America's future, if not my home, would somehow be secure.

Letters to the editor

Hospital support commended

Editor,
We wish to congratulate the Charlevoix Area Hospital, its board, administration, employees, physicians, and the people of the community for their support of the recent enhancement to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Your commitment to excellence in local health care and future community needs are to be commended. It is this kind of pride and dedication to locally owned and independently operated businesses that makes Charlevoix such a desirable place.

As independent business owners, we are grateful for the community's support, appreciation, and value for personalized service uniquely provided by community-based businesses.

Again, our sincere congratulations!

Pool supported

Editor,

I think they should build a pool in Charlevoix. People go to East Jordan and Harbor Springs and pay money. If Charlevoix built a pool people might pay two or three dollars to get in. People could swim in the winter and in storms. Little kids could learn to swim and not have waves in the mouth when they try to breathe. If it were built by the Elementary School, little kids could learn to swim in gym class.

Yours truly,
Todd Freidinger

With any luck...well, with a lot of luck...real good luck, the ice around the pier will soon begin to break up.

Foundation hosts charity expert

Laura Hansen Dean, an attorney and expert on charitable giving, will be the guest speaker at a seminar co-hosted by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

Hansen Dean, who consults with a wide variety of charitable organizations around the country, will speak on "A Plan for Charitable Giving: How financial planning can help donors perform good works, make the most of their contributions, and reap substantial tax benefits." The program will take place Friday, March 4, from 9 a.m. to noon at the North Central Michigan College Center in Petoskey. A light lunch will follow the presentation.

Dean is president of her own consulting firm in Indianapolis and is on the faculty at the Indiana University Center on Philanthropy and R&R Newkirk. Her Program is designed to acquaint participants with financial planning strategies that encourage charitable giving, and that maximize both the tax benefits and financial impact of charitable donations.

Although the seminar is aimed at attorneys, financial planners, CPAs, life underwriters, trust officers, and others who assist in estate planning, anyone who has an interest in fund development or charitable giving is invited to attend. There is no charge for the symposium or luncheon, but reservations are requested. Those interested are asked to call the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation at 848-5820, or the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at 536-2440 by March 1.

Board reassigns principal during packed meeting

Standing room crowd shows up to ask questions and protest

By Laurie Lounsbury

More than 100 people attended Monday evening's school board meeting to ask questions and express their displeasure over the superintendent's and board's method of handling high school principal Dave Smith's reassignment from principal to teacher.

The furor began last week when Smith made it known that Dr. Roberta Jackson, school superintendent, had asked him to step down as high school principal. Jackson's request that Smith submit a letter requesting reassignment came just hours before Smith was to have his administrative evaluation with the school board. Jackson and four of the seven school board members refused to comment on the situation last week, calling it "hearsay" and "a horrible rumor." Board member Ben Cunningham couldn't be reached and board president Scott Beatty did not return any phone calls to the Courier. Board member Ardith Wieland, who was the only member of the board willing to discuss the situation, said she was never informed of Jackson's plan to ask Smith to step down. Board member Larry Levengood also said Jackson informed him of the decision only minutes before the evaluation.

Monday evening, Wieland was the first board member to address the issue. "I'd like to express my displeasure over the way this was handled," she said. "I'm certainly embarrassed by the extreme lack of communication here and I'm sorry we're in this position," she added. Wieland said she wasn't prepared to accept Smith's letter requesting reassignment until she had more facts and time to review several points in the letter. Wieland questioned the legality and accuracy of the letter. In response, Jackson said she had a four page communique from lawyers verifying the accuracy and legality of the letter.

A motion was made by board member Joan Buday and supported by Cunningham to accept Smith's resignation. Prior to that motion being voted on, there was a period of public comment.

Audience member Tim Moore spoke directly to Jackson, saying, "I question the forum in which this happened. It seems somewhat 'Kremlinesque...'. Dr. Jackson, you talked of paradigms and strategic planning when you came here - I haven't seen either one... You grossly underestimate the intelligence of this community if you think you can pull this off in a kangaroo court."

Many other audience members lambasted the board and Jackson for their quick and quiet request for Smith to step down. Each comment brought new rounds of applause. Beatty's request for people to hold their applause was generally disregarded.

Beatty turned the floor over to

City Council begins budget review

Proposed budget calls for increases in water and sewer rates

By L. Scott Swanson

Monday evening the Charlevoix City Council began preliminary considerations of a proposed city budget which will increase sewer, water, ambulance and cemetery rates in the coming year. The budget also proposes to raise the city's total millage levy by .36 of a mill. Each mill levied this year is expected to bring $113,057,000 in general fund revenue as compared to $107,500,000 last year.

For all funds in the city, the proposed 1994-95 fiscal year budget calls for revenues totaling $8,707,139 and expenditures totaling $8,682,339.

Both figures are up approximately $700,000 from the previous year.

The budget was prepared by city manager Mike Wicsner and city treasurer Rick Brandt with input from various city department heads. City council members received copies of the proposed budget last Friday. Monday was the first meeting to review the budget. Other budget review sessions will take place later this month. Monday's meeting began at 5 p.m. and lasted until shortly after 8 p.m., with a half hour break for dinner.

The budget proposes to raise city water rates by either 20 percent or 35 percent this year and to continue to increase rates for at least the next two years. Under the 20 percent proposal, rates would be raised again by 17.5 percent next year and 12 percent the following year. Under the 35 percent proposal, rates would be raised by 5 percent for the next two years and by 4.8 percent.

feeling I'm screwing things up, there's nothing she (Jackson) can do to fix me," Smith said adding, "She (Jackson) needs a team player and maybe I'm not." Smith had previously described his relationship with Jackson as "rocky." Smith said that when he talked to Jackson prior to the administrative evaluation, he thought she had the full support of the board in asking him to step down.

When Smith finished, audience member Ann Golski supported Smith, saying, "I do consider him (Smith) to be a team player. What I question here is the procedure by which you do these things. Everything's done behind closed doors."

After more public comment, Jackson told the crowd, "I'm willing to back down on my recommendation if you feel this strongly."

To that, audience member Sara Gay Damman said she was baffled by Jackson's willingness to reverse her position under public pressure. Damman said she hoped Jackson would make decisions based on fact and substance, not on public pressure.

Board members Larry Levengood and Steve Czerkes moved and seconded the motion to accept Smith's resignation be tabled, allowing the board more time to consider the facts. Jackson reminded the board that if the motion was tabled, Smith's contract would automatically be renewed March 15 due to a roll-over clause. In order to avoid that, the board would have had to reconvene before March 15. The motion to table was defeated 4-3. Czerkes, Levengood, and Wieland voted in favor of tabling. Mary Lee Campbell, Beatty, Buday, and Cunningham voted against tabling. The original motion to accept the letter requesting reassignment then passed 4-3 along the same voting lines - i.e. Campbell, Beatty, Buday and Cunningham voting for reassignment and Leven-good, Wieland and Czerkes voting against.

According to the letter, which Smith read to the audience, Smith will be reassigned to a teaching position, given seniority, and will come in at step 24 on the teacher's pay scale with a Master's plus 15 hours salary. Smith's letter also requested that he be considered for an assistant principal position or curriculum director should those jobs become available in the future.

The vote did little to quell the citizens' dissatisfaction. Dr. Dave Strawbridge told the board, "People here are going on gut feelings and emotions. We don't know the issues. The problem still is that the issues haven't been stated."

Jackson explained that evaluations are done in closed session at the request of the administrators so specific issues can't be cited. General issues taken into consideration at the high school were curriculum, student test scores, expectations, discipline or lack thereof, cleanliness of the halls and grounds, involvement of staff on school improvement, and communication issues.

The board moved to table two remaining agenda items, one of which involved making amendments to administrative contracts. Jackson and elementary school principal Richard Swenor do not currently have roll-over clauses in their contracts. A roll-over clause allows a contract to be automatically renewed if an evaluation is not completed before the contract expiration date.

...city council reviews proposed budget

three years from now. A memo included in the proposed budget noted, "Even with the 20 percent rate increase, it is projected that the cash balance will be below the $150,000 benchmark during the next four budget periods. It appears that what we are seeing is the effect of operating the Water Treatment Plant, where the cost is in excess of $100,000 per year over what it had cost the fund to operate wells."

In the mid 1980's Charlevoix's municipal wells were found to be contaminated and the city switched from a well system to a water system which draws water from Lake Michigan. At Monday evening's council meeting, Wiesner explained that the well system had required less treatment of water prior to distribution. He also noted that since Charlevoix township has its own water system, the city isn't able to increase revenues much by increasing the number of water customers. Therefore, the only option is increased water rates.

For homeowners who use 2,000 gallons of water per month, a 20 percent increase translated to dollars means a monthly water bill of $6.56 rather than $5.47 (Annually, that would be $78.72, up from $65.64.) For a home using 6,000 gallons of water per month the monthly bill would increase to $14.10 from $11.75. (Annually, that would be an increase to $168.12 from $141.) The increase would put Charlevoix rates lower than equivalent rates in Petoskey, but higher than rates in Harbor Springs, Gaylord, Boyne City and East Jordan.

A nine percent increase in sewer rates is proposed, again to bring the fund's cash balance up to $150,000. In future years, increases of 9.9 and 8.75 percent are proposed. In terms of dollars, the rate increase for a home using 2,000 gallons of water per month would mean a monthly bill of $6.54 per month, up from $6. (Annually, that would be $78.48 up from $72.) For a home using 6,000 gallons of water per month the monthly bill would be $17.64 per month, up from $16.18. (Annually, that would be $211.68, up from $194.16.) The proposed increase would leave Charlevoix's sewer rates in the same position they are now relative to other area communities - higher than Petoskey and East Jordan and lower than Boyne City, Cheboygan, Gaylord and Harbor Springs.

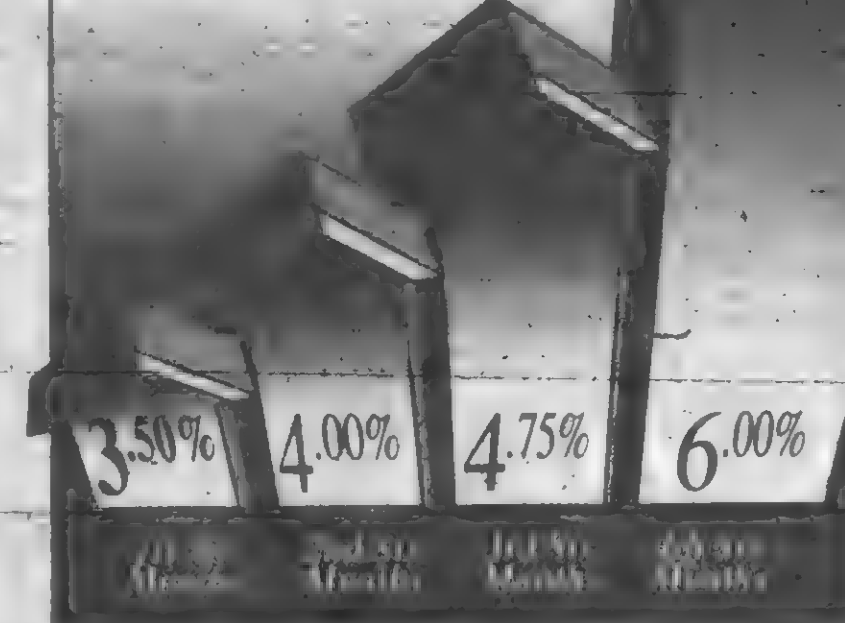

The budget proposes to raise ambulance rates for city residents from $100 to $125 for basic service or $150 for specialized service. Non-resident rates would increase from $150 to $200 and $225. There would also be a $200 charge for use of the Jaws of Life apparatus. Even with the proposed increases, Charlevoix rates would still be within Medicare fee guidelines.

Cemetery rates under the proposed budget would increase from $250 for an adult lot to $400. The city is attempting to establish a perpetual care fund which will cover cemetery upkeep.

Local business people support ballot proposal

Editor,

A lot has been written recently about the choice voters must make on March 15 regarding the best way to fund schools. Unfortunately, much of the debate is rooted in partisan politics and emotion relating to future school funding and very little consideration is being given to the enormous impact of the decision on Michigan's economy and jobs.

As Michigan residents and employees of companies that employ many Michiganders, we have concluded, along with virtually every other business leader in the state, that the ballot proposal which would increase the state sales tax to 6 percent is far better for Michigan than the statutory alternative of raising the state income tax 30 percent and the Single Business Tax 17 percent. The reasons for our position are:

1. If the ballot proposal fails, the increase in the state income tax rate to 6 percent from 4.6 percent would raise Michigan's state income tax to the 9th highest in the nation and make it the highest flat rate tax among all states — a terrible disadvantage for retaining or attracting jobs to our state.

2. Failure of the ballot proposal would also raise Michigan's Single Business Tax by 17 percent, again making state taxes on business among the highest in the nation.

3. By contrast, passing the ballot proposal would bring Michigan's tax structure in line with other states. Since Michigan's sales tax is currently 39 percent below the national average, an increase to 6 percent would only put Michigan at the national average. Also, a significant part of Michigan's sales tax (about $250 million) would be paid by visitors and tourists and thus the increase would not be fully paid by Michigan residents.

4. Finally, from a taxpayer's point of view, the ballot proposal caps assessment increases and requires a three-quarter vote of the legislature to increase the home-stand millage.

Clearly, from the standpoint of attracting and retaining business in Michigan, a vote for the ballot proposal is a vote for business expansion, a better economy, job growth and tax restraint. If the ballot proposal fails, Michigan will be a big loser.

School board must be open and forthright to foster community trust

Monday evening the Charlevoix School Board, acting on a process set in motion by Dr. Roberta Jackson, removed Dave Smith from the position of high school principal. The vote was 4-3. Board members Scott Beatty, Mary Lee Campbell, Ben Cunningham and Joan Buday voted in favor of removal. Board members Larry Levengood, Steve Czerkes and Ardith Wieland voted against.

Regardless of whether you support or oppose the decision, the whole process has a peculiar air about it and raises some serious questions. The most serious question is simply, can we as a community trust the board members and administrators whom we have placed in charge of our children's education? Unfortunately, at this moment a fair share of people in the community would have a hard time answering that question with an unequivocal yes.

Even before this latest issue there has been a feeling by several people in the community that the school board is often more comfortable with political wheeling and dealing behind closed doors than with doing business openly in the public eye. Public suspicion of school board activities isn't new. There's been a bed of coals there for years. Jackson and the board's handling of the situation with Smith just stoked the coals and generated some flames.

When you feel that someone has a track record of being open and candid, you develop trust. When a difficult situation arises you're inclined to give them the benefit of the doubt. But when you're half suspicious of someone to begin with, anything which could cause suspicion does cause suspicion. Rightly or wrongly, a number of people view the school board with suspicion.

The removal of Smith raised questions and suspicions grew. From what we at the Courier have been able to find out, the way the situation with Smith unfolded was as follows: The school board was supposed to meet with Smith Monday, Feb. 28 in the evening for his annual evaluation. Earlier in the day, Jackson met with Smith and asked him to write a letter requesting reassignment and telling him that his contract as high school principal would not be renewed. Apparently, some of the school board members knew that Jackson was going to meet with Smith and others didn't, at least not until just a few minutes before the evening board meeting. Smith agreed to write the letter and did. At the March 7 board meeting, by the 4-3 vote mentioned earlier, the board accepted that letter.

The whole scenario leaves several questions hanging in the minds of the public:

1. First and foremost, why did Jackson want Smith out as high school principal? At the March 7 board meeting, she offered kind of a nebulous list of reasons, but nothing specific. It's speculation, but the most likely reason she wanted Smith gone is probably that the two of them just generally didn't see eye to eye. If that's the case, why couldn't Jackson just say that?

2. Was having Smith write a letter requesting reassignment just some kind of ploy that went awry? Was it the hope of either Jackson or the board members who wanted Smith removed to have Smith request reassignment to make it look like he was stepping aside rather than being pushed aside? And if that's the case, did they really think the public would buy that line?

3. About a month ago there was a prank at a high school pep rally. Smith was responsible for disciplining the students involved. One of the students was the child of one of the school board members who voted to oust Smith. Was there any link between the two actions? There's really no way of proving that one way or the other. It's a matter of opinion. Each person will have to decide for himself.

4. Why did some board members know about the afternoon meeting between Smith and Jackson and others not know? Is there such a rift among the board and administrators that they're playing little political games among themselves?

These are some of the questions Jackson and the school board members need to consider and address. One of the crucial elements any public official or body needs to govern effectively is the trust of the constituency. In order for that trust to exist, people need to feel public officials are being open and forthright with them.

Charlevoix Farm Bureau supports ballot proposal

Editor,

The Charlevoix County Farm Bureau strongly supports approval of Proposal A on the March 15 Ballot.

Under Proposal A, nearly all farmers will pay a six-mill home-stead tax on their land. The back up statutory plan will put a 12-mill tax on the land immediately adjacent to farm homes and 24 mills on the rest of the farmland. The substantial reduction in property taxes under Proposal A will put Michigan's property tax bill more in line with other states, and make Michigan agriculture more competitive. Although farmers, like all Michigan consumers, will pay a higher sales tax under Proposal A, Farm Bureau believes this is far preferable to the increased income tax under the statutory plan. A higher income tax rate reduces the amount of capital available for business expansion and job creation.

The sales tax increase in Proposal A does less harm to economic growth. In addition, the higher sales tax will be borne, in part, by visitors and tourists to Michigan.

The 1,199 family members of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau urge all Charlevoix County citizens to vote yes for Proposal A on March 15.

Sincerely,
Tom Wieland, President
Charlevoix County Farm Bureau

Castle Farms project is exciting

Editor,

I'm writing to tell you how excited I am about the Castle Farms project. Because I'm a 4-H member and a twelve-year-old student, I find this a great opportunity.

I hear there will be science programs, skating rinks, horse shows and indoor theaters. This project also will be able to offer employment of teenage youth. The new name will be "Castle Farm Community Center," owned by Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H.

They will support these programs by having family concerts, dinner theaters, art shows. It seems the opportunities are endless. 4-H offers many scholarship programs now. Maybe they will be able to offer more through this project.

Sincerely,
Nicole Whitley

FAMILY

Barnes - Hartnett

Amy Barnes of Worland, Wyoming and Shawn Hartnett of Worland, Wyoming were married in Clarkston, Michigan on September 25, 1993. The bride is the daughter of Joyce and Gerald Barnes of Rochester Hills. The groom is the son of Sandy and Fritz Allard of Charlevoix.

One hundred guests attended the outdoor wedding at the Pine Knob Mansion in Clarkston. The bride was given in marriage by her parents.

Large bouquets of flowers in baskets were placed on either side of the altar. Lavender and white bows decorated the chairs.

Minister Gerald O'Grady performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore an off-white, below-the-knee dress. The top was made of lace with beaded, short sleeves. The skirt of the dress had a sheer skirt over the dress. She carried a loose bouquet of red roses, yellow lilies, pink and yellow daisies, and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Kirsten Bech. She wore a two piece green suit with a lace collar and a below-the-knee straight skirt. She carried a flower arrangement similar to the bride's bouquet.

The best man was Dean Hartnett, brother of the groom. Ushers were John Barnes, brother of the bride, and Lee Allard, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at the Pine

Mr. and Mrs. Shawn Hartnett

Knob Mansion, catered by M and N Catering of Waterford. The wedding cake was made by the groom's step-father, Fritz Allard.

The wedding couple took a ten day honeymoon trip to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and currently works as a ticket agent for Mesa Airlines.

The groom is a graduate of Northern Michigan University and works as a captain for Mesa Airlines.

The newlyweds are making their home in Worland, Wyoming.

Transit drivers join watch program

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has expanded the Neighborhood Watch program by adding the cooperation of the Charlevoix County Transit buses.

Each transit bus is radio equipped and if the bus driver observes a suspicious situation, or comes across an accident, the driver can radio the County Transit office dispatcher who will contact the Sheriff's office with the information.

Another example would be if the Sheriff's office was looking for a specific vehicle that was involved in a crime, the County Transit driver would be notified by the Sheriff's office to "be on look out" B.O.L. for this specific vehicle.

The cooperation of the County Transit gives the Sheriff's office another set of eyes in our county, observing emergencies or criminal activity. The Sheriff's office has given each driver a training manual that explains the program and what procedures to follow. Each bus will have a Neighborhood Watch logo affixed to the bus.

The County Transit buses make the second organization to assist the Sheriff's Neighborhood Watch program. Five years ago the Top O'Michigan trucks became the first such organization to join the Neighborhood Watch program.

Jordan River Arts group seeks play scripts

Original, unpublished children's plays by Michigan playwrights are being solicited by Jordan River Arts Council for their third annual Children's Summer Theatre Festival.

The three plays selected will be produced in June, August and September by Jordan River Players, the council's theatrical arm. Plays with casts of up to twenty-five children and adults will be considered.

Play lengths must be no shorter than 30 minutes and no longer than 90 minutes. Musical plays must be submitted with written scores. A minimal royalty will be paid for each of the three performances planned for each play.

The council's previous children's theatre festivals presented the fairy tales, "The Princess Who Never Laughed," "The Dancing Princesses," "The Case of the Kidnapped Princesses," "The Promises and the Wicked Prince," "Cinderella" and "Baba Yaga" - the last two being musical productions.

Scripts should be submitted with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Howard Ellis, P.O. Box 536, East Jordan, MI 49727, before April 15, 1994.

obituaries

Edna L. Madden

Edna L. Madden, 95, of Charlevoix and formerly of Ellsworth, died March 7, 1994, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Her funeral was Saturday, March 5, at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth with the Rev. William Lyons officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born June 25, 1898, in Parker, Ind., the daughter of James W. and Rosy (McAllister) Harty.

On Oct. 3, 1923, she married Rendie Madden in Dayton, Ohio, and the couple made their home in Indianapolis. In 1950, they moved to Indian River, and in 1960 to Ellsworth. Mr. Madden died in 1979. Mrs. Madden moved to Charlevoix in 1980.

She is survived by one son, Niles

Madden and his wife, Marjorie, of Centerville, Ohio; eight grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; two great-great-grandchildren; and a sister-in-law, Virginia Harty, of Ellsworth.

Steven A. Spence

Steven A. Spence, 20, of Charlevoix, died March 3, 1994, at his home.

His funeral was Saturday, March 5, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. The Rev. Lowell Anderon officiated. Burial will be at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born Aug. 9, 1973, in Petoskey, the son of Dennis R. and Nancy L. (Drost) Spence. He was a life-long resident of Charlevoix and a member of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

Survivors include his parents; a brother, Shannon R., and Amy, of Challis, Idaho; a sister, Cathy Shupert and her husband, Michael, of Rochester, Minn.; two nieces, Amanda Shupert and Elizabeth Spence; and grandmothers, Kathleen Spence of East Jordan, and Edna Drost of Charlevoix.

Arrangements were handled by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

OF BLESSINGS

I am teaching a class in composition at North Central Michigan College on Saturday mornings. It has been a new experience for both students and instructor alike. It has also been exciting in a very different sort of way to watch the changes and the progress my gang has made in just a few weeks together.

We have spent a lot of time working on what I call word pictures, combining words and phrases in such a fashion that the reader easily sees what is being described in their mind's eye. One of my best students really thrilled her instructor in our last session. The assignment was to write a short story and she chose to write about her niece's wedding. They are extremely close, more like mother and daughter rather than aunt and niece. She mused about her niece's first steps as a baby long ago. Then came the word picture that so touched me, "Looking at her arrayed in satin and pearls, it was as if I was watching her take her first steps for the second time."

You should know me well enough by now to know what I mean when I say, "Friend, that will preach!" Think about some of the first steps you have taken in your life. The first steps you made in your education. The first steps you took courting the one you loved. The first steps you invested in a new career. The first steps you ventured as a parent. What about the first steps of faith you need to take in response to God's loving call on your life?

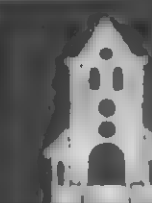

Too many of us think that if we do our duty between the hours of 11 a.m. and 12 noon each Sunday that we have covered our spiritual obligation for the week. In fact, that all too brief time is only supposed to be the training ground or the information session that will better prepare you for the spiritual adventures that await you in the coming week. Too many of us think that God only works through the "training professionals" who go by titles like Reverend or Sister or Pastor or Father. If you have done any serious reading of the Bible at all, then you will discover it wasn't the "trained professionals" that God looked to, Luke was a physician. Paul sewed tents. Peter was a professional angler. Matthew worked for Rome's ancient version of the IRS.

God has always sought ordinary, everyday people to work wonders through. It really doesn't take being a spiritual giant. It simply requires a willingness to venture those first steps in response to the prompting He lays on your heart. He may simply want you to share a word of encouragement with a friend who is going through rough times. He may trust you to offer love to a soul that has forgotten what love can mean. He could just want you to be the special person He knows you already are and take time to care. Whatever it is, God wouldn't ask if he didn't believe you could do it. Whatever it is, you will always remember taking those first steps of faith. It's like those first steps we all took when we were so young. Once we go over our initial shakiness, nothing could stop us. With God, nothing will.

4-H Friends open Castle Farm project campaign headquarters

The Castle Farm Community Center project kicked off its major fund-raising campaign Friday, March 4, to raise money for the acquisition and renovation of the Castle Farm Property.

Located just south of Charlevoix on fifty scenic acres, the historic buildings and grounds will host a variety of activities to serve children, youth, families, and communities of Charlevoix County and the surrounding area.

Over the past few months, a group of community leaders committed to purchase the property to create the Community Center. This undertaking will require tremendous financial support to see this beneficial project become reality.

Immediate needs include raising $300,000 in donations and pledges by May 15, 1994, to meet the down payment and necessary repairs to ready the facilities for summer activities.

By September 1, 1994, the group must raise an additional $1.1 million in pledges and donations to further renovate the building.

Total expenses over the next three years will reach $5 million. This ambitious project will require a total area-wide effort. It has already received overwhelming support from area businesses, schools, churches, family organizations, and foundations.

One 4-H club from East Jordan has already stepped forward with a $1,000 pledge over the next three years. This group of 35 youths and their adult volunteers has also issued a challenge to all area scout troops, 4-H clubs, church youth groups, etc., to meet or exceed their pledge and to "become part of the Castle crowd."

"We love to see so much enthusiasm coming from the kids," says Charles McDermott, president of the Friends of 4-H. "I've seen government and university studies a foot deep describing the severity of the nation's youth crisis. This is the first project in a long time that can truly do something about it."

Campaign headquarters are located in the Oleson Shopping Plaza in downtown Charlevoix at 116 Antrim Street. For further information or to make a donation/pledge, please call Charles McDermott or Tamar Whitley at (616) 547-0155.

Fund-raising headquarters opens

New fitness center hosts grand opening

By Laurie Lounsbury

The new Charlevoix Fitness Center, with its geometric mirrors, spotlessly clean exercise rooms, and glass block walls sure is a good-looking place to get good-looking. The place's appearance is enough to inspire anyone to want to work out.

The Charlevoix Fitness Center hosted two Grand Opening parties last week, with about 150 people attending each night. People toured the facilities to see the aerobic dance studio, a room filled with gleaming exercise machines, a racquetball court, and the shower facilities.

Candy Smith was on hand to greet people to the new home of her Vital Options exercise classes. "It's great to have Candy here," said Bill Koucky, president of the fitness center. Smith will offer a full, daily class schedule.

The fitness center is offering charter memberships through the month of March. Charter memberships include use of the racquetball court, Vital options exercise classes, and use of all the exercise machines. The cost of a one year membership is $350, or a three month charter membership is $99. Add-on memberships are available at a reduced rate for spouses or others living under the same roof.

Koucky reported that the fitness center's offerings and hours will expand and grow to fit member's needs. Hours now will be Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. "Right now we just want people to come in and see us," Koucky said.

Rayders beat Boyne City 64-57

Advance in District to play East Jordan

Charlevoix was stone-cold steady at the free throw line in the fourth quarter and held on for a 64-57 win against Boyne City in the opening round of District Tournament play Monday evening. During the regular season Charlevoix lost twice to Boyne City.

Monday's district opener at Charlevoix was close early with the teams tied 15-15 at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter Charlevoix put some daylight between themselves and the Ramblers and took a 33-25 lead into halftime. Boyne City closed the gap in the third quarter and trailed by just seven, 45-38, entering the final quarter.

Charlevoix opened well in the final quarter and promptly built their lead back to double digits. Early in the season, the way the Rayder offense had played in the fourth quarter, no lead was safe. But in recent weeks, the Rayders have won nine of 11 games and seem to have cured their fourth quarter offensive woes.

Finding themselves trailing with the clock winding down, Boyne City was forced to foul. Charlevoix did a nice job of keeping the ball in the hands of the team's better free throw shooters, Don Jess, David Dobulis and Jerry Duhart. All three responded to the challenge with the game on the line and consistently hit their free throws.

Jess led Charlevoix with 23 points. Dobulis added 18 and Duhart nine.

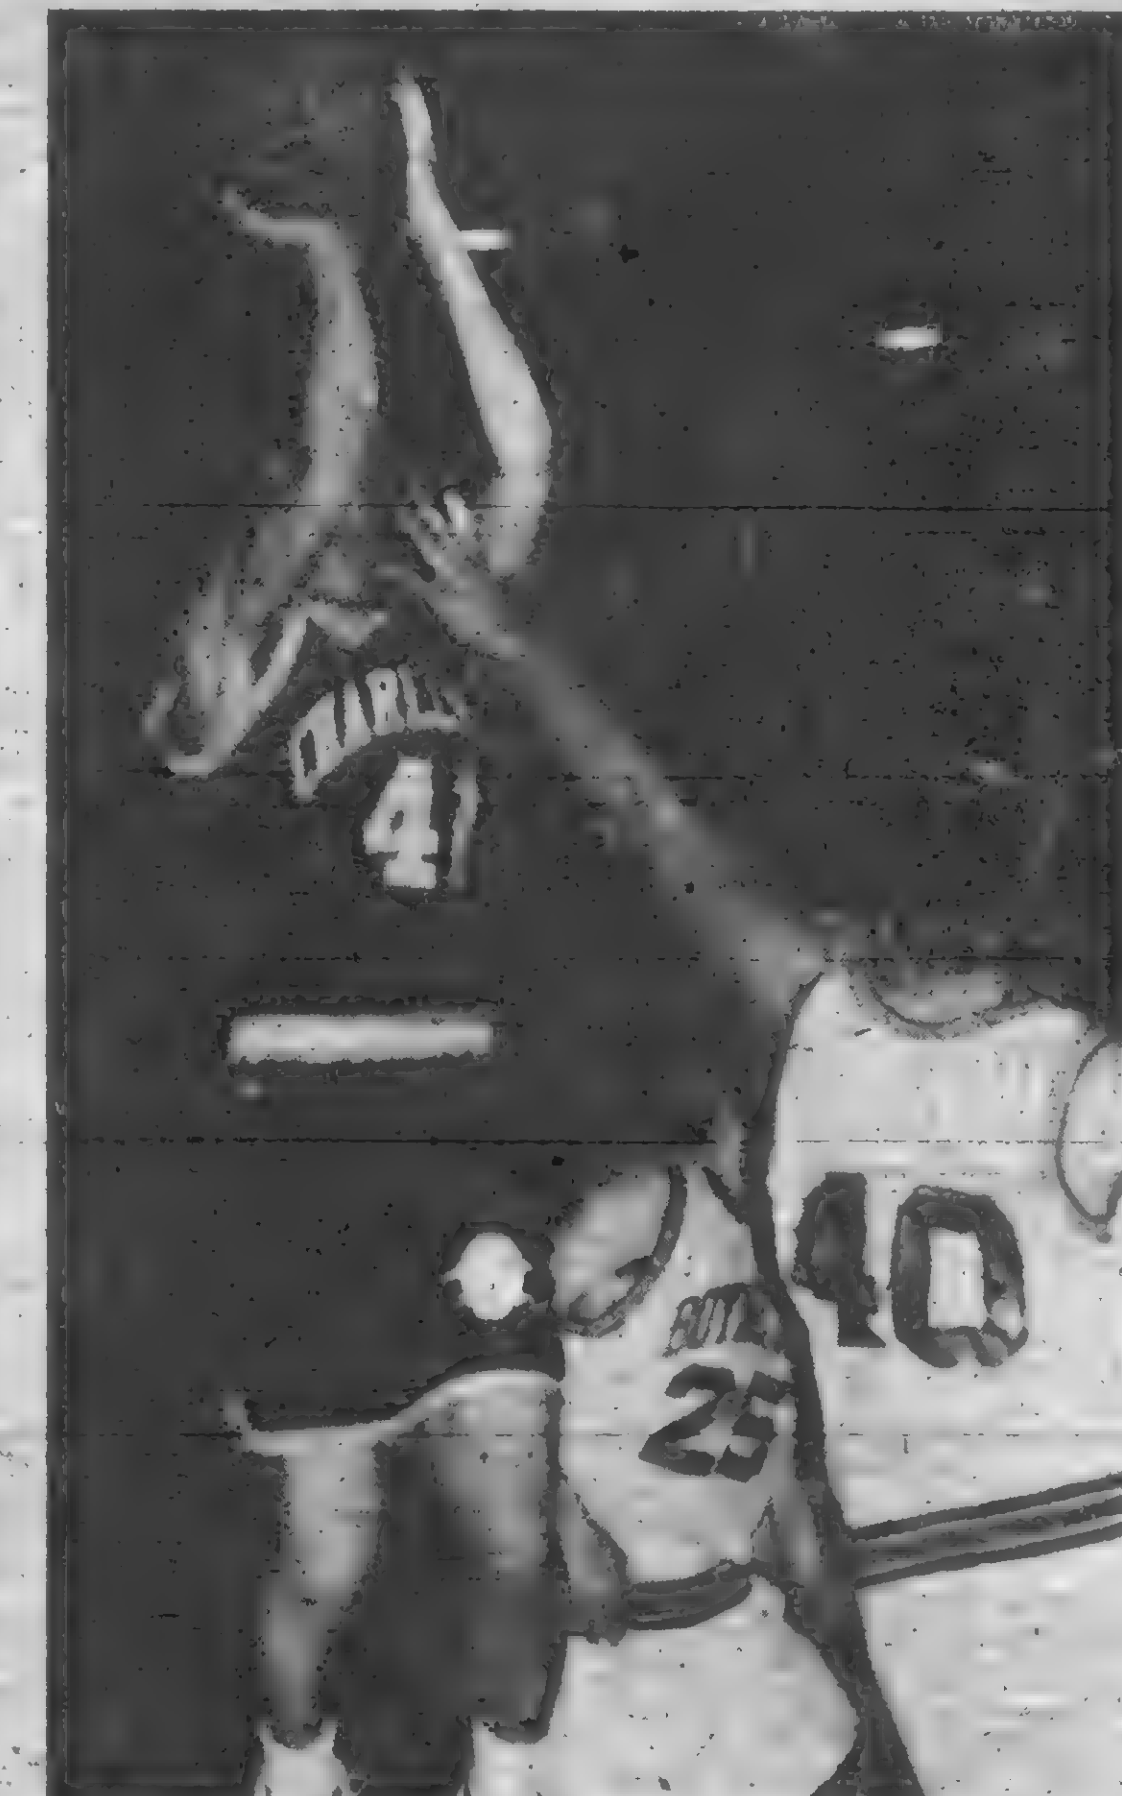

Charlevoix's District quest continues at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 9 as East Jordan comes to town.

Volleyball team ends season with 24-15 record

The Charlevoix varsity volleyball team beat Boyne City, but then lost to Elk Rapids in the District Volleyball tournament Saturday on the Rayders' home court. Suttons Bay, which entered the tournament ranked seventh in Class C, beat Elk Rapids in the District Finals.

Charlevoix opened the day beating Boyne City 15-10, 15-9. In the second round against Elk Rapids the Rayders won the first game, 9-15, but then lost the next two 15-8, 15-12. The Rayders defense was reasonably strong, but they struggled with their offensive consistency.

Charlevoix finished the season with a 24-15 record and won the Northern Lakes Division Conference Tournament two weeks ago. This year's Rayder team will graduate just two seniors, Trina Holm and Julie Rowbotham. The team returns four juniors and five sophomores. They also will have sophomores coming up from a junior varsity team which had a 9-3 season record.

David Dobulis scored 18 points in Charlevoix's 64-57 District Tournament win over Boyne City Monday night.

Young wrestlers bring home three firsts from Cheboygan

Fifteen Charlevoix elementary and middle school wrestlers participated in a Cheboygan Invitational Tournament this past Saturday. Charlevoix wrestlers took three firsts, eight seconds, three thirds and a fourth. Approximately 280 wrestlers from 13 schools participated in the tournament.

Taking first place trophies for Charlevoix were: Luke Whitley, James Pop and Chris Dominic.

Taking second place finishes were: Anthony Cesaro, Steve Hart, Jeremy Antaya, Dawson Matter, Tyson Potter, Steve Spiegel, Mike Lundy and Roger Pittman.

Taking thirds were: Brett Probert, Josh Christ and John Belfy.

Taking a fourth was Pat Matthews.

The Charlevoix junior high team is coached by Gregg Whitley. This Saturday they will be competing at the Rogers City Invitational.

Mainlanders to play Islanders in charity basketball game

A battle for Beaver Island basketball supremacy will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday, March 12. A group of Islanders will have home court advantage as they attempt to repulse an invasion by a group of mainland players. The purpose of the game is to raise money to help the Beaver Island school basketball program's facilities.

The Beaver Island School has had a basketball team for several years, but had played in a gym that was far less than full-size. This year the team moved into a new gym which has a full size court and room for bleachers.

The Islanders have both a boys' basketball and a girls' volleyball team. The teams play in a league with Mackinac Island, Grand Marais and Paradise. The teams fly to away games on two teams, one for the basketball team and one for the volleyball team. Teams consist of eight players and a coach.

When they fly to away games, they stay overnight and play twice. The teams will play a league game in the evening and a non-league game the next day. This year the teams had a 10-game schedule.

Freshmen win tournament

Charlevoix won the Petoskey Kiwanis Freshman Basketball Tournament Saturday defeating Petoskey 50-31 in the finals. The Raiders, coached by Joe Powers, finished the season with a 14-5 record.

Charlevoix had a balanced scoring attack in the tournament finals. Marc Jacobs led the team with nine points while Steve Carland and Justin Coen each had eight.

Local chefs to prepare dinner for the president

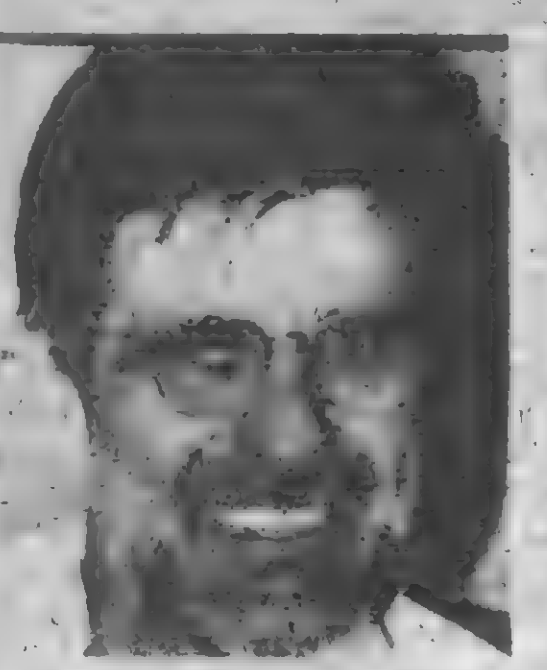

By Laurie Lounsbury

Over a month ago, Mickey Bakst was sipping his morning coffee and reading the news about the President's Group of Seven Economic Summit and dinner to be held in Detroit. Reading the news wasn't enough for Bakst. Today he's making the news as the coordinator for the Group of Seven dinner gala.

Bakst is co-owner of Pete and Mickey's restaurant with Harlan "Pete" Peterson and manager of Tapawingo restaurant in Ellsworth. Bakst was visiting his father in Detroit when he read about the Economic Summit and the dinner party to be held in Detroit. He immediately decided that he wanted to head up the dinner for the President of the United States and the visiting heads of state from six other countries. Bakst, a long time player in the restaurant game, rounded up the best chefs that the state of Michigan has to offer. He put together a plan for each chef to prepare a course for the dinner. Bakst's friend Jim Kokas, owner of Opus I, tugged on a few political strings and got the plan presented to Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer. Archer loved the idea, and sent it along to Washington for approval. For Bakst, there was nothing left to do but sit and wait for the word from Washington. As time ticked plan a dinner for the President and 96 political representatives from six other nations. "It's such a high - the excitement, the honor to be trusted to do this," Bakst said shortly after he got the go-ahead.

Mickey Bakst

Harlan "Pete" Peterson

Now Bakst is in Detroit, going from one meeting to another to work out all the details. Is the economic minister of Japan allergic to veal? Does Al Gore hate mushrooms? These are the types of things Bakst will have to find out. He and the rest of the staff will also be put through extensive security checks. "I'm meeting with the secret service. Oh, it's going to be cool," Bakst said.

While Bakst goes through the frenzied last minute-planning in Detroit, his partner Peterson will finalize his preparations for the main event in his familiar surroundings at Tapawingo. Peterson is tentatively planning to serve medallions of veal with a wild mushroom hash and a truffled Madiera sauce.

"We'll proceed with that entree and alter it if we have to," Peterson said. Peterson remains calm about the big event. He has taken his culinary repertoire on the road before, so he knows what entrees will work well with uncertain kitchen provisions. "I hope the cooking facilities are adequate," Peterson said. The dinner will be held in the main hall of the Detroit Institute of Arts, with the Detroit Symphony providing background music.

Peterson will place his food order for the event next week. "I'll definitely remind them it's for the President so we'll get the best quality," Peterson said.

Both Peterson and Bakst are looking forward to one particular aspect of the dinner. "It would be wonderful to meet the President and shake his hand," Peterson said. Bakst has his own plans for meeting the President's table the wine," he said.

This Derby isn't for horses, it's for Cub Scouts

The Charlevoix Cub Scout annual pinewood derby took place at the Charlevoix Elementary School Feb. 26. The race was divided into four classes with four winners in each class.

Winners in the WEBELOS 5th grade were: 1st Place, Chad DeKorte; 2nd Place, Brian Burns; 3rd Place, Tony Shearer; and 4th Place, Nathan Bartlett.

Winners in the WEBELOS 4th grade were: 1st Place, Joey VanLoo; 2nd Place, Mike Cornett; 3rd Place, Dennis Avery; and 4th Place, Nicholas Hosler.

Winners in the third grade (Bear) were: 1st Place, Dan Swick; 2nd Place, Mick Potter; 3rd Place, Eric Coon; and 4th Place, Brad Long.

Winners in the second grade (Wolf) were: 1st Place, Dustin Dutcher; 2nd Place, Michael (Jason) Westenbrook; 3rd Place, Ben Allen; and 4th Place, Todd Moore.

The First Place winner in each class met to determine the over-all Grand Champion. The over-all winner was Chad DeKorte followed by Dan Swick in second place, Dustin Dutcher in third place and Joey VanLoo in fourth place.

The following awards were also presented in each class: Best Design, Most Patriotic, Most Unusual, Most Creative and Scouting Spirit.

Cribbage results

The Odd Fellows picked up 49 points on the Masons in the annual cribbage tournament last week, but still trail by 1,268 points with only one week to play. There were five and a-half tables in play.

John Sharrow led the Odd Fellows with 965 points. Ken Ketchman led the Masons with 941 points.

DISTRICT COURT

Official Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 612

An Ordinance to amend the Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority by adding a new Section 1.301 to Chapter 7 of Title I of the City Code which will read as set forth below.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS

WHEREAS, a special session of the Charlevoix City Council was held on February 28, 1994 at 7:00 P.M. for the purpose of holding a Public Hearing on a proposed third amendment to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan, and

WHEREAS, the Charlevoix city council has determined that the attached third amendment with any modifications as noted below constitutes a public purpose, together with the originally adopted Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan meets all statutory requirements, is reasonable and necessary to carry out the purpose of the Downtown Development Authority Act and is in reasonable accord with the Master Plan of the municipality, and

WHEREAS, the land included within the development area as amended is reasonably necessary to carry out the purposes of the Plan and of the aforesaid Act in an efficient and economically feasible manner and public services will be adequate to service the project area, and

WHEREAS, public notice of the proposed third amendment and this hearing having been given as required by statute and the public hearing having been held,

NOW, THEREFORE IT IS ORDAINED that this Third Amendment to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan is adopted as follows:

DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

Third Amendment to the Tax Increment Finance and Development Plan
This document constitutes the Third Amendment to the Tax Increment Financing and Development Plan (the original Tax Increment Financing Plan and the Development Plan and all amendments will collectively be called the Plan). The original Plan as amended remains in effect except as specifically amended or supplemented by this document.

Recently, the Authority has crystallized plans for further improvements to the Downtown District. Accordingly, it is appropriate to amend the Plan at this time to describe the proposed improvements as well as how the Authority will pay for such projects.

The projects being added to the Plan are described in Exhibit 1 (attached). The Authority will pay for these projects on a cash basis without bonding. Exhibit 1 is a list of potential projects. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will decide when, and if, each project will be implemented. No persons will be displaced because of these projects.

Since all projects will be financed on a cash basis without bonding, no additional impact is anticipated on other taxing jurisdictions within the Downtown District.

In addition to the projects listed in Exhibit 1, the duration of the Plan is amended to continue through December 31, 2013. Accordingly, Section V of the original Plan which stated that the Plan would last until 2002 will no longer be operative.

EXHIBIT 1: PROJECT LIST FOR THIRD AMENDMENT TO DDA TAX INCREMENT FINANCE AND DEVELOPMENT PLAN.

1. Descriptive name - Bridge Park - Property Acquisition from MDOT to Allow Implementation of Bridge Park Plan
Location - Immediately east of Bridge Street and immediately south of the current access drive to the Beaver Island Boat Company. The parcels are more specifically described as Liber 118, pages 460, 463, 520 and 546.

Description of project - Acquisition of parcel with Liber # 118, page 546 from the Michigan Department of Transportation to allow for the construction of a lift station/restroom building and offices for the Beaver Island Boat Company. Also possible acquisition of parcels described in Liber 118, pages 466, 463 and 520, as required from MDOT to implement the Bridge Park plan. Final design may include some portion of a lift station on these parcel and/or may require the construction of underground storage for the Coast Guard.

Description of stages - There is only one stage of the project anticipated and that would be the purchase of property as required. A second stage may be required should the Coast Guard requirements not be known until completion of the first stage. The acquisition is anticipated to be taken place before July 1, 1995.

Description of parts of the development that are to be left as open space and the use contemplated for the space - A majority of the parcels are contemplated to be used as open space with park use being contemplated on the westerly portions of properties and walkways and parking lot being planned for the easterly portions of the property. A lift station/restroom/Beaver Island Boat Company office is contemplated under a portion of the planned park area, but the building will be depressed and park with be reconstructed on top of the structures.

Project financing - It is anticipated that the acquisitions will be funded through tax increment financing on a cash basis.

Project Cost Estimate - Estimated cost of acquisition is $250,000.

2. Descriptive name - Purchase and Development of MDOT Property Immediate North of the Pine River Building

Location - 15' of property measured in a north-south direction immediately north of the Pine River Building. The Pine River Building is more specifically described as tax # 242-007.

Description of the Project - The project proposes to acquire the 15' of the MDOT property immediately north of the Pine River Building and to construct a handicapped accessible walkway and other park amenities to complement the area parks and to ensure that the property is left as park/open space.

Description of Stages - The first stage of the project would be to acquire the property. It is anticipated that this stage would take place by July 1, 1995. The second stage of the project would be to construct a walkway and other park amenities. The second stage is anticipated to be completed by July 1, 1997.

Description of parts of the development that are to be left as open space and the use contemplated for the space - It is anticipated that all of the property currently in open space will remain so. It is planned that the property would involve handicapped sidewalk construction and other open space plantings, etc.

Project Financing - It is anticipated that the project would be financed through tax increment financing.

Project Cost Estimate - Acquisition of property - estimated $25,000. Development of property estimate $25,000.

3. Descriptive Name - Water Main Construction in Antrim, Mason and Clinton Streets between Bridge and State Streets.

Description of Project - Water main installation in Antrim, Mason and Clinton Streets between Bridge Street and State Street.

Description of Stages - It is anticipated that the construction will take place under one construction contract. It is anticipated that the project will be completed by December 1, 1996.

Description of parts of the development that are to be left as open space and the use contemplated for the space - NA - This is underground construction.

Project Financing - It is anticipated that the project will be paid for with tax increment financing on a cash basis and possibly supplemented by City General Fund revenues.

Project Cost Estimate - $25,000.

4. Descriptive Name - Coast Guard Storage Area.

Location - Under the bank in the park area known as Bridge Park.

Description of Project - The project is planned to accommodate the needs of the Coast Guard for what storage area they need up to a maximum of 3,100 square feet in their operations of a Coast Guard vessel in downtown Charlevoix.

Description of Stages - It is anticipated that the project will be completed in one stage by December 1, 1996.

Description of parts of the development that are to be left as open space and the use contemplated for the space - It is anticipated that the area above the storage area will remain as park area, therefore all of the area in the project will remain as open space.

Project Financing - It is anticipated that the project will be financed with tax increment financing on a cash basis.

Project Cost Estimate - $50,000.

5. Descriptive Name - Street light acquisition and installation

Location - the acquisition and installation of street lights in State Street between Park Avenue and Antrim Street and in Antrim, Mason, Clinton and Park Avenue between Bridge Street and State Street.

Description of Project - The project includes the purchase and installation of the street lights including required footings, conduit for the street lights, as well as future sound-system and electrical outlets and the conduit and wiring for same.

Description of Stages - It is determined that the installation and the reconstructed streets would be completed by December 1, 1996.

Project Financing - It is anticipated that the project will be financed with tax increment financing on a cash basis.

Project Cost Estimate - $75,000.

Spring musical offers an 80-minute trip around the world

Finnius Fog would be green with envy. It was all he could do to make it around the world in 80 days. He took a balloon.

Charlevoix Elementary School music teacher Marina LaBlance and her 1994 Charlevoix Spring Musical performers plan to make a trip around the world in 80 minutes. They're taking the trip with music. They have to. No way you'd ever find a balloon big enough to haul all of the people who show up each year for the elementary school spring musical.

The theme of this year's spring musical is "Children of the World." Show time is 7:30 p.m., March 17 in the high school gym. (Yeah, it's St. Patrick's Day all right. And yep, the show will have some Irish music.)

The show will feature a variety of songs, dances and costumes as big as...the world. The music will touch on Israel, Morocco, the United States, Spain, Germany, France, Greece, Holland and Sweden among other places.

While serving as a showcase for the musical talents of more than 500 children, this year's musical is also serving as a launch pad for a number of educational endeavors. Across the hall from LaBlance's music room, students in Mary Beth McGraw's art classes have been designing promotional drawings, sets and backdrops. Several of the children will be introducing songs in the language of the country where the song originated. In conjunction with the musical the elementary school will also have a multicultural display case.

Engler appoints new district representative

Governor John Engler has announced the appointment of Brian T. Swift as the Governor's Northern Michigan Representative.

"As a native of the Upper Peninsula, Brian Swift is keenly aware of the concerns that northern Michigan citizens have," Engler said. "I am proud to appoint him to this position, representing my office in this important part of Michigan."

Swift has served as a district representative for former Congressman Robert Davis in northern Michigan. He earned his bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in 1984 and his master's degree in public administration from Northern Michigan University in 1993. He is a member of the Michigan High School Athletic Association and the Marquette Chamber of Commerce.

"I have one goal: to serve the men and women from the U.P. and northern lower Michigan, and effectively represent their views," Swift said. "There's no other place like northern Michigan. I look forward to serving the people who call that home."

Swift replaces Dave Svanda, who is running for U.S. Congress.

Julius Caesar, Amerigo Vespucci and Marc Antony were making a little linguini at the Charlevoix Elementary School this past Friday. In reality, the students were (from left) Joey Streeter, Jared Martin and Jason Smith with their teacher, Irene Cohen. The students were participating in cultural diversity day and learning about Italian culture. Not only were each of the students dressed as a famous person from Italy, they each memorized information about their character and his or her role in history.

School board meets in closed session for three hours

The Charlevoix School Board met in closed session in the basement of the Charlevoix Public Library for approximately three hours Friday morning. The board was reviewing the evaluation of the performance of school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson. At her request, the meeting took place in closed session.

The meeting came just four days after the board and Jackson received heavy criticism from the public over events leading to the reassignment of high school principal Dave Smith. Prior to Smith's evaluation by the board on Feb. 28, Jackson requested that Smith write a letter requesting reassignment. Some of the board members knew about the request prior to Smith's evaluation and others did not. The request for reassignment was accepted by a 4-3 vote. Board members Scott Beatty, Mary Lee Campbell, Ben Cunningham and Joan Buday voted to accept the request. Board members Larry Levensgood, Ardith Wieland and Steve Czerkes voted against accepting the request.

Thursday evening a group of more than 30 parents and community members met at a local restaurant to discuss possible actions in the wake of the decision. Among the possible actions discussed was a recall campaign against the four who voted for reassignment. However, after discussing the matter the consensus among the group was that at least for the time being a recall isn't something which should be pursued. Members of the group said they will continue to monitor school board actions closely in coming months.

City and County still don't see eye to eye on DDA

By L. Scott Swanson
The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has offered the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners another proposed agreement, but discussion between the two groups indicates they still don't see eye to eye.

At the commissioners' March 9 meeting, Dan Barron of the DDA presented the commissioners a proposed agreement which called for: The DDA to stop capturing tax dollars derived from millage voted for the Grandview Medical Care Facility, county transit system, and 9-1-1 emergency phone service; the 1990 agreement between the county and DDA to be rescinded; the county to allow the Boyne City and East Jordan DDAs to capture money on terms no more restrictive than those in Charlevoix; and the county to agree not to pursue any litigation against the Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City DDAs.

A lengthy discussion followed Barron's presentation of the proposed agreement, but no action was taken. Don Smith, chairman of the board of commissioners, had expressed reservations about a previous proposed agreement and did the same about the latest one. Smith said he doesn't feel Charlevoix DDA members have been entirely open. He noted that a proposed agreement between the DDA and the Charlevoix School System is still hung up. He said that commissioners are still trying to figure out just what the DDA's needs are in proposing an agreement.

"My conclusion is you need long-term bonding to do the Bridge Park project. And to do that, you need the cooperation of the county and school," Smith said.

Barron argued that the key question in the entire issue is whether or not using county funding to help DDAs is good public policy. "Does it make sense for the county to be a participant in economic development in East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix? We believe it does," Barron said.

Aside from Smith, other county commissioners expressed some support for DDAs, but also expressed some reservations.

DDAs are funded through tax increment financing. In tax increment financing, property values for general tax purposes are frozen in the DDA area at the time the DDA is adopted. Even though property taxes are frozen for general tax purposes, in reality they continue to rise. The DDA gets the money from increased property value. Charlevoix's DDA encompasses the downtown business district and was adopted in 1982. Charlevoix County, the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Public Schools and the Char-Em Intermediate School District receive property-tax revenue based on the 1982 DDA property value. Taxes derived from property value increases in Charlevoix's downtown area since 1982 go to the DDA to fund DDA projects.

Commissioner Phil Johnson, who represents the Boyne City area, noted that having a 12 year head start gives Charlevoix's DDA an advantage over Boyne City and East Jordan's DDAs which are just forming. He asked Barron why the DDA board reviews Bridge Park plans

At a March 9 meeting, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority reviewed plans to renovate Bridge Park. Bridge Park is the small park located east of Bridge Street just to the south of Memorial Bridge.

The project has an estimated price tag of $1.8 million. Key elements would be the removal of the old sewage treatment plant and the current Beaver Island Ferry building and construction of a new building which would be recessed into the park hillside. The new building would be 185 feet long by 45 feet deep. It would house the Beaver Island Ferry office, public rest rooms, a Coast Guard storage area and a sewage pump station. The roof of the building would be a viewing deck. The roof would be covered with six inches of soil with grass and brick walkways.

Plans are still preliminary and were described to DDA members by John Adams, an engineer with the firm of McNamee, Porter and Seelye. In the latest plan the floor level of the building has been dropped 30 inches below where it was located in previous plans in order to improve sight lines.

In response to DDA member Dr. Jeff Porter about the sight line from the sidewalk, Bruce Clark, an architect with McNamee, Porter and Seelye said that someone five and a-half feet tall would not be able to see the parking lot, but would be able to see the top half of the Beaver Island ferry boat at the dock.

DDA member Jeanne Wallace questioned a portion of the plan which calls for an aluminum guard rail along the perimeter of the viewing deck on

...City and County continue DDA debate

Charlevoix DDA doesn't start over to be on level ground with Boyne City and East Jordan.

Barron said he doesn't see a need for the Charlevoix DDA to start over and doesn't think the East Jordan or Boyne City DDAs would do so if the situation were reversed. He said it might be possible to have the East Jordan and Boyne City DDAs continue after the Charlevoix DDA expires.

The termination date for the Charlevoix DDA was a topic which surfaced and resurfaced throughout the discussion. Former Charlevoix of its original plans and is now making more, Barron said that all of the DDA's planned projects have not been completed. He said that even before the latest DDA project list amendment, there were still projects to be completed, for example the renovation of Bridge Park. (See DDA Bridge Park story elsewhere in the paper.)

Smith has consistently pushed for a 1998 DDA expiration and continued to do so at the March 9 meeting. When asked by Charlevoix mayor Dave Novotny what his problem is with DDAs, Smith said, "I'm willing to call your DDA a tremendous success. I'll go to your party when the DDA ends, I'd just like that to be in 1998."

Smith added, "My question is when is enough?" He said with the Charlevoix's present city council, "they'll never give that up."

In response to Smith, Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner said, "What I believe you're saying is you've been half successful, don't be all successful." Wiesner said there will be a point when the DDA is done, but he doesn't have a crystal ball and can't say exactly when that will be.

Smith said he sees the Bridge Project as a good project, but after that is completed, he would like to see the county's involvement with Charlevoix's DDA end.

Barron said he didn't feel the county should dictate which pro-

Don Smith, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, questioning whether the City of Charlevoix will ever bring the DDA to an end.

City Council member Norm Probert said that initially the Charlevoix DDA was going to spend approximately $1.5 million. Later, projects were added and the DDA timetable was extended so that the DDA then was going to spend closer to $2.5 million. Probert said that now an extension is being proposed that would let the DDA's total spending climb to $5 million to $7 million.

Probert said that when the 1990 agreement was signed, every wish the DDA had on their list could have been completed by 1995.

When Johnson raised that point again later, saying that the Charlevoix DDA has completed all jects are acceptable and unacceptable or object to an on-going program of economic development.

Other commissioners questioned the propriety of tax increment financing.

Commissioner Howard Hosler, who represents the East Jordan area, said, "If you put it up for a vote for millage for DDA projects, would it fly? I work for the people and I don't think it would."

Commissioner Jim Behling, who represents the eastern section of the county, questioned the DDA being allowed to capture tax dollars which voters have approved for other things. Even though tax increment financing has been found in court to be legal, Behling noted, "Everything that's legal is not always good."

Behling said that now voters can approve millage for one thing, but because somebody downstate has passed a law some of the revenue from that millage can be taken and used for something else.

Commissioner Richie Gillespie, who represents Beaver Island and the City of Charlevoix, said he sees where the DDA has done good things for Charlevoix.

Commissioner Carl Price, who represents the northeastern townships in the county, questioned if taxpayers are getting the most bang for their buck with DDAs.

Johnson said he generally favors DDAs and that they look like a good deal for East Jordan and Boyne City.

top of the building. She noted, "An aluminum guard rail sends horror through me for a viewing deck."

Adams said the rail wouldn't be like a roadside guard rail, but would be tube rails similar to those on the channel walkway. He said the rails also might incorporate acrylic panels. Wallace and other DDA members expressed a bit of skepticism toward acrylic panels fearing they might be ugly if they get dirty or scratched.

Adams will be refining the Bridge Park project plans and appearing again before the DDA at a later date. A model of the proposed project is available for public viewing in the council room on the second floor of City Hall.

Editorial

It's been interesting to watch the evolution of this matter.

During the past two weeks, a number of people in the community have been upset about the school board reassigning high school principal Dave Smith. During the past week, several people have contacted the Courier regarding the situation, either phoning, stopping in at the office or writing letters to the editor.

In last week's Courier we had a news story and an editorial regarding the matter. Some people have offered praise and others criticism. Some people have offered additional information. Other people have just wanted to let us know their position. The various discussions have without exception been quite interesting. From a newspaper perspective, we're happy that people have been willing to talk. Among other things, a small-town newspaper should be a forum where folks can thrash out the issues of the day. People from the community should feel they can contact the local paper and, even if they aren't always agreed with in conversation, at least be heard and get a fair shake in print.

As noted previously, the conversations have been interesting. What conclusions can be drawn from them? And what observations can be made? Well, try these:

Observation 1 - In issues like this it's neither necessary nor right to cast anyone as either the hero or the villain. The reality is even when people have similar goals, sometimes they have different ideas about how they should go about reaching those goals. That's just the way life works.

Observation 2 - There were two separate facets to this issue: the decision to reassign Smith and the process through which that decision was enacted. Whether or not the decision was right or wrong is debatable. The only way to judge the long term effect is to see whether the next high school principal is able to move the school forward or if it stays the same or goes backwards. In regard to the process, nobody's expressed any satisfaction with that.

Observation 3 - This issue created strange allies and opponents. You need to look no farther than

Smith and school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson, two of the key players, to support this observation. If you've talked to them, they both seem to be very progressive in their ideas about educational improvement. The same can be said of some of the board members who voted in favor of reassigning Smith and of many of the members of the public who objected to that vote. Yet, none of these people seemed to be completely in the same camp.

Conclusion 1 - The initial furor seems to be dying down and people are looking at the issue in a more calm and objective manner. There was some talk of a recall, but that seems to have withered. And rightfully so. There was no need for a recall. To begin with, the four board members may have been right or wrong on this one issue, but on the whole they're not doing such a bad job. And from a purely pragmatic standpoint, if there's a 4-3 split on the board and you want the balance of power changed, you can do it soon enough in the June election without going through a recall.

Conclusion 2 - One of the main reasons this decision and the process behind it drew so much heat is that there is a lot of pent up frustration among the populace in regard to the educational system. People are tired of seeing things which are obviously wrong in education, never get corrected. Excuses such as "it's in the contract" or "state law says this is what we have to do" are getting real old. School boards can take a harder position on contracts and legislators can be contacted about flawed state laws.

Conclusion 3 - People who want changes in education must be willing to be understanding and patient, yet they are also right to expect measurable improvement rather than just talk of improvement. There are elements within the educational community that are quite comfortable with stagnation and have no problem accepting mediocrity or worse. If these elements are to be overcome, it is important that people who desperately want to see educational improvements, work together and continue pushing for those improvements rather than fight among themselves.

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

It's always a surprise when economic, artistic and culinary events dovetail so neatly.

After returning from seeing the ROYAL TABLES OF EUROPE under Louis the XIV-XVI exhibit in the Palace of Versailles, I'm greeted with the astonishing news that Detroit is hosting a state dinner after the economic conference for dignitaries from seven countries — France, Italy, Germany, Britain, Japan, the U.S. and Canada.

The culmination of these two day meetings is a five course dinner taking place at the Detroit Institute of Arts in the spacious Diego Rivera Court. Not only that, but our own Tapawingo Restauranters, Pete Peterson and Mickey Bakst came up with the idea of organizing numerous Detroit chefs to offer their services in preparing this sumptuous dinner for 96 honored guests.

Now I recall attending a Bal Moderne in the Great Hall of the Detroit Institute of Art many years ago; put on by the Friends of Modern Art as a fund raiser. In my book, ALL ABOUT PARTIES I describe this memorable event.

"Once in a lifetime, dream and reality blend in a charming mystical way to create enchantment..." the Great Hall with its arched frescoed ceiling; its walls hung with sixteenth century Flemish tapestries; its numerous Gothic entrances guarded by invisible knights in visible suits of armor; add forty round tables for ten covered with celadon green cloths and a gossamer overskirt of silver lame, each with a two and a half foot translucent cherub centerpiece gaily lighted from within by amethyst, amber, sky blue and jade bulbs; turn a Chicago designer loose to decorate the adjoining marble-floored Rivera Court for cocktails and dancing among boxwood hedges topped with paper-mache white doves; add eight foot magnolia trees and flood the scene with candlelight from twelve branch candelabras... add the magic touch of Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong's dance music; invite Tony Martin to serenade the queens of Detroit's "wheeling" society... Ah then you have a winning combination — Cleveland Armory who was there "described the evening as "a stater tier event than any New York ball this season."

Having attended this lavish function at the Detroit Institute of Art, I can now well imagine that the French King, Louis XIV, would feel as much at home in the Great Hall graced with suits of armor and Flemish tapestries as he did in his Palace of Versailles.

Better, however, that this week's global dignitaries ignore the tapestries and armor and focus instead on the Edsel Ford 1933 gift of murals by the Mexican artist, Diego Rivera. Although no one questioned the artistry of the murals, they caused quite a stir when they were unveiled. The fresco, "The Making of a Motor" depicts workers toiling mightily on the production line and this realistic interpretation was not well received during the depression by the public.

Today we may well wonder what Edsel Ford and Diego Rivera would say if they attended the dinner at the Detroit Institute of Art? Let us hope they would cheer the efforts of the planners at the job conference to solve the recurring worldwide unemployment problem and that the mutual goals for full employment will again propel our present civilization to new artistic and economic heights in the near future.

On my recent trip, I saw the artistic and economic heights achieved by the Hanseatic Guilds during the 14th century, when visiting the quaint seaport of Brugge in Belgium. I saw the magnificent Sevres porcelain in Versailles, the manufacture of which filled the King's coffers with gold. I saw the glory of the British Empire in the 17th and 18th century while touring Hampton Court, Windsor Castle and the fairy-tale. Royal Pavilion in the charming summer resort of Brighton. These lovely scenes all remind us that economic prosperity and art have marched jointly, hand in hand through every century.

In our country, recent figures based on a three year study, gathered from 800 organizations in 33 cities, show that the economic benefits of the nonprofit arts industry are enormous. 36.8 billion dollars are spent annually, and supports 1.3 million jobs. It is responsible for 25.2 billion dollars in personal income. It is estimated that 3.4 billion is returned to the federal budget in salaries, sales and services, a figure that far exceeds the federal output of the National Endowment for the Arts' 170 million dollar annual appropriation.

We won't know the results of the G7 economic conference in Detroit yet, but perhaps we may recall the words of Samuel Taylor Coleridge who said, "Often do the spirits of great events stride on before the event, and in today already walks tomorrow."

School board wants to bridge the gulf and foster open communications

Editor,

The Charlevoix Board of Education and Superintendent of Schools are sincerely concerned about the Charlevoix community perceptions surrounding the resignation of David Smith as High School principal.

Throughout the past three years expectations, goal setting and performance appraisal feedback have been provided to all building administrators. This was also the practice in years prior.

The Board of Education and Superintendent will not review any personnel matters publicly without the concerned individual's consent.

The Board and Superintendent are equally concerned about the need for an opportunity for open communication and bridging the gulf that has been created by this situation. We are committed to working with you to provide the best education possible for our students. Concerned citizens are encouraged to contact Roberta Jackson.

Roberta Ann Jackson,
Superintendent of Schools

Learn from mistakes and move forward

Editor,

We in Charlevoix like to think that we are different, better than others and lucky to live in a wonderful town. In many ways we are extremely lucky; we live in a beautiful place that offers many advantages. However, we are far more like Anyplace, USA than we care to admit.

We all have problems in our families, work, city and schools just like everyone. That is something that we don't talk about openly in this community. We like GOOD PRESS and we often sweep our problems under the carpet. However, when one of these problems does finally surface, Charlevoix ends up looking like a circus rather than the thoughtful caring community that makes Charlevoix wonderful.

Such was the case last Monday (March 7). I too was caught up in the circus, reacting emotionally rather than dealing with the FACTS that had been swept under the carpet for years.

Fortunately for Charlevoix, our Superintendent, Dr. Roberta Jackson, and our School Board held firm and moved forward in their continuing effort to make the changes that she was hired to make and that the Board members were elected to bring about in our schools.

No, it was not a pretty sight. Many of us have worked with Dave Smith for years in pursuit of common educational goals. Dave and his wife Candy live in and love this community like you and I. They have children in our schools and benefit from school improvement as do the rest of the community. To work toward the common goal of school improvement, we have worked on committees side by side with Dave for years.

Change comes slowly. We are all resistant to change. The more Dave has pushed for change the happier he has made those of us on committees looking for improvement. However, it is that same drive for effectuating change that has made Dave LESS effective as an administrator. While many of his staff work continually toward school improvement, their daily tasks in the classroom have made their timetable for change dramatically different than Dave's.

Without staff support, improvement, change and any forward movement becomes impossible. Yet, we the community still want those changes in our schools that we hired Dr. Jackson to make happen.

You may recall, in the Spring of 1991, the Charlevoix School Board accepted the resignation of former Superintendent Dr. Gordon Van Wieren. At that time, the School Board hired a consultant, Cara Funk from the Michigan Association of School Boards, to help the community decide and describe the role of a new superintendent. There were community input meetings at the High School as well as staff input meetings in all three buildings where ideas for the future were gathered. Beginning with that process, Dr. Jackson was eventually hired because her background was determined to be the best qualified to carry out our wishes for change in our Charlevoix educational programs.

We have a responsibility to enable her and to support her in making those changes that we hired her to make.

Dave Smith also wants those changes. Dave agreed to this career change, not because he and Roberts didn't get along, not because School Board members' children had been disciplined, but rather because a building administrator and his staff, after many years of problems, could not and would not ever be able to reach their common goals together.

After years of documentation, it was finally admitted by our Superintendent and Dave Smith that there are not new problems but rather ongoing problems that were not going to improve without someone able to lead the staff. No, we hadn't talked about it openly, it doesn't look good in the newspaper, so we kept all of this quiet and talked publicly only of our successes. Yes, we all like Dave Smith, yes we will miss his willingness to look to the future, but we must not confuse our fond thoughts of Dave with our vision of what we want and how we are going to make Charlevoix Schools better.

We have demanded change and we have demanded our School Board hire someone to lead us to that change. Our School Board hired a Superintendent that has the knowledge and ability to bring about that change. We must let her select a team that can work with administration and staff to make these changes happen.

Scott Beatty, Mary Lee Campbell, Ben Cunningham and Joan Buday supported Roberta Jackson's recommendation on Monday night to accept Dave's resignation. These are thoughtful, caring and responsible people that we know and trust. Knowing them, we know in our souls this was not a decision that any one of these people made lightly. Emotions running wild, these four people stuck to the business at hand, did not play politics with the audience and supported a recommendation to move forward in our strategic plan. When the dust settles, we will realize that now, more than ever, these four board members have earned our trust. These four board members did in fact vote to carry on with the changes we have all been working towards.

Yes, we have made mistakes. Let us move forward and learn from these mistakes. The single most important lesson that we can learn from this drama is that we need to admit that we have our share of problems. We must learn to talk about these problems and the continuing plan for their correction. This open and honest communication is not BAD PRESS. With regular communication from our Superintendent, Board of Education, and School Administrators, the shock of last week's announcement and the reaction it caused could have been avoided.

Sincerely,
Anne R. Golski

Board neglected the will of the people

Editor,

A Representative Government without Representation

Even though the politicians keep referring to our government as a Democracy, I think you will find that they are in error as usual. We chose not to follow the ancient Greeks of Athens, but to adopt the government of the Roman Empire. Our forefathers decided it would be better for the citizens of the country to elect a representative that would express their will in government. Like most things that involve politicians, the idea of carrying out the will of the people has been pushed aside for more politically advantageous goals from Washington to Charlevoix. Last week a School Board meeting was held with over a hundred citizens in attendance, and with total support of the citizens for Principal David Smith the Board voted 4 to 3 to accept Mr. Smith's resignation. Now I do not know, but if all the citizens in attendance were in support of Mr. Smith how could the Board that is representing the people vote the way they did? I guess four of the board members had a different government class than what I did. If my memory serves me right a group of Bostonians threw a boat load of tea in the harbor over the lack of representation. I do want to point out that three of the board members did vote the will of the people.

Another thing that seems to have escaped me is why would the Superintendent wait for the last School Board meeting before Mr. Smith's contract had to be acted upon? Until the meeting last week she had brought up none of these problems to the board before, but that cannot be the case because she told me that these have been on-going problems. Do you think that the Superintendent would have put something this important off 'till the last minute or do you think she did not want the Board to have time to find out the wishes of the people?

A man once said, if you are not part of the solution then you are part of the problem. No matter what your feelings are, call your School Board members and tell them where you stand and how you want them to vote or the actions you want them to take. If you are willing to give up your government, the politicians and bureaucrats will be glad to take it.

Charles A. Williams

Board members criticized

Editor,

I would like to express my opinion on a certain matter that occurred at the Charlevoix High School Board Meeting on March 7, 1994. Joan Buday, a first year board member, made a motion to accept the letter of resignation from high school principal Dave Smith. During the meeting it was continually brought up that Dave Smith was not a team player and did not play by the team rules.

However, I would like to shed some light on this board member who initiated the motion to accept Dave Smith's resignation. I have only attended two school board meetings in my entire life. One was on March 7, 1994 while the other was when I graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1984. At that time there was another controversy confronting the school board. That controversy involved who would be the class of 1984's valedictorian and salutatorian. An individual in our school system, who had all the necessary credits according to our school rules, decided to graduate early. Since his grade point was the highest among our class he was therefore honored the fight to be our class valedictorian. His honor caused Joan's son and myself along with everybody else in our class to lose one rank in the class standing. Joan's son lost the honor to be the class salutatorian while I lost the honor to be in the top 10 percent of the class. We both missed by one place. Joan decided the rules did not suit her and she began a protest against the individual who innocently became our valedictorian. My parents and I decided to back the individual who was our true valedictorian because that is what the (team) rules state. I think it is ironic that ten years later Joan would be a board member that would participate in getting rid of a school principal for not being a team player.

I end this letter on one final note. I had the pleasure of playing for one of the most successful basketball teams to ever come out of Charlevoix High School. That team was coached by Dave Smith. After we won the 1983 Regional Basketball tournament in Gaylord, I was asked by a radio announcer what it was like for a junior to be the floor leader on a team dominated with seniors. My response was "We don't have sophomores, juniors and seniors on this team, we have all basketball players and we play as a team." This was something Dave Smith taught us. I regret that my children will not have the opportunity to have Dave Smith as their principal. I feel Dave Smith is a team player and that Joan Buday, Ben Cunningham, Mary Lee Campbell and Roberta Jackson have all decided to form their own team. Since I know Dave Smith and I have played for him, I think the board is playing on a losing team.

Thank you Dave for being there for me when I was in school.

Letters to the editor

Wrestlers commended

Editor:

A tribute to Ron Haggard, John Wagner and the Middle School Wrestling Tournament (Directed by residents of our community who may not be aware of what these two young high school students have done).

These young men have been up early and on the road every Saturday in March. This coming Saturday, Ron and John will be at the Charlevoix High School gym by 7:30 a.m. and there through 7:30 p.m. helping with scoring and timing and helping Gregg Whitley coach more than 20 younger wrestlers.

They will be assisted by many high school wrestlers, past and present, plus many mat club parents and young ladies in running the largest middle school wrestling tournament in the state.

When you come to the gym between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. (March 19) you will see over 200 elementary and middle school boys and girls in competition. Charlevoix will host wrestlers from communities throughout the north land, from the Soo to Roscommon and Rogers City to Benzie. Wrestling will be nonstop on six mats through the medal round. You may see Ron and John's enthusiasm for good sportsmanship and fair play continuously displayed throughout the competition.

This past weekend Charlevoix had a state (high school wrestling) medal winner in Keith Parish, but in my book Charlevoix has two All American athletes in Ron Haggard and John Wagner. They have learned from past tradition and care about future citizens. They are setting the example of the correct path to be taken by these young boys and girls in their future.

Respectfully,
Norm Probert

It's the Cancer Society, and you're busted

The Charlevoix Unit of the American Cancer Society will have its annual "Great American Lock-Up" March 23 at Nanny's (10 a.m. - 5 p.m.) for a $10 donation, persons can jail their spouse, boss, friends or enemies. All they have to do is just "nark" on the "bad guys" by reporting their crimes to the "good guys" at Nanny's between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 547-0089 or 547-0138.

Police volunteers (the "Keystone Cops") will appear at the person's home or office, present a phony arrest warrant, handcuff the "criminal" and cart them off to jail. There, they'll be given a chance to phone friends or relatives to raise bail with donations going to the American Cancer Society. Pledges will satisfy the bail which will be set at the discretion of the volunteer judges. This year's judges will be Tom "Not Too" Sweet and Bill "The Hanging Captain" Vogel.

The "Great American Lock-Up" is a lighthearted, fun-filled event enjoyed by the "accuser," the "jailee" and everyone else involved. All proceeds go to The American Cancer Society, a nationwide community-based volunteer health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives from cancer, and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education and service.

Those needing more information or who are interested in participating or jailing someone may call Dana Pajtas at 547-4767 or Glenda Conlan at 547-2510.

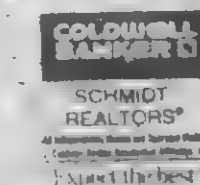

Lieutenant Commander Steve Corporon, Commanding Officer of the Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, was placed under mock arrest recently by Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson in support of the American Cancer Society's fund-raising lock-up. Charged with allowing the Acacia to be frozen in during a routine maintenance period at Medusa last month, Corporon's bail was set at $100 in donations to the American Cancer Society. Although the lock-up is scheduled to take place March 23, Corporon was apprehended early after reports surfaced that he intended to skip town this week for the start of Acacia's spring buoy run.

George A. Duke Jr.

George A. Duke, Jr., 67, of Charlevoix and North Palm Beach, Fla., and formerly of Farmington, died March 8, 1994, at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

His funeral was Friday, March 11, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Scharbaum officiated. A service was also held Saturday, March 12, at the Thayer-Rock Funeral Home in Farmington. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Farmington.

Mr. Duke was born July 18, 1926, in Brighton, the son of George A. and Bessie (Gurnsey) Duke. He attended Redford High School, and was a veteran of the U.S. Army serving during World War II.

On July 24, 1943, he married Joyce P. Ellison in Detroit and she survives. The couple moved from Farmington to Charlevoix in 1972, and have spent their winters in North Palm Beach, Fla., since 1978.

Mr. Duke enjoyed boating and was a member of the Charlevoix Yacht Club where his late son, James Duke, was a champion sailor. Mr. Duke served as commodore of the Charlevoix Yacht Club in 1976.

He also belonged to the U.S. Power Squadron, the Great Lakes Cruising Club, Mackinac Island Yacht Club, the Old Port Cove Yacht Club and the Palm Beach Yacht Club. He was a member of the Huron River Hunting and Fishing Club in Farmington, and the Detroit Gun Club.

Mr. Duke was a man of many talents and interests. His family was the most important thing in his life. He was an ordained minister and performed several marriages in Northern Michigan.

He was an active builder and developer in the Detroit and Farmington areas where he built the Independence Green Country Club Apartments, Brookdale Club Apartments and Forest Brook Hills Subdivision, as well as many other office, apartment and residential buildings.

Mr. Duke was a life member of the Friendship Lodge P&AM in Detroit, and the Knights Templar and Shrine. He was past president of the Charlevoix Lions Club and was constable of Charlevoix Township in 1975.

He was a former member of the Detroit Real Estate Board and served as its president. He was also president of the Metropolitan Detroit Builders Association in 1962, and was one of the organizers of its first Home and Garden Show. He was a former member of the United N.W. Realtors Association in Detroit, and was a member of the first board of directors of Metrobank in Farmington.

Survivors include his wife, Joyce P.; three sons, George A. Duke III and his wife, Donna, of Milford, Dean D. Duke of Farmington Hills, and Kevin R. Duke and his wife, Marie, of Ann Arbor; one daughter, Linda Taché and her husband, William, of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren; and two brothers, Thomas A. Duke Sr. and his wife, Gail, of Charlevoix and North Palm Beach, Fla., and Bruce E. Duke Sr. of Fenton. Mr. Duke was preceded in death by his son, James K. Duke, in 1987.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may also be made to the Trailblazers of Washtenaw, 218 N. Division, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104. Envelopes for memorial contributions to the Trailblazers are available at the Thayer-Rock Funeral Home, 33603 Grand River Avenue, Farmington, Mich.

Larrie G. Tuomela

Larrie G. Tuomela, 90, of Charlevoix, died March 10, 1994, at his home.

His funeral was held Monday, March 14, at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix with pastor Merlin Wellhausen officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Tuomela was born Oct. 17, 1903, in Quincy Township, Houghton County, the son of Charles and Hilda (Kivikangas) Tuomela. He was raised in South Range and graduated from Painesdale High School in 1921. He graduated from Northern Michigan University in 1927, and attended Michigan State University, the University of Chicago, and the University of Wisconsin.

He married Eva K. Waisanen in 1934 in Negaunee, and she preceded him in death on Sept. 8, 1988.

Mr. Tuomela taught in several Upper Peninsula communities including Hancock, Baraga and Iron River, and in Battle Creek. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1949. Mr. Tuomela taught sixth grade in Charlevoix public school until his retirement in 1968.

He was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. Survivors include one son, John C. of Charlevoix; one grandson, Larrie of Lowell; and one granddaughter Sandra Rockefeller and her husband, David, of Laurel, Md. Mr. Tuomela was preceded in death by his daughter, Sandra, in 1967.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Bethany Lutheran Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Gary L. Crain

Gary L. Crain, 45, of Charlevoix, died March 14, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Thursday, March 17, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Crain was born Oct. 8, 1948, in Charlevoix, the son of Glenn L. and Anna D. (Gibbard) Crain. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1967.

Mr. Crain served with the U.S. Navy on aircraft carriers overseas from 1968-72.

He had been employed by the Medusa Portland Cement Co. for 22 years.

Survivors include two sons, Jamie Crain and Casey Crain, both of Charlevoix; his father, Glenn L. Crain of Charlevoix; four brothers, Mike Crain, and Roger Crain, and his wife, Pam, all of Charlevoix, and Robert Crain and his wife, Shelby, and Dennis Crain and his wife, Evie, all of Dallas, Texas; and two sisters, Sue Shively and her husband, Dave, of Charlevoix, and Connie Shnupp, and her husband, Brian, of Houston, Texas. Mr. Crain was preceded in death by his mother, Anna "Midge" Crain, on Aug. 5, 1989.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the family of Gary Crain. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where visitation will be held 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 16.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
Annual Tax Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING
DOUGLAS E. ROBERTS, State Treasurer
In the Matter of the Partition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

I reviewed the petition of the State Treasurer who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land described for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 11th day of April, 1994. At the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the lien claimed by the State, shall appear in Court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of this Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, will be sold to the public, interest and charges on the taxes, interest and charges on the taxes, beginning at 10:00 a.m. on that day, or any day after, that may be necessary to complete the sale of such lands, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the State Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

The sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the petition shall be sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the smallest unpaid County tax on the parcel. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offering shall be resold on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale. If not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid off the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Palms, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the State of Michigan, this 24th day of February, 1994.

Countersigned:
James E. Brannon, Clerk
Richard M. Palms, Circuit Judge

STATE OF MICHIGAN
In the Matter of the Partition of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas E. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows that he is the State Treasurer and files this petition under the provisions of P.A. 206 of 1983, as amended, and P.A. 360 of 1985, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the list of parcels of land and contains the description of all lands in the above county for which taxes have been assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the date of the sale, (c) a county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for sufficient time to require the sale of the lands against sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that a judgment be entered in favor of the State for the amount of the taxes, interest and charges on each parcel, and if not paid, that the lands be sold.

5. That the State's petition requests: a. That within the time provided by law this court determine that the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land described in Schedule A.

b. That within the time provided by law the court make a final judgment in favor of the State, Michigan against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges in Schedule A, and that the amounts listed in the column headed "Aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless so amended by the court.

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have other rights and further relief that this court finds just and equitable.

Done: February 16, 1994. Douglas E. Roberts, State Treasurer

Care facility allows family to be close to patient

By Ralph McRae

an innocent passenger in the head-on collision. Within minutes of the accident, two physicians happened upon the scene. Seeing that Amy had received multiple head wounds, they did what they could until the ambulance took her to the hospital.

At the hospital, Amy was given a head scan and the attending neurosurgeon urged an immediate operation.

The operation was a lengthy and delicate procedure which will require a long recovery period. Amy was only 16 at the time of the accident. She had many close friends and her classmates were shocked and saddened by the extent of her injuries. So many people came to see her that the hospital placed her

Following her operation, Amy spent a month in an area hospital and then was moved to a trophic recovery center in Grand Rapids. Most of the patients there are young victims of automobile accidents. Daily visits from mother and father were changed to long weekend stays. Therapeutic treatments in this facility were helpful. In order to be close home, Amy was transferred to Boulder Park Terrace in early October. Now, her family can see any day and at any hour.

Amy had been a bright student with high aspirations and a promising future. Starting in kindergarten, she began reading scores of books each year on various subjects. A leader in school, she qualified for top academic honors including the National Merit Scholarship list. An outstanding debater, she was one of ten Michigan students invited to the campaign debate between George W. Bush and Bill Clinton. Looking beyond high school, she planned to attend the Johns Hopkins Institute and study international affairs. In addition to high school academics, Amy was also an enthusiastic athlete and a talented softball player.

Some of Amy's friends chose not to come and see her because they want to remember her as she was before the accident. Amy, a beautiful girl, even more attractive after the beauticians at the care

From 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., every two and a-half hours nurses move Amy from her bed to a wheel chair. When she is moved, care must be taken to protect the area of her head where the injury occurred. Amy cannot eat or drink through her mouth. Every six hours she receives nourishment through an abdominal tube. A tall girl, Amy has maintained her 130 pound weight.

During the holidays, a six foot Christmas tree brightened her room with its many sparkling ornaments. She received many gifts too: Amy watches TV, listens to the radio and a music box. On the walls are scores of photos taken of Amy during

Investment office brings Wall Street to Bridge Street

Investment representative stresses trust

By L. Scott Swanson

A recurring theme Mark Fiegel stresses as he talks about establishing his new business in Charlevoix is building trust. Fiegel is an investment representative with Edward D. Jones and Co. He recently opened an office in the Trademark Clothier building on Bridge Street. Fiegel's role as an investment representative is to counsel, advise and make recommendations to people on their savings and investments.

Fiegel can work with people on a wide range of investments including stocks, mutual funds, retirement plans, tax free bonds, government bonds, corporate bonds and certificates of deposit. Edward D. Jones is a full service investment firm.

Edward D. Jones is an investment firm with 2,600 offices nationwide. The firm was established in 1871 and has its headquarters in St. Louis. The company has a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, but many of its offices are in small towns such as Charlevoix.

Fiegel was working at the company's headquarters in St. Louis when an opportunity came up to start an office in Charlevoix. Originally from Traverse City, Fiegel jumped at the chance to come back to northern Michigan.

Although he only recently opened his office, Fiegel has been in Charlevoix since last June, working out of his home. Edward D. Jones has new agents start new offices by first starting out of their homes in order to encourage them to get out into the community. "They want you to get out and knock on doors and get immersed

Staying in touch with the investment world

Utilizing the phone, a computer and a satellite hook-up, investment representative Mark Fiegel has all kinds of investment information at his fingertips in his new office in the Trademark Clothier building on Bridge Street.

...investing money need not be frightening in the community," Fiegel said. Fiegel is a member of the Charlevoix Rotary Club, played on a city recreation league basketball team, has joined the Chamber of Commerce and is working with the local United Way. In addition to those projects and getting a new business off the ground, he's also working on wedding plans with his fiancée. They will be getting married in September.

Fiegel said Edward D. Jones believes in "bringing Wall Street to Main Street," which is why the company sets up offices in small towns across America and has their representatives get out of the office and meet people.

One of the biggest things to keep people from beginning an investment program is fear of the unknown. Fiegel says overcoming that fear requires building trust. "That's why we go out and meet people face to face. We talk to people at their kitchen table.

Fiegel says investing isn't just for high rollers. People of any age can begin investing with as little as $25. Beginning an investment program isn't complicated. It's just a matter of working with the representative to determine what type of investment suits you and opening up an account.

While people ultimately make their own decision as to how they wish to invest and for what purpose (i.e. retirement, children's education etc.), the investment representative is there to offer advice and guidance. Fiegel has access to a mountain of investment information. His office has its own little satellite system. He can call up virtually any stock on his computer and find out not only latest price figures, but a variety of other information.

Edward D. Jones has been rated as the number one firm in terms of broker satisfaction. Fiegel said Edward D. Jones has their brokers operate in one broker offices so that customers receive one-on-one personal assistance from a broker who has complete freedom in regard to offering them whatever investment product will meet their needs.

Saur presented a $13,235 check to the hospital on behalf of Health Wares' employees which is to be applied toward the purchase of a childbirth delivery light and birthing bed. The hospital's new birth center features the single-room concept of childbirth which requires expensive special equipment in each room.

Parish places fourth in state

Charlevoix wrestler Keith Parish was the top finisher among area wrestlers in the State Finals wrestling meet this past weekend. Parish placed fourth in the Class C-D 189 pound weight class in the state individual finals at Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena.

Parish won his first two matches to assure himself a medal. In his opening match, he pinned a Schoolcraft wrestler in 2:57. In his second match, Parish scored a take down in the final seconds to take an 8-6 decision from a Burton Bendle wrestler.

In the semifinals, Parish lost to the eventual state runner up, who has a 39-1 season record, on a pin in 3:15. Parish then came back to beat a Sheperd wrestler on a pin in 2:14.

In the consolation finals, Parish faced the same Burton Bendle wrestler he had beaten earlier, but this time lost on a 14-8 decision.

Parish finished his senior-year with a 34-4 season record and was 83-51 for his high school career.

Middle School wrestling team brings home several awards

Several Charlevoix elementary and middle school wrestlers competed in the Rogers City Invitational Wrestling Tournament this past weekend. Four Charlevoix wrestlers finished at the top of their weight classes. Chris Dominic placed first for the second week in a row, having placed first at Cheboygan March 5.

Also placing first at Rogers City were: Anthony Cesaro, Roger Pittman and Steve Speigl. All three of them were coming off second place finishes at Cheboygan.

Charlevoix wrestlers placing second at the Rogers City tournament were: Mike Lundy, Steve Hart and Luke Whitley.

Placing third were: Reggie Burks, Ryan Leitner, Pat Matthews, Tyson Potter, J.D. Pop, Rusty Simons and Travis Stuebing.

Placing fourth were: Jeremy Antaya, John Belfy, Derrick Leitner and Brett Probert.

This Saturday, March 19 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Charlevoix will host a middle school wrestling tournament at the Charlevoix High School gym. The Charlevoix tournament is one of the largest middle school wrestling tournaments in the state of Michigan.

Basketball team loses to East Jordan in district game

Rayders finish season with a record of 11-11

Charlevoix's varsity basketball season came to an end March 9 in the second round of District Tournament play with a 66-61 loss to East Jordan. The Rayders had opened the tournament earlier in the week with an upset of conference champion Boyne City. After beating Charlevoix Wednesday night, East Jordan went on to claim the district title Friday night with a 61-59 win over Elk Rapids.

In regular season play, Charlevoix and East Jordan had split a pair of games. The district game was close most of the way, but East Jordan edged ahead in the final minutes of the fourth quarter and Charlevoix could never quite draw back even.

East Jordan led 16-13 at the end of the third quarter. The Rayders had problems all night defending against the Red Devils' taller players. First quarter foul trouble also hurt the Rayders. Starting forwards, David Dobulis and Charlie Pop each picked up two fouls in the opening quarter.

In the second quarter, Charlevoix rallied and took a 28-27 halftime lead. The Rayders received a nice boost off the bench from junior forward Trefor Williams.

East Jordan made up the one point deficit in the third quarter and the teams entered the final quarter tied, 44-44. Charlevoix opened the final quarter with a 5-2 run and led by three, 49-46 with just less than seven minutes to play. But then the game turned and East Jordan went up 55-51 and Charlevoix never saw the lead again.

Don Jess led the Rayders with 20 points, including four three-point shots, in his final high school game. Jess was a three-year varsity player. David Dobulis, another senior, finished the game with 15 points. Williams had 12 points and Jerry Duhart 10. Williams and Duhart are both juniors and will be back next year. Other Rayder seniors playing in their final high school game were Brandon Webb, Chris Pair, Jeff Joy and Zach Pajtas.

Charlevoix finished the season with a record of 11-11.

Whitney's to host Business After Hours

Husband and wife named Sheriff's Department employees of the year

Babette Meggison and her husband, Jerry Meggison, recently were named Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Employee and Voluntary Auxiliary Member of the Year by Sheriff George Lasater.

Babette Meggison has been a full time communication/secretary officer with the sheriff's department for the past six years. Lasater describes her as very efficient, extremely reliable and professional in her assignments. In the news release announcing the awards, Lasater wrote, "Babette is the type of employee who no matter what the assignment I can be assured that it will be accomplished in a timely and efficient manner."

Jerry Meggison volunteers his time as a Sheriff's Auxiliary Member for the Sheriff's office. Meggison, who is employed as Captain of the Steelhead, a Department of Natural Resources research boat, is also a volunteer with the city fire and ambulance departments.

Masons win annual cribbage tournament

The Masons have wrapped up this year's winter cribbage title, sending the Odd Fellows to defeat. This past Thursday evening, the Masons won the night's play by 311 points and built their final margin of victory to 1,579 points.

The year's final evening of play included a rare perfect hand of 29 by Richard "Big" Bergmann. Leading the Masons' scoring for the evening was Ryiyi Kato with 964 points. Charles Dhaseler led the Odd Fellows with 948 points.

For the year, Jamie Crain had the highest average for the Masons while John Barber had the high average among the Odd Fellows. These two men will serve as team captains in next year's tournament.

Grange to host St. Patrick's dance

Barnard Grange will sponsor a St. Patrick's Dance with round and square dancing beginning at 8 p.m., Saturday, March 19 at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix. Tickets are available from Grange members or at the door. The cost is $5 per person or $8 per couple. Music will be provided by the Tag-A-Longs. Food will be served. No alcoholic beverages will be allowed.

St. Mary's School schedules registration

St. Mary's school will host registration for the 1994-95 school year from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., Thursday, March 17 at the school. St. Mary's offers a pre-kindergarten and kindergarten program as well as a first through fifth grade elementary school system. The school's educational philosophy is family-oriented. People who are interested in learning more about the school system are invited to tour the system. For additional information, phone 547-9441.

Nursery school students from the Kid's Corner Nursery School took a field trip to the new Charlevoix Fitness Center recently. Candy Smith, who now operates her Vital Options fitness programs at the new fitness center, led the tots through a series of exercises. The Kid's Corner Nursery School recently hosted its pre-registration for the 1994-95 school year, but parents still interested in registering their children may contact the nursery school at the Congregational Church.

K-5 school schedules conferences

Charlevoix Elementary School will host parent-teacher conferences March 22, 24 and 25. Evening conferences will take place March 22 and 24 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Afternoon conferences will take place from 1 p.m. to 3:45 p.m., March 25. Classes will be dismissed at noon, Friday March 25.

For all elementary school students. There will be no afternoon kindergarten and hot lunch will not be served that day.

For additional information, phone the school at 547-3215.

School art and library departments join forces, with funding help from school enrichment foundation

This past summer elementary school librarian Bette Henne and art teacher Mary Beth McGraw were talking and concluded that it would be nice to brighten up the elementary school library.

Some of the bookshelves served their purpose just fine in that they held books, but there was the potential there for them to be something more. There was also approximately 180 feet of soffit hanging about nine feet off the floor and looking rather plain.

So Henne and McGraw devised a plan to coordinate reading and art and make the library a brighter place.

One of the first products of that plan currently is nearing completion in the art room. It is a bookshelf which is more than 10 feet long and about five feet high. The bookshelf is decorated with a variety of fictional characters familiar to elementary children. Among them are Snow White and Aladdin. The characters are all the work of elementary art students. One of the students, Rachael Bellairs, sketched the characters and then she and several other students filled them in.

Meanwhile several other students have been working on paintings which will line the soffit. Not all of the paintings are fictional. Henne and McGraw wanted the project to encourage the students to become more aware of the illustrations both in fiction and non-fiction books.

McGraw said that up to now she's had about 16 students working on the project and will probably involve more as the project goes on. She says the kids have been very excited and work on the project not just during art classes, but whenever they get some time and can get into the art room.

McGraw likes the project because it not only develops and showcases the students' artistic talents it also demonstrates how arts are related to other areas of education such as literature. In fact this project is not the only time the elementary school art department and the library have collaborated. An art department creation already found in the library is a display case that looks like a movie marquee with a string of lights running around its perimeter. Each week a different reading topic is featured in the display.

The book shelf and soffit project has been undertaken above and beyond normal art or library programs. Consequently, it required some money which wasn't in the budget. Henne and McGraw sought and received a $450 grant from the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation. The foundation is not a branch of the school system, but is a private nonprofit foundation set up to help provide Charlevoix school students with some educational opportunities above and beyond basic educational programs. The foundation has received grants and donations from the Frey Foundation and private individuals and has used these grants and donations to set up funds which generate interest. The interest from these funds is used to fund projects such as the elementary library and art project.

Cooperative Nursery School schedules registration

Registration for the Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery School's 1994-95 school year will take place March 16 in the Nursery School room and the Elementary School. Sign-up times are as follows: 6 p.m. for returning students; 6:30 p.m. for alumni; 7 p.m. for new students. There is a $20 registration fee.

For the school's twice a week program, children must be three years old by Sept. 1. For the school's three times a week program, children must be four years old by Sept. 1.

Due to space constraints, the Cooperative Nursery will not be in the elementary school next year. However, the Friends of 4H have offered the nursery school a room at the Castle Farms Community Center for the 1994-95 school year.

For additional information regarding Cooperative Nursery School registration, phone 547-4282.

County Democrats discuss upcoming elections

School debate continues during a long, hot meeting

By Laurie Lounsbury

The debate between Dr. Roberta Jackson, school superintendent, and several community members over high school principal Dave Smith's reassignment continued at Monday evening's school board meeting. About two hundred community members packed a high school study hall, which grew muggy as the evening wore on, to question the board and superintendent's administrator evaluation process.

Jackson opened the meeting with a lengthy review of her administrator evaluation process. She cited meetings held with administrators every six months for the purpose of setting goals, identifying needs and setting objectives. Jackson also quoted excerpts from the North Central Association visitation, a review of the high school that was done in April of 1991. Jackson pointed out that some of the problems at the high school and with Smith pre-dated her arrival in Charlevoix. Jackson read from the review, which said, "In a nutshell, David (Smith) is running at 78 r.p.m.'s while the majority of the faculty functions quite comfortably at 45 r.p.m.'s. It is, unfortunately, obvious that there is discord between staff and administration at Charlevoix High School." Jackson cited different areas in the report that dealt with a lack of communication between Smith and the teaching faculty.

Audience member Jim Stewart, who also had a copy of the report, chose to quote a different passage from the study: "Dave Smith is a hard working educator. He has a clear vision of what a high school should 'look like,' and it is based upon recent literature, what works well, and common sense. Indeed, his grasp of what is required is underestimated." Stewart said he was not sure if the report was fair or not, but he was sure it was a good one.

By Laurie Lounsbury

Skip Young likes to run his ideas up the flagpole and see how they fly - literally. Young has been entertaining travelers on Barnard Road with his wide assortment of flags since he moved to the country three years ago. The seasons, the holidays, the weather, and the sports activities guide Young in his flag selection. Young changes his flags every week or two, depending on prevailing circumstances. Earlier this winter, after ten days of subzero weather and howling snowstorms, passersby chuckled to themselves when they saw a white flag of surrender flying in Young's front yard. "I was surrendering to Mother Nature," Young said with a mischievous grin.

Young's passion for flags began when he was still living in town on May Street. Back then he had to be satisfied with a flag mount on the side of his house. He dreamed of living in the country and having enough room for an impressively tall flagpole.

The patriotic Young was initially contented flying the American flag in front of his new home. He started branching out when he saw a birthday flag in a novelty catalogue at The Treasure Chest store. Young's wife, Pauline, runs a day care center in their home, so Young thought the children would enjoy seeing a birthday flag with candles on a cake waving in the wind on their special days. The birthday flag was so well received that Young decided to branch out with holiday flags. The Christmas flag came next, followed rapidly with the Bah Humbug flag. Young says he flies the Bah Humbug flag "When I get tired of my wife dragging me through the malls at Christmas time."

Young's college team loyalties are also no secret, courtesy of his flagpole. When Michigan State University's football team lost to the University of Michigan, Young flew his MSU flag at half-mast. By his own admission, Young is not so much pro-MSU as he is anti-University of Michigan. "I want to have a flag for every team in the Big Ten, so I can fly the team flag of whoever is playing University of Michigan," Young said.

Young's flagpole accoutrements cover more than holidays and sports teams. He has flags to greet newborns into the world with "It's a Boy" or "It's a Girl." He salutes married couples with his "Happy Anniversary" flag, and congratulates the high school graduating class with his "Con-Grad-ulations" flag. He takes requests for birthday, anniversary, or baby announcement flags from friends and neighbors. He reminds people of election days with his "GO VOTE" flag. He even supports the Charlevoix Rayders with a custom made Rayder flag.

Young figures a couple hundred people see his flags each day. Some people make a special trip down Barnard to see what's flapping in the wind. Ed Whitley told Young that he routinely makes a trip down Barnard to check and see what holiday is upcoming. "He likes to see if it's a shopping holiday, in case he has to get his wife a present," Young said.

Vandalism isn't usually a problem in Young's neck of the country, but he did have one case of flag theft. On the eve of the University of Michigan/Ohio State University game, Young defiantly flew the Ohio State University flag. The next morning, he discovered the OSU flag was gone, replaced with the maze and blue flag of U of M.

Young is looking forward to flying his "Spring Fever" flag March 20. He'll have to wait until the Indy 500 to fly his checkered race car flag, although circumstances might prompt him to fly it sooner. "I'll put it up if I see one of those Swanson boys driving by," he said.

Young is already prepared for the day that University of Michigan loses during the NCAA basketball

Always running something up the flagpole to see who salutes it

Skip Young has been amusing Barnard Road travelers with his collection of flags. The latest addition is his "No Whining" flag which will fly when the University of Michigan loses a basketball game.

play-offs. He made a flag for the day of defeat, which bears a large, red circle with a red slash line going through it and the words "No Whining" inside the circle. The flag will no doubt bring more guffaws and grumbles from the folks driving by. "It's fun to keep my fans entertained out on Barnard Road," Young said.

Young doesn't hesitate when it comes to declaring his own favorite flag. "The American flag, no doubt. Old Glory," he said proudly.

common among his peers," Stewart quoted.

Public comment, which became an ongoing dialogue between Smith, Jackson, and audience members, continued for two and a half hours. Audience members shifted their concern from the board and Jackson's handling of Smith's reassignment to the issue of whether or not Smith would be happy to return to teaching. Audience member Bill Supernaw asked Smith to tell him if he wanted to be principal or if he wanted to be a teacher. Supernaw said he'd be happy to get behind Smith and support him if he wanted to get reinstated as principal, or he'd be happy to let the matter drop if Smith was happy returning to teaching. Supernaw also said the board and the community had a right to know what Smith really wanted, so they could go forward with the process. Smith initially couldn't answer the question, but later said, "I want to be on this team. I just don't know where my place is on this team right now."

While Jackson and Smith went back and forth on the issues of leadership and communication at the high school, Smith took the leadership question one level higher. "The issue is leadership," Smith said. "The process, the communication, and goals require leadership. People have to be trained to know how to get there," he added.

Former principal Vane Smith raised a question regarding the alleged lack of communication between Smith and his faculty. "I've been at two meetings, and no one from the high school has said anything. That concerns me," Vane Smith said.

After everyone wanting to make a comment was allowed to do so, the board ended the public comment portion of the meeting and went on to other agenda items. No further action was taken on Smith's resignation and reassignment to teacher.

Marine Pvt. Jimmy F. Howard, son of Colleen Howard of Charlevoix recently completed recruit training.

During the training cycle at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., recruits are taught the basics of battlefield survival, introduced to typical military daily routine, and personal and professional standards.

All recruits participate in an active physical conditioning program and gain proficiency in a variety of military skills including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline are emphasized throughout the cycle.

Bobby Christoph, son of Mr. Robert Christoph of Miami Beach, FL, and Mrs. Alicia Mosher of Charlevoix, MI, is a member of the Culver Military Academy's Junior Varsity hockey team and was selected to play as part of the "Illiana/Culver" team which participated in the Indiana Classic Hockey Tournament championship March 6. Christoph, a third-classman (sophomore), was right wing on the team of 30 players.

Culver Military Academy has three hockey teams, but only the schools Varsity A Team, which hosted the Classic, played as a team. Select members of Culver's Varsity B and Junior Varsity teams played as part of the "Illiana/Culver" team in the contest at the Henderson Ice Arena on the Academy's campus.

In addition to the Culver players, the "Illiana/Culver" team was comprised of top ranking hockey players from high schools in Illinois and the northwest Indiana. All-star teams from South Bend, IN, and Ft. Wayne, IN, as well as a Hoosier team from Indianapolis, rounded out the five-team competition. Tim McNeill, former assistant hockey coach at Notre Dame, was the tournament director.

Navy Lt. j.g. Russell J. Coolman, son of John P. and Dianne A. Coolman of Charlevoix, recently departed for a six-month deployment aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Vicksburg, homeported in Mayport, Fla to the Mediterranean.

The 7,500 Atlantic Fleet sailors who comprise elements of a joint task group (JTG) which included units of the aircraft USS Saratoga Battle Group and the USS Incheon Amphibious Ready Group, relieved the USS America JTG. Joining the JTG, are 2,000 Marines from the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit from North Carolina.

Coolman is one of the more than 350 crewmembers aboard USS Vicksburg. The 567-foot-long cruiser is armed with missiles, torpedoes and guns.

City council adopts budget

By a 4-2 vote, the Charlevoix City Council approved the 1994-95 city budget Monday evening. Council members Butch Russell from the second ward and Don Meggison from the first ward voted against the proposed budget which calls for a tax levy of 13.83 mills and total city expenditures of approximately $8.6 million.

During discussion leading up to the vote, Russell questioned a proposed increase in water rates of 20 percent and Meggison questioned increased fire department costs.

The 13.83 mill figure is .36 of a mill higher than the previous year. The $8.6 million figure is approximately $700,000 than the previous year.

Council members considered two possible scenarios for raising water rates. Under the scenario adopted, rates will be raised 20 percent this year and 17.5 percent and 12 percent during the next two years. Under the scenario rejected, water rates would have been raised 35 percent this year and 5 percent the next two years and 4.8 percent three years from now.

For most home owners the rate increase in dollars will be between $13 and $30 per year.

OPINIONS

Editor's notes

For this week, let's take an editorial page break from school trauma and Downtown Development Authority debate and talk about some other things in our community.

As a tough winter winds down, we can look back at all of the hardships caused by the snow and cold, but there are also some good things worth mentioning.

At the Charlevoix Rotary Club, we have a fine box which is used to collect money for a scholarship fund. (The Charlevoix Lions' Club uses a hollowed out baseball bat for their fines.) Fines can be levied for any infraction the finer can imagine. At the Rotary Club a guy once got fined for sitting in the chair where Bill Gengle usually sits. Dr. Dave Strawbridge can pretty much count on being fined whenever a University of Michigan sports team does something good or bad. Dennis Halverson gets hit for the ups and downs of MSU.

In addition to the fines, the Rotarians have a thing called "Happy Dollars." Happy dollars are put into the fine box by someone in celebration when something good happens. Last week, one of the Rotarians kicked in a happy dollar for a traffic accident. Yes, for a traffic accident. The man was returning from a downstate business trip when his car went out of control and slid off into the ditch. Fortunately, he wasn't hurt, but the accident still had the potential to mess up his day. But almost before he had time to finish cursing his bad luck, along came a young guy in a truck. The guy was a complete stranger, but he quickly produced a tow rope and pulled the car up out of the ditch and got the Charlevoix man back on his way.

The great thing about this story is that almost everyone in town could tell one that's similar. There are places in this world where if your car breaks down, the stranger who sees you and stops may not be stopping to help. That's not how it is in northern Michigan. Around here, when some poor soul is stuck in the snow, you stop to help. Because tomorrow you could be the one spinning your wheels in a snowbank. In these parts, we believe in taking care of each other. This winter may have been a tough one, but on more than one occasion it brought out the best in people.

Pity the Academy Awards. In Charlevoix, they had the misfortune of following the Elementary School Spring Musical by a few days and thus were anticlimactic. One of many nice things about the performance is that music teacher Marina LaBlance and art teacher Mary Beth McGraw and their students do such a great job of combining a wide spectrum of arts. The show exposes the students to song, dance, instrumental music, drawing and painting. It's also an exercise in creativity, which is the heart and soul of any artistic endeavor. After the show someone asked McGraw how she came up with the spectacular eight-foot high balloon. She said creating the balloon involved clear plastic, duct tape, some helium and reversing the air flow on a vacuum cleaner.

During the past week, the Courier office has been a hotbed of conversation regarding the NCAA basketball tournament. Courier staffers Laurie Lounsbury, Kyle Smith and L. Scott Swanson have been joined by Bill Dreyer, who stops in every Wednesday morning to pick up a Courier, in a spirited competition of picking the tournament winners. After two rounds, the selection records of the competitors are as follows: Lounsbury 36-12 (She's just been picking the favorites. In the later rounds she'll falter); Swanson 36-14 (He's positioned himself perfectly for a late round win.); Smith 31-17 (The second round killed him.); Dreyer 30-18 (He started off 8-7 and picked his alma mater, the University of Southwestern Louisiana, as a final four team.)

Speaking of sports, the middle school and high school gyms were full of junior high kids Saturday. At the middle school, the local junior high girls league wrapped up its season with a post-season tournament. At the high school, Charlevoix hosted several schools in a junior high wrestling tournament. Dennis Dominic was among the local parents dividing time between events. His daughter, Sara, was playing in the basketball tournament while his son, Chris, was wrestling.

Chris Dominic's wrestling this season is kind of an interesting story. Former high school wrestler Greg Whitley has been working with the middle school wrestlers for several years. On the first day of practice this season, Whitley was working with some wrestlers when he noticed Chris Dominic standing quietly off to the side of the room, watching. Chris is about 5'9" and probably weighs between 150 and 160 pounds. Whitley had never met him and initially thought that maybe Chris was a high school kid who just happened to stop by to watch the practice. After a few minutes, Whitley finally asked Chris who he was and why he was there. Chris told Whitley who he was and that he's in the eighth grade and he wanted to try wrestling. Whitley said fine, get on the mat and we'll see what you can do. During the past three weekends, Chris Dominic has wrestled in three tournaments and is undefeated. In one match he found himself matched against an opponent who was several inches taller and several pounds heavier than he is. The pairing may have made his parents, Dennis and Bonnie Dominic, a bit nervous but it didn't seem to bother Chris. He pinned the guy in less than a minute. Saturday, Dennis Dominic said he's not even sure if Chris had ever seen a wrestling match prior to this year. Be that as it may, the young man seems to have caught on quickly.

Another middle school wrestler who's having an interesting season is John Belfy. Former high school wrestling coach Norm Probert has been working with Whitley coaching the middle school wrestlers and this past Monday morning was in the Courier office beaming with pride as he talked about Belfy's performance Saturday. Belfy's season started off miserably. He lost six straight matches in less than a minute. Nothing was going right. Try to sugar coat it all you want, but the bottom line is losing just isn't any fun. Belfy was disappointed, frustrated and just generally unhappy with the way things were going. When a couple of his teammates started giving him static in practice Friday about his record, he decided he'd had enough. He went to the locker room and packed his bags.

One of the other wrestlers saw what had happened and notified Probert. By the time Probert tracked down Belfy, he was out the door and on the sidewalk headed for home. Probert corralled Belfy and, although it took quite a bit of talking, persuaded him to give wrestling one more shot and participate in Saturday's tournament.

Saturday morning, John Belfy stepped into the wrestling circle and put his 0-6 record on the line along with a junior high ego which had taken a few shots in recent weeks. Lo! and behold, he won two preliminary matches and ended up in the consolation finals, wrestling for third and fourth place. In the consolation finals, Belfy found himself squaring off with an opponent who had beaten him badly three times earlier in the season. Saturday's match came down to the final seconds. Trailing by two points, Belfy put his opponent on his back three times, missing the points which would have given him the win only because the opponent was able to squirm out of bounds. The same opponent who earlier had beaten Belfy three times with ease now found himself scrambling to survive and wondering - what in the world got into this guy? Belfy ended up losing the match 4-2 and settling for fourth place. But, all in all, it had been a better day for John Belfy.

Thanks for basketball program

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who volunteered their time and energy to make Charlevoix Girls Recreation Basketball another great success this year.

To the 16 team coaches and their assistants, who put in many hours working with the girls; to the twenty-one referees, who made the games possible; to all the people who kept statistics and ran the clock; to all the parents who allowed us the opportunity to work with your daughters; and to all the fans who showed their support by attending our games.

A special thanks to Rick Grunch and Melodie Barrett whom without their countless hours of devotion this program would have never been possible.

To city and school officials for their help and support.

Most importantly, we would like to thank the 170 girls whose participation, interest, and dedication is really what Recreational Basketball is all about. Thank-you everyone!

Two places to find pride and energy

Editor,

Two events took place last week which inspired me to write this letter.

On this past Thursday evening, I was fortunate to be a member of the audience for this year's Charlevoix Elementary School's spring musical, United We Sing. On the following day, I was called by the chairwoman of a special committee for the Federated Garden Clubs that one of our students, a fifth grade Charlevoix Elementary girl, had won a statewide poster contest and her poster will be traveling to Washington D.C. to represent not only Michigan but Charlevoix as well as "Smoke the Bear's" 50th birthday celebration.

These instances reminded me that we need to take a good look at the things that are working well within our school system while we are trying to change the things that are not.

It was so much fun to watch all 500 little sets of eyes watch Mrs. LaBlance for her next direction on Thursday evening while they danced, sang and enjoyed their performance right along with her.

It is at this level that the sparks of interest begin to glow in our children and when these interests and talents should be encouraged and nourished. Mrs. LaBlance and Ms. McGraw both deserve credit for doing just that. We've graduated many accomplished musicians, artists and other performers who quite likely received their first encouragement in these endeavors from these faculty members.

I do not intend for this letter to diffuse the current sentiments about the issues within our schools that need to be changed. I do feel, however, that we can take a look at these things that are right within the system and perhaps draw from them the pride and energy that it will take to fix the things that are wrong.

Sincerely,
Patricia Moore

NCMC receives $10,000 donation for nursing program

For the second year in a row, an anonymous donor has given $10,000 to the North Central Michigan College Foundation to be used in support of NCMC nursing education.

The gift was announced by college president Robert B. Graham at a recent meeting of the Foundation Board of Directors. Graham says the donation will become part of a special fund within the foundation to be earmarked for the advancement of nursing education. "We're very grateful for this significant gift," he says. "It's a wonderful expression of support and will do a lot to champion a program we're really proud of."

In making her gift to the college, the donor, who is a second-year nursing student at NCMC, said she wanted to help future nursing students and pay tribute to her nursing instructors. "They've had a positive impact on my life as a nursing student and as a person," she explains. "This is a way for me to express my appreciation."

Since beginning its nursing program in 1966, NCMC has graduated 800 students—many of whom go on to work at one of the area's medical facilities. More than 90 students are currently enrolled in the NCMC nursing program.

With its most recent gift, the NCMC foundation's assets have grown to more than $300,000. The foundation was started three years ago to receive and manage charitable donations which in turn can be used to expand and enhance programs at North Central Michigan College. Located in Petoskey, the community college serves a 55-county region in northern Michigan.

obituaries Luanna Best

Luanna Best, 60, formerly of Charlevoix, died March 9 in Tampa, Florida. For the past 27 years, Mrs. Best had lived in Land O' Lakes, Florida. Her funeral was held Monday, March 14 at the First United Methodist Church in Land O' Lakes.

Mrs. Best was born in Ironton, the daughter of Joseph Bambach and Winnifred (Cunningham) Bambach. She was raised in the Charlevoix area and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1951. She was a homemaker and a charter member of the First United Methodist Church of Land O' Lakes.

Survivors include: her husband, Robert R. Best of Land O' Lakes; two sons: Jeffrey and wife Cindy; and Mark and wife Mary; a daughter, Lea Ann and husband, Wayne; brother Donald Bambach of Charlevoix; and five grandchildren. Funeral arrangements were handled by the F.T. Blount Co. Funeral Home, Lutz, FL.

Paul LaBlance

Paul Emerald LaBlance, formerly of Charlevoix, died March 10 at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Mr. LaBlance was the son of Emerald and Helen LaBlance of South Hampton, Ontario. He was a 1957 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He worked for many years with his father as a commercial fisherman and then went on to become a tugboat captain.

Survivors include: his wife, Micheline; five children and 11 grandchildren; his brothers, Michael, Joseph, James, Peter, Shaun, Albert and Robert and sister Catherine. He was preceded in death by a sister Margaret.

Funeral services were held March 14 at Blessed Sacrament Church in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

A real surprise met my eyes Sunday morning. When I went out to ring the church bell before worship, at the base of the tower were little green buds peeking up between the stone. The bulbs we had planted last summer survived the cold! They were starting to grow.

If that wasn't enough reason to be hopeful about the changing seasons, a close look at the mountain ash tree in my front yard revealed some signs of leaf buds as well! Rumor even has it that a robin or two has been sighted in our neck of the woods.

How do they know? How do the bulbs, the trees, and even the birds know when it is time to bloom, to return, and to warm our hearts with hopeful signs of the future? Could it be they listen to a voice greater than their own? Could it be the call of their Creator is stronger than we had imagined?

If you are a parent, there is one thing you just about insist on from your children. You want them to listen to you. You are the "Experienced" one with the ways of life. You know what is best for them. You want to see them grow up, learn, and enjoy the fruits of a happy life more than anything else in the world. And for the most part, when they do listen to you, your advice is pretty good. It does see them safely through.

It should not take being a preacher to figure out where I am headed next. Why else do you think we know God as our Father in heaven? Why else do you think the Bible is filled with references to our need to develop a "child-like" faith? Children listen to their parents. Children trust their parents. Children count on their parents' love. If we human beings recognize the importance of that with our little ones, how much more do you figure God, the Father almighty and the Maker of Heaven and earth recognizes that in His dealings with us?

If the birds can make it from winter to spring by listening to their Father's voice, what about you and I? If the trees can learn just the right moment to bud and flower in spite of the unpredictability of northern Michigan weather, what about you and I? If even the tiny flowers have the courage to endure and survive because of being aware of their Father's voice, what about you and I?

God will speak if you will listen. He will speak through His written Word if you are truly open to the treasures that it holds. He will speak through the efforts of His ministers if you will recognize the care they have taken in simply trying to be open to the Spirit. He will speak to your own heart in ways that are clear and unmistakable. God's voice surrounds us. We just need to learn how to listen.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

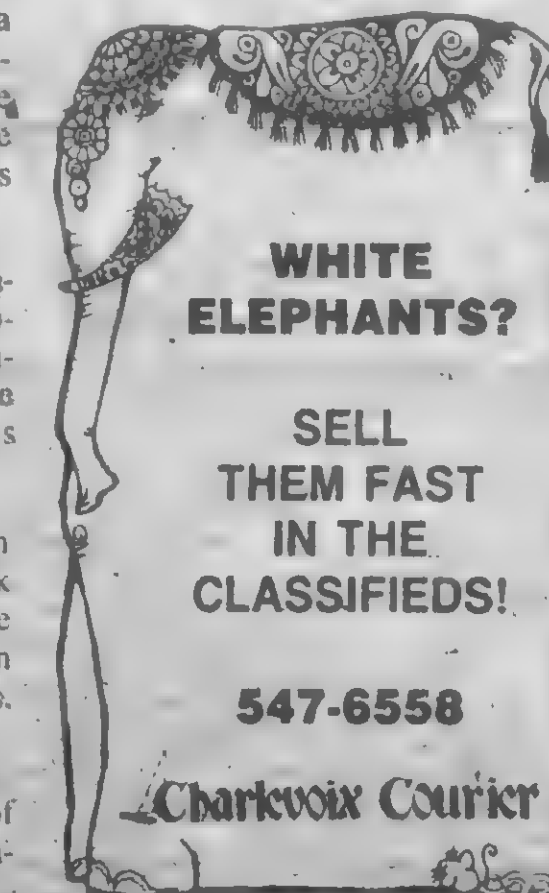

Church to present Easter musical

The Easter Musical, The Victor, will be presented at Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Thursday, March 31, Good Friday, and Easter Sunday evening. All performances will be at 7 p.m. The church is located on M-66 two miles south of U.S. 31. Doors will open at 6:15 each evening.

The one-hour performances are fast moving and action filled. Young and old alike are inspired, challenged, and blessed by this musical and dramatic presentation of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ.

All music, choir and orchestra, is under the leadership of Steve Stargard while Pam Kilander is directing the drama. Kilander has an extensive background in drama and musical productions.

"Our purpose in presenting The Victor to our community is simply to present the story of Jesus and to share His love for all man with them," says Pastor Lowell Anderson. An invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

STATE OF MICHIGAN Annual Tax Sale

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

Reviewed the petition of the State Treasurer who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land herein described, for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 11th day of April, 1994. At the opening of Court on that day, at persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the sale claimed by the State, shall appear in the court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of the Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, will be sold for the taxes, interest and charges on the 1st Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10:00 A.M. on that day or days after, that are necessary to complete the sale of each parcel, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

The sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays in full the amount charged against the parcel and accepts the smallest unadvised interest in the property. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offered shall be resold on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, if not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid off the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Pajtas, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 24th day of February 1994.

Countersigned:
Jane E. Blanton, Clerk
Richard M. Pajtas, Circuit Judge

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas B. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer and has the petition under the provisions of P.A. 206 of 1985 as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1985, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the tax record required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) a county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for sufficient time to require the sale of the lands against which they were assessed at the next annual tax sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that judgment be issued in favor of the State against the land for the payment of the amounts specified, and if not paid, that the lands be sold.

Therefore your petitioner requests:

a. That within the time provided by law this court determine that the delinquent taxes, interest, and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land described in Schedule A;

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges in Schedule A, and that the amounts listed in the column headed "Aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless so amended by this court;

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides;

d. That your petitioner may have such other and further relief that this court finds just and equitable.

SPORTS

Katy Frey puts up a shot during Saturday's Charlevoix Recreation Department middle school division basketball tournament. Frey's team, The Foxes, went unbeaten during the regular season, but were upset 20-15 by the Gems in the tournament. The Rejectors ended up winning the tournament.

Anna-Kate Trubilowitz and Brian Christiansen built two of the more creative bird-houses which have been on display at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Trubilowitz worked on her general store with her father, Bill Trubilowitz, while Christiansen and his grandfather, Ken Christiansen, pooled their talents on his log cabin.

Great Lakes get a federal office

A Congressional Panel has approved legislation introduced by U.S. Rep. Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) that would require the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to establish a Great Lakes office in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the office would be to promote and coordinate NOAA research, monitoring, and assessment work in the Great Lakes region.

"My bill will streamline government bureaucracy by establishing a line of communication about the Great Lakes between NOAA's Washington, D.C. office and their field offices in Michigan," Stupak said. "No additional staff would have to be hired, but the Great Lakes region would finally have a voice in Washington within NOAA."

Stupak's bill, H.R. 1394, would authorize $100,000 per year for fiscal years 1994 through 1998.

ANN ANDERSON, TRUSTEE,

OTTO DUSDAL and

EVELYN DUSDAL and

The unknown heirs, devisees or assignees of ELLA FOX; F.J. MEECH and POLLIE L. MEECH.

Defendants.

This is an action to determine claims of title, equitable title, right to possession and other interests in land, more specifically to determine that conveyances made by the named ancestors of the unknown heirs did not reserve title of the premises, but conveyed same to Plaintiffs predecessors in title.

Defendants may answer Plaintiff's Complaint by directing a written response to Plaintiff's attorney, John D. Fershee, 314 E. Lake Street, Petoskey, Michigan 49770, within 28 days from the date of the first publication.

Mailing a copy of the Order is not required because addresses of the unknown heirs of said Defendants are not known.

Failure of Defendants to answer or take other action within said 28 days may result in the entry of the default judgment against Defendants in favor of Plaintiffs.

Charlevoix teachers receive three percent pay increase

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix teachers will be receiving a three percent salary increase this year and between 2.5 percent and 3.5 percent (depending on inflation) for the next two years. The three percent raise will be retroactive to Sept. 1, 1993. The contract also calls for teachers to work two in-service days which will not reduce the instructional time for students.

School board members ratified the contract Monday evening by a 5-0 vote. Board members Larry Levegood and Mary Lee Campbell were absent.

Under the new contract the salary schedule will range from $25,602 for a first year teacher with a bachelor's degree to $50,491 for a teacher with an Educational Specialist degree and 25 years of experience. In 1994-95 the salary schedule will range from $26,242 to $51,753.

Prior to the board's voting on the contract, John Haggard, a member of the audience voiced concern regarding two issues. Haggard said he opposes a provision in the contract which allows married couples who are both teachers to benefit twice from school insurance benefits. According to the contract a married couple teaching in the Charlevoix school system may receive medical insurance for their family through one teacher, and the spouse may then receive an additional payment into an annuity rather than the redundant insurance coverage. Haggard maintained that equates to "double dipping." He suggested the board amend the contract prior to ratification.

Haggard also argued that setting the school calendar should not be a contract matter, but should be something left to the discretion of the board and school administrators.

Board members said coming up with the proposed contract had been a lengthy give and take process and at this point they are unwilling to go back and renegotiate the issues Haggard raised.

Audience member Harry Golski asked if the school will be able to fund the contract without going to voters for additional millage. School business manager Rich Kelly, who earlier had offered an explanation of school funding changes following the March 15 passage of a state ballot proposal, said that will depend on whether or not the state comes through with anticipated funding.

Kelly said that with the ballot proposal Charlevoix anticipates receiving a foundation grant of $6,472 per student next year, which would equate to approximately $8,640,000. That money would come from a six mill state levy on all homestead property (i.e. people's main homes), and an 18 mill levy on all other property. That 18 mill levy would have to be approved by voters in June. The ballot proposal also allows school districts to ask voters for up to three additional enhancement mills for the next three years. After three years, any additional millage would have to be on an intermediate school district basis.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Melissa Jarman of Charlevoix and Cheboygan has been named a semifinalist in the 1994 Presidential Scholars Program. Jarman is one of 2,600 semifinalists selected from approximately 2.5 million students expected to graduate from U.S. high schools in 1994. Jarman is the daughter of Pamela Griggs and David Jarman. She is currently a senior at Cheboygan High School.

Keith Carey of Charlevoix is listed in the Alma College spring sports media guide as a member of the Alma College track team. Carey, an Alma College freshman, will be among the team's hurdlers this season. Carey is the son of Bill and Judy Carey of Charlevoix. He is a 1993 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Acacia debate takes on new twists

L. Scott Swanson

Debate over the fate of the U.S. Coast Guard Icebreaker Mackinaw stationed in Cheboygan will play a key role in determining whether the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, or a ship like it, remains stationed in Charlevoix. Currently, the issue involves at least four layers of government and is fluid and difficult to follow. As Charlevoix Mayor Dave Novotny says, "It's still up in the air. There's just so many ifs, ands and so forths here."

Novotny and city officials have been dealing with congressmen Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) and Bob Carr (D-East Lansing). The other two levels of government involved are the U.S. Coast Guard District Headquarters in Cleveland and the U.S. Coast Guard National Headquarters in Washington D.C. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has also hired former congressman Bob Davis to lobby for retention of a Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix.

The Acacia is under the Aids to Navigation and Waterways Branch of the U.S. Coast Guard's Ninth District which has its headquarters in Cleveland. Earlier this year, that office did a series of studies and, based on the results, recommended the Mackinaw be decommissioned and the Acacia moved to Cheboygan. Ultimately, the Acacia would be decommissioned

Alzheimer's: A frustrating disease for all concerned

(Writer's note: The women in this story, Bertha Groesser and Bethel Bye, are real people, living at Grandvue and in East Jordan, respectively. Bye was willing to talk about her mother's struggle with Alzheimer's disease, saying, "If this story helps anyone deal with Alzheimer's disease, then it's worth it.")

By Laurie Lounsbury

At five in the morning, 90 year old Bertha Groesser thought it was time to make breakfast. She popped the toast in the toaster. When the toast reappeared, Bertha stared blankly at it and shoved it back down. Time and time again, Bertha toasted the toast until it was so charred black it set off the smoke alarm. Bertha became very agitated at the sound of the smoke alarm. She didn't know what the sound was, couldn't remember the purpose of the shrill noise - still agitated, she pushed the burnt toast down into the toaster again. It was time to make breakfast.

Bertha's daughter, Bethel Bye, raced to the rescue when she heard the smoke alarm go off. Bertha scolded her daughter, blamed everything on her. Totally exhausted, Bye started to accept the truth that the doctors were reluctant to admit - Bye's mother was suffering from Alzheimer's disease.

For Bye, it has been a torturous, 11 year process to diagnose and treat her mother's Alzheimer's disease. Bye now says she can look back and recognize the first signs of her mother's illness, though at the beginning the symptoms were attributed to other problems.

Bertha devoted her life to caring for others. She became a registered nurse in 1924. In 1982, she found herself in the stressful position of caring for her disabled son and terminally ill husband, who was dying of cancer. Bertha became irrational and suspicious of others. She didn't trust her daughter to help. "I know now it was jealousy, she wanted the attention for herself," Bye

Some sources of help

Alzheimer's disease cannot be accurately diagnosed until a brain autopsy is done on the diseased. For that reason, diagnosing Alzheimer's disease is a challenge. At Munson Medical Center, a diagnostic treatment center is available to assist people with concerns about Alzheimer's disease. The clinic is a satellite of the Michigan Alzheimer's Disease Research Center at the University of Michigan. The phone number of the clinic is (616) 435-6650.

Grandvue hosts Alzheimer's support group meetings on the third Tuesday of every month. Grandvue is a charter member of the North-west Michigan Chapter of Alzheimer's Association.

Respite care is available on a limited basis for people caring for Alzheimer's patients at home. There is currently a waiting list for people in need of respite care. For more information, call Grandvue Medical Care Facility at 536-2266.

Grandvue focuses on dementia

By Laurie Lounsbury

The fastest growing segment of the population in the United States today is the elderly over age 85. Of those, nearly half will suffer from some form of dementia, according to the Alzheimer's Association.

"That fits with what we're seeing here at Grandvue," said Penny Drury, Administrator of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. The staff and board of Grandvue are taking steps to meet the growing numbers of people suffering from dementia. They're planning to spend a portion of the $627,000 in their capital improvement fund to develop a special needs unit for people with dementia. Drury has also filed a Certificate of Need for 20 additional

Time to register next year's kindergarteners

Charlevoix Elementary School will host kindergarten registration for the 1994-95 school year April 13 and 14. In order to register parents and their children will need to attend one of four 90-minute sessions. The sessions will take place from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. April 13 and 14. Parents are asked to phone the elementary school at 547-3215 no later than Aug. 12 in order to reserve a space in one of the sessions.
 Parents should bring the following information with them to the registration: A certified copy of the child's birth certificate (i.e. a copy from the county clerk's office with an affixed seal, not a church, baptismal or hospital record); Up-to-date immunization records; social security numbers for father, mother and child; a photograph of the child (to be returned at a later date).
 The 90 minute mini sessions at registration are designed to give the child a feeling of what a day in school will be like. During the mini-sessions, the children will be informally observed for the purpose of making recommendations as to the most beneficial placement for the 1994-95 school year.
 Charlevoix Elementary School will again be offering a Young Fives program in addition to kindergarten. Young Fives is a full year of half-day sessions which lead to kindergarten the following year.
 The Charlevoix board of Education recommends that children entering kindergarten be five years old by Sept. 1, 1994. Also, in the event a child is to be registered and will not be living with the natural parents, it is required that guardianship papers or court placement papers be presented to school personnel at the time of kindergarten registration.
 For additional information, contact the school office at 547-3215.

...Alzheimer's disease causes confusion and frustration

she took her husband to the doctor. The family attributed her odd behavior to the stress she was experiencing. When it got to be more than she could handle, Bertha put her son in the Grandvue Medical care facility. Bertha's husband passed away eleven years ago, but Bertha's odd behavior continued. Doctors treated her for depression. Bertha kept driving her car in spite of the many accidents she had. She and her family blamed her poor driving on her failing eyesight.

Bye and her husband came to live with Bertha four years ago, when they decided it was no longer safe for Bertha to live alone. Bye rode in the passenger seat as her mother drove to the grocery store one day. There was only one other car in the parking lot, but Bertha managed to hit it. She turned to her daughter and said, "Where in the world am I and what am I doing?"

Thoughts of Alzheimer's disease lurked in the minds of both Bertha and her daughter, but neither was willing to accept it. Their relationship became strained as Bertha blamed her daughter for imagined wrongdoings. Bye's feelings were continuously hurt, since she believed her strong-willed mother was deliberately not following directions just to spite her.

Bertha discovered new ways of getting her daughter's attention. She went on a permanent diet, refusing to eat. "Since she couldn't control herself, she would try to control others with her eating, like a child," Bye said, looking back at the situation.

The struggle continued, with Bertha acting more childlike and selfish with each passing day. Bye began to seriously consider the possibility of Alzheimer's disease. Bertha must have been thinking of it too. At one point of lucidity, Bertha said to her daughter, "If I have Alzheimer's, I may just hit you sometime and not even know it." As an innately caring and compassionate person, Bertha was terrified of becoming violent.

Bye remembers when she finally accepted the idea of her mother having Alzheimer's disease. Bye's husband was going through Bertha's checkbook so he could prepare her tax return. Bye and her husband discovered that her mother spent her entire year's income on mail solicitations for money. Bertha had contributed to the communist party, the group against gay rights, the Stop Jesse Jackson From Making D.C. a State campaign, Boy's Town, nuns in Africa, and had even spent $250 for a picture of George Bush. By the time she got the picture, she didn't know who George Bush was. The truth of the disease was self-evident in the grocery bags filled with solicitations that her mother planned to answer.

"She was a master at trying to cover it up," Bye said. "I think it was the fault of the medical profession not to tell her long ago. You're not going crazy. This is a disease."

Bye continued to care for her mother at home until one day two years ago, when her mother fell and hit her head. As small as her mother was from her dieting, Bye couldn't manage to get her up off the floor by herself. She checked her into Grandvue, where Bertha still lives, now 93 years old.

Bertha hovers between the last two stages of Alzheimer's disease. Once every month or so she recognizes her daughter. She has no recollection of the ten years she worked as a nurse at Grandvue, but the memory is apparently locked in the far recesses of her mind. Once she traveled back in her mind to that time and decided she had to change all the beds on her wing.

She actually changed one bed with a person in it. When Bye tried to calm her down and get her to stop changing beds, her mother called her a "lazy poop" for not helping. "It's totally uncharacteristic of her to be mean," Bye said. "She used to be everything that characterizes a nurse. Always caring, concerned, intelligent, her biggest pleasure was doing for others. It's a horrible thing to watch."

Bye could measure her mother's deterioration by comparing her behavior to that of her own grandchildren. "I could just see her progression going from an adult to a child," she said. As her mother started the downward spiral, she would repeatedly say, "I know I'm going crazy and I can't stand this. There's something wrong with my head." Bye recalls the horrible pain both she and her mother suffered at that stage. All at once her mother went past that stage; where her memory failed completely. She no longer knew her daughter, and became very withdrawn.

Bye's mother is now taking a new medicine, Cognex, which seems to be helping. Now Bertha smiles and greets people in the halls - six weeks ago she didn't even talk. She's back in the stage of recognizing a problem, and repeats that she's going crazy again. Bye said the doctors think she may gain enough cognition with the medication that she'll move beyond that phase as well. "It's amazing, at 93, they'd be working on something to help her out," Bye said. "The people at Grandvue have all been really wonderful," she added.

Bertha's physical health seems to be getting better instead of worse. She's healthier now than she was five years ago. According to Bye, this is a typical characteristic of people with Alzheimer's disease. "She's getting an interest back in life," Bye said. "On my good days I have really high hopes for her."

Bye's days are good days now, but she admits she's got one eye on her own future. "Every time I can't remember something, I could get hysterical. I'm scared silly most of the time," she said. Studies now indicate that there's a 15% chance that Alzheimer's disease is inherited. Bye desperately wants to be a part of the research program at Munson Medical Center's diagnostic treatment center. When the time comes, she wants her mother's brain autopsied, so the autopsy information can be passed on through her family. It might not help her, but it could help my children and grandchildren," Bye said.

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

Who was Arthur Heun?

Much has been written about Castle Farms, but very little has been written about its architect, Arthur Heun, who envisioned the spacious homes, the stone barns, the interior furnishings and decor.

It's common knowledge that the estate was originally built by Albert Loeb, vice president of Sears Roebuck & Co. in 1917 as a demonstration farm. Subsequently it was turned into a foundry under the ownership of John VanHaver. Then it was purchased by Arthur Reibel as a large-scale rock concert center. And now we're faced with the happy prospect that the barns may become the future home of the Castle Farm Community Center.

According to Gina Lepman, grand-daughter of Albert Loeb, "Uncle Arthur" was a good friend and close to the family. He was a member of a Chicago group of architects called the Prairie School. This group included Frank Lloyd Wright, and they met frequently and informally at the luncheon table to exchange creative ideas. They advocated some radical architecture for the times and their common admiration for the renowned architect, Louis Sullivan, is the glue that held them together.

Heun built many homes for prominent industrialists, including Melody Farm for J. Ogden Armour in Lake Forest, Illinois. This Italian Villa style mansion took two years to build and was completed in 1914. Located on 1200 acres, it is now the home of Lake Forest Academy.

Heun also built a home for the Loebes on the south side of Chicago, but unfortunately, this house has since been torn down.

When Heun designed the Loeb Farm during World War I, he designed both a summer place for the family where they could entertain guests, and a working farm where the newest agricultural equipment could be demonstrated to local farmers. The architect adapted the Norman style with his own original ideas, using rough, uncut field stones from the original site.

Castle Farm

The barn has four grain silos, an office, a workshop, and a tool shop. Two wings house the dairy cows. In addition there is a horse barn and a "cheese box" which was a small building for selling cheese and ice cream, that some old timers still remember.

The farm was a show place in its heyday. This model experimental dairy and horse farm in its storybook setting of steep-roofed buildings, dormers, cupolas, and towers, was a lively place to be on a Saturday afternoon. Here people could watch a ball game, (in which Ernest Hemingway once participated), buy ice cream, cheese or flowers or just stop to see the registered livestock quartered in their fancy surroundings among the latest Sears Roebuck equipment. There were about 90 people on the payroll who cared for the fields, animals, gardens and orchards.

The private residence, now occupied by the Lepmans, has a magnificent view of Lake Charlevoix. The ceilings in the "big house" have heavy ornate wooden beams. The walls are paneled with stained wood. Each room has an enormous fireplace, arched doorways, and leaded glass windows. Heun's palette reflected somewhat the aura of Wright's earthy tones — rosy red, dark olive, peach, maroon, gold and grey.

Aura was something Heun felt deeply about. He once said to Lepman's aunt, "You don't have any color in your aura." He also was deeply upset when he heard that Frank Lloyd Wright's house had a pool in the atrium. "Oh, the humidity! Oh, the bugs! Terrible!"

According to Lepman, Heun had no responsibility about money. While he was building the house for Albert Loeb in Chicago, he asked him for an advance. "My grandfather reminded him that he had just been paid and asked him what he had done with that money. 'Uncle Arthur' burst into tears and said he had no idea! After that, my grandfather set up a fund so that the money he made was kept invested and fortunately he realized a steady income for the rest of his life until he died in 1946."

The old dream that Albert Loeb shared with Arthur Heun — to create a demonstration farm for the education of farmers and their children — may be coming to fruition, but with a new twist. Friends of the 4-H are now spearheading a drive to purchase this gorgeous facility for a Community Center to serve this area. The plan is to create classrooms, provide exhibits, offer family entertainment and organize a 4-H summer camp, and also meet other needs, such as using the setting for this year's high school graduation ceremony.

The immediate goal for the drive to purchase the property with a down payment by May 15 is $300,000. Anyone interested in more information may visit the Campaign Headquarters at the Ole-son Shopping Plaza or call 616-547-0155.

Letters to the editor

School Board fails to respond

Editor,

The Charlevoix School Board still does not get it. Again, the board meeting was packed with supporters of Dave Smith asking the board to reconsider their previous decision. The board did politely listen to the public comments, but they did nothing. I put six written requests before the board and the president refused to consider the requests or even to tell us what it would take for the board to consider them in the future. To the board, I say the people are speaking, but you are not acting. What is it going to take to get the board to act on the wishes of the people? I would also remind the board that you do not win public support by making statements like "the public comments took most of your time." I remind you that you are in public service. That is suppose to mean that you are serving the public. Oh, and by the way Dr. Jackson's comments took more time than the public comments. Maybe the board feels that they are working for the superintendent instead of the people.

Charles A. Williams

People have different views

Editor,

Although an avid reader of your letters to the editor, I have never before utilized this public forum. However at this juncture, I feel called upon to respond to a couple of letters published in your column.

Mr. Charles Williams in the Charlevoix Courier March 16, 1994 stated, "...over a hundred citizens in attendance, and with total support of citizens for Principal David Smith..." and goes on to state "Now I don't not know, but if all the citizens were in support of Mr. Smith how could the Board..." On March 25, 1994 in the Petoskey News-Review Mr. Williams stated "...again the board meeting was packed with supporters of Dave Smith..."

Mr. Williams, you are correct on one point — you do not know. I find it ironic that in your complaints that the representative form of government is not apparent in the Charlevoix School Board, however you represent the people without request, or vote. Your agenda is your own, and perhaps a group of your friends. However please do not speak for me or others that you have never even met, much less discussed these issues with.

I attended the meetings solely to become informed on the various issues addressed, rather than relying on misinformation, gossip, and other grist gone through the mill; to be able to form my own conclusions. I know there were others in attendance for the same reasons.

Dr. Jackson's position is not one that I want, or envy. Juggling state mandates, in a close-knit community, with personal concerns for every child is an impossible job. It's easy to say this was not done correctly, hindsight has twenty-twenty vision. I have made errors that I wish I could undo, as have most people.

Communication between the School Board and the community, or lack of, has been continually cited as an issue. The School Board meetings' dates, times, and agendas are published and the public is welcome. The attendance is traditionally sparse.

I agree with Bill Supernaw, who so eloquently stated that it was time to move on. The Board has several other impending issues that need resolving. Just as I don't want Dr. Jackson's job, I don't want the School Board's either. But I am thankful that there are people who are willing and able to represent the diversity of opinions on difficult and controversial issues. I agree with Ann Golski's March 16, 1994 Charlevoix Courier letter regarding Charlevoix. We are a wonderful community that exists in 1994. We will hopefully enter the year 2000 with the right combination of forward education and small town values, that make us Charlevoix.

Sincerely,

Patsy Wakulat

Letters to the editor

How can school board members make intelligent decisions on short notice?

Editor,

The consensus of opinion among Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Charlevoix taxpayers seems to be — "It's a good thing the School Board doesn't have a millage vote scheduled in the immediate future," they wouldn't get dillydilly and the people would show them who runs the school; the people. The people who took the time and effort to attend the meeting but were cut short because of a ball game being one of the reasons. (There will be ball games played long after every taxpayer in attendance is dead and gone.) For whatever reason the comments were cut short. The people did not have their full say. The people who pay all the bills connected in any way with the school, including salaries.

When all the diplomatic language is wrapped up and dispensed with, a burning question remains. Why weren't all the School Board members aware of the recommendation by Superintendent Jackson, to demote and reassign Principal Dave Smith? Why did some Board Members find out about this proposed action only on the night of the meeting? How do you vote intelligently on such an important issue on such short notice?

For those people who didn't read Superintendent Jackson's letter to the taxpayers dated March 16, here is a direct quote from the last paragraph — "We need a unified Board of Education." How can they be unified, Roberta Jackson, when they all aren't on the same burner of your stove?

In the Courier issue of March 15, there was a letter from Anne Golski. It was well written in context but I would like to comment on a pertinent statement in that letter and I quote — "These four board members have earned our trust." Not so, Anne Golski. The pronoun "our" is all inclusive, as in "Our Father who art in Heaven." They may have earned your trust and you certainly are entitled to your opinion but please don't speak for me or for the hundreds of taxpayers who don't agree with you. They certainly did not gain our trust.

The bottom line seems to revolve around two factors as they are the most mentioned. The first factor being that the Superintendent and some School Board members were dealing from a stacked deck in demoting Principal Dave Smith, and the other factor, last but not least, the wrong administrator tendered the letter of resignation.

Thanks for your time,
Just a Mr. John Q. Charlevoix taxpayer,
Perry Smith

Thanks for help with wrestling tournament

Editor,

The 18th Annual Middle School Wrestling tournament took place March 19 and once again was the top event of its kind in northern Michigan. Over 300 boys and girls participated in over 400 matches on four mats from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. An event of this magnitude could not be accomplished without the greatly appreciated help of many people.

I would like all the people in-olved to know I greatly appreciate the time and effort that they so freely give for the young people of our community and the wrestling program of Charlevoix.

With much regard,
Varsity Coach Greg Bryan

Contributors made Extravaganza successful

Editor,

Many thanks for the generous contributions to the Charlevoix Middle School Extravaganza. We had over fifty contributors this year which made the Extravaganza a great success. We truly appreciate the wonderful support this community shows each year for the Extravaganza. Thanks again to all those who contributed.

Lynn Crowley, Chairman
Charlevoix Middle School Extravaganza

Many made Challenge Mountain skiing possible

Editor,

I want to acknowledge and thank all the many volunteers, parents, and teachers who made the 10th annual Boyne Mountain-Challenge Mountain Downhill Ski Day a huge success.

All of this could not have taken place without the ever capable leadership of George and Linda Armstrong, the staff and volunteers of Challenge Mountain, the special education classroom teachers and the support staff of Char-Em' ISD. They all put numerous hours into arrangements and details.

Again allow me to express my thanks to all who in any part, great or small, help put together one of the best and safest Downhill Ski Days yet.

Sincerely,
Jack Laucher

Coast Guard ship issue is complicated

As a resident of Charlevoix and a U.S. taxpayer, the prospect of losing the Acacia puts you in a difficult position.

From a purely economic perspective, the ship brings a million dollar plus annual payroll to the community. Losing it would be like losing a 50-person industry.

From a social perspective, over the years the ship has become a familiar landmark and more importantly many of the people from the ship have become a part of our community. By way of example, a couple of years ago, ship commander Tom Conlan retired from the Coast Guard, but he and his family continued to live in Charlevoix. And a good thing too. Had the Conlan family moved out of town, it would have messed up the girls' cross country team. At the time, Conlan's daughter, Elsa, was the best runner on the squad. Not only that, the loss of the same girl would have created a vacancy on the 1992 fall homecoming court. And the damage to the sports program wouldn't have ended with girls' cross country. Conlan's son, James, runs on the boys' team. Another daughter is a promising junior high basketball player. And if Conlan would have left, the high school soccer program would be short a referee and the school facility committee would have a different look.

Last week's Cancer Society Lock-Up also wouldn't have been the same. Conlan's wife, Glenda, was one of the coordinators of the event. That's just one quick, off-the-cuff example of a Coast Guard family becoming part of the community. If you were to look back over the years, it wouldn't be difficult to come up with many others. In fact, in something of an ironic twist, the Acacia's crew may currently be stressing community service and involvement more than it has in quite some time. Much of the credit for that goes to Lt. Commander Steve Corporon who has been proactive, rather than reactive, in promoting good community relations and encouraging crew members and their families to not just be stationed in Charlevoix, but to become part of Charlevoix and make the town a better place. Among those assisting in that effort have been the current group of Coast Guard Wives. Their efforts included a booth at the Venetian Festival and volunteering to help clean up a local highway. For one of the wives, Charlevoix not only seems like being stationed at home, it is home. Michelle (White) Travers is a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Even with all of that said, as a U.S. taxpayer funding a federal government which is more than a trillion dollars in the red, if the Coast Guard claims that moving the ship out of Charlevoix would cut costs, you have to be willing to at least listen.

Right now, Coast Guard officials and politicians in Washington are debating whether or not the Acacia should be restationed in Cheboygan to replace the aging icebreaker Mackinaw. The issue is complex and multifaceted. Among the many factors to be weighed in the decision are: the need for exceptional ice-breaking capability in the Straits of Mackinaw; the availability of Coast Guard housing in Cheboygan; Charlevoix's proximity to aids to navigation serviced by the Coast Guard.

Mayor Dave Novotny and other city officials, to their credit, have been doing all they can to make the best case possible for Charlevoix as the homeport to the Acacia or a similar ship.

A congressional fact-finding committee has been appointed to look into the matter and to ultimately make what promises to be a difficult decision. As a taxpayer, you want that decision to be economically sound and based on the merits of the possible solutions, rather than on political pressure. As a resident of Charlevoix, you want the committee and the Coast Guard to know that if it is practical and economically feasible for the ship to remain in Charlevoix, it will by all means continue to be welcome, not as a guest, but as a valued part of our community.

...Grandvue plans to improve service to dementia patients skilled care beds with the State Department of Health.

Dementia, a deterioration of the mind, occurs with diseases such as Huntington's, Parkinson's, and most commonly, Alzheimer's disease.

Grandvue currently divides their residents into two wings, based on the need for skilled care or general assistance care. Residents with dementia are interspersed in both wings, depending on their physical capabilities.

Drury and her staff have grown increasingly aware of the need for a special dementia wing as the number of dementia residents rises. Dementia residents, when mixed in the cafeteria with alert residents, forget why they're there and leave without eating. The noisy cafeteria is disorienting to them. Following their need to roam, dementia residents wander into the rooms of alert residents, occasionally going through their personal effects. Plans to develop a special wing at Grandvue will solve these problems.

Drury said the first step will be to modify existing rooms. Shiny surfaces will be eliminated, since the reflection from those surfaces causes disorientation. Special acoustics will be added to modify loud or shrill sounds. "We don't want anything unexpected or disorienting," Drury explained. New display cases will contain familiar personal effects. "Favorite objects or pictures of themselves at an earlier time help them retain memory," Drury said. Rooms will be color coded to help patients recognize their rooms.

Wandering paths will be developed outside in a safe environment.

Physical changes at Grandvue will be followed with increased staff training, targeting the needs of dementia patients. Some dementia patients at Grandvue are already eating meals in smaller groups with special supervision. "They're eating much better with coaching and cueing," Drury said.

Drury speaks enthusiastically about the new methods of treatment for dementia patients. "With Alzheimer's 'Use it or lose it' is true," Drury said. New behavioral treatments include incorporating the dementia patient's past life with the present. Former housewives help make salads and do dishes. Retired farmers grow plants. "In doing these things, they remember," Drury said. "It helps to maintain their level (of mental alertness)." Drury expects to know this fall if Grandvue will qualify for additional skilled beds.

and sometimes they actually reverse to an earlier stage."

Drury hopes the changes at Grandvue will make families more comfortable about placing their loved ones in the facility. Drury acknowledges the stigma that surrounds putting a family member in a nursing home. "It's common for care givers to wait to admit their loved ones to Grandvue only when they reach the final stages of Alzheimer's. If they were admitted earlier, the progression of the disease could be slowed or halted for a while. If this unit functions as well as we hope it will, maybe people will feel more comfortable admitting their loved ones at an earlier stage. We can raise the quality of their lives here," Drury said.

Drury expects to know this fall if Grandvue will qualify for additional skilled beds.

Hospital hosts Grief Recovery program

A series of weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will take place at 7 p.m. on Wednesdays from April 20 to May 18 at Charlevoix Area Hospital in the new conference room. The Grief Recovery program is sponsored by Charlevoix County Hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital, and District Health Department #3, to provide help for anyone who is recovering from a loss.

Rev. Milton (Buzz) Walls, Hospice spiritual advisor, will conduct the Grief Recovery sessions. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss, or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss, and who would benefit from the support of others. These informative discussions will provide assistance in dealing with grief. Those interested must pre-register, and registration will be closed with no one admitted to the sessions after the first class.

Please call the Hospice office at 536-2842 to indicate your desire to participate in the free program.

Grandvue respects the needs of both their dementia residents and their alert residents. Dementia residents have an urgent need to wander, and they're allowed to do so. Other residents have their privacy protected by a strip of webbing attached with velcro across their doors. This discourages the dementia patients from wandering into their rooms.

Church of the Nazarene to ignore daylight savings time

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene is offering "The Can't Miss Service" Easter morning for those people who object to daylight savings time causing them to lose an hour of sleep.

As Rev. Duane Nelson explains, "The first Sunday of each April, we are mandated to set our time ahead one hour. This year it means that we'll lose one hour of rest on Easter Sunday, which happens to be the most attended Sunday for churches every year. We do not wish to miss this hour of rest or mistakenly miss a church service because the clocks at home were not set ahead. So we are not traditionally setting our time ahead the night before, but waiting until after our Easter service the next morning."

The church is encouraging people who want to attend the Nazarene service Sunday morning to just leave their clocks alone on Saturday night and go to bed normally. Church services will begin as usual, on un-sprung-ahead time, with Sunday School beginning at 9:45 a.m. and Easter worship at 11 a.m. The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene is located at the corner of North U.S. 31 and Waller Road. For more information, phone 547-5711.

Lutheran Church schedules special Easter services

Belthany Lutheran Church will host the following services in conjunction with the Easter holiday:

Maundy Thursday, 7 p.m. Holy Communion.

Good Friday, noon to 3 p.m., the church will be open for reflection.

The evening service will be at 7 p.m.

Easter morning there will be two worship services. The early service will be at 7:30 a.m., followed by Easter breakfast at 8:30 a.m. Members of the congregation will be bringing the ingredients and the men will prepare and serve the meal. The second service will begin at 9:30 a.m. Lonnie Jones is coordinating the event this year.

Methodist Church to host early worship

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church has scheduled the following Easter Services: Maundy Thursday Seder Meal, 6 p.m. March 31; Easter Sunday - 6:45 Sunrise Service at Ferry Beach; 8 a.m. Early Worship led by the church youth; 8:30 a.m. breakfast; 11 a.m. Regular Worship Service. The Greensky Hill United Methodist Church will have breakfast at 8 a.m. and the regular worship service at 9:30 a.m.

Agencies coordinate pre-school registration

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, Project FREE and the East Jordan PREP program will host pre-school recruitment for the 1994-95 school year during the months of April and May. Parents of three and four year old children can come to the recruitment and learn about pre-school programs offered in their local school district. For more information or to make an appointment, phone 347-9070.

The local deer herd seems to have come through the winter just fine, thank you. This herd was grazing on Richardson Road Sunday evening.

(Above) Orchards are a favorite deer hang-out any time of the year. These deer have been frequenting an orchard just south of Norwood.

(Right) Although deer normally blend in well with the gray spring foliage, these deer stood out against the skyline.

(Left) These deer have been grazing just north of Norwood. At this time of year, it seems the deer nearly outnumber the people in the Norwood area.

STATE OF MICHIGAN Annual Tax Sale IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING
No. C33-428-16PZ
In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

I, the undersigned, the State Treasurer, do hereby certify that the petition of the State Treasurer, who is requesting a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the lands be sold for the amounts claimed by the State.

It is ordered that the petition be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of the Court to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 11th day of April, 1994. At the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the lien claimed by the State, shall appear in the court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of the Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, will be sold for the taxes, interest and charges on the first Tuesday of May thereafter, beginning at 10:00 A.M. On that day or days after, that are necessary to complete the sale of each parcel, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

This sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the smallest undivided interest in the property. The person who bids to buy the land on the first offering shall be offered on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, if not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall bid for the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Pallas, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 24th day of February 1994.

Countersigned,
Jane E. Branson, Clerk
Richard M. Pallas, Circuit Judge

In the Matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Douglas B. Roberts, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows unto the court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer and files this petition under the provisions of P.A. 208 of 1893, as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1985, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the tax record required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) a county property tax administrative fee of four percent with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for sufficient time to require the sale of the lands against which they were assessed at the next annual tax sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that a judgment be issued in favor of the State against the land for the payment of the amounts specified, and if not paid, that the lands be sold.

Therefore your plaintiff requests:

a. That within the time provided by law this court determine that the aforesaid taxes, interest, and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land described in Schedule A.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges in Schedule A, and that the amounts listed in the column headed "Aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless so amended by this court.

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amounts adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that this court finds just and equitable.

...Acacia fate tied to ice breaker Mackinaw

and one of three new 225-foot Coast Guard boats being built would be stationed in Cheboygan.

Lt. Commander Kevin Wells of the Aids to Navigation Branch in Cleveland said the studies looked at issues such as environmental impact, the area serviced by the ship, other facilities available at the ports in question and the plans for ship replacement.

Wells noted that the District Headquarters' recommendation is just that - a recommendation. He said the ultimate decision will be made in Washington - and he noted that any time changes are proposed for ships based in Michigan's northern lower or upper peninsulas it becomes "a political football."

Novotny met with Stupak Sunday evening at Nanny's Restaurant in Charlevoix to discuss the status of the issue. In a Monday morning phone conversation with the Courier, Novotny said that currently questions in Washington center around the need for a ship with excellent ice breaking ability to work in the straits of Mackinaw during the winter. The nearly-300-foot Mackinaw is several decades old, but is still considered to be the premier ice breaker ship on the Great Lakes. A news release from Stupak's office noted that George Ryan, president of the Lake Carriers Association said industries such as steel, iron ore, construction, and power utilities are dependent on the Mackinaw at least three months of the year.

In order to maintain ice breaking ability, the Mackinaw would be replaced either by a new 225-foot ship or possibly two new 140 foot ice breakers. The question which is now being debated in Washington is whether or not either the 225-foot ship or the 140 foot ships can handle ice breaking as well as the Mackinaw. Novotny said that apparently some Coast Guard people are saying yes, they can and others are saying no, they can't.

A Congressional fact-finding committee has been appointed to look at the issue. Stupak and Carr are among those on the committee. While the issue is being studied, funds have been appropriated to keep the Mackinaw in Cheboygan at least until Oct. 1, 1995.

Novotny said that another factor in the decision is that the first of the new 225-foot ships won't be ready until 1998. He said that currently the Coast Guard plans on building three new 225-foot ships. According to current plans, it looks like they would be stationed in Duluth, Minnesota, Port Huron and either in Charlevoix or Cheboygan.

Among several possible scenarios, one possibility is that there would be four 225-foot ships built with the one destined for Cheboygan modified to give it greater ice breaking ability.

Novotny said the city of Charlevoix has both strengths and weaknesses in making a pitch to retain a Coast Guard ship. He said the greatest concern expressed by Coast Guard officials is the high cost of housing and living in Charlevoix. On the other hand, Charlevoix's strength is that it is in an excellent location relative to the aids to navigation which the Coast Guard maintains.

A group of high ranking Coast Guard and government officials are tentatively scheduled to visit Charlevoix in late April. Novotny said that will give city officials an opportunity to sit down and talk with more of the people who will play a key role in the decision.

"I think probably by June or sometime in the summer we'll know a heck of a lot more," Novotny said.

EXPARTE ORDER PERMITTING SERVICE BY PUBLICATION UNDER MCR 2.106

PRESENT: THE HONORABLE RICHARD M. PAJTAS

This is an action to determine claims of title, equitable title, right to possession and other interests in land, more specifically to determine that conveyances made by the named ancestors of the unknown heirs did not reserve title of the premises, but conveyed same to Plaintiffs predecessors in title.

Defendants may answer Plaintiff's Complaint by directing a written response to Plaintiff's attorney, John D. Fershee, 314 E. Lake Street, Petoskey, Michigan 49770, within 28 days from the date of the first publication.

Mailing a copy of the Order is not required because addresses of the unknown heirs of said Defendants are not known.

Failure of Defendants to answer or take other action within said 28 days may result in the entry of the default judgment against Defendants in favor of Plaintiffs.

Local girl to represent Michigan

Jessie Murray will be representing the City of Charlevoix and the State of Michigan at Smokey Bear's 50th birthday party in Washington. The Federated Garden Clubs of America are throwing a spectacular birthday party for Smokey, and 50 students, one from each state in the country, will be in attendance. Murray won a place at the party when she submitted the winning art poster to the State of Michigan Garden Club.

Charlevoix is rife with talented young artists. Jennifer Zeitler, a Charlevoix fifth grader, won second place in the fifth grade division of the state poster contest, while Rachel Bellairs took first place in the third grade division at the state level. Locally, Bellairs won first place, Murray second, and Zeitler third place with the Charlevoix Garden Club.

Pati Moore, president of the Charlevoix Garden Club, is thrilled with the local girls' accomplishments. "It's wonderful to think that Charlevoix will be represented at this event in Washington," Moore said.

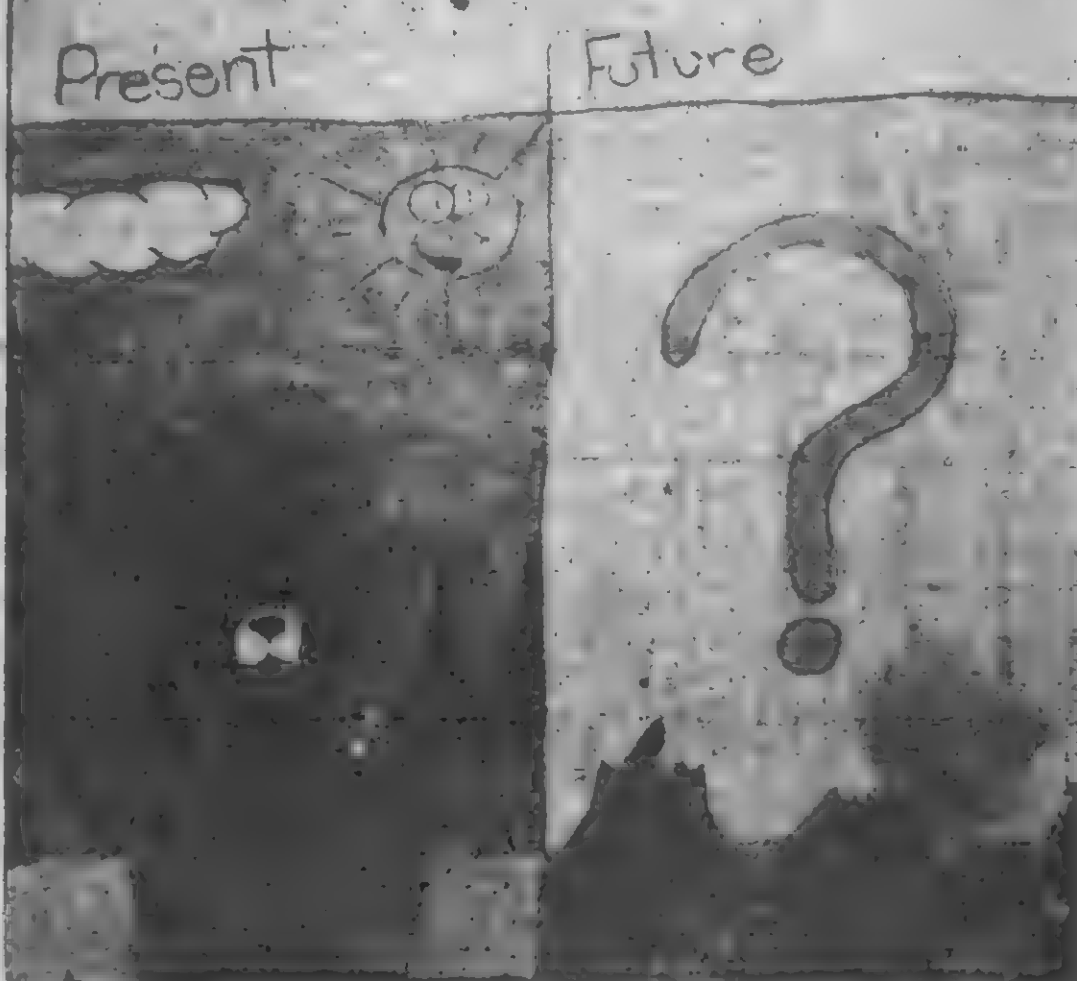

Elementary school art teacher Beth McGraw has earned the right to bask in some of the reflected glory. This is the fourth year that McGraw has combined her classroom efforts with the garden club and entered students in the Smokey Bear poster contest. McGraw's students have placed in the top three positions in the state competition all four years.

Murray's poster will be on display in Washington, along with the other 49 state winners. Willard, Scott will be the master of ceremonies at the celebration. The Federated Garden Club will contribute $500 to Murray's travel costs. Murray clinched the first place title with a poster bearing a clever poem along with her artwork. The poem read, "Even while Smokey's still here, He may not be here in a year. And even before Smokey retires. Only you can prevent forest fires." Her poem was mentioned repeatedly by the judges as one of the reasons her poster won top honors. "She's always writing poems, all day long, about anything," said Murray's proud, teary-eyed mother.

Even while Smokey's still here,
He may not be here in a year.
And even before Smokey retires,
Only you can prevent forest fires!

School board recall petitions ruled unclear

By L. Scott Swanson
The County Elections Commission has stalled a recall drive against four Charlevoix School Board members. Monday morning, the commission, which is made up of the probate judge, county clerk and county treasurer removed the petition against school board president Scott Beatty and ruled that language on petitions filed against board members Ben Cunningham, Mary Lee Campbell and Joan Buday was not sufficiently clear.

In a phone conversation with the Courier following the meeting Jane Brannon, county clerk, explained that the petition against Beatty was removed because a state law passed in 1993 prohibits recall drives from being initiated against someone who is in the last six months of their term of office. The reasoning behind the legislation is that someone in their last six months of office is normally going to come up for re-election before a recall election can be scheduled.

The petitions, which were filed earlier this month on behalf of a group of citizens angered by among other things the reassignment of high school principal Dave Smith, charged that the four board members have, "failed to provide reasonable control over and to provide necessary direction to the School Superintendent. In particular the board member has allowed the Superintendent to practice manipulative techniques in relationships with other board members and with subordinate managerial staff. These manipulative techniques are detrimental in communications with others, and, are counter productive in establishing an effective management team necessary for the improvement of the school system."

Brannon said the election commission determined that the term "manipulative techniques" is not sufficiently clear for voters to determine whether or not board members should be recalled.

Following the election commission meeting, Kay Chase, who filed the recall petitions on behalf of the group of people who are upset with the school board's recent actions, said she is unsure what action the group of people will take next. The recall petitions could be reworded.

"Recall is at the bottom of my list of priorities. I just wish that we could get communication going."

Kay Chase, who filed a recall petition on behalf of a group of people who are unhappy with school board actions.

and resubmitted or the recall effort could be dropped. Chase said the group of people will meet again April 18, prior to the school board meeting.

Chase said she personally views a recall effort as a last resort and rather than that would prefer to see better communications between the school board and the community. "Recall is at the bottom of my list of priorities. I just wish that we could get communication going."

SCRAPBOOK

Erwin Holecheck found an old Argo Milling Company tag in his Norwood barn recently. According to Holecheck, his dad, Robert Holecheck, had the job of putting the tags on the grain sacks. Holecheck estimates the tag dates back to the early 1940s.

Fire Department requests help preventing grass fires

The Charlevoix City Fire Department is joining with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the U.S. Forest Service in reminding people of the danger of spring wildfires. Under the state forest fire law, outdoor burning permits won't be issued for a four-week period from April 16 through May 15.

More than a third of all wildfires (i.e. grass and forest fires) are caused by debris burning and half of those fires occur between mid April and mid May. Dead leaves and dry grass from the previous year ignite easily and burn rapidly at this time of the year.

With the exception of the four-week period when burning permits aren't issued, they are available from the DNR by calling 547-0086. Burning permits are required by state law whenever the ground is not snow-covered. Burning in an approved debris container does not require a permit. An approved debris burner is a masonry or metal container with a metal cover having openings no larger than 3/4 of an inch. Campfires do not require a burning permit, either.

Bridge Park to cost $3.775 million

By L. Scott Swanson

The estimated cost of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) Bridge Park project has grown from $1.8 million to $3.775 million. And President Clinton says inflation is under control.

At the DDA board's March 30 meeting, DDA members reviewed the latest cost estimates for improvements to Bridge Park and the waterfront and parking lot area bordered by the Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Clinton Street and the stores along the east side of Bridge Street.

The preliminary cost estimate from the engineering firm which worked on the project initially was about $1.6 million. But that was a couple of years ago. The projected cost was $1.8 million earlier this year, when the DDA hired McNamee, Porter and Seeley, Inc., an Ann Arbor engineering firm to fine tune initial plans and cost estimates.

New cost estimates were received by the city from McNamee, Porter and Seeley March 29 and discussed at the March 30 DDA meeting. The new cost estimate calls for the project to cost $3.775 million.

Among the items which have added to the cost are additional sheet piling work on the waterfront, additional building space for Coast Guard storage and lowering the building by 30 inches to improve sightlines from Bridge Street.

Major components of the project are the demolition of the old sewage treatment plant building, constructing a new building in the bank of Bridge Park, refurbishing the docking area along the Bridge Park shoreline, and upgrading the waste water treatment plant on Lakeshore Drive to compensate for the changes at the Bridge Park sewage building.

McNamee, Porter and Seeley submitted a projected cost list which broke costs into 36 different construction categories. The top five categories in terms of cost are pier construction and demolition (i.e. dock work), $413,000; concrete and exterior work on the new building in Bridge Park, $332,800; interior work on the Bridge Park building, $184,000; electrical lighting and power distribution, $150,000; and steel sheeting and excavation work for the building, $147,000.

The construction cost estimate total is $2,904,000. Engineering and a 30 percent contingency estimate totaling $871,000 account for the remainder of the $3.775 million. The project may also include additional work to expand the dock used by the Coast Guard in order to accommodate a larger boat. Adding that work would raise the cost by as much as $400,000 although a consequent reduction in other dock improvements might offset that $400,000 by $30,000 to $90,000.

Funding for the project would come through a combination of borrowing through the sale of bonds and state and federal grants.

The city has applied for a $50,000 Coastal Zone Management grant administered by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR). City officials are also looking into a federal transportation program referred to as the "Ice Tea" program which might be a source of approximately $300,000. The city is also working with the Beaver Island Boat Company in researching a federal transportation grant program which helps projects related to transportation to islands.

A critical issue in regard to bonding is pending state legislative action in Lansing. Initially, DDAs and other governmental bodies funded through tax increment financing were not going to be able to continue capturing tax revenue from school millage if the March 15 school finance reform ballot proposal passed. If it failed, the school millage capture would be allowed with the state reimbursing local school districts for lost revenue. Shortly before the election the state senate passed a resolution saying that even if the ballot proposal passed, which it did, school millage capture with reimbursement would be allowed. Although that legislation passed the state senate, it has yet to pass the state house, but is expected to in the near future.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said that right now DDA members and city administrators are simply trying to sort things out and see where the city is at with the Bridge Park project.

"Right now, we're at an information gathering stage," he said Monday.

Charles Murry is a master of knot tying. He ties knots without even pausing to remember the old line about making a rabbit who climbs a tree that has a hole in it. Some of Murry's fancywork knots are currently on display in a Michigan State University exhibit.

Knot tying a dying art? Not if Charles Murry has his way

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charles Murry is tied up in knots. It's ok - Murry loves knots and the whole knot tying experience. As the Executive Petty Officer at the Coast Guard Life Saving Station in Charlevoix, Murry considers it his duty to pass along the dying art of knot tying to young Coast Guard seamen. "I push it," Murry said. "If you can tie complex knots, the simplicity of basic knots will become second nature."

Murry's fancywork, as the old, complex knots are referred to, is currently on display at the Michigan State University Museum in East Lansing. His work is part of the exhibit called: "Marlinespikes and Monkey's Fists: Traditional Arts and Knot-Tying Skills of Maritime Workers." Murry's work will be on display through June 12.

The gregarious Murry downplays his accomplishments in knot tying. "It's an old nautical thing," he said, "Just a male sailor version of macrame."

Murry learned his knot tying skills from Master Chief Boatswain Wardle when he first joined the Coast Guard seven years ago. Knot tying is becoming a dying art, since it no longer serves a functional purpose on today's ships. Some of the old ways of encasing railings in tightly wound boat line have been outlawed. Encasing rails with lines made sense on the old wooden ships - it provided a better grip and protected outer rails from getting banged up. Today the opposite is true. Encasing metal rails in line can allow moisture to sneak in and rust out the rail, which would go undetected under the tight covering of boat line.

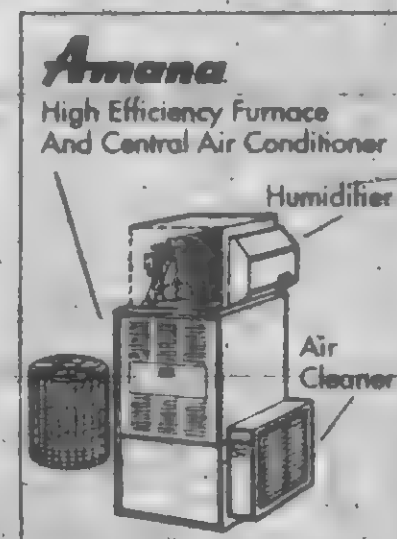

Murry tells fascinating stories about the original functions of other fancy knots. The Turk's head knot, an intricately woven braid, was once used as a method of splinting broken masts to the boom. Coxcomb, which is a process of encasing rails in tightly woven line, had its purposes too. Coxcomb, with a straight ridge was wrapped around all vertical railings on a ship. Coxcomb with a spiral twist was put on horizontal railings. Ships were more apt to sink many years ago - the coded coxcomb would enable a sailor on a sinking ship in the dark night to orient himself.

Murry uses his knot tying skills whenever he can. "Anywhere I can find an excuse to use fancy work I will," Murry said. Murry likes to cover rub rails on boats with knotted line, to protect it from banging on pilings or docks. He teaches new seamen to tie lanyards for their knives. "If someone has an interest, I'll teach 'em in a heartbeat," Murry said.

There are only a handful of people able to tie fancywork knots, and most of them are retired navy or Coast Guard men. Of the featured knot tyers at MSU's exhibit, Murry is decades younger than the rest. As Murry continues his swift ascension in the Coast Guard, he will have the opportunity to travel and continue to teach knot tying to the seamen serving under him.

City continues to fight water system problems caused by cold weather

By L. Scott Swanson

Little fountains of water have been bubbling up from the streets of Charlevoix in recent weeks. The fountains are the result of leaks in city water mains and are the latest problems caused by severe cold weather this winter.

City water and electric superintendent Ed Whitley said the leaks have been occurring all over town and are caused by frozen water mains cracking and leaking beneath the ground. Two of the worst problems have been on May Street and on Petoskey Avenue near the golf course and Mercer Boulevard. Whitley estimates that approximately 500 feet of water main on May Street is damaged and 300 feet on Petoskey Avenue.

Terri Jones, the water and electric department secretary, has been keeping a running (no pun intended) tab on the leaks and repair costs. As of Monday morning she reported that since March 2 city workers have repaired 10 water main breaks and five service line breaks at a total cost of approximately $23,000. During the past winter city workers have also responded to 252 service line freeze-up problems. Correcting the service line freeze-ups required either thawing the lines or, if that was not possible, running a hose from a neighboring house. The city water system has 1,703 customers.

City manager Mike Wiesner and city treasurer Rick Brandt have been trying to add up the total cost to the city of the water problems: Wiesner estimates that by the time costs to date are added to costs of repairs that still need to be made, the total financial damages to Charlevoix's water system from this year's cold weather will easily exceed $70,000.

State and federal legislators have authorized disaster funding to help municipalities with some of the costs. The remainder of the costs will have to be absorbed by the city water department budget.

For approximately the past month, city water customers have been asked to leave at least one faucet in their home running constantly to avoid lines freezing. That request is still in effect.

City water plant superintendent Sam Creswell said that leaks combined with the request for customers to run water have required the water plant to process between 600,000 and 1 million gallons of water per day more than is normal for this time of year. Creswell said that normally at this time of year the city water plant would be pumping 600,000 to 700,000 gallons of water on a busy day. This year the plant has been averaging around 1.2 million gallons per day and on busy days has pumped 1.5 million to 1.6 million gallons of water.

Editor's notes

You may have noticed some changes in this week's Courier. We've moved the Calendar page from page 2 to page 18. We've also added a Club and Organization section to that page. In the near future we'll also be adding an Entertainment section. We hope the changes and additions allow us to better serve our readers. We also have some other things in the works that you'll be seeing in coming weeks. We always welcome feedback. Feel free to stop by our office, drop us a line or give us a call.

Many Charlevoix people probably considered Monday evening's snowfall to be an unpleasant surprise. But looking back over recent years, Charlevoix more often than not has received snow sometime during the first week or so of April. Consequently, Monday evening's snowfall should not have been considered an unpleasant surprise. It simply should have been considered unpleasant.

A story elsewhere in the paper talks about the fire department's new fire truck and notes that the truck is red. The first time I met fire chief Doug Carver was when he with the Resort-Bear Creek fire department near Petoskey and I was working with the Petoskey News-Review. The Resort-Bear Creek fire department has trucks that are colored kind of a luminescent greenish yellow. That fire department swears by that color. Supposedly it's easier for people to see when the trucks are on an emergency run. The first time I ran into Carver after he was hired as Charlevoix Fire Chief, I joked with him about Charlevoix fire trucks being red, not that funny glow-in-the-dark yellow color.

Charlevoix High School spring sports schedules appear in the sports section of this week's Courier. High school spring sports differ from the fall and winter sports. Football and basketball seem more intense. The spring sports, track in particular, are much more laid back. Covering a track meet is kind of like going to a garden party. You mill around, amble from one event to another, chat with one person here another there. And track is such a great sport to take photos of because you know where people are going to be. Shot putters and discus throwers never leave the circle. Runners stay on the track and always end up at the finish line. High jumpers and pole vaulters always head for the bar. Contrast this with other sports. In soccer, the action could occur anywhere on the field at any time. Before you get a chance to get focused, the ball is gone. In baseball and softball, you can never be sure which pitch the batter will swing at. In volleyball, they put a net right in the way of everything. No doubt about it. When it comes to being a photographic high school sport, track has no peers.

Organizational meetings for city recreation softball leagues are coming up soon. Perhaps by the start of the season Michael Jordan will have worked his way down through the minor leagues so far that he ends up playing slow pitch softball up on the Carpenter Street field. Professional baseball has really taken a turn for the worse. They've gone and changed the game so that now there are three divisions in each league. And they've thrown wild card teams into the playoffs. Don't be surprised to see post-season play extend nearly to deer season. If Reggie Jackson still played the game today, he'd be called "Mr.

November." It's enough to make a baseball purist ill.

But they'll never change slow-pitch softball in Charlevoix. It begins in the spring when it's still too cold to throw much and ends shortly after the Beaver Island tournament.

One last note on sports. Hockey is getting to be more and more popular with local kids. Several Charlevoix kids have been playing on regional teams which compete on a rink over in Cheboygan. In fact, one of the local teams even won a recent tournament. Given Charlevoix's long winters, should we be surprised that hockey is becoming so popular or should we be surprised that it hasn't caught on sooner?

Apparently, there have been several people around town who have questioned why the downtown Christmas lights are still up past Easter. The answer is quite simple. The putting up and taking down of the lights is done by the city electric and water department. With all of the problems with pipes freezing throughout the city this winter and spring, that crew has been kept hopping repairing leaks. Given a choice of no water or out-of-season decorations, most people are willing to tolerate the late-season decorations.

At Monday evening's city council meeting the council approved the sale of another lot in the industrial park to CPI Products. CPI is one of the established businesses in the park. The company needs the additional lot because they are planning to expand.

Charlevoix's industrial park has been a real success story in the community. It has drawn several technologically advanced businesses which are relatively inconspicuous, but are a treasure in that they provide a solid manufacturing employment base and bolster Charlevoix's economy.

Don't make other people pay for your kids' education

Editor,

For years people in Michigan have allowed thousands of out-of-state property owners like me to help pay for their children's education. Even under the revised system, I understand we will continue to pay property taxes at a higher rate than permanent residents.

Now, by voting to increase the sales tax, you have made it possible for us to help in yet another way. And you are generously including hundreds of thousands of non-property owning tourists who vacation in Michigan.

Why exactly do you feel that outsiders have an obligation to support your public schools? We have no vote and receive no benefit. It is not our responsibility!

Sincerely,
John R. Bradbury

Editor,

Again your "Scrapbook" photo brought back memories of many years ago. This one tragic, as Erwin Holeccheck's father, Robert Holeccheck, notified the local authorities of the explosion of the "Two Brothers" that took the life of my father and two half-brothers Carl Bogren and Fred Lundberg of Petoskey. The accident occurred on August 6, 1930, while the three victims were returning to Charlevoix from Northport. Bob was standing on the bluff at Norwood when the explosion was sighted.

Harry Craig and I were instrumental in dissolving the Argo Milling Company in 1955 after 50 years of operation. Many of the timbers still exist in the Weatheravane, from the old Argo Milling Co.

Respectfully,
Ralph Hamilton

Thanks for saving our dog

Editor,

Dear Dog Rescuers,

Sunday afternoon, March 27th, my dog, Stoney, a blue Merle Coonhound, fell through the ice near the south arm narrows, about 3/4 of a mile west of Holy Island. We learned about it only after we had returned from a long trip, later in the week.

Some good-hearted quick thinking people used my brother's boat to pull him in and bring him to shore.

Whoever you are, I, John Alberts and my wife Rachel, (not to mention Stoney and all his many friends) want to wish you our deepest and heartfelt thanks.

Today we all still are able to share the affection of our exceedingly lucky collie thanks entirely to you.

While respecting your privacy I would nevertheless like to personally thank you. Please, let us know who you are if you read this thank you letter.

Again, our heartfelt thanks and gratitude.

Island students learn carving

A week long residency, funded by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, allowed 85 students and teachers at Beaver Island Community School to carve blocks of soapstone and alabaster. Using only hand tools, the students released from the rocks a great variety of shapes, designs, and figures.

Lower elementary students began with rock shapes pre-cut into shamrocks, Easter eggs, butterflies, birds and beavers, and soon had them smoothed, decorated and polished into gleaming finished pieces. The rest of the students received rough blocks of stone and with wide variety of files, rasps, drills, chisels and saws, with which they all began producing lots of chips and dust as their sculptures emerged.

Many received assistance from the instructor, Eric Heline, when he returned after school to his island workshop and helped remove some of the excess material using power tools. "After the carver saw what form was in the rock and could describe to me their vision of the finished sculpture I was happy to help clear away material that could take many more hours than we had allotted for the class," said Mr. Heline.

Soapstone, a soft, slippery mineral that resembles talc, comes in shades of green ranging from a dark blue-black to a pale sea green. For most of the class the artists worked diligently on a coarse, dusty chunk of rock that only in the final stages of sanding and polishing began to reveal the beauty of the crystalline patterns within. Those who chose alabaster to work with found a softly glowing, translucent sculpture emerging from the rough block of chalky stone.

Some of the sculptors offered their comments for this story. Sixth grader Christie Heller, carver of a delightful soapstone elephant said, "I really enjoyed the class. I never knew I could carve that well."

"I really enjoyed the carving class; I like experimenting with new forms of art," said Sophomore Tara Palmer, whose Celtic knot-work pattern on alabaster was a unique carving. "I had a lot of fun," offered William Sauter upon completing an alabaster beaver.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Four University of Michigan students from Charlevoix were recently among 5,200 students recognized at the University of Michigan's annual Honors Convocation. Receiving class honors were: Heather Renae Brown, Michael Chad DeYoung, Timothy Harold Jervis and Abigail P. Uhrick.

Rebecca Kuebler of Charlevoix is a member of the 1994 Hope College girls' track team. Kuebler, a sophomore, is competing in the throws and sprints. One of Kuebler's teammates on the Hope College team is Marie Matchett, an Elk Rapids High School graduate whose grandparents are from Charlevoix.

Three Michigan Technological University students from Charlevoix are included on the university's winter quarter Dean's List. They are: James L. Zeidler, a senior majoring in civil engineering; Neal R. Stangis, a senior majoring in mechanical engineering; and Edward J. McLenon, a junior majoring in mechanical engineering. To be named to the Dean's List a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4-point scale.

Capt. Karl "Buck" Shawhan of the 9th Bomb Squadron recently won the U.S. Air Force Orville Wright Aviation Award. Shawhan received the award for his performance during Air Force undergraduate pilot training. The award is given out only to a select few of the Air Force's top pilot training graduates. Shawhan is the son of Theresa Shawhan, a former resident of Charlevoix and a frequent summer visitor. He is also the nephew of Jean LaFreniere of Charlevoix and Arcadia, Florida.

Navy Airman Wade A. Peterson, son of Jon A. and Deborah R. Peterson of Charlevoix, recently returned from a six-month Mediterranean Sea and Indian Ocean deployment with Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron 11, Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla. Peterson was aboard the aircraft carrier USS America.

Peterson's squadron flies the SH-3H Sea King helicopter which is capable of detecting, classifying, tracking and destroying enemy submarines. During the deployment, Peterson made port visits to Trieste, Italy; Corfu, Greece; Haifa, Israel; Marseilles, France and Malaga, Spain.

The 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School joined the Navy in June 1991.

Foundation awards $1,500 grant to Planned Parenthood Teen Theater

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has just awarded a $1,500 grant to assist in funding Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood's (NMPP) newest project — TROUPE — Teen Theater. This grant will be used to match a $10,000 grant awarded in October by the Michigan Department of Education's SERVE-Michigan program.

The grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation will be used specifically to support the project in Charlevoix County. An earlier grant from St. John's Episcopal Church is being used to support efforts in the Harbor Springs area.

TROUPE — Teen Theater will present information about HIV/AIDS prevention, substance abuse, self-esteem and other issues of concern to teens. The teen theater format is a concept which originated in New York in 1973. Since that time, Planned Parenthood and other agencies throughout the country have developed programs which provide an innovative and very effective way to communicate with teens about problems for which they are at risk.

"We are especially grateful to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for its recent contribution to TROUPE," states Martha Lancaster, Planned Parenthood Associate Director. "The support of local organizations will be very critical to the success of this ambitious new project."

The project will be implemented throughout NMPP's eleven-county service area which includes Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Mackinac, and Oshtemo counties. The most recent census figures indicate that there are approximately 15,000 young people between the ages of 13-19 in this area, with 33 percent of this population concentrated in the Petoskey and Traverse City areas. Through TROUPE, Planned Parenthood plans to reach 1,500 northern Michigan teens; parents and school officials or approximately 10 percent of the teenage population in this area.

The Grand Traverse Bands of Ottawa and Chippewa, Northwest Michigan Services and the Third Level Crisis Center are serving as Project Partners for TROUPE, and project advisory committee members include representatives from area schools, social service agencies and students from several northern Michigan high schools. The project is staffed by NMPP's Education Coordinators Ruby Hoy Murawski and Kristin Meister. It will also involve several adult volunteers with theater experience who will assist with rehearsals and coaching.

TROUPE — Teen Theater will involve 60 youths ages 14-22 who will serve as actors. Each will receive 40 hours of training on HIV/AIDS and related sexuality topics such as other STDs, abstinence, and contraception. For more information contact NMPP's Petoskey office, 347-9692.

March of Dimes to WalkAmerica May 7

The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is planning its annual walk-a-thon, WalkAmerica, for Saturday, May 7. This year's event is hosted by Alexander's Restaurant of Charlevoix where registration will begin at 8 a.m. and the walk will start at 9 a.m.

Corporate sponsors for this year's event are Munson Medical Center, Traverse City and Mercy Health Services North, Cadillac. Corporate sponsors providing checkpoints along the route include Northern Michigan Hospital. Additional sponsors for checkpoints are needed. Kmart is the national sponsor of WalkAmerica.

This year's Honorary ChairFamily are Don & Kim Chiodo and their daughter, Samantha. Don is with TV 7&4, official television sponsor for WalkAmerica. Kim is News Director for WTCM radio station.

The mission of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality. The March of Dimes carries out its mission through the Campaign for Healthier Babies, which funds programs of research, community services, education and advocacy.

Additional volunteers are needed for Walk Day. For more information, pledge sheets, checkpoint information or to volunteer, please call 947-2488.

Hospital adopts new name policy

Charlevoix Area Hospital is following the pattern set by several other northern Michigan hospitals by no longer giving out the name of the emergency physician on duty, as well as the names of employees, when requested by anonymous callers.

Formerly, the hospital switchboard would tell callers the name of the doctor on duty in the emergency room or After Hours Clinic. Beginning Monday, March 21, callers will be asked to give their name and phone number and then the call will be transferred to the doctor or emergency room nurse. If the doctor or nurse is available, they will return the call at their earliest convenience.

The new policy results from a meeting between the medical staff, hospital administration, and Sheriff George Lassater to discuss security concerns. Richard L. Krueger, president, says "We want to protect our employees and medical staff from crank calls and others who might bother them in some way, as well as recognize the constraints on their time." The policy is also a part of the hospital's stepped-up security because of the increased size of the hospital facility, he said.

Jeffery J. Alward

Jeffery J. Alward, 19, of East Jordan, died April 3, 1994, in South Arm Township.

Funeral will be 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 6, at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. The Rev. David Weemhoff will officiate. Burial will be in Ellsworth Cemetery.

He was born July 16, 1974, in Petoskey, the son of Jerry and Jean (Hizelberger) Alward. He graduated from East Jordan High School in 1993 where he was active in sports including basketball, football and baseball.

He worked for Jerry's Equipment Painting in Ellsworth, and was attending Ferris State University in Big Rapids.

He loved hunting and fishing. Survivors include his parents, Jerry and Jean Alward; of East Jordan; two sisters, Jill McDowell and her husband, Dodd, of Lady Lake, Fla., and Jody VanderSlik and her husband, Keith, of Ellsworth; his maternal grandfather, Fritz Hizelberger, of Atwood; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Pearl Alward, of Ellsworth; and many aunts and uncles.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

John F. Blount

John F. Blount, 72, of Eastport, died April 1, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 3 p.m. Wednesday, April 6, at the William Sullivan and Son Funeral Home, 705 W. 11 Mile Road, Royal Oak. Interment will take place in Mount Vernon Cemetery, Washington Township.

Mr. Blount was born Sept. 6, 1921, in Detroit, the son of George F. and Gladys M. (Heddie) Blount. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II, and immediately after the war with the U.S. War Department in Belgium.

On Dec. 13, 1944, in Droitwich, England, he married Christine S. Bourne and she survives.

Mr. and Mrs. Blount owned and operated the Golf View Motel in Petoskey from 1968 to 1983. Mr. Blount also enjoyed a 25-year career in sales in the plumbing and heating industry in the Detroit area. Following retirement in 1983, the couple moved to Torch Lake where Mr. Blount volunteered with the Torch Bay Ambulance, and later with the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital.

He was a life member of the Torch Post VFW No. 6985 in Central Lake, and the Amvets Post No. 1 of the Detroit area. He was also a life member of the B.P.O. Elks Lodge No. 323 of Traverse City, and the National Rifle Association.

Survivors include his wife, Christine; two sons, John B. and his wife, Margaret, of Royal Oak, and Kenneth A. and his wife, Carolyn, of Lake Zurich, Ill.; three daughters, Nancy J. Richmond and her husband, Lester, of Fenton, Jacqueline M. Pieffer and her husband, Dan, of Port Charlotte, Fla., and Carole A. Elssesser and her husband, David, of Petoskey; one sister, Dorothy M. Froberg and her husband, Lyle, of Tucson, Ariz.; 10 grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; two nieces and two nephews.

Visitation was held Sunday at the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. Memorial contributions may be made to the Torch Bay Ambulance, Eastport, Mich. 49627.

BEACONS

by REV. PHILIP SCHAIRBAUM

Perhaps you will be reading this before Easter; perhaps afterwards. Either way, the main focus of this time of year for Christians is the death and resurrection of Jesus. Matthew's gospel records that "many of the saints who had fallen asleep rose" with Christ's resurrection (Matt 27:52). That's a fascinating verse which has a lot in it. For this week's "Beacons" column let me pass on to you what I believe is a brilliant piece of writing on this passage by Dr. Halford Luccock, former essayist for the Christian Century.

"Considered as a symbolic picture, the truth of this miracle has been attested through all the centuries. We have here the statement that, as the supreme moment of the sacrifice of Jesus on Calvary, the dead arose. It is profoundly true that whenever the spirit which Jesus manifested on Calvary finds expression in life - it shocks people into life. 'Saints who have fallen asleep' arise. There is nothing which has proved so powerful an awakener as Jesus' spirit of sacrificial life incarnate in a personality. It plays havoc with cemeteries, whether in the church or out of it!

There is a world of suggestiveness in the phrase 'saints' who had fallen asleep.' In depressed moments we feel there is an undue number of such sleepy saints in the church. How we long for a general resurrection - a quickening into life - a new flood of energy!

Resurrection will always follow crucifixion. When anyone takes Jesus seriously, when the sacrificial love of Jesus, instead of being an airy nothing, becomes a local habitation and a name in a human life, that miracle always brings life to the dead. It was simply but effectively expressed in the remark of one student to another, quoted by Bertha Conde, 'I've always known what the Bible says about it, but I never saw anyone before who had the nerve to live it. You've given my thinking a jolt.'

That is the final hope, and the only hope of the kingdom of God; when that passionate, sacrificial love finds expression in a whole church, the resulting miracle will be a quickened world."

Whoever and wherever you are, especially if you have "fallen asleep" to the things of faith, I hope you will sense something new and powerful awakening in you this Easter season as you link your life to the resurrection Spirit, and share in the hope and joy which is offered to all who participate in the sacrificial love of Christ. If everyone did that what a wonderful place the world would be. Happy Easter!

(Rev. Philip Schairbaum is pastor of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Schairbaum and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

obituaries

Howard C. Otis

Howard C. Otis, 87, of Charlevoix, died March 28, 1994, at Community Memorial Hospital in Cheboygan.

Funeral rites were Thursday, March 31, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Revs. Thomas Neis and James P. Hayden will officiate. Burial will be in St. Mary Cemetery, Charlevoix. Mr. Otis was born Sept. 29, 1906, in Farmington, the son of Amos and Hattie (Spaller) Otis. He was raised in Farmington. He graduated from Kalamazoo College, earned a business degree from the University of Michigan, and a law degree from the Detroit College of Law.

Mr. Otis served as a major in the U.S. Army during World War II. He married the former Mary Jaschke and the couple lived in Milford, Mich. until 1964. Mr. Otis owned and operated Howard Otis Dodge Plymouth Agency in Farmington. Mr. and Mrs. Otis then moved to Charlevoix where he worked at Charlevoix County Friend of the Court for five years until 1977.

Mr. Otis was a member of St. Mary Catholic Church, and the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of Charlevoix.

Survivors include his wife, Mary, of Charlevoix and St. Petersburg, Fla.; two daughters, Sharon Cronk and her husband, John, of Cheboygan; and Tiller Landick and her husband, Gregg, of Lansing; one son, Howard "Buzz" Otis of Fairbanks, Alaska; 10 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. Mr. Otis was preceded in death by one brother and two sisters.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Helena Sundling

Helena Isaksen Sundling, 73, of Rocklin, Calif., and formerly of Charlevoix, died March 23, 1994, at her home in Rocklin in the company of her family.

Her funeral was held Saturday, March 26, at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Auburn, Calif. A memorial graveside service will be held later at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born March 6, 1921, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Henry and Anna (Roen) Isaksen.

She owned and operated Helena's Beauty Shop in Charlevoix. She also worked as a clerk at Sears for 13 years.

She was a member of the Sons of Norway, American Association of Retired Persons, Aid Association for Lutherans, and the Immanuel Lutheran Church of Saratoga, Calif.

Survivors include two daughters, Elyn Newman and her husband, Greg, and Lia Harper and her husband, Mark, all of Rocklin, Calif.; two sons, Henry Sundling of Livermore, Calif., and Harold Sundling of San Jose, Calif.; five grandchildren; one sister, Signe Potts of Sebring, Fla.; and one niece, Anna Superczynski, of Menisties. She was preceded in death by a sister, Igma Pontius, and a brother, Harold Isaksen, both of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the U.C. Davis Cancer Center, in care of Dr. Fred Meyers, 4501 X St., Sacramento, Calif. 95817.

Local arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Win-Some Women retreat to Mackinac Island

The first annual Win-Some Women's Spring Retreat will take place on Mackinac Island on Thursday and Friday, May 19 and 20 at the Grand Hotel. The retreat Steering Committee, Arnold Transit Line and the Grand Hotel are providing an affordable package for this spirit-filled event. For more information on the retreat and costs consult flyers at most local churches, Clothing Company, Olesons and Ben Franklin.

Speakers for this first-ever event will be Rev. Stuart Briscoe and his wife Jill and special music ministry will be provided by Sharon and Robin.

Both Rev. Briscoe and his wife Jill were born, raised and educated in England. After graduating from high school, Rev. Briscoe went into the banking world and at the same time he volunteered to preach. For 12 years his banking and preaching kept him and his family fully occupied. In 1959 he and his wife Jill left the business world to share the ministry of Torch-bearers—a youth organization which reached out to the far corners of the world. Rev. Briscoe's travels took him all over the world.

In 1970, Elmbrook Church in Brookfield, Wisconsin asked the Briscoes to pastor their Church. Weekly attendance has grown to more than 6,000 and they have planted five sister churches. Elmbrook's TV broadcast "In Reality" is aired throughout Wisconsin and "Telling the Truth," a daily radio program, is heard in many parts of the world. Additionally, Briscoe has an extensive video and audio ministry and he has authored more than 30 books. Rev. Briscoe's seminar is entitled "Women in the Church."

Jill Briscoe was educated at Homerton College, Cambridge and taught in the British school system. She is currently a lay director of Women's Ministries at Elmbrook Church and a director of "Telling the Truth" media ministries. Jill and her daughter Judy work as a mother/daughter team and have an active speaking and writing ministry. Jill has spoken in many countries and is the author of more than 20 books, which include children's books as well as study guides. Jill serves on the Board of Directors for World Relief and Christianity Today. Jill's seminar is entitled "Toward a More Mean-

Winter problems aren't all behind us

As the ground thaws, leaks are springing from frozen water mains throughout town. The leak at the left is on the corner of Sherman and Hurlbut Streets. The leak above is at the corner of May and Carpenter Streets. City officials estimate that approximately 500 feet of water main on May Street has suffered frost damage.

Council approves sidewalk bid

New sections of sidewalk will be constructed within the next two months on the north side of Petoskey Avenue between Meech and Mercer and on the west side of Bridge Street from Green Street out to the airport. At Monday evening's city council meeting, council members accepted a bid of $157,594 from Manthei Development Corp. of Charlevoix for the project which is to be completed by May 27.

A federal grant program is paying $114,048 toward the project. Charlevoix will be paying approximately $41,000.

In other business Monday evening the council approved a bid of $60,500 from C.H. Smith Excavating to install a new sewage lift station on Belvedere Avenue. The new lift station will replace a lift station which was installed in the 1930s and backed up twice last year. The work on the new station is to be completed by May 28.

Council members also acted on two matters concerning the city's industrial park. The council accepted an offer of $20,000 from CPI Products for the purchase of a 1.6 acre lot. CPI is planning to expand and needs more space.

When asked by council members if he had any concerns or comments in the proposal, city manager Mike Wiesner said he had no comments other than, "It's great that our industries are expanding and need more space to create more jobs."

In the other action concerning the industrial park, the council renewed the contract of Real Estate One of Charlevoix as the sales agency for the remaining lots in the park.

Bill Brodin (center) was honored last week at a retirement party. Brodin has retired after 25 years with the city street department. Mayor Dave Novotny (left) and street department superintendent John Martin presented a plaque to Brodin.

Hockey team defends title

The Char-Em Youth Hockey Association Sharks repeated as champions of the Bantam Division with a 4-3 sudden death overtime win over previously undefeated Gladwin. The season ending tournament took place at the Cheboygan Ice Rink. Ten teams from hockey associations that play on outdoor rinks competed in the tournament.

In the championship game, goals by Tim Boyer, Darrell Lawson and Colin Carr staked the Sharks to a 3-0 lead before Gladwin rallied in the second period to tie the game 3-3. Sharks goalie Mike Krey turned away nine shots in a scoreless third period to send the game into sudden-death.

The Sharks, who finished the regular season with a 23-5-2 record, began tournament play with a 4-2 win over Mount Pleasant. In the semi-finals the Sharks beat Mackinaw City 3-1.

In the championship game, goals by Tim Boyer, Darrell Lawson and Colin Carr staked the Sharks to a 3-0 lead before Gladwin rallied in the second period to tie the game 3-3. Sharks goalie Mike Krey turned away nine shots in a scoreless third period to send the game into sudden-death.

Softball organizational meeting will be April 14

The annual organizational meeting for Charlevoix Recreation Department men's and women's slow-pitch softball leagues will take place at 7 p.m., Thursday, April 14 at City Hall. All teams are asked to send a representative. For additional information, contact the city recreation department at 547-3253.

den-death.

In overtime, Dave Cadarette picked up the game-winner with Chayne Corey and Mike Banach getting the assists. Banach, Corey DeNio, Brian McCosky, Corey and Cadarette got the assists on the three first period goals.

Defensively, Kehrer credited the play of goalies Krey and Adam Masek along with Banach, Boyer, Rusty Simmons and Matt Johnson.

Fire Department has new first response truck

By L. Scott Swanson

She's bright and shiny with a big siren and lots of lights. And she's red. Yes, red. Not glow-worm yellow or corrosion orange like fire trucks in some northern Michigan communities; but red. The city of Charlevoix's new fire truck is red. Deep, dark beautiful red - the color that nature intended for all worthy fire trucks to be.

The new fire truck, which will be the Charlevoix City Fire Department's first response truck, arrived last week. It was ordered more than a year ago and built by a company called 3-D in Shawano, Wisconsin. The cost of the truck is $210,000. Fire Chief Doug Carver said the new truck will replace a 1968 truck which will now become a back-up truck.

While the truck's primary role is as a pumper truck, it carries 1,000 gallons of water and two kinds of foam. Utilizing a deluge gun mounted on the top of the truck and several hoses stored in compartments, the truck can put more than a thousand gallons of water on a fire in a matter of minutes. "It's as safe and as efficient as we can make it," Carver says of the new truck.

While the truck has a variety of features designed for efficiency and ease of operation, there are a few features which stand out above the rest. One of the first that Carver mentions is pre-connected front suction hose on the front of the truck.

Although 1,000 gallons of water might sound like a lot, when fighting a large structure fire it really isn't much. To put it in perspective, the new truck and Engine 85, another of the city's pumper trucks, can each pump approximately 2,000 gallons of water per minute.

At a fire in town, the trucks can hook up to a fire hydrant. In some cases, the trucks can even pump water out of a lake or stream. But at rural structure fires, there's often no water source readily available. In those situations, fire departments will often use a portable tank. A portable tank is a big plastic-lined apparatus that looks kind of like an above-ground backyard swimming pool.

With the older trucks, using the portable tanks meant hooking up a couple of large hoses and a strainer. It was generally a two-man job. The hoses were heavy and awkward. If the fire happened to occur during a snow storm or zero degree weather on a dark night, that only made matters worse. This in a situation where often enough every minute is critical.

With the new truck, using the portable tanks can be done instantly. The pre-connected suction hose already contains a strainer. There's no wrestling multiple hoses or lining up fittings. One man can easily yank the suction hose out of its holder on the new truck's front bumper and throw it in the portable tank.

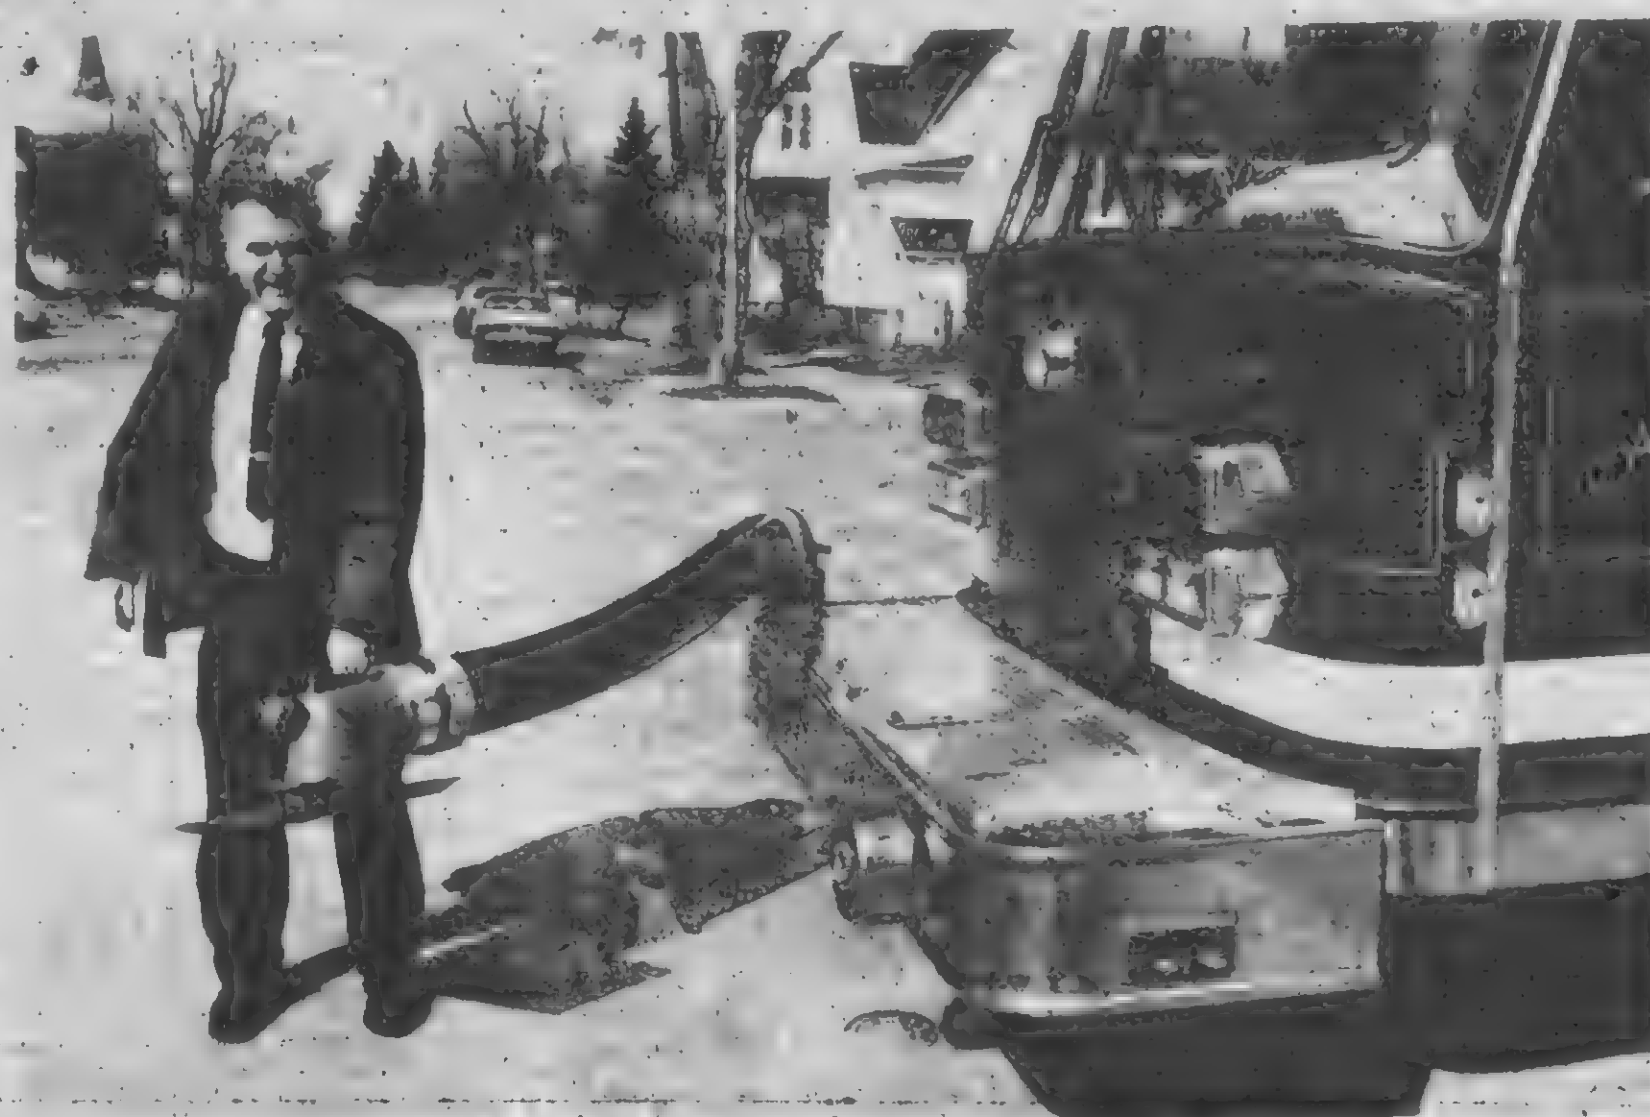

Another feature Carver likes is the racks on the left side of the truck which hold oxygen tanks. The racks drop down with the tanks at shoulder level. All the firemen have to do is back up to the tank, fasten the belts and go.

The truck also has a hydraulic ladder rack which lowers the ladders down to about chest level on the other side of the truck. The rack makes it easier for firemen to pull ladders off of the truck. It is also designed to be far enough out from the truck so ladders can still have access to side cabinets even while the rack and ladders are down.

A top mount pump control panel behind the cab of the truck is color coded making it easier for the pump operator to keep track of how much water is going to the different hoses running from the truck.

The Charlevoix City Fire Department recently received its new fire truck. The truck will be the department's first response vehicle. The truck carried a price tag of $210,000. Shown with the truck is Fire Chief Doug Carver.

Above: Fire Chief Doug Carver demonstrates the pre-connected hose on the front of the new fire truck which is used to draw water from a portable tank.

Air tanks on the new fire truck are carried on racks which swing down so firemen can back up to the air packs and hook them up.

Volunteer fireman Bob Geer takes a look at the control panel of the new fire truck.

Want to be on the school board, city council or county board?

Now's the time for candidates to file

By L. Scott Swanson

Even though the school board election isn't until June and the city and county primary elections aren't until August, if you're thinking about becoming a candidate you'd better start getting your ducks in a row now.

The deadlines for filing petitions to get a candidate's name listed on the ballot come months in advance of the elections.

Although the Charlevoix school election will not take place until June 11, candidate nominating petitions are due by 4 p.m., April 11. Blank petitions may be picked up at the school's central office at 208 Clinton Street. Candidates must collect the names of at least 20 registered Charlevoix School District voters. Two seats are up for election this year. The seats are currently held by Scott Beatty and Ardith Wieland.

There are a total of seven seats on the Charlevoix School Board. The remaining seats are held by Ben Cunningham, Steve Czerkes, Joan Buday, Mary Lee Campbell and Larry Levensgood.

Nominating petitions for Charlevoix City Council seats are due by 4 p.m., May 10. The city of Charlevoix is divided into three wards. Each ward has two representatives serving two-year terms. Each of the city's three wards has one representative up for election each year. Seats up for election this year are the representatives currently holding them are: First Ward, Don Meggison; Second Ward, Ted Felter; Third Ward, Jackie Cross. The mayoral seat, currently held by Dave Novotny, is also up for election.

Roughly described, the geographical boundaries of Charlevoix's three wards are: First ward - The north side and that portion of the south side which is west of Bridge Street and north of Antrim Street; Second ward - The section of the city which is south of Mason Street and west of State Street; Third ward - The section of the south side which is east of State Street.

Nominating petitions may be picked up at City Hall. Candidates must collect the names of not less than 24 and not more than 40 registered voters from the ward they seek to represent.

All members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners are up for election. County commissioners serve two-year terms. Current county commissioners are: Howard Hosler, Don Smith, Phil Johnson, Jim Behling, Carl Price and Richie Gillespie. Smith represents Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion and Eveline Townships. Gillespie represents the City of Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

Nominating petitions may be picked up at the County Clerk's office on Antrim Street. Candidates must collect between five and 39 signatures (depending on the district) of registered voters within the candidate's district. Completed petitions must be returned to the county clerk by 4 p.m., May 10.

East Jordan man killed in head-on collision

A 19-year-old East Jordan man was killed in a traffic accident Sunday afternoon on the East Jordan-Ellsworth Road. Jeffery Alward died of head injuries at the scene of a head-on collision between a pick-up truck he was driving and another pick-up truck.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department news release, Alward was westbound in a 1985 GMC pick-up shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday and collided with an eastbound 1986 Ford pick-up driven by Robert Moblo, 19, of East Jordan. Moblo and two passengers in his vehicle also sustained injuries and were transported by ambulance to area hospitals. Moblo injured his head and back and was transported first to Charlevoix Area Hospital and later to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City where he was treated and released. John M. Gates, 21, of Ellsworth received head and facial injuries. He was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital and subsequently to Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey where he was in fair condition as of Monday. Todd L. Bilyeu, 23, of Mancelona received head and back injuries. He was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital and later to Northern Michigan Hospital where he was in serious condition as of Monday.

The cause of the accident is unknown and the sheriff's department is continuing to investigate. The sheriff's department was assisted at the scene of the accident by the East Jordan Police Department and the East Jordan Fire and Rescue units. The injured were transported by the East Jordan Ambulance. Alward is the son of East Jordan Police Chief Jerry Alward.

Superintendent and principal to host informal Q & A sessions

Charlevoix school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson and high school principal Dave Smith will host two informal question and answer sessions next week in the Charlevoix High School library. The first session will be at 7:30 p.m., April 12 and the second will begin at 4:30 p.m., April 13. Jackson and Smith have been at the center of a recent school controversy concerning Smith's reassignment from high school principal to classroom teacher. The last two school board meetings have been crowded and included lengthy and often heated discussions of the matter. The purpose of the informal question and answer sessions is to give people an opportunity to ask any additional questions. The public is welcome to attend.

DNR seeks volunteers for state parks

The Michigan State Parks System is looking for volunteers who enjoy camping and meeting new people to become volunteer campground hosts at state park campgrounds, especially during the busy May through September season.

"Volunteer campground hosts provide an important communication link between the park staff and the visitors they serve," DNR Director Roland Harnes said. "They are not involved in the day-to-day operation tasks at the parks, but are there to enhance the camping experience of our visitors."

The Volunteer Campground Host Program, established by the Department of Natural Resources several years ago, now includes openings for volunteers at all 75 state park campgrounds to greet other campers, provide visitor information, pick up litter, lead occasional nature hikes, and report emergencies to the DNR staff. In exchange, the campground hosts - individuals, couples or families - may camp, free of charge, using their own privately-owned camping equipment. Electrical hookups are available at most locations. The hosts are expected to be on duty approximately 30 hours per week. Most of the volunteer campground host assignments involve a four-week minimum commitment at a park.

Experienced campers interested in being state park volunteer campground hosts should contact the state park where they would like to stay. Applications will be accepted throughout the year. Applications for the 1994 season will be considered until all openings are filled. For more information, call your closest Michigan State Park or Monica Terrell of the DNR's Parks and Recreation Division, at 517-335-3034.

County Republicans plan Lincoln Day Dinner

The Charlevoix County Republican Party will host its Spring Lincoln Day Dinner Saturday, April 30 at the Boyne Mountain Lodge in Boyne Falls. There will be a reception beginning at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. Guest speakers include Congressman David Camp, Senator George McManus, Senator John Pridemore and Representative Bev Bodem.

Ticket prices for the event are $30 per person and can be obtained by calling: Charlene Gaskin, 547-4118; Bernie Bajko, 582-6114; or John Haggard at 547-4046 or 547-6600.

Five file for two board seats

Five candidates have filed nominating petitions for two seats on the Charlevoix Board of Education. Candidates who filed for the two four-year terms are: Norm Probert, Dave Strawbridge, Sulane Hamilton, Steve Kehrer and Ardith Wieland. The two seats are currently held by Wieland and board president Scott Beatty.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions was 4 p.m., Monday, April 11. The election will take place June 7. In Charlevoix school board elections candidates do not run for a specific seat. The two candidates who receive the most votes among the five candidates will each get one of the two available seats.

There's a light at the end of the water main Homeowners can stop running water

City water superintendent Ed Whitley has announced that Charlevoix City water customers will no longer need to keep their water running as of April 15. In early February the city asked water customers to leave at least one stream of water running constantly to avoid freeze-up problems.

This past winter has been one of Charlevoix's worst for water line freeze-ups. City workers thawed more than 250 residential service lines and also have been repairing leaks caused by frozen mains throughout the city. In some places mains which were more than six feet below ground level froze. Several homes with frozen water lines ended up getting water through hoses connected to neighboring homes.

City administrators have estimated that problems with freezing lines will end up costing the city more than $70,000. The city is applying for state and federal disaster relief funds.

Due to leaks and requests to homeowners to keep water running, the city water plant has been pumping between 600,000 and 1 million gallons more water per day than what is usual for this time of year. Assuming an average of 750,000 gallons per day and 60 days of problems, that would mean freezing problems have required the water plant to pump 45 million gallons of additional water during the past two months.

High speed chase lands man in jail

A 20-year-old Charlevoix man landed in jail following a high speed chase through downtown streets and yards close to midnight Monday evening.

As of Tuesday morning Matthew Harbison was in the Charlevoix County jail charged with operating under the influence of liquor, fleeing and eluding and reckless driving.

According to police reports, shortly before midnight April 11 a city police officer attempted to pull Harbison over for a traffic violation near the intersection of Park and Grant Streets. Harbison refused to pull over and a high speed chase ensued which wound through the southwest section of town. At one point Harbison was southbound on Lake Street and went off of the end of Lake Street, turned off his lights and cut through backyards and side yards and came out on Norwood Road.

Spring Break '94 in balmy Charlevoix

For years thousands upon thousands of people have traveled to Florida for a spring break holiday. What a waste! They could have saved all the expense and travel time by enjoying the wonders of Charlevoix during the first week in April. Granted, a taste for northern Michigan when it's too cold to swim and too warm to ski is something you have to develop, but it has its rewards. To develop your taste for a spring break in Charlevoix the Courier invites you to join Jeremy Doan (left) and Jeff Hoffman (right) Charlevoix spring break pioneers, on pages 2 and 3 for a photo journey of Spring Break '94 - An Adventure in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix: An undiscovered

By L. Scott Swanson

Jeremy Doan and Jeff Hoffman were trying to think of a place to go for Spring Break 1994.

Where to go? Where to go, they wondered? Florida? Yeah, what about Florida? No way! Uncool. Everybody goes to Florida for Spring Break. It's been done to death.

What about Mexico? Some people go to Mexico. Once again, no way. You've got to be careful about drinking the water in Mexico. Not only that, they've got that new free trade agreement thing down there. And you know what that means? It means in Mexico, they can arrest tourists and sell them to Canadians. It's a bad deal.

Jeremy and Jeff wanted to go somewhere original for their spring break, somewhere safe, somewhere where the air is pure and the water is clear, someplace like ... someplace like ... someplace like ... Charlevoix! Yeah! That's right, Charlevoix!

Think about it. What could make for a wilder and more exotic spring break than a week in Charlevoix during the first part of April? Oh sure, so far not too many people go to Charlevoix for spring break, but then a couple hundred years ago not too many people ventured west of the Mississippi River. Then Lewis and Clark did it and now look how many people are out west. Millions of 'em. Jeremy and Jeff didn't want to follow the crowd like just two more lemmings in a march to the Florida sea. Anybody can join the masses and go to Florida. It takes somebody special to set a precedent, somebody out of the ordinary to forge a trail, somebody willing to live on the edge and endure the hardships to become the Lewis and Clark of the Charlevoix spring break scene.

So Jeremy and Jeff loaded up the Doan family's blue Chevy Blazer and taped a sign on the back that said, "Spring Break '94. Depot Beach or Bust!" They left the Doan residence on Oak Street at 8:07 a.m. Sure, they could have stopped somewhere and spent the night along the way and no doubt a lesser pair of spring breakers would have. But not Jeremy and Jeff. No, they shared the driving and drove straight through, arriving at Depot Beach at 8:09 a.m. Jeremy was pretty proud of the Blazer. It got good mileage on the way to spring break and not one mechanical problem on the whole trip. That's another advantage of making Charlevoix your spring break destination. If your vehicle breaks down enroute, you can just shift into neutral and coast the rest of the way.

Arriving at Depot Beach, Jeff and Jeremy stretched to limber up after the drive and then hurried to the shoreline to check out the babes. Checking out the babes on Depot Beach in early April proved to be kind of like looking for UFOs. There were no verified sightings. Someone, or something, was walking around on the beach down the lakeshore, way off in the distance. It may have been a heavily dressed human, or then again perhaps it was a deer or a bear venturing out of the woods and down to the lakeshore. Jeff and Jeremy had heard that spring break involved some wildlife on the beach, but this wasn't what they had envisioned.

Although scouting for the legendary Depot Beach babes proved to be a dismal failure, the trip to the beach was not without its highlights. Following a brisk game of one-man volleyball, Jeremy decided it was time for a swim. He chose to forego his normal method of entering the water. This time of the year if you try running out into the water and diving in, you're likely to land on your belly and slip and slide all the way to Ironston. Instead, he just stuck in a toe and concluded that would be enough swimming for this spring break.

While Jeremy was swimming, Jeff wandered down the beach and found a sign with all of the beach rules. He called Jeremy over and showed them to him. The rules only reinforced what they already knew. Although Charlevoix is just starting to become known as a spring break center, all the rules and paperwork are already in place to handle the masses of people who are sure to come when the town is more widely discovered.

After the excitement of the beach got to be just too much, Jeff and Jeremy decided to head into downtown Charlevoix. They were certain that would be a hotbed of activity. They found that some of the local businesses had posted signs mentioning spring. They said the stores would be closed or operating on special hours until spring gets here.

Jeremy and Jeff found that local law enforcement officials had somehow heard about Charlevoix becoming a spring break destination and were eager to get a handle on the situation before any problems developed. Police told Jeremy and Jeff they'd heard about spring break students getting out of control in other places. They made it clear that if any of that student mob type of stuff started to happen in Charlevoix, it would be nipped right in the bud. Jeremy and Jeff didn't have any plans to cause problems and since there were only two of them, they really didn't constitute much of a mob. With two cops and only two spring breakers, the cop to student ratio was one to one, not a situation ripe for chaos. But who knows what the future could bring? This year two spring breakers, next year it could be three.

After hanging out downtown for a while, Jeremy and Jeff decided to visit the Chamber of Commerce office. Surely, if there were any kind of wild spring break events happening, the Chamber of Commerce would know about them.

Jeff and Jeremy told the Chamber of Commerce person that they were on spring break and they were looking for some kind of wild activity. They

In a few years, when Charlevoix becomes one of the world's most popular spring break destinations, you'll have to wait for hours to get a volleyball court. But for now, you can't even find enough people for a two on two game.

Having heard about students on spring break causing trouble in other places, Charlevoix law enforcement officers Sherry Sproul and Dennis Halverson were quick to see that any potential problems in Charlevoix were nipped in the bud. With a ratio of one police officer for every student on spring break, there were no problems.

Right: Jeremy Doan tests the water at Depot Beach and decides that swimming may not be the best Charlevoix spring break activity.

wanted to go to an event where a large group of people get together to raise their voices, get a little wild and vent some of life's frustrations. Charlevoix has just such an event, but unfortunately the next school board meeting won't take place until after spring break is over.

After stopping in at the Chamber of Commerce, Jeff remembered that his mother had been concerned about him going on spring break. Had he gone to Florida, he would have had to call home and check in and assure her that he was all right. But since he was on spring break in Charlevoix there was no need to make a long distance phone call. Instead, he just stopped by the office where she works.

Later, as they wrapped up their spring break day in Charlevoix, Jeremy and Jeff found themselves within sight of the bank thermometer. The two Charlevoix spring breakers paused and for a silent moment felt pity for all those poor souls suffering in that 80 degree Florida heat when they could have been so much more comfortable in Charlevoix at 40 degrees.

Spring Break Wonderland

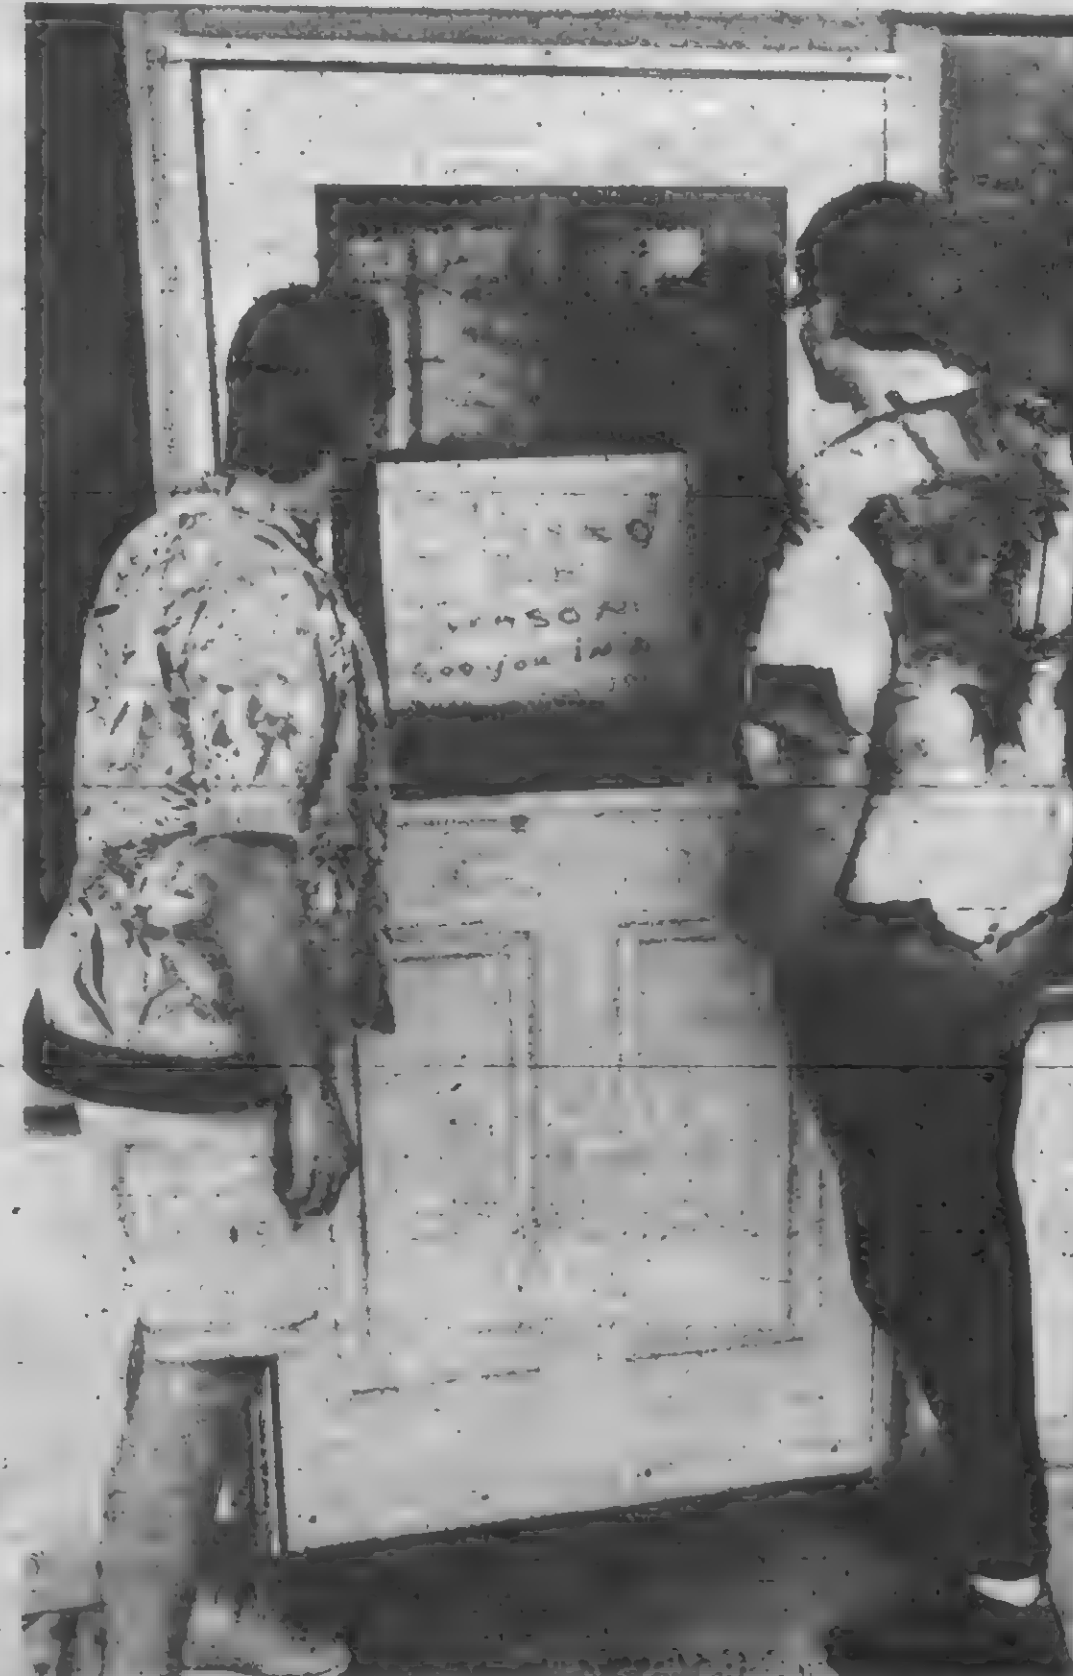

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, April 13, 1994 - PAGE 3

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce worker Rosemary Hebert was glad to tell spring break students Jeremy Doan and Jeff Hoffman all about Charlevoix's spring break hot spots.

Right: For young men, one of the best things about spring break on the beaches of Charlevoix is that you don't have to put up with a lot of women in bikinis running around and disturbing the tranquility. Ask any man and he will tell you how much he hates it when that happens.

Since it's early in Charlevoix's rise to spring break super-destination, some local businesses still aren't ready to handle the rush of people.

One of the great things about going to Charlevoix for spring break is that you don't have to call home to assure worried parents that you're all right. Jeff Hoffman (center) just stopped by the office where his mother, Cheri Hoffman, works to let her know that spring break was going well.

New sidewalks have made city safer

Of all the municipal construction projects the city has undertaken in recent years, one of the best things for the community has been work done on the city's sidewalks. With the weather being reasonably nice and virtually everyone who stayed in town for spring break suffering from cabin fever, those sidewalks received quite a bit of use this past weekend.

Over the past several years the city has not only repaired existing sidewalks, but some strategic sidewalk additions have made walking around a safer thing to do in this town particularly for the young and elderly. Not only have these additional sidewalks made walking safer, they've also made life easier on the nerves of drivers who don't have to compete with pedestrians for street space.

Although the Downtown Development Authority's (DDA) project to refurbish Bridge Street sidewalks was highly visible and economically beneficial, in terms of safety several other sidewalk projects in other areas of town probably will have a greater effect. Following are some examples:

*The Eaton Street hill leading down to Ferry Avenue. For years this hill was ripe for a problem between drivers and pedestrians. It's a steep hill and drivers headed toward the lake can't see what's over the edge until they're pretty much over the edge themselves. Couple that with children walking up the hill after spending the day at the beach and you've got a recipe for disaster. A couple of years ago the city put in a new sidewalk on the north edge of the street and now children and others can walk up the hill much more safely.

*The Stover Road hill at the south end of Ferry Beach.

L. Scott Swanson

This hill had a similar problem to the one on Eaton Street. In some ways it was even worse because it was in more of an industrialized area and vehicular traffic seemed to move faster than on Eaton Street. In addition to that there was often large vehicle traffic from the street garage and also people hauling boat trailers up and down the hill. The new sidewalk on that hill was also something that was needed for years.

*May Street, between the high school and Stover Road. For years high school students, football players on their way to practice behind the bus garage and residents of the Mayfield Village apartment complex hiked along the shoulder of the road. And like Stover Road, May Street is one of those streets where drivers have a tendency to push the speed limit. Now, we have a sidewalk to keep people and vehicles separate.

*Carpenter Street, off the end of the football field between May and Bridge Streets. With several food establishments nearby on Bridge Street this became a popular path for high school students. This also used to be an adventurous area before and after football games. Cars would park at the end of the field to watch the game. With no sidewalk, some pedestrians would walk in front of the cars and others would walk behind them. It just wasn't a good situation. The sidewalk has helped correct the problems.

*Garfield Street from Pine River Place to State Street. This is just a little stretch of sidewalk, but it makes it easier and safer for the elderly residents of the senior citizen housing complex to begin a nice healthy stroll.

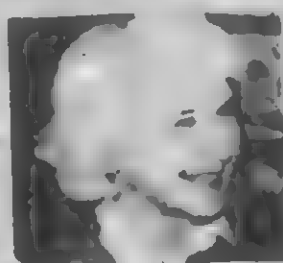

*Bridge Street, south of the central business district, and Petoskey Avenue, north of the central business district. For too many years Charlevoix pedestrians walked right alongside a busy four-lane road. In the winter, when the snowbanks piled up all too often people walked right out in the road. In the past several years the addition of the sidewalk along with several attractive businesses have made this a much better place for walking.

While several new stretches of sidewalk have been added in recent years, the job still isn't done. There are plans for more sidewalks. Later this summer additional stretches of sidewalk will be put along the aforementioned stretches of Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue so that pedestrians will be able to walk on either side of the street. There are also plans in place to build a stretch of sidewalk along Carpenter Street between State Street and the softball and Little League fields. During the summer hundreds of kids use those fields and many of them come to their games either on foot or by bike. Having a sidewalk for them will make their trips to and from their games safer.

We have a beautiful community. It's a nice place to take a walk.

EDITH GILBERT

Washington D.C.'s cherry blossoms peaked during my visit. The explosion of trees in blossom and forsythia bushes in bloom made one feel as if one was walking through a heavenly orchard. Too bad our president, Bill Clinton and the first lady, had to leave the beautiful city right after the Easter Egg roll on the White House lawn, but they both had very important subjects to discuss with the rest of the country, pertaining to health care, welfare reform and crime regulations.

Still I felt the need to call the White House as a matter of courtesy, and tell them that I had passed through Washington. It would be embarrassing if they heard that I had been in town and hadn't called to say, "hello."

I dialed 202-456-1111 and one of the volunteer operators answered the phone. I told her what a great job I thought the Clintons were doing, and that I sincerely hoped all the yipping and yapping at their heels wasn't getting them down.

"Oh, my," she cried cheerfully. "You are the third positive call we've had in a row!"

"I'm glad to hear that," I replied. "You know, confidentially, I am bewildered by the rude comments that are repeated publicly today in the press and on the air about the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES! I remember when I was in high school, the terrible things they used to say about Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt. In fact, there was a guest at the Beverly Hills Hotel, where my mother had a gift shop, Mr. McDermott, who was particularly outspoken and very derogatory, just as bad as some of our disrespectful radio and TV commentators are today. Evidently someone reported him and he was picked up, I think by the FBI, and put in jail overnight. It was the talk of the Hotel at the time, I can't imagine that happening today, but let me assure you, this person watched his p's and q's after that, much to everyone's relief."

"How interesting," the volunteer replied. "Thank you for your call!" Having done my civic duty, I now turned my attention to the small fry whom I was visiting. This meant reading aloud, reading aloud, reading aloud and pushing the kiddy swing.

"Have you had enough, Carl?"

"Higher!" he replies.

"Have you had enough now?"

"Faster!" he replies.

Higher and faster is also the country's theme this spring. Skirts are higher. Spirits are higher and everyone is moving faster. Including me.

Remind me, please, to tell Nancy Reagan that before leaving Washington, I had lunch at one of her favorite restaurants in Clifton, Virginia, called Head and Heart. Walls covered with quilts and all very early American even tho' the menu wasn't. The sherried onion soup was delicious as was the grilled sandwich, Monsieur Croque-monsieur.

Finally, according to my private polling, the talk around Washington this week revolves around the new Disney Amusement Park that is planned nearby. And that reminds me of this story. Walt Disney once told he conceived Disneyland after visiting Copenhagen's world famous Tivoli gardens in Denmark. Tivoli was built over 150 years ago. It was the brainchild of George Carstensen and according to legend, Carstensen won permission from King Christian VIII to build his amusement park after the King heard him comment that "people engaged in fun do not engage in politics."

How appropriate to place an amusement park so close to the Beltway! Perhaps it will result in reducing Washington's limp politics to a minimum and establish instead a measure of statesmanship in our Government. But don't count on it—

Faith healing criticized

Editor,

There seems to be a large emphasis in the media on the subject of "assisted suicide" yet little attention is given to the much greater threat to life in our country. I am referring to "faith healing."

Christian Science practitioners kill more people every day than Dr. Jack Kevorkian could even dream of. Jehovah's Witnesses deny blood transfusions to dying people, yet all this is protected by religious freedom laws.

Anybody with any sense and a third grade education knows that "scientific prayer" will not cure a ruptured appendix nor colon cancer, but how do you get this across to those so brain washed by their religion that they cannot see the light of day.

Another aspect of this is that these faith healers solicit and accept money for their services. This is patently a fraud and the law should spell this out so they could be arrested, tried and punished by fine or prison or both.

One encouraging step has been taken by the state of Massachusetts, the home state of Christian Scientists where a new law has outlawed faith healing as a defense of child abuse.

A recent article in a prominent newspaper printed a two column article titled "Christian Science has a strong record of healing." How wrong and false a story this was. Christian Science never cured anything. The most they can do is take credit for the natural circumstances of life. I will admit they can cure people of all the imagined illnesses they can conjure up.

Christian Scientist responds to criticism

Editor,

Christian Scientists appreciate the opportunity to reply to the above letter that opposes their freedom to practice their religion. Though it is often difficult to know their motives for restricting religious freedom, it is never difficult to know that opposition to the freedom of one group or individual, especially when it is based on misinformation, opens the door for attacks on the freedom of all.

Christian Scientists are pleased that attempts to restrict their religious freedom run headlong into the common sense and common experience of many others who have experienced the joy of effective healing through prayer. They are also grateful for those who may not yet have felt that practical connection with the Supreme Being themselves, but would not deny it to others.

Today there is presently no perfect system of cure for our sometimes suffering race. Throughout history, of those who have yearned and labored to relieve human suffering, only Christ Jesus, the Master Christian, healed every case he accepted.

Yet Christian Science has a splendid overall record of cure for the most fearful forms of disease. A recent study of carefully verified healings that cover a 20-year period contains more than 2,300 that were medically verified. Those included 27 healings of malignancy of cancer, 42 of tumor, 16 of polio, 68 of tuberculosis, 9 of meningitis, 24 of appendicitis and 12 of diabetes, among many other cases. This study is published in "Freedom and Responsibility," a booklet available free of charge in any Christian Science Reading Room, including the ones in Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Like physicians and other professionals, Christian Science practitioners accept fees for their services because, unlike ministers and priests, they are not paid by the churches they attend. Jesus himself declared, "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and the second time he sent his disciples out to heal and preach, he encouraged them to accept payment for their work. Our practitioners try to follow this model.

The great Master also asked his accusers a question Christian Scientists might today ask theirs: "For which of my works do you stone me?" all who honestly and selflessly strive with reasonable success to relieve humanity's suffering are worthy of gratitude and respect. Christian Scientists today ask only that we, like our physician friends, be fairly judged on our overall record. And above all we wish our critics peace of heart and mind.

Sincerely,
Frances J. Ladi

School board action is disappointing

Editor,

I am very disappointed to hear of Dave Smith's resignation and confused by the circumstances surrounding the school board's acceptance of it. Dave had an extremely positive impact on me as a student athlete in high school. I feel that the values he demonstrated to me: hard work, determination, discipline, and loyalty to those who deserve it, are all factors that influence my life to this day.

In my opinion, it is viewed as a shortcoming for Dave that he calls it the way he sees it. Nothing could be farther from the truth. It takes courage to speak your mind. It is not a shortcoming. Most people are afraid to stand up for what they think is right because they don't want confrontation. Dave deals with everyone in the same manner and doesn't worry about the consequences. He does what he thinks is best for the school system and that is what he was hired to do.

Dave Smith treats high school students as young adults. He teaches them to take responsibility for their actions. Unfortunately, there are some older adults in this community who have never learned that lesson.

Sincerely,
Craig Klooster

Motorists can buy designer license plates

Michigan motorists can rev up financial support for state parks and college scholarships under an initiative unveiled by House Republican lawmakers.

State Representatives Beverly A. Bodem, R-Alpena, and Bill Martin, R-Battle Creek, will introduce a three-bill package permitting drivers to purchase designer license plates that support these deserving causes.

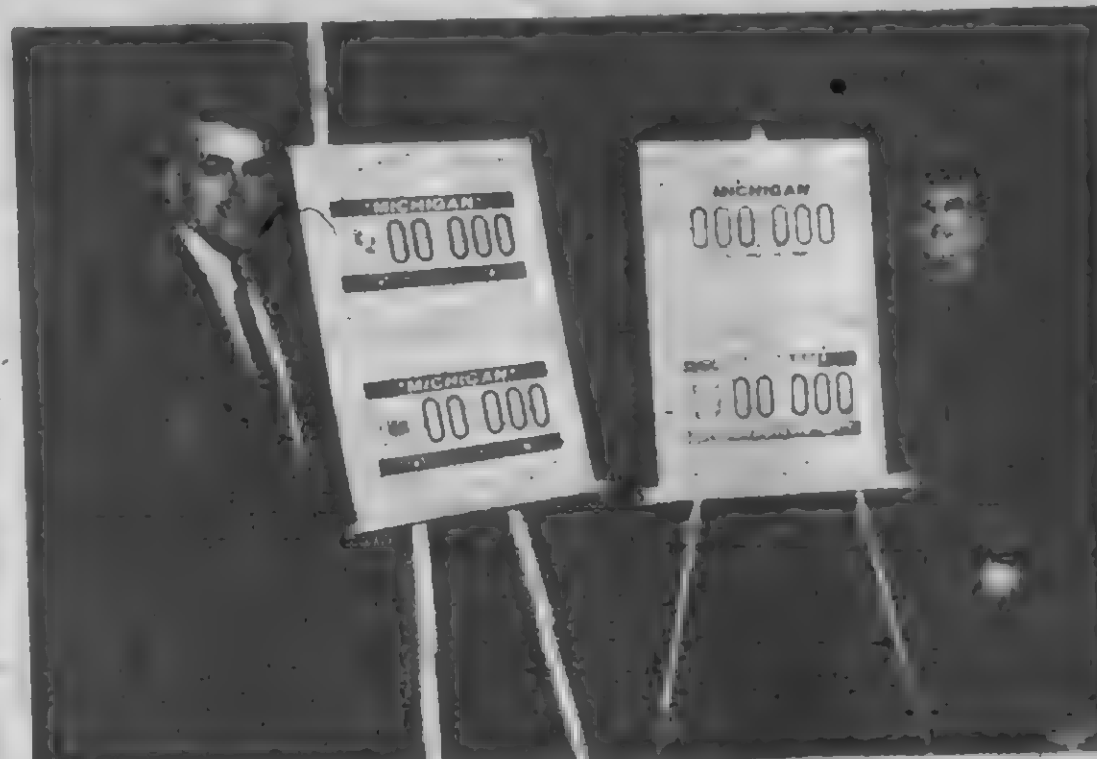

"By allowing these special plates, we sustain priceless assets that are important to our environment and critical to Michigan's economy," said Bodem, who chairs the House Tourism and Recreation Committee.

One plate depicts the Mackinac Bridge and is enhanced with environment-oriented features. Proceeds from that sale would be divided between the Parks Improvement Fund and Environmental Response Fund. Other plates highlight the colors and symbols of one of Michigan's public universities, with that money being distributed to students through the Michigan Educational Opportunity Grant program.

The lawmakers emphasized that buying the specialty plates would be strictly voluntary and have no negative fiscal impact on the state. They would cost $25 a year in addition to the Secretary of State charge. Any additional manufacturing or administrative expenses also would come from that fee.

Bodem pointed out that a similar program in Florida is tremendously successful.

"Larger universities in that state have raised more than $1 million for additional scholarships. Florida also reaps nearly that much annually for environmental projects. This is a proven approach to supplementing limited tax dollars that clearly has merit for Michigan."

"As in other states, specialty license plates will be a viable way to raise revenue for Michigan's public university students while not raising taxes or creating a budget deficit. Innovative legislation like this should be encouraged and supported," said Keith Pretty, vice president for external affairs at Western Michigan University.

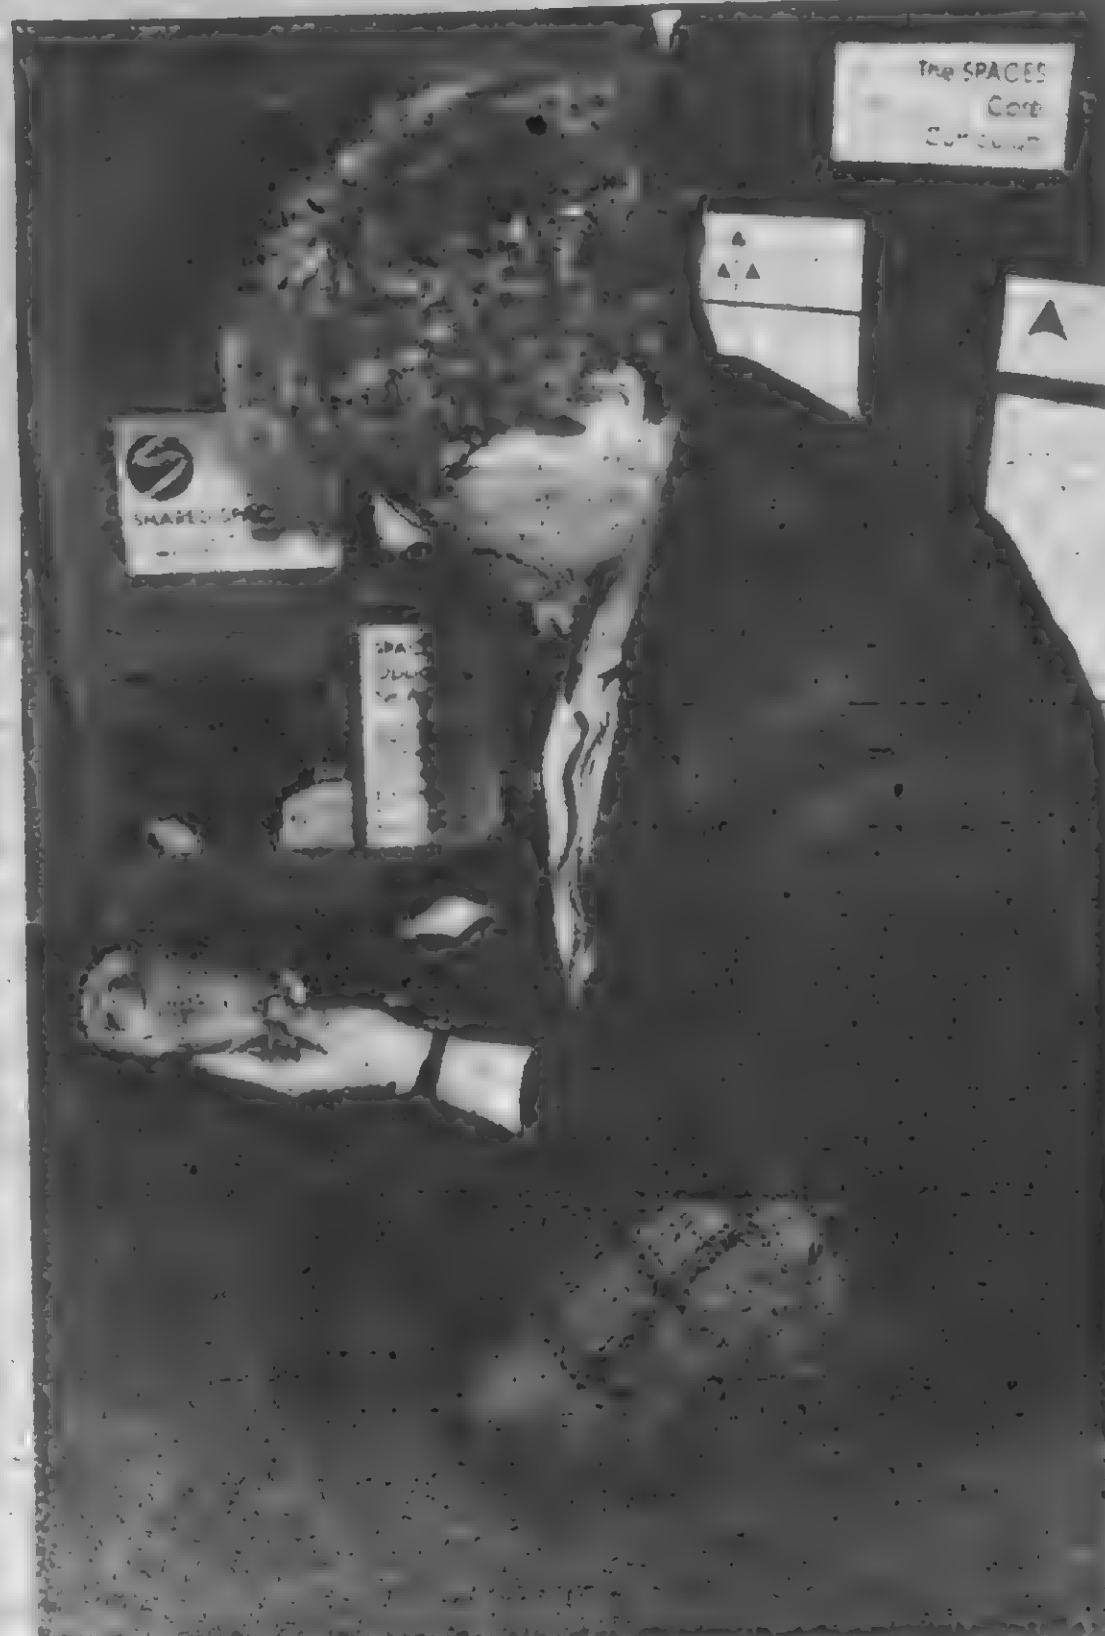

Thomas L. Washington, executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs also has endorsed the Bodem legislation.

"I am pleased to lend our support to the new, specialty, environmental license plate which will be dedicated to environmental cleanups and parks," Washington said. "A visual demonstration of support for Michigan's natural resources, backed up by funding, is a great idea."

The designer plates would complement recent legislative advancements in securing stable park funding. Bodem also is sponsoring a measure in the Michigan State Parks Initiative that would prevent diversions from the natural Resources Trust Fund. Some bills in the package, introduced earlier this year, are on Gov. Engler's desk.

"Michigan parks were built on vision, ingenuity and commitment," Bodem said. "Now is the time to renew that commitment."

Councilman to host constituent meeting

Third ward City Council Representative Bruce Reid will host a constituent meeting from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., April 20 in the government classroom at the high school. During his campaign for election Reid told constituents that if he was elected he would like to hold informal meetings to let constituents know about matters that are going on now in city government and things that will be coming up in the future. Among the things he plans to discuss April 20 are street repairs, capital improvements and the city budget.

County Republicans to talk strategy

The Charlevoix Republican Party Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m., April 14 in the Commissioners' Room at the Charlevoix County Building.

Items on the agenda include: the annual Lincoln Day Dinner; petitions for delegates to the County Convention; Governor kick-off plans; 106th District Race; 37th Senatorial Race; First Congressional Race; Secretary of State candidates; Attorney General race; Supreme Court Judge and Appeals Judge races; U of M Board of Regents Appointments.

All interested voters are invited to attend.

Drug prevention workshop scheduled for parents

Charlevoix Public Schools and the CHIP Counseling center are co-sponsoring a drug prevention program for parents. The Parent-To-Parent drug prevention workshop to help parents raise a drug-free child will take place from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., April 19, 26 and May 3 and 10 at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church. There is no charge for the workshop.

The workshop utilizes video presentations to train parents in skills, attitudes and abilities they may need to get their children through the adolescent years without drug or alcohol abuse. In the event a child does develop an alcohol or drug problem, the parent will be aware of signs to recognize the problem. To register, phone 547-3241 or 347-3928.

Junior Grange to host pancake supper

The Barnard Junior Grangers will host an all-you-can-eat pancake supper from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., April 20 at the Grange Hall on Barnard Road.

Chinese students' art displayed

Jamie Riddle takes a look at some of the pictures drawn and painted by students from the Sichuan Province in the People's Republic of China. The pictures are on display at the Friends of 4-H headquarters in the Oleson's Food Store plaza. In October, 1992, 200 works of art by Michigan students were sent to China. Now, Chinese students' art work is touring Michigan. The Friends of 4-H headquarters is serving as the central office for the fundraising drive to purchase Castle Farms and turn the complex into a youth education and recreation center. The fundraising campaign needs to raise $300,000 by mid-May for a downpayment on the property. Currently, the drive has raised approximately $125,000. Seventeen St. Mary's youth to participate in confirmation service

Sunday, April 17 at the 10 a.m. liturgy, Rev. Patrick R. Cooney, Bishop of the Gaylord area, will administer confirmation to 17 candidates in St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Candidates and their parents are: Gita and Patrick Butcher - Tom and Laurel Butcher; Cameron Carr - Dennis and Connie Carr; Bradley Eaton - Bill and Jeanne Eaton; Marybeth Gagnon - John and Carol

Gagnon; Sherry Lynn Gels - James and Carol Gels; Jocelyn Hosler - Mark and Annette Hosler; Christie Kacynski - Gayle Gennett; Maro LaBlance - Marina LaBlance; Aprille Pischner - David and Mary Pischner; Timothy Roeth - Terrence and Martha Roeth; Richard Shepard - Rick and Mary Shepard; Michael Staton - David and Kathleen Staton; Jason Terryberry - Date and Mary Terryberry; Evan

Vogel - Bill and Barbara Vogel; Marcy Wojan - Dennis and Florence Wojan; Tiffany Wojan - Robert and Keri Wojan.

Catechists who helped prepare the candidates are Nelson Fletcher, Stan and Martha Kupka and Bill and Barb Vogel. Sister Roseanne Szocinski, O.P., is the director of the Confirmation program; Father Thomas A. Neis is pastor of St. Mary's Church.

Assembly of God to host Love For Children Sunday service

The Charlevoix Assembly of God will host the first "Love For Children (LFC) Sunday" April 24 at 10:30 a.m.

The purpose of a LFC Sunday is to make the congregation of the church aware of the LFC program and to recruit volunteers.

Selected communities in the Great Lakes states have the opportunity to participate in a Love For Children year pilot program, thanks to a grant from the W.K. Kellogg foundation. Each local LFC affiliate in cooperation with area Head Start and/or WIC officials, will initiate volunteer programs which best meet their local needs and capabilities.

Church volunteers who want to help children now have the opportunity to develop supportive relationships and greater levels of help through LFC volunteer program.

LFC recruits, organizes and trains churches to provide volunteers for their neighbors in need. Operating as a ministry of world vision, Love For Children matches church volunteers and resources with the unmet needs of Head Start/WIC children and their families.

The April 24 church service will feature children's choir, lots of balloons, children ushering and receiving the offering.

Dinah Crozier, program director, will be on hand to give some information and background relating to LFC. Debbie Bellinger, the love link or contact person will speak to recruit volunteers. Following the service there will be a coffee hour.

The next LFC Sunday will be at the United Methodist Church May 8. Tansley Stewart is the love link there. The Congregational Church will be the LFC service site later in May and Patty Ulrick is the love link for that church.

For more information call the Love for Children office at 547-1719.

Methodist Women schedule luncheon and bake sale

Mary Ellen Taylor

Mary Ellen Taylor, 75, of East Jordan, died April 8, 1994, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Funeral was held Sunday, April 10, at the Paullin Funeral Home, East Jordan. The Rev. Robert F. Johnson officiated. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

She was born Aug. 16, 1918, in Bay Shore, the daughter of John and Alice (Zipp) Johnson. She grew up in Bay Shore and graduated from Petoskey High School.

On Jan. 29, 1940, she married William D. Taylor in Petoskey. He preceded her in death on April 13, 1990.

Mrs. Taylor and her husband owned and operated the Taylor I.G.A. store in East Jordan from 1942 to 1972. The store is now known as Carey's Corner Market I.G.A.

Mrs. Taylor served as past worthy matron for the Order of the Eastern Star. She was a member of the East Jordan Snowmobile Club, and enjoyed bowling and crocheting. She and her husband, Bill, were grand marshals of the East Jordan Freedom Festival Parade in 1989.

Survivors include one daughter, Judith Kay Vivian and her husband, James, of Alpena; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Douglas (Louise) Taylor Bergmann, of Charlevoix; five grandchildren, John Holcomb and his wife, Claudette, Jim Vivian, Jodi Vivian, William J. Taylor IV, and Douglas Bergmann; one brother, Fletcher Johnson and his wife, Margaret, of Petoskey; and several nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Taylor was preceded in death by one son, William J. Taylor III, in 1965; two brothers, Robert and John "Chum" Johnson; and five sisters, Hildegard Johnson, Elma Shureb, Amy Lou Dietze, Nina Niswander and Lela G. Johnson.

Visitation was held Saturday at the Paullin Funeral Home, East Jordan. Memorial contributions may be made to the East Jordan Ambulance Fund or to the charity of choice.

Timothy L. Shores Jr.

Timothy Lewis Shores Jr., 62, of Charlevoix and Mesa, Ariz., died April 10, 1994, at his home in Charlevoix.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, April 13, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Charlevoix Community Church of God will officiate. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Shores was born Jan. 17, 1932, in Charlevoix, the son of Timothy L. and Bird (Sweet) Shores. He was raised in Charlevoix.

On Aug. 30, 1956, he married Lora Belle Elzinga in Charlevoix. Mr. Shores was a U.S. Army veteran, serving during the Korean conflict. He was a painter and had worked for Harold Pearl and Hank Ingalls Painters in Charlevoix for several years. He also worked as a custodian at Petoskey High School from 1971-79.

He was a member of the National Rifle Association and various other clubs and organizations in Mesa, Ariz.

Survivors include his wife, Lora Belle; two daughters, Connie Kraft and her husband, Donald, of Mesa, Ariz., and Deborah Potter and her husband, Jay, of Charlevoix; three sons, Robert Shores and his wife, Teresa, of Rochester Hills, Benjamin Shores and his wife, Charlette, of Bay City, and Gary Shores and his wife, Denise, of Chandler, Ariz.; nine grandchildren; one brother, Joe Shores, of Florida; and four sisters, Helen Cunningham of Charlevoix, Mrs. William (Betty) Seese of Charlevoix, Kay Ager of Charlevoix, and Pat Haggerty of Novi. Mr. Shores was preceded in death by his brother, Richard.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay or to the Community Church of God of Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where friends may call from 6-8 p.m. today, April 12.

Albert A. Luebke

Albert A. Luebke, 96, of Petoskey, died April 7, 1994, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

His funeral was Monday, April 11, at Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey. The Rev. Robert Warren officiated, and burial will take place in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

He was born Feb. 9, 1898, in Petoskey, the daughter of August and Martha Luebke. He lived in the Petoskey area all of his life, and attended Greenwood School.

On Feb. 9, 1937, he married Marie Krause in Petoskey and she survives.

Mr. Luebke farmed until he went to work for T. Chalmers Curtis Estates as a custodian. He retired in 1973, but continued to work for the Curtis until 1992.

He was a life-long member of Parr Memorial Baptist Church where he was a trustee for 12 years. He was also a member of the Bear Creek Grange.

Survivors include his wife, Marie; three nephews, Jack Luebke and his wife, Betty, of Petoskey, Lavere Luebke and his wife, Theresa, of Ferndale, and Kress Luebke of Ocala, Fla.; one niece, Maria Stonham and her husband, Ron, of Charlevoix; a brother-in-law, Dr. Charles Krause and his wife, Millie, of Dexter; many great nieces and great-nephews, and special friends, Bill and Pat Hoffman and Isabelle Hoffman. Mr. Luebke was preceded in death by his brothers, George and Carl.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the Parr Memorial Baptist Church Building Fund. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Stone Funeral Home.

Nicole Moore wins Zonta service award

Nicole Moore, a Charlevoix High School senior, recently received the Young Woman in Public Service Award from the Charlevoix Area Zonta club.

The award is given to encourage young women, under the age of 19, to enter careers or seek leadership positions in social policymaking, government and volunteer organizations. This award was established by Zonta International in 1990. The Charlevoix Area Zonta club established their award in 1992. The first recipient was Angela Chase of East Jordan High School and the 1993 award was given to Ann Schairbaum of Charlevoix High School.

The award is open to young women in the Charlevoix area and all school counselors received applications. The application stresses participation in community and school affairs as well as academic achievement. Applicants are requested to list their student activities, community service activities, international awareness, role models, women in decision-making positions, and world vision.

Moore has been active in Community City Band for three years and a member of the Community Youth Orchestra for seven years as a cellist. She was chosen for the Michigan Honors Band as a trumpet player and is a member of the honor squad. Moore also plays for local nursing homes.

A member of the National Honor Society and the French Club, she visited France last year and increased her understanding of other cultures and diversity. She also participates in the Community Food Pantry.

Author to sign books at Charlevoix Library

Northern Michigan author Gloria Whelan will be in Charlevoix Thursday, April 14 for a signing reception hosted by the Charlevoix Parent-Teacher-Organization (PTO). The reception will take place from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the downstairs room of the Charlevoix Public Library on Clinton Street.

Whelan has written several award-winning children's books such as: Next Spring An Oriole; A Week of Raccoons; Silver: The Secret Keeper; Hannah: Bringing the Farmhouse Home; Goodbye Vietnam; A Time To Keep Silent; Night of the Full Moon; That Wild Berries Should Grow.

Bridge Street Book Shop will have a selection of Whelan's books available for purchase so people can get a personal copy of the book autographed by the author. Ten percent of the evening's book sales will go to the Charlevoix Elementary School library.

American Legion plans annual spring luncheon

The American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and its Auxiliary have scheduled their annual spring salad and casserole dinner to be held at the American Legion Hall on Tuesday, April 19.

Dinner will be served from 4:40 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Cost is $5 per adult, and $3 for children 10 years and under, for the "All-You-Can-Eat" dinner. The dinner will feature ham, chicken, meats, Polish sausage & sauerkraut, vegetable casseroles, varieties of potatoes, gelatin salads, and all types of other vegetables, salads, relishes and desserts.

Dinner is open to the public, and everyone is invited. All Post and Auxiliary members will be contacted for their donations of food for the dinner. Proceeds from the dinner will benefit remodeling of the Legion Hall.

Auxiliary President Katie Curtis, and Vice-President Rosalyn Goldstick are in charge of the dinner. Nancy Wood is in charge of the dining room, and Josephine Bindie is in charge of the kitchen. If there are any questions, please contact one of the above.

Red nose campaign to assist in SIDS research

Business people, teachers, politicians, children and movie stars will be wearing red noses on Red Nose Day USA, April 15, to stop the tragedy of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. SIDS is the leading cause of death for infants age one month to one year. Each year more babies will die of SIDS than all of those who die of cancer, heart disease, AIDS, pneumonia, child abuse, cystic fibrosis and muscular dystrophy combined.

Every red nose is a symbol of hope for a future free from the tragedy of SIDS. On April 15 people may help the Michigan SIDS Alliance by wearing a red nose, buying a red nose for your best friend, selling a red nose to your next door neighbor, or putting a red nose on your car. For those who are too shy to wear a red nose, buy a button that states "I'm too chicken to wear a red nose!"

Not only is Red Nose Day a public awareness campaign, it is also the largest national fund raising campaign for SIDS. All funds will be used to fund SIDS research, family support and education.

Everyone is needed for this campaign. Please join in our efforts and in the fun! Make your concern for saving babies. "As plain as the nose on your face!"

Nursery school plans 25th anniversary party

The East Jordan Co-operative Nursery School will host a 25th Anniversary party at the Presbyterian Church on 207 Williams St. in East Jordan, April 23. Speaker JoAnna Mulhauser will speak to parents concerning early childhood development. Also featured is Sean Ryan to entertain parents and children. Past alumni of the nursery school are encouraged to attend and all are welcome with the entire family. Child crafts and refreshments will be available.

Man jailed on CSC charge

A 21-year-old man is facing charges of third degree criminal sexual conduct for allegedly having sex with an underage girl. Jason Whidden Quave who is stationed in Charlevoix with the U. S. Coast Guard was arraigned in District Court April 5 before visiting Judge James McCormick. McCormick set Quave's bond at $50,000 and he remains in the Charlevoix County jail.

According to city police reports the incident occurred on the evening of April 2. Quave was in an apartment complex and allegedly went across the hall to another apartment and assaulted a 15-year-old girl who was visiting the apartment. City police were called and found Quave in a closet and arrested him.

A police statement filed with the complaint said; the victim testified that the defendant had sex with her against her will; the girl is 15 years old; and the defendant admitted having sex with the victim. According to Michigan law, it is unlawful to engage in sex with someone younger than age 16.

Quave has retained attorney John Michaels. A preliminary examination had been scheduled for April 12, but has been postponed.

There's still quite a bit of ice in Lake Michigan off the shores of Charlevoix, but Coast Guard ships have been in and out and there are a few paths open. The cement ship also has been able to get into Medusa for the first time this spring.

Beach Cleanup to take place April 23

As part of Earth Day - 1994, The Inland Seas Educational Association (ISEA) will again coordinate a clean up of public beaches in northwest lower Michigan and the Grand Traverse area. Whether you are a seasoned Beach Sweeper or a potential one, ISEA invites you to take part in the Fifth Annual Earth Day - Beach Cleanup, Saturday, April 23, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Volunteers are needed in Manistee, Benzie, Leelanau, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Wexford and Charlevoix County. Scouts, environmental groups, school children, Senior citizens, families, and others who are interested in participating in the Beach Cleanup are encouraged to pick a beach and help make the area more beautiful.

The goal of the "Earth Day - Beach Cleanup" event will be to remove and document debris from the shores of the Great Lakes in the Grand Traverse regional area and determine the type and sources of beach litter.

The goal of the "Earth Day - Beach Cleanup" event will be to remove and document debris from the shores of the Great Lakes in the Grand Traverse regional area and determine the type and sources of beach litter. Participants in the Beach Cleanup event are contributing to the long-term health of Lake Michigan. ISEA volunteers are making strides in removing beach debris that has been on our beaches for a number of years. Much of the non-biodegradable objects that were left years ago on our beaches such as bottle tops, plastic straws, glass bottles and other items have been removed in prior beach cleanups in many areas.

ISEA will again be providing data cards for participants interested in helping with the "Earth Day - Beach Cleanup". If anyone is interested in volunteering as a group or as an individual to help make the area beaches a more beautiful place, and are in need of data cards and/or a beach assignment that they would please contact the Inland Seas Education office at 271-3077. ISEA is also in need of individuals who would like to act as a "Beach Captain", and help coordinate cleanup efforts in the area of their choice.

SCRAPBOOK

This picture had no identifying information with it, but it appears to be some local children helping out with sap collection. This is just a guess, but our estimate is that this picture was taken some time in the early to mid 1960s. If anyone can identify the people in the photo, feel free to call the Courier office at 547-6558.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Jack R. Tillen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Tillen of Charlevoix, recently departed on a six-month deployment to the Persian Gulf aboard the fast frigate USS Curtis, forward deployed in Yokosuka, Japan, as part of the aircraft carrier USS Independence Battle Group.

The ship is in the Red Sea on Maritime Interception Force operations enforcing United Nations sanctions against Iraq.

USS Curtis participated in combined replenishment and ship maneuvering exercises with two frigates from the Royal Thai Navy and two other U.S. warships off the coast of Pattaya Beach, Thailand.

Tillen is one of 200 crewmembers aboard the 445 foot frigate. The ship is armed with missiles, torpedoes, guns and can carry its own helicopter.

Naval forces will be prepared to fight promptly and effectively, but they will serve in an equally valuable way by engaging day-to-day as peacekeepers in the defense of American interests, from the sea.

He joined the Navy in March 1979.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Guy Gengle, son of William and Sue Ellen Gengle of Charlevoix, recently returned from a four-month Persian Gulf deployment aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Bunker Hill, forward deployed to Yokosuka, Japan, as part of the aircraft carrier USS Independence Battle Group.

USS Bunker Hill served in support of the United Nations' sanctioned Operation Southern Watch.

In the Gulf, the battle group joined Navy units from both U.S. coasts and ships from France and the United Kingdom. While aircraft from the carrier's airwing monitored Iraqi compliance with the "no fly" zone, many of the surface ships participated in maritime interception operations, with crewmembers boarding foreign cargo ships by small boat to inspect cargo bound for, or departing from, Iraq.

Earlier in the deployment, USS Bunker Hill detached from the battle group for independent operations in the seas off Japan. Following a visit to Pusan, South Korea; Yokosuka, Japan and Phuket, Thailand, the cruiser rejoined USS Independence in the Gulf.

Various ships of the battle group had the opportunity to conduct port calls in Singapore, Abu Dhabi, Dubai and Jebel Ali, United Arab Emirates; Manama, Bahrain; Pattaya, Thailand and Hong Kong.

...after roaring through streets and yards, driver ends up in jail

A sheriff's patrol car had been dispatched to assist and picked up the pursuit at the corner of Norwood Road and West Carpenter. According to police reports, Harbison drove off the south end of Norwood Road and onto the airport. Upon hitting the airport runway with the sheriff's patrol car in pursuit, he drove east back toward town and ended up on State Street. He eventually got back on US 31 and headed south out of town.

The chase ended when the sheriff's patrol car caught up with Harbison near the intersection of US 31 and the south end of Barnard Road.

Harbison is awaiting arraignment in District Court.

City considers donating property

The Charlevoix City Council is considering donating a piece of property on M-66 to the U.S. Coast Guard. The property would be made available to the Coast Guard to allow them to build housing for Coast Guard members stationed on either the ship or at the life station.

At Monday evening's city council meeting, Mayor Dave Novotny said that at this time the donation of the property is just something which is being suggested for consideration. He said it is part of the city's efforts to see that a Coast Guard ship such as the Acacia remains stationed in Charlevoix. Recently, the Coast Guard announced that the Coast Guard icebreaker Mackinaw will remain in Cheboygan for at least another year. That announcement means that the Acacia will likely stay in Charlevoix, rather than replace the Mackinaw in Cheboygan.

Novotny said that in discussions with Coast Guard officials, one of the advantages other communities have over Charlevoix as port cities is the availability of affordable housing. He said the donation of the property may be a way of addressing this problem. He said the issue is being brought up now because even though the Mackinaw decision buys Charlevoix some time it makes sense to act now, rather than waiting until the eleventh hour.

The property encompasses about 8.2 acres. Of that, approximately 3.5 acres are buildable. The city has owned the property for years. It is located off of M-66, past the manufactured housing park. City Manager Mike Wiesner said the property's appraised value is between $30,000 and $35,000. Wiesner said the property is currently zoned agricultural, but that surrounding property is zoned R-3 (single family and duplex houses).

Wiesner said that many state and federal grant programs consider a community expenditure of $10,000 to $15,000 to be in line for each job retained or brought into a community. Given that the Coast Guard ship employs approximately 50 people, the contribution of the land would be less than $1,000 per job.

Council members Cheri Hoffman and Bruce Reid expressed support for donating the land for housing, but said they would like to have a reverter clause so that if the Coast Guard left the community, the land will revert back to the city.

Council member Butch Russell expressed opposition to the proposal. "They do bring a lot of money to town, but I still have a problem with just giving taxpayers' property away," he said.

A motion to pursue the land transfer with a reverter clause passed by a vote of 3-2. Hoffman and Reid were joined by Don Meggison in voting for the proposal. Russell and Jackie Cross voted against it.

In other action the council approved making a grant application for federal transportation money of $380,000 to $400,000 to help with the Bridge Park project.

Nine and 11-year-old arrested for school break in Charlevoix City Police have apprehended a nine-year-old and an 11-year-old on charges of breaking into the Charlevoix Middle School Sunday afternoon and trying to get into the school safe. Although the two were unable to get into the safe, they did in excess of $1,000 damage to the school office and school windows.

City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said that during the investigation, police also recovered merchandise which had been shoplifted from local stores and a stolen bicycle.

In an unrelated matter, police responded to a fight in front of 218 Bridge at approximately 2 a.m., April 17.

At the scene police found a 44-year-old Charlevoix man whose head had been injured when he was struck by a microphone stand. The man was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital and later to Northern Michigan Hospital where he is in fair condition.

Police have a suspect in the case, but have yet to make an arrest.

-Immunization- We do well, but could do better

By L. Scott Swanson

Having children properly immunized isn't expensive and it isn't particularly time-consuming. And yet, for some children it just doesn't get done.

Nationwide, nearly 50 percent of all two-year-old children are not properly immunized. Although immunization figures are difficult to track since children can be immunized either through the health department or private doctors, estimates are that while far more than 50 percent of Charlevoix County children are properly immunized, there's still room for improvement.

Mary Ann Cox, Immunization Coordinator for District Health Dept. #3, says that complacency is a big problem. Parents of young children simply either never get their children started in the immunization program or fail to keep up with it once they've started.

Since children have to have their immunizations up to date before entering school, most children eventually end up with all of their immunizations. The problem is that they are left vulnerable up until they're five years old.

"They get immunized before school," Cox explains, "but meanwhile they're vulnerable and can become ill and even die."

In order to be properly immunized, children need to make a total of five immunization visits to either the health department or doctor between age two months and the time they enter school. During those visits they will be vaccinated against diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, polio, measles, mumps, rubella, and HIB (a form of influenza). Cox notes that children need to receive all of their vaccinations, not just one or some of them.

The health department keeps copies of children's vaccination records and also gives parents a little green record card to keep track of which vaccinations each child had and when they had them.

Last year in Charlevoix County, the health department had 2,258 immunization visits and administered a total of 4,101 vaccinations.

On the state and national levels the goal is by the year 2000 to have at least 90 percent of all children being properly immunized. Charlevoix County is not at that level yet, but is close and with just a bit more effort and public awareness will probably be there soon.

Cost should not prevent anyone from taking their child to be immunized. At the health department the vaccination is free although there is a $5 administration fee. Even the $5 administration fee is waived if people can't afford it.

Cox said that even though Charlevoix County parents are doing quite well in having their children vaccinated, "We can't forget what happens if we don't vaccinate."

School considers financial status

By Laurie Lounsbury

School millage elections are looming on the horizon, and that could mean more taxes than taxpayers expected when they passed Proposal A. School Business Manager Rich Kelly reported on the financial status of Charlevoix schools and potential areas needing funding at the last school board meeting.

The state's foundation grant for Charlevoix school district could range from $8,640,000 to $8,782,504, depending on student enrollment. This funding will be joined with the allotted six mills paid by homestead owners, which would be about $2,100,000. Local voters will have the opportunity to decide whether or not an additional 18 mills should be levied on non-homestead owners. Non-homestead owners don't get to vote on this millage, it will be decided by the local homestead owners.

Proposal A allows school districts to levy an enhancement millage of up to three mills for up to three years. After the three year period, Charlevoix school district will join other school districts when levying enhancement millages.

A third, and less talked about, millage possibility is a sinking fund. Kelly explained that a school district may levy up to five mills for up to 20 years for a sinking fund. A sinking fund is to be used only for purchasing land, buildings, or repairs. Board member Joan Buday questioned Kelly, asking if that meant there could be a total of eight additional mills on the ballot. Kelly told her it was a possibility, within the legal options.

Kelly outlined a few places where enhancement millage could be spent. The technology millage will expire this year, the elementary school could be recarpeted, and money could be spent updating the school facilities for disabled persons. A facility study shows that the schools could use major electrical renovations.

Kelly told the board that decisions regarding the millage proposals should be decided by May 2 if it is going to be on the June ballot.

Kelly also announced plans for the schools to start a breakfast program. The state has mandated that schools serve breakfast if more than 20 percent of its students are on the free or reduced lunch program. Charlevoix has 35 percent of its students participating in the lunch program who are getting free or reduced lunches. The breakfast program will start this year May 2 and will continue through the end of the school year on a trial run basis. Students riding the buses do not need to get to school earlier than the bus arrives in order to participate in the breakfast program.

In other business, principals from all three buildings gave an extensive update on the progress of curriculum development. Five half days of school were scheduled for the current semester so teachers can work on curriculum. This includes setting objectives, writing curriculum, and developing authentic ways to measure student achievement beyond the standardized tests.

Superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson went over the state mandates in education. School accreditation requirements have changed, now requiring all schools to be Michigan accredited. Charlevoix schools were in the process of working towards North Central Accreditation. The high school is already accredited by North Central. While the schools no longer need to pursue North Central accreditation, High School Principal Dave Smith strongly recommended it, saying that out-of-state colleges look for that accreditation and it's an extra feather in the graduating student's cap. Jackson said the schools will continue to work towards North Central accreditation along with Michigan accreditation.

Some time later this fall the speed limit on this section of Bridge Street will be raised from 25 to 35. Raising the speed limit is not expected to raise the speed of traffic since traffic surveys indicate that 85 percent of drivers are already driving 35 on this section of the street.

Get a real speed limit:

Two locations to be raised from 25 to 35

By L. Scott Swanson

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is planning to raise the speed limit on stretches of Petoskey Avenue and south Bridge Street. Later this year, sometime in the fall, the speed limit will be raised from 25 to 35 miles per hour on Petoskey Avenue between Lewis and Prospect Streets and on south Bridge Street between Lincoln and Carpenter Streets.

Interestingly, raising the posted speed limit is expected to have little effect on the majority of Charlevoix drivers. A traffic survey done last summer found that the majority of drivers already average approximately 35 miles per hour on the sections of highway in question.

Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson explains that according to traffic safety experts, although posted speed limit theoretically determine how fast people drive, in reality the majority of drivers find a comfort level on a stretch of road regardless of the speed limit which is posted.

Halverson said the goal in setting a posted speed limit is to set a limit which 85 percent of drivers naturally comply with. If more than 15 percent of drivers are going faster than the speed limit, then the limit is deemed unrealistic and consequently unenforceable.

On south Bridge and Petoskey Avenue in the areas where the limit will be changed, last summer's traffic study found that instead of 85 percent of drivers obeying the posted speed limit, 85 percent of drivers exceeded it.

"What we have in this town is a lot of 'good' drivers-violating the speed limit," Halverson said.

Is this a dangerous situation? According to Halverson, yes it is - but not because drivers are driving more than 25 miles per hour. In fact, if 100 percent of drivers in those sections of town averaged more than 25 miles per hour, those areas would probably be safer than they are now. The problem is the disparity of speed between the 85 percent of drivers exceeding the posted speed limit and the 15 percent who are obeying the speed limit. That disparity leads to a lot of weaving and lane switching which causes accidents.

MDOT District Operations Engineer Bruce Conradson echoed Halverson's sentiments. He said the whole idea in setting posted speed limits is to tailor speeds to a reasonable level.

"We're looking for a nice smooth flow without a lot of overtaking and passing," he explained.

Will raising the posted speed limit from 25 to 35 mean that the average speed will increase from 35 to 45? Halverson cringes when asked that and Conradson also concedes that it's difficult to explain to people why that's just not what happens. Study after study indicates that most drivers will find a comfortable and reasonably safe speed and drive accordingly - no matter what the speed limit signs say. In fact, while the Charlevoix study found that in some areas of town the majority of drivers were exceeding the speed limit, it also found that in other areas of town the majority of drivers drive at less than the speed limit. Just a few blocks north of the Petoskey Avenue area where 85 percent of drivers exceed the speed limit, there is a stretch of road by the Municipal Golf Course where the posted limit is 45, yet 85 percent of the drivers have an average speed of 43 miles per hour. At the north and south ends of town where the posted speed limits increase to 55, most drivers only drive between 51 and 53.

Editorial

Learn lessons and proceed

After several lengthy meetings, people interested in the Charlevoix school system appear ready to put the high school principal issue behind them and move forward. And while the issue is best put behind the system, there are several lessons which are best not forgotten and several points which have been made which are best not left undressed.

While attending informal public discussions of the matter on the evening of April 12 and the afternoon of April 13, these are some points that ended up on the Courier note pad:

1. The general public needs to have a greater understanding of the school's goals and educational curriculum. For this to happen a couple of things need to occur. The public needs greater access to curriculum information either via the information being placed in the public library, appearing in the school newsletter or receiving more attention in the local newspaper. Curriculum information also needs to be presented in terms which the public can easily comprehend, not through educational jargon.

2. Assuming Dave Smith is not going to be reinstated as high school principal, which at this time looks like a safe assumption, can the next high school principal do any better than Smith did or will the same obstacles impede his or her efforts? One of the issues repeatedly sighted as a problem with Smith was communication - apparently between Smith and the high school staff. Well, communication is a two-party thing. We've tried changing the party at one end of the communication process. If we bring in someone else on that end and there's still a communication problem, then it will be pretty obvious that the communication problem is on the other end of the line.

3. Some have argued that a major problem in the school is top-down management, i.e. that teachers are not involved in curriculum decision making and consequently aren't comfortable with what they're supposed to be teaching. This argument is hollow and for the most part inaccurate. Management at the school system should consist of: the community determining educational needs; the community's representatives (i.e. the school board) setting policy reflecting those needs; the school administration overseeing the implementation of those policies; and the school faculty carrying out the day to day implementation of those policies. Management of a school system should not consist of: the school faculty deciding what they want to teach and how much it will cost; the school administration putting those plans on paper; the school board rubber stamping those plans; and the community being begged or bullied into funding those plans. The state of Michigan has tried that form of educational management for years and it hasn't worked too well, so we're scrapping it. This isn't to say teachers have no role in determining educational needs and curriculum. They have an important role. They're part of the community and have much insight to offer, not the only insight, but much insight. Teachers should be involved, with the rest of the community, in determining educational needs.

Letters to the editor

Charlevoix mentioned in Chinese newspaper

Editor,

You may be interested to know that Charlevoix's summer cruise schooner was mentioned, though not by name, in a recent article in the English-language South China Morning Post of Hong Kong, in the issue of March 15. The clipping was sent to us by our son, Jeff Olmstead, currently employed as second mate on the M/V SeaLand Endurance on the Far East run.

The piece was mainly about the schooners Manitou and Malabar sailing out of Traverse City, and gave the address of the Traverse Tall Ship Company for information, but also mentioned that overnight and day cruises went out of St. James and Charlevoix on other schooners. We'd be interested to know whether any queries may eventually come to the local companies from that distant part of the world.

We sent the clipping to Traverse Magazine because that was the principal focus of the article, but thought you'd like to know that Charlevoix is being publicized halfway around the world.

Very truly yours,
Anne Olmstead

Please take care of your pets

Editor,

April has been designated as "National Prevent a Litter Month" by the Congress of the United States.

Each year in the U.S. more than 18 million unwanted dogs and cats are put to death: By having your pet spayed or neutered you can help "fix" the overpopulation problem and give your dog or cat a longer, healthier, happier life.

Pet overpopulation is a national tragedy, but also a tragedy in Northern Michigan.

In Charlevoix County alone last year, 332 of the 712 animals that came through the doors of our shelter were euthanized because not enough good homes could be found for them.

Pet owners need to understand that they contribute directly to the problem if they let their pets have even one litter. There simply are not enough homes for all the dogs and cats that are born every hour of every day. For every puppy or kitten that survives to maturity, about four others will not.

We do not want the message of Prevent a Litter Month to be that shelters have to euthanize millions of animals, even though that's a reality. The real message is that we all can help prevent this tragedy in the first place, simply by having our pets spayed and neutered.

Help break the cycle of dog and cat overpopulation. Preventing unnecessary births is a better alternative than ending lives.

Please do your part to put an end to the animal death penalty - spay or neuter your pets.

For more information on spaying and neutering, see your veterinarian. If you don't have a veterinarian, check the yellow pages in your telephone book.

Haggard - Sheets

William Sheets & Barbara Haggard

Mr. and Mrs. John Haggard of Charlevoix are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Johnette Haggard, to William Alexander Sheets of Berkley, MI. The groom-elect is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Sheets Jr. of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be graduated from Charlevoix High School and Aquinas College with a degree in elementary education. She will be looking for a teaching position in the Detroit area.

Her fiancé graduated from Charlevoix High School and Northern Michigan University with a degree in law enforcement. He is currently employed as a Public Safety Officer with the city of Oak Park, MI.

A July 9 wedding is scheduled to take place at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Natural area dedication features nature and Ellsworth history

The dedication of the Falle Hansen, Christine Sandberg Skow Family Preserve will be the centerpiece of a day-long celebration in Ellsworth April 23. The preserve borders a beautiful stretch of waterway connecting St. Clair and Six Mile Lakes just outside of Ellsworth.

In 1991 a group of people including JoAnne Beemon from Charlevoix launched an effort to purchase a 17-acre parcel of undeveloped wetland for a natural area. The 17 acres was across the river from an acre parcel of land owned by South Arm Township.

Many people doubted that sufficient funds could be raised, but after linking up with both the Grand Traverse and Little Traverse Conservancy the small group of naturalists hosted walks, sponsored concerts, sold T-shirts, solicited donations from service groups and private individuals and even received a helping hand from Ellsworth and Charlevoix school children.

Despite these efforts, the group did not end up with a 17-acre natural area. No, they ended with an 84-acre natural area, which currently provides the setting for one of the most beautiful and serene canoe trips in northern Michigan and eventually will also offer quiet pathways through a forest.

After the naturalists raised enough money to purchase the 17 acres, South Arm Township made arrangements with the conservancy to incorporate the 8-acre parcel into the natural area. Later, the 59-acre Lawmaster Preserve adjacent to the natural area became available and contributions from a number of sources made it possible to add that property to the natural area.

Saturday's events will combine nature and history. The Skow family mentioned in the natural area's name is one of Ellsworth's oldest families. Back in 1892, F.H. Skow was one of three men who hired a surveyor to plot out the town. Several members of the Skow family are planning to return for the April 23 ceremonies.

The day will begin at 9:45 at Wooden Shoe Park where people will gather for hymns and a prayer. At 10 a.m. people will walk from Wooden Shoe Park along Ellsworth Road to the new natural area, a trip of about one-and-a-half miles. The dedication ceremony will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Afternoon events will take place at the Banks Township Hall in the community center. From noon to 1 p.m. there will be a potluck lunch hosted by the Ellsworth Lions' Club. Those attending are asked to bring a salad or dessert.

Beginning at 1 p.m. a variety of activities will take place throughout the afternoon. The activities will include: socializing and story-telling; exhibits by the Banks Township Historical Society; video presentations; Dr. Goodheart's Home Remedy old time band; a step clogging demonstration by Dan Gorne; an Ellsworth youth presentation; and children's hymns by the Youth Choir of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Foot Soldiers Needed.

Each year in Michigan, hundreds of babies are born with birth defects - many of whom will die before their first birthday. In fact, Michigan has the 7th highest infant mortality rate in the country. And the United States ranks 22nd in the world, just ahead of Cuba. The March of Dimes exists to reduce this rate and to ensure that babies are born healthy.

Charlevoix Personified

Just a quick chat with one of the many people who make Charlevoix the place it is.

Lynn Groves

As the Traffic Clerk in the Charlevoix County District Court, Lynn Groves has dealt with plenty of irate customers. Groves is the person who takes your money if you need to pay a traffic ticket. She'll also advise you of your rights and set a hearing with the magistrate or judge if you're so inclined. After hearings and decisions, Groves keeps track of billings for people making time payments. Groves' duties in traffic court also cover scheduling civil weddings, dog citations, alcohol possession charges, and alcohol related traffic citations.

Groves said many people come to her department feeling angry about having to pay a traffic ticket. "I talk it through with them, calm them down," Groves said. "People get befuddled when they're stopped. There's a lot of frustration, and they don't always pay attention at the time they're ticketed." Groves explains the court process to ticketed individuals, then informs them of their right to an informal hearing with the magistrate or a formal hearing with the judge. Groves takes pride in her ability to calm and inform people, but admits some people are too much for her to handle. Some people accost her on the phone so abusively that she has to hang up on them. "You have to remember it's not directed at you," she said.

Worst Part of the Job: "There isn't really a worst part, but I guess if there was it would be the challenge of keeping people centered and calm. Some people are never pleased," Groves said.

Best Part of the Job: "The people I work with. We've got a really neat staff - good people, caring people. Each one works well in their part of dealing with the people."

One Thing to Change: "I wish we could educate people more on the court system, process and what it does. I think the court is here to protect their rights. They have a right to have their voice heard - their day in court."

Jeanette L. Cunningham

Jeanette L. Cunningham, 69, of Charlevoix, died April 16, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her funeral was Tuesday, April 19, at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated. Burial will take place in Barnard Cemetery.

She was born May 8, 1924, in Banks Township, Antrim County, the daughter of Richard and Christine (Kloosters) Potter. She was raised in the Barnard area and had been a life-long resident of the Charlevoix area. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1941.

On Jan. 8, 1944, she married Clyde E. Cunningham in Barnard, and he survives.

Mrs. Cunningham was an active member of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. She was also active in the Reformed Church Women.

She was a Rainbow Shoppe volunteer and enjoyed painting and sketching.

Mrs. Cunningham worked as Charlevoix County Deputy Treasurer for 20 years, retiring in 1987.

Survivors include her husband, Clyde; five daughters, Cindy Mansen and her husband, Jim, of Charlevoix, Connie J. Cunningham of Charlevoix, Ellen Ormsby and her husband, Terry, of Shelby Township; Marlene Evans and her husband, Ed, of Charlevoix, and Darlene Heine and her husband, David, of Chula Vista, Calif.; one son, Mitch Cunningham and his wife, Connie, of Charlevoix; 14 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; four brothers and their spouses, Harry and Betty Potter, Eldon and Anah Potter, and Bob and Maizie Potter, all of Charlevoix; and Ted and Doris Potter of Indianapolis, Ind.; two sisters and their spouses, Marian and Bud Heeres, and Betty and Charlie Bergmann, all of Charlevoix; one brother-in-law, Hap Cunningham and his wife, Norma, of Charlevoix; and five sisters-in-law, Luella "Tut" Bartlett, and Jessie, Lucile and Helen Cunningham, all of Charlevoix, and Edna Nielsen of East Jordan.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Community Reformed Church Kitchen Fund. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

It is kind of nice to see the bridge going up and down again. It is not that I like having to wait in line, especially if I am in a hurry to get somewhere. There is something about knowing the boats are going to start coming through more and more often that has always fascinated me.

Put yourself in the shoes of the folks on Beaver Island. With most of your supplies and mail coming back and forth by air all winter long, the first time that green and white shamrocked vessel comes steaming into St. James harbor is an occasion worth celebrating. Instead of small commodities that are all the plane can haul, you can get all you need because of the larger size of the ferry. You know you've made it through another season.

Though I'm sure they have been at it for awhile, I only just saw my first fishing tug a couple of days ago. They've been kind of jammed in this winter with the ice-being-so thick. It has probably still been a challenge for them to battle with spring winds and the few stubborn patches of ice that may remain.

But my favorite underway vessel at this time of year has always been Acacia. They have been out there for some time re-marking the channels and shoals that make up Lake Michigan's transportation superhighway. From the Isle of Gulls to the Foxes and beyond, they have been relighting buoys and refurbishing markers to pave the way for the seasonal fun debuting shortly.

What do the Beaver Island Ferry, a Cross fishing tug, and the Acacia all have in common? They all have a crew. Each member of the crew has a job. When they all do their jobs well, a voyage comes together like a well played piece of music. They celebrate at St. James because their friends will keep a dependable lifeline open from the mainland all summer long. Restaurants will gear up unique northwest Michigan specials because the tugs will bring in fresh plump fish more often. Commercial and recreational boaters alike will sail with more confidence just knowing their big brothers on the Acacia are there.

What does all this have to do with you? Now that winter is all but over, more and more churches are going to gear up with new and different ministries for the spring. You are a part of your church's crew. You have a job or responsibility or place that only you can fill. Contrary to popular belief, a pastor is not the captain of his ecclesiastical vessel. He is at best the executive officer. God is the captain and He is counting on everyone from the pastor on down to fill out their place in the good old gospel ship that He has blessed us with.

When everyone does their job, there is no more exciting nor vibrant place to be than with God's people. Lives are changed. Spirits are lifted. Hope is shared and more. Make your spring special by being more involved with whatever family of worship you call home.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Food pantries receive CROP Walk funds

A record-breaking CROP Walk last October has resulted in record-breaking funds of $937 being delivered to each of the food pantries in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, local coordinators Kay Smith and Mary Helen Riggie have announced.

The 1993 CROP Walk raised $11,238 in a best-ever effort. The walk is sponsored by the Charlevoix County Ministerial Association. One-fourth of the money raised, $2,812.04, from the Church World Service/Christian Rural Overseas Project is returned to local food pantries to fight hunger needs at home. In 1992 the CROP Walk earned $540.98 for each local pantry.

The 1993 effort marked the tenth year for the Charlevoix-county walk with 143 walkers participating. CROP Walks began in Michigan in 1971 with two areas participating. Since then the project has grown to 134 Michigan walks with 30,750 volunteers participating.

Boyne City Coordinator is Diana Walls, assisted by Pat Hammondtree. East Jordan Coordinator is Mary Glenna Malpass, assisted by Margaret Thompson.

Discussion of principal reassignment continues

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix High School Principal Dave Smith and Superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson share some common ground, but also have some areas of disagreement which they never resolved. Jackson and Smith fielded questions from community members at two public meetings, April 12 and 13. Both meetings lasted about two hours. The April 12 meeting drew approximately 50 people and the April 13 meeting approximately 35 people.

Jackson said there were concerns about Charlevoix High School which were raised even before she became superintendent in 1991. Former school board member Doris Pearl concurred, saying there had been concerns about the high school program for several years.

Smith said that shortly after Jackson was hired the two of them had a conversation. He said that even at that time he began having a funny feeling in regard to communications between the two of them.

According to Smith, he felt Jackson's key concern at the high school was communications within the school. He said he felt that issue began to develop in the late 1980s and in 1990 when he attended several seminars regarding curriculum development and began trying to implement some changes at the high school. Ironically, one of the things Jackson repeatedly referred to as a need in the school system is updating the curriculum to meet state mandates.

Jackson and Smith said that many of their goals were the same, but there was friction over how best to attain those goals.

"Everybody says the same thing. It's just how do we get there? How do we do it?" Smith said.

While Smith and Jackson expressed agreement on some issues, they disagreed on some facets of the conversation leading to his reassignment from principal to classroom teacher.

According to Jackson, she had been told that Smith was considering going back to the classroom and called him to her office to discuss that possibility. On the other hand while Jackson viewed the discussion as an offer, Smith viewed it as an ultimatum - of either going back to the classroom or not having his contract renewed. Smith said his perception of the conversation was that Jackson had discussed the matter with the board and that it was a done deal with the board wanting him out as principal. Jackson said she disagreed with that perception of the conversation.

Audience members said they disagreed with a process which rather than involving discussions among the entire board at public meetings involved private discussions between Jackson and individual board members.

Joanne Curtis said a board is to function as a board - as a group, not as different individuals.

Jackson said she shares people's concerns about private meetings and is making an effort with the board to assure that school issues will henceforth be discussed openly.

Smith was asked if he wanted to be reinstated as principal. Although he did not give that a simple yes or no answer at either the April 12 or April 13 meeting, he did say that he enjoyed being principal, but felt it was necessary for all school administrators to be operating on the same page.

Jackson was asked if she would recommend reinstating Smith as high school principal. She said she would not. Jackson also discussed a statement she made at an earlier school board meeting. In that statement she said that she would rescind her recommendation to accept Smith's resignation for the purpose of reassigning him to the classroom. She said she now considers that statement to be among the bigger mistakes of her professional career. She said that what she meant at the time was to let board members know that if they wished to have some flexibility that they needn't feel pressured by her initial recommendation.

An issue was also raised regarding Jackson's involvement with the dismissal of a principal in Edinburg, Indiana, where she was superintendent prior to coming to Charlevoix. She said that issue was entirely different from the one involving Smith and that Charlevoix school board members were informed of that situation before hiring her.

There will be a principal selection criteria meeting in the Charlevoix High School study hall at 7:30 p.m., Monday, April 25. Community members who would like input into the criteria used for the selection of a new high school principal are welcome to attend.

A fresh, new restaurant

By Laurie Lounsbury

Chef Bob Foster likes the word fresh these days. He has a fresh attitude, a fresh outlook, and a fresh way of preparing food. When Foster talks excitedly about his new restaurant business venture with partners Steve and Jodi Ager, one word keeps popping up repeatedly - fresh.

Fresh breads will be baked daily at the Harbor Vista Cafe, located in the back room of The Bridge Club. Baking those breads will be Foster and Dave Juillerette, a legendary baker in town. "We reverently refer to Dave as the King of Breakfast in Charlevoix," Foster said.

But that's just the beginning of fresh. Fresh squeezed orange juice and lemonade will be served. Fresh pasta salads, seafood salads, preserves, salsas, and shrimp will be available in a take-out deli case.

As Foster runs through the menu items for three meals a day at Harbor Vista Cafe, Ager sits back and listens with quiet confidence. He's entitled to his confidence. The pairing of Argonne owner Ager, longtime chef Foster, and former restaurant owner Dave Juillerette brings more than 100 years of restaurant experience to the Harbor Vista Cafe.

The decision to combine forces and start a new restaurant evolved through friendly chats over morning coffee. Ager and Foster are life long friends, both having grown up in Charlevoix. Foster was cooking

Justin Genge, Charlevoix first baseman, takes a healthy swing against Central Lake last Thursday. The game was played in near 70 degree weather.

Josh Love follows through and prepares to drop the bat and beat feet for first base.

Spring is here: Let's play ball!

Bryan Jarema had a double and a single in Charlevoix's opening game, an 18-6 win at Central Lake.

Brandon Webb gave Charlevoix's varsity baseball team a strong performance in the April 14 season opener at Central Lake. Webb mixed his pitches well and held the Central Lake team hitless through the first four innings.

Josh Love takes a cut at a Central Lake pitch. Love and his Rayder teammates drove the Central Lake pitcher from the mound in the first inning on the way to an 18-6 win.

Softball and baseball teams open with wins

Charlevoix's varsity softball and baseball teams opened the season with wins at Central Lake April 14. The Rayder softball team won by scores of 20-9 and 20-1 while the baseball team scores were 18-6 and 11-4.

Liz Grunch had four hits and picked up both pitching wins in softball. Sara Thorp also had four hits while Jenny Eveleigh doubled and tripled in the second game. Waja Wujcik singled in both games.

Brandon Webb threw four innings of no-hit ball to get the opening baseball win while David Skeel and Bryan Jarema combined on a four-hit game in game two.

Charlevoix had 10 hits in the first game. Webb and Jarema each had a double and a single. Casey Crain and Trevor Williams each doubled. Williams on a rocket to center field.

Webb also doubled and singled in the second game.

Charlevoix has lots of feathered friends

(The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be interested in a wide variety of endeavors.)

Usually many birds winter in northern Michigan, but not this year. The extreme cold weather and the heavy snowfall must have made it hard for them to survive. During the months of January, February and most of March the usual birds were noticeably absent.

A little more than two weeks ago, one day, birds suddenly arrived in my back yard. There were almost 30 of them, several species, including four mourning doves, a few blackbirds and numerous small birds. There was also a robin that stayed away from the other birds, seemingly content to be by itself.

I hurriedly swept away a few inches of snow to make visible a small circular area of bare ground. There I scattered a generous amount of assorted bird feed. And since that special day several groups of birds touch down every day to feed off the ground and on a couple of squirrel-proof bird feeders.

My lot has many trees and bushes for concealment and night-time perches for many birds. As an added attraction, a small waterfall beckons them. There's also a good sized concrete bird bath on the ground. It is a welcome sight to once again see so many birds.

A few years ago I was into ducks. I ordered a dozen Pekin ducklings from a small town in Minnesota. Because I complained of tardy delivery, they mailed the 18 day-old ducklings. They all arrived safely in the month of May and enjoyed a pleasant Charlevoix summer.

It was an interesting experience for me and the neighbor kids, especially when the ducklings strayed into other people's yards.

In the daytime they were enclosed within a circle of black plastic screen. Each night they were lifted into a paper box to safety in the garage. To take the place of heat from a mother duck, a small electric light bulb provided warmth as they huddled close together. Young ducklings do not like to be alone. The last one or two to be picked up would quack or chirp wildly until they joined their brothers and sisters.

A week or so after their arrival here they were carried to the back yard to receive their first swimming lesson in the little pond next to the small waterfall. These little ducklings, the size of a two-legged baseball, are covered with golden hair. Not yet water-proofed, they get very cold if they stay in the water too long. One day one of them collapsed from the chill. I became a quack doctor and revived the passed out little creature. This was done by laying it in a shoe box filled with Kleenex. The heat from a light bulb brought the duckling back to life again.

Whoever first attends a small duckling becomes its mother. It is imprinted in their little brains. Forever after, they hover around your feet and listen to your voice.

Sooner or later one of the duck-

City police plan auction

The Charlevoix City Police are planning to bring the hammer down. City Police will be hosting a public auction to get rid of more than 160 items including more than 40 bicycles, stereo components, computer printers, gold and silver jewelry, compact disks, cassette tapes and a 1987 Chevrolet Caprice.

The auction will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 30 at the police garage on State Street.

Rakoczy to speak to Trout Unlimited

The Miller Van Winkle chapter of Trout Unlimited, based in Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet Counties, will host its annual spring fund-raising banquet at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey, Wednesday, April 27. A cash bar will open at 6 p.m. with a dinner of whitefish or prime rib served at 7 p.m. Following dinner, Jerry Rakoczy of the Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Station in Charlevoix will speak about the state of the trout and salmon fishery in Lake Michigan. There will also be raffles and a silent auction. Tickets are $22 apiece and may be purchased by writing to Mike Koskus, 704 Karamol Court, Petoskey.

Trout Unlimited is a national organization founded in Michigan and dedicated to conserving, protecting and restoring cold water fisheries and their watersheds.

...new restaurant to open

at the Weathervane while Ager cut his teeth at the Argonne. Foster has since built up an impressive resume of chef positions and culinary awards around the country. Ager has operated different restaurant ventures over the years, including a Traverse City Argonne and an Argonne take-out deli in downtown Charlevoix, new last year. His wife Jodi will continue to operate the take-out business this summer.

Ager doesn't see owning two different restaurants in Charlevoix as a conflict of interest. "If I'm going to have competition, I might as well be part of the competition," Ager said.

Harbor Vista's menu and format will be quite a bit different than the Argonne. The three meals a day will be contemporary, regional cuisine. "Our goal is to provide gracious dining and excellent service where perceived dining value is obvious," Foster said.

Harbor Vista Cafe will open sometime this week, starting with breakfast and lunches.

lings will become a leader and the other ducks will follow in a single line. I trained them to leave the pond and wend their way to the garage. There, I captured them one by one and placed them into the ever-growing paper box.

One time I left them within their screened enclosure and an hour or so later when I came to take them to the garage, I found I had sat the water pan on one of the ducklings. The weight of the water had really flattened the soft duckling, but a flicker in its eyes told me it was still alive. Placing it in a tissue-lined box, I took it to my bedroom and placed it under a lamp on my nightstand that stood two feet off of the floor.

I completely forgot about the duckling. Sometime later while sitting at my desk I became aware of a quacking or chirping noise very close to me. I suddenly realized the little duckling was looking for me. It had climbed out of the box, jumped off of the nightstand, tumbled down the stairway and was making its way to me. I could hardly believe it.

Another time, I had left three ducklings alone in the pond, which I should not have done. Coming home just before dark, I found they were gone, probably the victim of a cat. Later that night, about 2:30 a.m., through the open window of my bedroom I heard one of them chirping for help. I found it hiding under some ground cover. It was very happy to spend the rest of the night in the garage with the other ducklings.

Later, these ducklings developed white feathers and grew larger and larger every week. They grew too large to live in town so I sought other places and spaces for them. Some of them are still living just outside of East Jordan at the Stonehedge petting farm. In fact, they once had their photo in the Courier. Ducks make great friendly pets.

Local musician hopes to play in Nashville at the Grand Ole Opry

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix musician Gary Grapp is attempting to raise money for a trip to play in a talent competition at the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville. Earlier this year, Grapp auditioned in Traverse City and qualified for the finals of the Nashville Starbound Talent Competition which will take place in Nashville, May 15. The trip to the finals will cost $600. First prize is a $10,000 recording session to produce an album and six months of promotion.

Grapp who is 30 has been playing guitar and singing off and on for about as long as he can remember. He sings country music, much of which he writes himself. Last summer, Anderson opened at Castle Farms for John Anderson. He's also sung at the Flight Deck and other area bars in the lower and upper peninsula. Grapp said he's done some primitive recordings, but nothing professional. However, an area radio station told him they would be willing to play some of his songs if he could get together an album.

Anyone who would like to help Grapp raise funds for the Nashville trip may contact him at 547-1804 during the evening.

Application filed to open new bank

By L. Scott Swanson

A group of local businessmen have filed an application to found a new bank in Charlevoix. The bank will be called the Charlevoix State Bank and will operate out of the former First State Bank building at 111 State Street.

The people incorporating the bank are: Richard Hodgson, Louis Hollow, Thomas K. Erber, Dick Georgi and Dave Irish. Georgi won't be serving on the board of directors, but Tom Hannah will. Hollow will serve as the new bank's president and be in charge of day to day operations.

The Charlevoix State Bank has filed an application with the Financial Institutions Bureau and will also have to file papers with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). There will be a period of approximately three months for public comment. If anybody protests, there will be a public hearing and then there will be a response from the financial agencies either approving or disapproving the application.

Hollow said he doesn't anticipate any problem getting approval for the new bank. Hollow said the corporation will initially sell stock to raise funds for the new bank and proposes to capitalize the bank at $2.5 million. The bank will open its doors a short time after receiving federal and state approval.

Hollow has been in banking in Charlevoix for 22 years, coming to Charlevoix with the former First State Bank and later working with CB North. He resigned from CB North earlier this year.

Three of Charlevoix State Bank's board of directors, Hodgson, Irish and Hannah, previously served on the First State Bank board of directors.

Hollow said the formation of the bank was "prompted by a lot of public response and requests." He said he and the other people involved are quite excited about the project and are busy addressing the multitude of details involved in setting up a bank and working on setting up a good team of people to run the bank.

Charlevoix State Bank will offer essentially the same banking services people are now receiving in the community, but Hollow said a small, independent bank can provide those services on a more intimate basis with a more personal touch.

Hollow said that although there is currently banking competition within Charlevoix, a little more isn't going to hurt.

"Competition just makes you that much better and makes you work that much harder. The people win," Hollow said.

Charlevoix State Bank will occupy about 80 percent of the space in the 111 State Street building. Hollow said the bank's bookkeeping will be done on an in-house computer.

Having worked in the building for more than 20 years, Hollow says he feels a certain sense of déjà vu whenever he enters the facility.

Help wanted: School seeks new principal

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix's next high school principal should be someone who looks to the future, sees problems before they occur and is able to motivate people to get things done.

A group of approximately 15 people met in the Charlevoix High School study hall Monday evening to discuss the characteristics Charlevoix's next high school principal should possess. The school's current principal, Dave Smith, has resigned and will be returning to the classroom as a teacher next year. Although the process surrounding that resignation and reassignment has been a point of controversy in recent months, none of that controversy was evident Monday evening.

Dr. Roberta Jackson, School Superintendent, opened the meeting by explaining some of the responsibilities the principal position entails and the process involved in hiring a principal.

Earlier Monday, high school staff members had discussed characteristics and abilities they would like to see the new principal possess. Staff members present at Monday evening's meeting said the staff list was for the most part in harmony with what other members of the community are seeking.

After compiling the staff and public recommendations, a school board committee will meet Wednesday, April 27 to paper screen applicants. The school has received 44 applications and hopes to interview not more than 16 candidates.

In addition to conducting interviews, the selection committee will do reference checks at the candidates' present work sites and have the candidates spend a day at the Charlevoix school systems. The candidate interviews will be open to the public.

Discussion at Monday evening's meeting was informal and free-flowing. Among the characteristics, people felt the new principal should possess

Plane part discovered on Norwood beach

By L. Scott Swanson

A piece of an airplane wing found on the Lake Michigan shoreline near Norwood has been turned over to Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) authorities for investigation. The item in question is a piece of aluminum which is about three feet long. FAA investigators have confirmed that it is a portion of a wing spar off of a small aircraft. There are no identifying markings on the part and consequently it cannot be linked to any specific plane at this time.

FAA operations inspector John Farwig said that although there was a plane which has been missing since July of 1992, there's no way of saying for certain whether or not the plane part discovered is from that plane.

"This essentially means nothing," Farwig said. "All we know is what was found is an airplane part."

The missing plane was traveling between Battle Creek and Beaver Island and lost radar contact. The plane and its four occupants are still missing.

The airplane piece was found last week by Teri Craine and Sue Mabee. The two women have been cleaning up debris from the Lake Michigan shoreline. They found the part near the park at the edge of Norwood.

Craine brought the plane part to the Courier office Friday morning. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was notified and picked up the part and turned it over to the FAA. Farwig said his area of expertise is airplane operations. The plane part will be turned over to FAA mechanical inspectors and later to inspectors from the National Transportation Safety Board. They may be able to determine a specific model of plane which the part is from.

As Lucy Martin, a retired teacher who participated in the meeting described it, Charlevoix is looking for someone who "has a halo and will travel."

Environmental volunteers sought to work with students

Do you have a love for beautiful northern Michigan? Are you willing to share that love with local school children? The Little Traverse Conservancy could use your help with its Environmental Education Programs. Volunteer naturalists are needed to help share a sense of wonder and interest in the environment and to help students gain a better understanding of the world around them. No previous experience is necessary.

The Conservancy will be conducting field trips for more than 1500 students from Charlevoix and Emmet County Schools this spring. Programs cover various topics including pond study, bird adaptations, food chains, and other natural science topics for grade levels kindergarten through fifth grade. Jordan River group receives grant

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed, Inc., has received a gift of $25,000 from the Frey Foundation of Grand Rapids.

Bud Jones, President of Friends of the Jordan, expressed appreciation to the Frey Foundation and noted that the funds will be expended over a two year period to further the Friends' goals. "My personal desire is that we use these funds to move our group toward doing good things for the resource - not just building and maintaining an organization," noted Jones.

Friends of the Jordan is a group comprised of sportsmen, conservationists, Department of Natural Resources staff, local government officials and interested members of the general public. Friends is addressing a variety of issues related to water quality, fish and wildlife habitat, forestry management, oil and gas development, and other recreational and resource uses of the area.

During the past two years Friends has hosted educational meetings on topics of interest such as oil and gas development, lamprey control, and forestry and fisheries management. A spring clean-up was sponsored last year.

The Frey Foundation makes grants to non-profit organizations which focus on projects which protect natural resources, enhance the lives of children, youth and families, and strengthen the non-profit sector. The Foundation's geographic focus is primarily Kent, Emmet and Charlevoix Counties.

Community members who are interested in activities of the Friends of the Jordan are invited to contact treasurer John Richter, DVM, at 536-3132.

OPINIONS

Editor's notes

For me, the 1994 smelt run has yet to elevate itself beyond the status of rumor. I checked one of the local streams on two nights this past weekend and found nothing.

Around 11:30 Saturday night, just shortly before the Red Wings blew a two-goal lead, I went out to a stream and pointed a flashlight in the water for a while. Dennis Halverson and his son Eric were there. We'd just finished admonishing the Red Wings and were in the process of straightening out the Pistons when some guy and a woman and a kid walked up and started peering into the stream without using a flashlight. They claimed you don't really need a light to spot smelt because if you look closely you can either see flickers of silver in the moonlight or black streaks against the sand at the bottom of the stream. We stood around talking smelt dipping theory for at least half an hour, all the while keeping an eye peeled for flickers or streaks. We didn't see any of either. After the three people left, Dennis, Eric and I went back to the flashlight method. As it turned out, the guy and the woman were right. Flashlights don't help you see smelt. We didn't see any more fish with the flashlights than we did without them.

Sunday night, I ventured out again. There was no wind Sunday night and I thought that might be helpful. Not only was there no wind Sunday night, there were also no fish. I ran into Matt and Dave Miller. There weren't any smelt in the stream, but we told stories for a while and killed a couple of good sized deer, missed several others and recaptured some fish from years past.

Speaking of wildlife and hunting, turkeys keep getting thicker and thicker in these parts. I've never hunted turkeys, but those who have tell me it's quite a challenge and a lot of fun. Supposedly wild turkeys are if not intelligent, at least very wary. Domestic turkeys, on the other hand, are among the stupidest critters on earth. Several years ago, I had a conversation with a turkey farmer who raised turkeys for eggs. Since it was important that the eggs be fertile, the turkeys were artificially inseminated. Every evening the turkeys were herded up a ramp and through a chute where they were grabbed and artificially inseminated. The farmer told me that you would think with this happening day after day, the turkeys would figure out what was going on and either get where they fought you or went along with the program. But that was not the case. To the turkeys, every day was a new day. Every time they got grabbed from the chute, it came as a complete surprise.

On a completely different matter, if you missed Friday's elementary school spring carnival you missed a fine time. The carnival is sponsored by the Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) and ends up involving the volunteer efforts and contributions of a whole flock of people and area businesses. The event raises money which the PTO uses to sponsor various programs for local children. Beyond that, it provides a great opportunity for people from the community to get together and have some fun and enjoy each other's company for a few hours on a spring evening.

by EDITH GILBERT

Alexander Graham Bell would tell you, even if you're promised the moon, don't call a 900 number! I received the exciting news by mail that I have been "declared fully vested with guaranteed eligibility for a $7,500 Grand Prize in a national sweepstakes, and disbursement is held pending winning number registration and presentation."

Bully for me! $7,500 is still $7,500. That goes a long way to help pay for a new roof.

If I call this 900 number there would be no attempt to sell me anything. Curiosity got the better of me and I dialed the number. Then it started. If my name is Edith Gilbert press 1, if not press 2. If my address is Michigan Ave. press 1. If my zip code is 49720 press 1. The questions continued for 6 minutes, including such questions as, "do you use a credit card to make long distance calls?" and "do you have a Sears Credit Card?" Finally I was told, "Sorry, your number is not a winning number!" So much for the Disbursement Division of the Audit Control Bureau in Laguna Hills, California.

But that's not all. When Ameritech sent my telephone bill in the mail, there was a $40.90 charge included for the 900 number call by a company called VRS. Under important information, it says that "this portion of your bill is provided as a service to the VRS company," and there is no connection between Ameritech and VRS. They also inform me that I have the right to withhold payment of the disputed charges during the billing error review and listed a number to call.

It took all of 10 seconds to dial the number. A very nice lady answered the phone and I asked, "as a minor stockholder in Ameritech, I wonder why a reputable company is playing footsie with this sleazy outfit in California? She suggested I call VRS which I refused to do."

The bill was mailed by Ameritech, with YOUR statement in YOUR envelope, and this is YOUR problem, so you deal with it. I refuse to pay for this scam.

I also asked her who is profiting from the $40 phone call? She said that Ameritech was making only a tiny profit. She then offered to call VRS and credit my next telephone bill with the full amount, which she did.

In the meantime my mailbox is filling up with more large, winning checks. All I need to do is call another 900 number in Redlands, Santa Ana, Newport Beach, Anaheim, Irvine, Santa Monica, Laguna Hills, Costa Mesa, or lately, Beverly Hills.

Fat chance! In checking with the California Chamber of Commerce, I am told that the Audit Control Bureau offers a variety of promotions. "We have received many complaints and the states of Wisconsin, Massachusetts, California and New York have filed action. Settlement for complaints have been reached by the attorney general to 'discontinue mailings that are deceptive'. Similar allegations are also settled out of court without admission of wrong doing." This is nothing more than a slap on the wrist.

Then I checked with the Public Utilities Commission. Here I am told that the phone company had a contractual agreement for billing with a collection service. Thus Ameritech does the billing for VRS. The commission has had many reports regarding the Audit Control Bureau, but according to state law service cannot be disconnected. Their 900 numbers by long distance carriers are UNREGULATED!

Finally, I call the Michigan State Attorney General's office. "Yes, we have had complaints too. Their companies are difficult to track. They close up shop and move. We need more public education. I suggest you file these 'winnings' in your waste basket."

Most people who fall for these outrageous promotions hold their tongue. There are a number of Charlevoixans who are too embarrassed to admit how gullible they have been. And that's exactly what these promoters count on. So let's get the word out and help take the profit out of this racket. Better yet, ask your legislators why aren't these long distance carriers REGULATED?

Letters to the editor

Former board member discusses school problems

(Editor's note: The accompanying letter was submitted to the Courier by former Charlevoix Board of Education member Doris Pearl. The letter is longer than most letters we print, but concerns about the school system are currently generating a great deal of discussion and interest within the community.)

Editor,

RE: Charlevoix Public School System

As a long-time past (school) board member I trust that I may be able to shed some light on what is going on inside this system. After attending the April 11th meeting, it was very obvious to me that there were only a few people in that meeting that had a clue as to what was going on. In my view this problem is not unlike a person with cancer. Until the cancer is removed, health cannot be achieved. There is a very serious problem within this system and until this problem is resolved, this system cannot and will not move forward.

There are some undercurrent maneuvers occurring which must be understood. There are certain agreements/contracts in existence which prohibit implementing some of the changes some people want to see occur. But this is not in the domain of the Superintendent or the board to change, at least not without the agreement of the MEA.

I have tried to think of the best way to inform thoughtful and caring members of this community. This is the only effective way I could think of to do it.

I asked some other former board members to sign this letter also. They declined. It is not easy to be in business in a small community such as this and serve on the school board. That is unfortunate as there is so much that small business people can bring to this service. I thought a long time before writing this article. I have nothing to gain by doing so, except perhaps a clearer conscience. I encouraged two of the present board members to serve. I certainly would not blame either of them or any of the others for never running again. Reading the papers concerning this upheaval in the past two months has been wrenching for me.

Both my spouse and I, my siblings, one of his parents, his uncles, cousins and our children have all grown up in this area and have attended this school system. I have invested many years of service in this system and am very concerned not only about this present problem, but about the system's future. I firmly believe the future health of this system is at stake and that is why I feel that I must speak out now.

It is important for those outside the system to understand. When Dr. Jackson was hired, the problem at the high school was discussed with her at length. Some members of the board wanted Dave Smith removed at that point in time. She asked the board to give her at least one year to work with him to see if she could help him become an effective leader at the high school. Permission was granted to give her at least a year. Those efforts of hers have been undermined at every turn. Many of us hoped, in vain, that with a new superintendent in charge, the problem would no longer exist.

Vane Smith, former high school and elementary school principal read a paragraph from the last North Central Accreditation report at the April 11th meeting concerning the interference by one board member in the high school. This report identified this factor as a major part of our system's problem. The interference by this individual has gone on for many years, but has intensified since Gordon Van Wieren's (former school superintendent) departure. There are many people in the community and several staff members over the past few years. This board member has been looking for ammunition to use against the high school principal, and it occurred even when Vane Smith was principal, although not to the extent it has occurred under Dave Smith. The rest of the other board members have tried every method we could think of to get it stopped, but to no avail. We have confronted this board member on several occasions, in an attempt to make this board member understand the harm that was being done to everyone concerned. Another attempt was to remove this board member as a board officer, another was to remove this board member from all sensitive board committees. But the situation has continued to decline and has culminated in this latest fiasco. This one board member has been the root cause of all this dissension within our community.

For any principal to be effective, he/she must be able to work with and lead his/her staff. Leadership is the key component. This can work very effectively when most faculty members are willing to work with their principal. However, when these very faculty members are being told by a board member that they don't have to worry about working with Dave Smith, because the board is going to remove him from his position in the near future, his job becomes impossible and his effectiveness as a leader becomes null and void. Dave Smith has been attacked verbally many times by this board member, and he has been defended many times by other board members, because we all knew what this board member was doing to his staff. This gives some history of the problem and this is where Dave Smith is today.

Hasn't anyone wondered why not one high school faculty member has risen to speak in his defense? If any are willing to do so, it will be the young teacher without tenure or someone ready to retire, who no longer cares who the high school principal is. Hasn't anyone wondered about this lack of support from these very key people? Members of the community need to talk to some of these parents who have been contacted by this board member in the past and learn the content of those conversations.

All board members are fully aware of this situation. It may be that our newest member is not aware of the full history of this, but all the rest are. All board members would have had a copy of this year's high school principal's evaluation. All board members would have agreed that accepting his reassignment request would be in the system's best interest. However, some criticism is due the board for not discussing all their concerns in the meeting with Dave Smith. For none of them to bring the subject up, to speak face to face with Dave Smith about what they all knew was going on, and about how he felt about the situation, is not excusable.

The four board members (Scott Beatty, Mary Lee Campbell, Joan Buday and Ben Cunningham) who voted to accept Dave's reassignment.

Charlevoix Hospital to offer spring health check-ups

Charlevoix Area Hospital is opening its doors for area residents to come in for a "spring health check-up" Monday, May 9.

The event is part of the hospital's participation in National Hospital Week. There will be free hearing tests, blood pressure checks, colorectal cancer detection kits, and respiratory therapy pulse oximeter tests. For $5, a total cholesterol test will be done and, for another $2, diabetes screening will be included.

Richard L. Krueger, hospital president, says, "The theme of hospital week is 'Building a healthy tomorrow today.' So, we decided to go all out to help people become aware of the importance of healthy living habits and regular examinations."

There will also be displays from Healthwares, Inc., a hospital affiliate which offers durable medical equipment and home nursing services; and the Womancare program of the District Health Department No. 3. In addition, parents may bring in their child's immunization records and a health department nurse will check it to determine if it is current, or if shots are due.

Hours for the tests are varied. Munson Medical Center's Ear Lab will be scheduled during the day on May 9. The pulmonary function tests, cholesterol, diabetes and blood pressure tests will be available from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Those wishing a diabetes test should either fast or have the test no sooner than two hours after eating. All tests will only be done for those 18 years of age or older.

For further information, call Nancy Ellison at 547-4024.

Local Chorale to sing Cole Porter tunes

The Northern Michigan Chorale presents its 12th annual Spring Concert on the stage of Petoskey's Middle School Sunday, May 1 at 4 p.m. and Monday May 2 at 8 p.m. The program will feature an array of popular music from composer Cole Porter. The Chorale, under the direction of Gig Stewart, is made up of singers from the northwestern part of Lower Michigan who rehearse weekly and present two concerts a year. This "Classic Cole Porter" program features soloists with the entire ensemble accompanied by the Northern Michigan

Chorale Instrumental Trio.

Tickets for the May concerts may be purchased at the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, The Outfitter of Harbor Springs and from Chorale members. Adult tickets are $6 and student tickets are $3.

For further information, call Connie Tanner at 347-8623.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club recently made good on a $500 pledge to the Charlevoix Area Hospital's building program. Shown in one of the hospital's new maternity rooms are (front then clockwise) Charlevoix Rotary Treasurer Jaquie Mabey, Rotary Club President Dennis Halverson and Charlevoix Area Hospital President Richard Krueger. Mabey and her husband, Kirby Dipert, are expecting a child and plan to make use of the hospital's maternity ward within the next few months.

Hospice begins volunteer training

Charlevoix County Hospice will conduct a Hospice Volunteer Training Program starting Thursday, May 12. Training sessions will run for five weeks, meeting on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. - 9 p.m. The first session will be a hospice orientation and discuss the role of the volunteer. Each class will deal with a different aspect of training - Grief and Bereavement, Death and Dying, Communication Skills, Spiritual Care of the Family, Understanding the Family, Pain Management, Care of the Patient's Mouth, Legal Aspects, Nutrition, and Basic Patient Care.

Please call the Hospice office, (536-2842) if you are interested in becoming a valuable trained hospice volunteer. You must be at least 18 years of age.

Civic Theater presents "Sherlock's Last Chance"

Little Traverse Civic Theater will present "Sherlock's Last Chance" by Charles Marowitz, to close out this year's season, at the Ross Stoakes Theater in the Virginia M. McCune Arts Center in downtown Petoskey May 5, 6, 7, 10, 12, 13, and 14. Director Frank Nemecek has chosen an experienced cast to perform this parody of Arthur Conan Doyle's famous detective stories. While retaining the suspense and mystery of the traditional Holmes' stories, "Sherlock's Last Chance" adds a humorous and unique look at the relationship between Holmes and his aide-de-camp, Dr. Watson. Tickets went on sale April 21. Reservations may be made by calling 348-1850.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Several area students will be among the spring 1994 graduates of Michigan State University. Students from Charlevoix are: Bill Crook, Biological Science; Jennifer Frabis, Education; Allison Hall, Elementary Education; Tim Holm, Education; Kathy Pease, Child Development. Students from East Jordan are: Erik Drake, History; Krista Sumner, English. Lori Anne Ruus of Ellsworth will graduate with honors, receiving a degree in Audiology and Speech Sciences.

Carolyn Campbell, a sophomore on the ski team at Holderness School in Plymouth, New Hampshire was recently voted by her teammates as the team's most spirited member. Campbell and teammate, Brianna Adams, were New Hampshire's best slalom skiers at the JII level. The Holderness Ski team won its fifth consecutive New England Division I ski championship. Campbell is also one of 20 Holderness racers to qualify for the Junior Olympics.

Campbell is the daughter of John and Mary Lee Campbell of Charlevoix.

Republican members of the U.S. Senate have nominated Angela A. Malpass of East Jordan to receive the Republican Senatorial Medal of Freedom. The medal is the highest honor Republican members of the United States Senate can bestow. Malpass has been nominated to receive the award in recognition of her long-standing commitment to the Republican party and for her dedicated support of Republican candidates for the U.S. Senate. Malpass will receive the award at the Republican Senate Mid-Term Convention, May 11 at the Omni Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Fourteenth Annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition opens Friday

The Fourteenth Annual Juried Fine Arts and Crafts Exhibition opens at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey, Friday, April 29, with a reception for the artists, Juror and friends from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. At 6:30 p.m., the Juror, Kathryn Sharbaugh, will give a slide presentation.

Educated at Notwith Art School, Sharbaugh has had her ceramics exhibited and collected internationally. She is an instructor at the Flint Institute of Arts.

In 1993, Sharbaugh received a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. During the grant period, she traveled to many cities to study public, private, contemporary and historical collections.

Sharbaugh's most recent project was designing a chapel for St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Flint.

In March she began work on a series of vases. This activity as well as her current visit and slide presentation at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, is supported by the Arts Foundation of Michigan in conjunction with the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs.

by JAN BOSS

I remember the first time my hairdresser told me that he saw some grey hairs. I don't think my reaction was one that he had expected. I was excited. "Oh, really - great. I'm finally an adult." Being the youngest in the family I always heard, "You're too young" or "Wait until you are older." so you see, the grey hair was a sign of arrival into the adulthood for me. I wish I could say that same attitude has continued, but with many more birthdays having stared my in the face, a mid-life crisis has set in. All of the sudden I find myself saying, "Wait, what about all those goals and dreams that I would accomplish by this time?" or "I waited until I was older and it's not that great." The more I dwell on years, age and time, the shorter everything gets.

I read in the Bible that God has my days numbered - that He knows what lies ahead and where I am going. That He is in control of each day it I only let him. I'm not to worry of earthly things. Instead of asking "What about this or What about that?" I should be asking what can I improve? or how can I help? Or am I being what God wants me to be? As I am growing older, I want to become a better person with new goals and dreams that deal with people, not things and not become a cranky old lady. I came across a prayer written by a Mother Superior who wishes to be anonymous from "The Little Book of Prayers" that seems to wrap it up rather well.

"Lord, Thou knowest better than I know myself that I am growing older, and will some day be old.

Keep me from getting talkative and particularly from the fatal habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion.

Release my mind from craving to try to straighten out everybody's affairs.

Keep my mind free from the recital of endless detail - give me wings to get to the point.

I ask for grace enough to listen to the tales of others' pains. Help me to endure them with patience.

But seal my lips on my own aches and pains - they are increasing and my love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by.

Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally it is possible that I may be mistaken.

Keep me reasonably sweet. I do not want to be a saint - some of them are so hard to live with - but a sour old woman is one of the crowning works of the devil.

Make me thoughtful, but not moody, helpful, but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom it seems a pity not to use it all - but Thou knowest, Lord, That I want a few friends at the end.

We all have choices on how we are going to live our lives; sour or sweet, trusting or worrying, giving or hoarding, caring or criticizing, growing or dying. "TRUST THE LORD - AND HE WILL DIRECT YOUR PATHS"

PTO Carnival: It's Spring Fun

Sifting through the shells for prizes kept several youngsters occupied and in one place long enough for their parents to get a breather at the Spring Carnival.

Alexander Lobenherz caught herself a whopper of a fish at the PTO Spring Carnival.

Will Quiram took a few tosses, but eventually got the bean bag to go where he wanted. Some of the younger children decided that tossing the bags was too difficult, so they just grabbed a bag and walked up and stuffed it through one of the holes.

SPORTS

Several local bowlers fare well in tournament for charity

Several Charlevoix bowlers won prize money in the Bowlers Charities North Area Finals hosted by Paul Bunyan Lanes of Charlevoix over the course of a six week period in March and April.

Bowlers qualified for the finals during preliminary rounds at several bowling centers throughout northern Michigan. Several hundred bowlers participated and in conjunction with bowling centers belonging to the Northern Michigan Bowling Centers Association raised more than $10,000. The money will be distributed to charities throughout northern Michigan.

The top 36 bowlers in the tournament won cash prizes ranging from $500 to $10. Eight Charlevoix bowlers finished in the money, led by Tom Browe who placed second with a 733 series, good for $250. Gretchen Grams of Boyne City won the tournament with a 769 series.

Other award winners from Charlevoix were: Barb Scully, third; Tom Morrison, fifth; Bob Donner, 12th; Tom Urban, 17th; Bud Lee, 21st; Joe LaPeer, 25th; Harry Gibbs, 32nd.

Martial artists bring home awards

Four members of the Charlevoix Kuk Sool Won Club brought home trophies from a tournament in which there were more than 300 competitors from the U.S.A. and Canada. The competition included forms, self defense and board breaking.

Hater and Doug Heinbokle brought home trophies from a tournament in which there were more than 300 competitors from the U.S.A. and Canada. The competition included forms, self defense and board breaking.

The Charlevoix Kuk Sool Won Club plans to give a demonstration of martial arts at the grand re-opening of the Club 77 youth center next month. For more information about the Kuk Sool Won Club, contact Janisse at 547-0525.

Tennis team picks up first win

The Charlevoix High School tennis team picked up its first win of the season April 22, beating Harbor Springs 5-2. The Rayders and Rams split the singles matches, but Charlevoix swept the doubles competition on the Rayders' home court.

The win evened Charlevoix's season record at 1-1 following an earlier loss to Petoskey.

Results of the Harbor Springs match were as follows:

Number one singles: Jeff Joy lost 6-2, 6-1.

Municipal golf course opens

It must be spring. The Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course will officially open for the 1994 season, Friday, April 29. The course is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Spring rates are $8 for nine holes. Joan Waha is the new manager this year, replacing Bill Graves who retired. Despite the long, hard winter, Waha says the course looks to be in great shape.

Number two singles: Chris Pair won 6-4, 7-6.

Number three singles: Amy Freidinger won 6-0, 6-3.

Number four singles: Eric Anderson lost 7-6, 6-4.

Number one doubles: Tim Terry and Chris Maye won 7-6, 6-1.

Number two doubles: Richie LaVoie and Zach Pajtas won 6-4, 6-2.

Number three doubles: Brad Parsel and Shay Arnold won 6-4, 6-0.

An exhibition doubles match was won by Charlevoix's Sarah Warner and James Conlan.

Softball team wins twice

The Charlevoix women's softball team beat Harbor Springs 12-2 and 12-4 Monday behind a pair of two-hit games from pitcher Liz Grunch. Grunch struck out eight and walked four in the first game and also had two singles. Angela Buday had three hits for the Rayders while Christie Kacyznski had two doubles and Waja Wujcik a pair of singles.

In the second game, Grunch struck out four and walked four and also doubled and tripled. Buday, Wujcik, Sara Thorp and Jill Dreyer each had two hits for the Rayders.

The wins improved the Rayders' season record to 5-2. Their next game will be Thursday at Elk Rapids.

While the softball team was winning twice, the men's baseball team won one game and later blew a nine run lead and had to settle for a tie in the second game against Harbor Springs.

In the opening game, Brandon Webb threw a complete game in six innings, striking out six and walking six. Bob Jess had two hits in the opening game.

The Rayders led the second game 10-1 in the fourth inning and then the pitching and defense went awry and the Rams came back to tie the game at 11-11 when it was called due to darkness. Webb had two home runs, including a grand slam. Jeremy Boss had two singles while Josh Love had a single and a double.

STATE OF MICHIGAN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

REBECCA LEONE BARKER, Trustee of the Rebecca Leone Barker Revocable Trust, u/a dated 11/21/89, Plaintiff,

File: C94-089-17-CM

FRANK J. BROWN and EMMA V. BROWN, husband and wife; and all heirs, assigns and executors of such Defendants, and any claiming thereunder, Defendants.

Scott T. Beatty (P24202) Attorney for Plaintiff 101 W. Huribut Charlevoix, MI 49720 (616) 547-4059

ORDER TO ANSWER

On March 10, 1994, an action was filed by the above named Plaintiff, against the above named Defendants, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to quiet title to real property situated in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, more specifically identified as follows:

Commencing at a 1/2 inch rod at the northeast corner of Section 23, T34N, R8W; thence along the East line of said section South 00°40'13" West 2653.39 feet to a one inch rod at the East quarter corner of said section; thence continuing along said East section line South 00°39'18" West 1506.17 feet (recorded as 1507.40 feet) to a concrete monument recorded as being 80 feet Northwest of the center line of the former Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad right of way, as measured perpendicularly thereto; thence South 32°26'44" West (recorded as being 32°44' deflection angle to the right from said section line) 756.76 feet to an iron stake on the Easterly extension of the Northern line of Cherry Street; thence along the Easterly extension of the Northern line of Cherry Street North 70°47'00" West 82.91 feet to the Southeastly line of the former Frank J. Brown property described in Liber 124, Page 220, Charlevoix County records; thence along the Southeastly line of said Brown property South 19°11'38" West 39.98 feet, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing South 19°11'38" West 176.10 feet; thence along a curve to the left 239.02 feet (radius of said curve is 239.02 feet and the chord bears North 25°47'41" West 215.20 feet) to the Southern line of Cherry Street; thence along the Southern line of Cherry Street South 70°47'00" East 81.68 feet; thence along the Southern line of an 80 foot diameter cul-de-sac on Cherry Street on the curve to the left 153.87 feet (radius is 40.00 feet and the chord bears North 98°58'24" East 75.08 feet) to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 4, Section 23, and a part of Government Lot 1, Section 26, both of which are in T34N, R8W. The above bearings are in relationship to the Michigan Coordinate system, Central Zone (2112); the above distances are grid distances. NOTE: Because of an error by the original government surveyor, C.W. Catchcat, Deputy Surveyor of the United States of America, part of Sections 23 and 26 overlap one another. Thus, described land can either be perceived as a part of Government Lot 4 of Section 23 or part of Government Lot 1 of Section 26, both of which are in T34N, R8W. A decision properly identifying the extensive overlap of the two sections has never been rendered.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants FRANK J. BROWN and EMMA V. BROWN, husband and wife, as above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, and any other parties claiming interest, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before:

June 1, 1994.

Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment be default against Defendants for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on:

June 13, 1994 at 2:15 p.m.

In the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

The above bearings are in relationship to the Michigan Coordinate system, Central Zone (2112); the above distances are grid distances. NOTE: Because of an error by the original government surveyor, C.W. Catchcat, Deputy Surveyor of the United States of America, part of Sections 23 and 26 overlap one another. Thus, described land can either be perceived as a part of Government Lot 4 of Section 23 or part of Government Lot 1 of Section 26, both of which are in T34N, R8W. A decision properly identifying the extensive overlap of the two sections has never been rendered.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants FRANK J. BROWN and EMMA V. BROWN, husband and wife, as above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, and any other parties claiming interest, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before:

June 1, 1994.

Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment be default against Defendants for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on:

June 13, 1994 at 2:15 p.m.

In the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

Eastern Star makes donations

Worthy Matron Esther Carey and Worthy Patron Tom Carey presided at the April 20 meeting of Charlevoix Chapter #72 of the Order of the Eastern Star. W.M. Esther Carey read a Resolution of Respect for Past Grand Patron Glen A. Martin, Detroit, who died January 24, 1994. The Alter was draped in his memory. Congratulations were read for Anna B. Lewis, Past Grand Electa, who will be 100 years old on April 29. Assoc. Associate Matron Carla Spencer reported that during months Feb. and March when Charlevoix Chapter was closed, members had sent 75 cards, made 80 calls, and made seven visits to other Chapters. St. Patrick's Day and Easter cards were sent to all shut-ins. A remembrance was sent to Frances Durand who celebrated her 101st birthday Feb. 13. Thanks were received from Charlevoix Area Hospital for the donations made in honor of shut-ins.

Sarah Sievertson, Post Matron of Commerce Chapter #301, Commerce, Mi. was elected to dual membership in Charlevoix #72, and Phila Shanahan was granted a Life Membership. Thanks were given to those members who catered the Feb. & March dinners for the Masons. Esther Carey and Ann Huford will cater the May dinner for the Masons. Contributions were made to the American Legion "Girls State" project, to the Charlevoix Hospital "Lighthouse Club", to the 4-H Castle Farms purchase fund, and to the Meguzee district Sunshine Fund. The local Sunshine fund for April was donated to the ESTRAL program. Chapter #72 also donated an Easter dress to a local 10-year-old girl.

Several members of the Charlevoix Rotary Club spent the morning at Camp Daggett Saturday, putting the finishing touches on a new cabin. In addition to finishing up some carpentry work, the Rotarians also did some landscaping. Shown at work are (clockwise from the front left) Mark Fiegel, Dennis Halverson, Steve Corporon and Tim Petrosky.

Above: Following a power breakfast at a local restaurant, a Charlevoix Rotary Club work crew was at Camp Daggett by the crack of 10 a.m. to work on one of the camp's new cabins. Working on a set of landscaping steps are (from front) Dennis Halverson, Mark Fiegel and Tim Petrosky.

Left: A firm hand not only proves useful at the helm of the Acacia, but Commander Steve Corporon finds it can also be put to use on a carpentry project.

Right: (from front) Meryl Wellhausen and John Taylor tackle some of the finish work on a cabin which during the course of its life will be a temporary home to hundreds of young campers at Camp Daggett.

...former board members discusses school problems

ment and/or resignation should be hailed by this community for having the courage to do the right thing and their job. And just what is their job? After reviewing the facts, (facts that the members of the community were not aware of) they voted on the strength of their convictions that they were taking an action which was in the best interest of the students. Someone said at the meeting on April 11th, that board members should reflect the wishes of the community, but the job of the board member is ultimately to do what is in the best interest of students and they must base that decision on the facts before them. Other than in the context of negotiations, doing what is in the best interest of the majority of students must be the primary job of school board members. Politicians who raise their hand in the air to test the political winds before they vote are reprehensible. Those people are far more concerned with getting reelected, thereby doing what is in their own best interest, rather than being concerned with doing what is best for the students in this school system.

Dave Smith has helped many students. He deserves to be commended for the multitude of good he has done for students, things that he will continue to do as a faculty member. He really cares about young people. He is very intelligent and what this board member has done to him is tragic. All of us have known Dave most of his life and it is very painful to watch this happen to him.

After all this board member did to Dave Smith, this board member instigated the move to vote against his removal! Why? This brings us to the undercurrent maneuvering going on.

The primary need at the point in time that this system began our search for a new superintendent was development of a K-12 curriculum based on PA25. Our last two candidates were both well qualified in that respect however, Dr. Jackson had far more experience in that area with the plus of a strong vocational education background, also a real need in our system. Four of us (board members) visited the towns the last two finalists worked in. Prior to our arrival at Dr. Jackson's town, the union representative from Charlevoix had talked to the union rep from her school. The union did not want Dr. Jackson because "She was too tough to work with union negotiations." She has proven, with the help of this board, just how tough she could be in negotiations. This had been a new experience for the Charlevoix union representatives, bringing in a negotiator is the only smart way for any board to deal with the MEA.

When I speak about the union representatives we are only talking about a handful of people, not the entire teaching staff. Outside this handful of people, little information on negotiations is shared with the full staff, most of them know next to nothing during the course of negotiations until they vote on the contract.

Most of the teaching staff are very hard working and dedicated people, not only doing their job as classroom teachers but also helping and encouraging their students to do their very best. Many of these faculty members work extra hours for no pay on projects outside the regular school day.

This same board member has become very cozy with these union representatives, keeping in constant communication with at least one of them. Some of you will remember the librarian positions that occurred in the last year. This board member was excluded from those meetings because of this ongoing communication with the union representative. However, this board member got the information that was desired (who voted how on the high school librarian position) from an administrator who is also cooperating with this group. Of course, these union representatives are using this board member for their purposes. These people did not want Dr. Jackson as the new superintendent. They saw an opportunity to create this crisis and place all the blame on this "outsider." After the meetings with board members discussing the reassignment/resignation of Dave Smith, secret meetings took place where this strategy of jumping ship was discussed and agreed upon. This board member could "get back" at fellow board members who demoted this board member and at the same time place the superintendent in the position of a no-win situation. It has worked like a charm, hasn't it? But is Dr. Jackson to be blamed for all this? Shouldn't we be blaming the real culprit?

Now to address the curriculum changes. The PA25 is an act by the Michigan State Legislature, not a requirement of Dr. Jackson. It must be implemented or this system will face severe financial cuts. This is one of the main reasons Dr. Jackson was hired. She has worked extremely hard as have many, many faculty and community members to get the system to this point. Take a good look at what has been accomplished in her short tenure here. No not everything has been implemented. For those of you wondering why, go to the Central Office and ask for a copy of the Teacher's Master Contract. That should provide you with several answers.

Finally, who votes in school elections and how many total voters are there? If faculty members and support staff members don't take the time to get out into the community to talk and/or don't take the time to get to know people who are running for the board and ask questions, but rather believe what the union executive committee tells them, then they vote for those union backed board members. Now many faculty and support staff do take the time to find out about board candidates, but many don't. Find out how many union employees this system has and then add their spouses and family members. Several board members have been reminded more than once that cooperation with the union is a very good idea if we want to remain on the board.

If you as a member of this community want to positively impact this system, GET OUT AND VOTE AT THE SCHOOL ELECTION! Stop allowing the union executive committee to put their candidates on the School board. Take an interest in the views of potential candidates. Find out if they have a vendetta with the school or a member of the school. Ask if they or their spouse has ever applied for a job with the school system and not been hired. Find out if the status of a board member is the reason for running, and if it is, don't vote for them. Make sure they are intelligent, thoughtful, involved in the activities of the school and really care about young people.

Thank you for listening,
Doris Pearl

Haggard announces plans to seek State Senate seat

By L. Scott Swanson

John Haggard

Charlevoix businessman John Haggard will be seeking election to the Michigan Senate. Saturday evening at the Charlevoix County Republican Party Lincoln Day Dinner, Haggard announced his intention to file for the Republican nomination for the State senatorial seat in the 37th District.

The 37th District encompasses 14 counties: five eastern Upper Peninsula counties; Charlevoix and Emmet Counties in the northwest Lower Peninsula; and Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Alpena, Montmorency, Alcona, Otsego and Iosco Counties in the eastern Lower Peninsula.

The district's current senator is John Pridnea, R-Hillman. In what came as a surprise to many, Pridnea announced in late March that he would not be seeking re-election.

While the 37th District's current senator is Pridnea, Charlevoix's current State Senator is George McManus, R-Traverse City. Due to changes in district boundaries, Charlevoix County is being shifted into the 37th District for the August primary and November general election.

Haggard is no newcomer to polisaid a more formal announcement will be made at a later date, as soon as he gets all of the paperwork in order.

"I'm excited about it and in turn my family is excited about it," Haggard said of the candidacy.

He said the 37th District is going to be difficult to campaign in due to the geographic length. Haggard said the district has three common areas: the five U.P. counties, the two northwestern lower peninsula counties, and the five eastern "Sunrise" counties. Haggard noted that the district borders three of the great lakes and is the largest lakeshore district in the state and perhaps in the country.

Haggard said economic issues will be the cornerstone of his campaign, specifically job retention and job building. "I'm a firm believer in first of all taking care of the people we have in the district and then building on what we have," he said. As an example, Haggard said that a situation he is currently interested in is the future of the Big Rock Point Power Plant. He said he hopes Consumers Power Company can be persuaded to convert the plant from a nuclear plant to another form of power plant and continue to be an employer in the area.

For the past 22 years, Haggard, 53, has been a partner in Haggard Brothers Plumbing and Heating with his brother, Bill Haggard.

While making a preliminary announcement Saturday, Haggard

Dancing with the most beautiful girls in the world

Several Charlevoix fathers got a chance to dance with the girls they no doubt view as the most beautiful girls in the world at the Girl Scout Father-Daughter Dessert Social April 19. The girls and their fathers enjoyed a dessert buffet and then, with the aid of professional callers, did some line dancing. The event was planned by Melanie Morrison's Girl Scout Cadet Troop #269. Shown dancing in the photo above are Rob Dittmer and his daughter, Jessica. (Photo courtesy of Bobbie Ruehle)

Mother's Day in the animal kingdom

Photos by Laurie Lounsbury

Becoming a mother is an event filled with wonder and surprise. Will the baby have blue eyes like mom? Brown hair like dad? The element of surprise is compounded with animal births on the farm. Will the baby be of the same breed as its mom? Was that sheep pregnant this winter? Debbie McDermott of Stonehedge Petting Farm escorted Courier staffers through the menagerie of newborns at her farm. Each new arrival had its own story to tell - or bleat - or moo.

Jack the donkey

McDermott estimated that her recently acquired donkey, Jenny, would be due to have a baby in July or August. After all, McDermott knew the gestation period of donkeys and she knew when she bought the donkey and the donkey's mate. It would have to take at least that long for the donkey to complete gestation. McDermott was howled over when she went out to feed the pregnant mom donkey Friday morning and found a new baby, already delivered, cleaned, and dried, with the proud mom guarding her offspring protectively. "She must have delivered it during the night," McDermott said, still amazed. McDermott did a little backwards counting and decided the donkey must have been pregnant when she bought her. Now that's getting two for the price of one.

The Jacob's lamb

This spotted lamb was just four days old when this picture was taken. The mother of this newborn was getting fidgety when McDermott picked up the babe to show her off. This lamb was a bonus baby, since McDermott had no idea the mother sheep was even pregnant this winter. McDermott explained that the name of Jacob's sheep goes back to biblical times, when Jacob's father-in-law gave Jacob the spotted sheep after he culled his herd. Apparently he thought that spotted sheep were undesirable. McDermott and the children who visit the petting farm would beg to differ.

Frosty the Snow Cow

This black and white faced calf is half Herford and half Scotch Highlander. McDermott owned a Scotch Highlander cow that she planned to breed with a male Scotch Highlander. The docile cattle are eye catching with their long hair and equally long horns. So eye catching, apparently that the cow caught the eye of a frisky male Herford bull, just seven months old. The bull energetically escaped his pen to mate with the Scotch Highlander. At the end of January, on a bitterly cold day when McDermott was in town on business, the mixed breed calf was born. When McDermott got home, the baby was half frozen. She and her husband hauled the calf to their front porch and made a tent with blankets while they ran a hair dryer over the calf for four hours in order to bring its body temperature up to speed. The feisty calf, named Frosty after its cold arrival into the world, is now doing fine.

...business curriculum updated

is the same as what they will be using in the business world. For example, next year high school business students will be working with Wordperfect 6.0 and an advanced version of Lotus 1,2,3. Erskine said that in talking to parents and other community members, one of the things they were most pleased with is the choice of software because it's relevant to the business world.

Community involvement and feedback are things which Cook and Erskine have incorporated into the business program. Plans call for the establishment of an advisory committee made up of local business people. That committee will be one source of feedback to determine if the skills being taught in the classroom are showing up in the work place. Erskine has also been looking into setting up a job shadowing or mentoring program which would pair up students with adults working in occupations in which the students have an interest. Some time down the road, Cook and Erskine also want to develop a work co-op program.

While the BAT class provides a foundation for the business curriculum, that foundation is built upon by the management support and accounting/finance components of the curriculum.

In the management support component, students can acquire the skills necessary to become an: office assistant; office specialist; information processing specialist; administrative assistant; medical office specialist; computer specialist; or legal office specialist. In the accounting component students can either learn skills necessary for an accounting assistant or accounting specialist.

The courses are designed to provide students measurable objectives. At the beginning of the course the students will receive a syllabus which describes the ladder of objectives. Each student can progress up that ladder of objectives as far as their talent and academic ambition will take them. Beyond that, Cook and Erskine are working on an arrangement with North Central Michigan College that will let Charlevoix High School students take college business courses if they max out the high school business program. Students will receive certificates listing the skills they have acquired. In an employment interview, when an employer asks what the student has been taught, the student can produce the certificate.

Colleen Urban is one of many Charlevoix High School business students who will be working in a new business curriculum next year. The new curriculum is tailored to provide students the skills they need to make a smooth transition into the business world.

Currently the high school business department has several computers, but there is a need for more computer availability. The present computers are used almost constantly. Cook and Erskine said that in addition to using the computers during class, students come in during lunch hour and after school.

teachers who have spent at least 4,000 hours working in the private sector in addition to their educational requirements. Erskine and Cook are vocationally certified. The federal vocational funds must be used to keep certified staff and update business department instructional equipment, such as computers.

The updated curriculum may also qualify Charlevoix High School for some federal vocational funding which the school has not been eligible for in the past several years. One of the requirements for that funding is that Charlevoix's business teachers be vocationally certified. That certification requires

School voters will see two millage requests June 13

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix Board of Education unanimously voted to place two millage proposals on the June 13 ballot. Voters will be asked to approve a 2.25 mill proposal for school enhancement millage and an 18 mill non-homestead millage. The enhancement millage will expire after three years. The non-homestead millage will extend for five years, then can be renewed for up to 15 additional years.

School Business Manager Rich Kelly explained that the enhancement millage will be used for school improvements, such as new carpeting for the elementary school, asbestos abatement, electrical mechanical, and structure repairs and improvements, and technology. Modifications for disabled persons, site drainage, and other building improvements would also be paid for from the enhancement millage. The total cost of improvements is estimated at $2,400,000. Based on the SEV available in the Charlevoix school district, 2.25 mills would represent $798,389 annually, so all improvements would be paid for in three years.

"We need to spend this money on facilities and technology, not on our program," Kelly said. He stressed that the enhancement millage will be short lived, so it shouldn't be used for any ongoing programs in the schools.

Before a vote was taken, board member Mary Lee Campbell said, "I think it's imperative that we take care of our physical structures... This list (of improvements) also relates to our children's safety."

The board and most audience members also supported the levying of an 18 mill non-homestead property tax. Non-homestead property includes second homes, businesses, and industry. The 18 mills will be levied in addition to a local six mill school tax, for a total of 24 mills to non-homestead property owners. Local homeowners will pay six mills on their own home. The 24 mills that non-homestead property owners will pay, if approved by the voters, is a slight increase from the approximate 23 mills they paid last year under the former school financing system.

The board decided not to have a summer tax collection, at the recommendation of Kelly, due to the cost of collecting taxes. Kelly said it would be cheaper to borrow money in the summer, then collect the full amount of taxes on the winter tax bill. Last year the school borrowed money at 2.64 percent interest, and Kelly said they could probably borrow money this year at a similar rate.

Kelly and finance committee chairman Steve Czerkes said they would be available to speak to community groups to explain the new millage system.

In other business, high school teacher Dixie Ashton explained a new teaching system soon to be implemented in the Charlevoix schools called "writing across the curriculum." The concept is to have students

Abstinence education available to students and parents

Editor,

Charlevoix teens and their parents will soon have an opportunity to attend an outstanding abstinence education program, How to Say No. A workshop for parents will be held May 17 with four different sessions for 7th, 8th, and 9th graders held on May 24 and 31. All sessions will be held at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix at 101 State St. Participants can register for this free program by calling the church office at 547-9122.

The program is being sponsored by the Outreach Board of the First Congregational Church. It is presented by specially trained peer educators from Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood and is funded by a grant from Charlevoix and East Jordan United Way.

We feel this is an excellent program and we urge all parents of 7th - 9th graders to attend and to register their children for the student sessions. How to Say No has been shown to be effective in giving young teens the skills they need to resist pressure to become sexually active. It was used successfully by the Charlevoix Middle School from 1985 - 91.

We share the concern of the community that many teens are engaging in sexual activity at increasingly young ages. The risks of sexual activity - pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, and HIV/AIDS - have never been greater. The How to Say No program is a positive approach to preventing these problems.

Sincerely,

Many contributed to the success of PTO Spring Carnival

Editor,

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all of the parents, teachers, sponsors, and donors who helped out at the K-5 Spring

Carnival. We had a wonderful turnout and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. Not only is the carnival a fund-raiser, but also it is a family night and it takes many special people to make it a success. A special thanks to the teachers and principal for offering their time in the dunk tank. The children loved it! Thank you again.

Editorial

Affordable housing is a significant need

A recent decision by the Charlevoix City Council to donate a piece of city property for U.S. Coast Guard housing was all right in relation to retaining a Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix. But the important point which should not be lost by city, township, county and school officials is that affordable housing in the Charlevoix area is not just a problem affecting the Coast Guard. The cost of housing in Charlevoix is something which affects a number of people, both directly and indirectly.

One need only look at a few area real estate listings to find that a similar home to one in Charlevoix would cost thousands less in Boyne City or East Jordan. Granted, that's all right if you're selling a home in Charlevoix, but if you're a buyer hoping to live in Charlevoix it can easily chase you elsewhere.

Overall, during the past several years, Charlevoix's public school enrollment has declined. Projections are that it will be stagnant during the next few years. Meanwhile, neighboring school districts have either declined less dramatically or grown. One of the primary reasons for this is the cost of housing. It's simply easier for a young family moving into the area to find affordable housing in one of the county's other communities.

Ironically, even though these young families may live elsewhere, it's not uncommon for them to work in Charlevoix. A commute of 15 to 20 minutes from East Jordan or 25 to 30 minutes from Boyne City simply does not offset the greater housing cost.

During the past several years, local officials have occasionally talked about the need for more affordable housing in the community, but little tangible progress comes to mind. One exception would be the Pine River Place complex for senior citizens. Another would be the manufactured housing complex on M-66.

While locally funded public housing would probably be going too far, there are other things local government agencies can do. First and foremost, they can work to keep down the cost of taxes and other public services. Beyond that, they can express a willingness to work with private developers of affordable housing.

School moves forward in principal search

The Charlevoix School System has narrowed the field of candidates for high school principal from 49 to 17. The school received 49 applications and a group of board members and administrators met April 27 and pared the field down to 17.

Dr. Roberta Jackson, school superintendent, said the school is now doing extensive reference checking and then will schedule first round administrative interviews. Following interviews by an administrative team, the field of candidates will be cut to six to eight finalists. The finalists will be interviewed in a round-robin format by several groups during one or possibly two evenings late in May. Jackson said those interviews will be open to the public.

Jackson said the hope is to have a new principal hired by mid June.

Local students take a close look at Spain

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix High School's Spanish Club students can habla espanol better than ever, since their return from a two-week trip to Spain. "They probably learned more in two weeks than in a year of classes in school," said Pete Scholten, Spanish teacher and trip chaperone. Scholten escorted 10 Charlevoix students on their trip to Spain, where they spent one week touring through Madrid, El Escorial, Toledo, Granada, and Cordoba. The second week of their trip was spent in Segovia, where each student stayed with a host Spanish family.

Students generally agreed that the most enlightening part of the trip was living with their Spanish families. They spoke Spanish 50 to 75 percent of the time. "I used a lot more Spanish than I thought I would. It got to be easy," said Charnell Byers. Sara Schenck said her family stay was the best part of the trip for her too. "I lived on a farm. I thought that was cool," she said.

Carrie Cunningham and Amy Parrish took home different favorite memories. They were enthralled with the Metro in Madrid, where they could ride the trains and watch people.

Amy Phillips liked free time spent in the different cities. "Touring around on our own was the best," she said. "We had to interact with people, so we learned more that way."

Luther Kurtz offered two different versions of his favorite part of Spain trip. "It was lots of fun and very educational," Kurtz said, followed with a sly grin and sideways look. "Spanish chicas esta muy bien," he added.

Performing Arts Students to compete in State Finals

Thirteen Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students will be at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo this Saturday competing in the State Finals Individual Events competition.

Charlevoix will have two teams in the multiple reading category. Ellen McKinney, Wendy Jacobs, Sven Gartinbroeker, Keith Parrish, Nick Himebauch and David Skeel will present an excerpt from "Schindler's List." Lisa Borths, Amy VanGuilder, Gita Butcher, Angela Buday, Mary Beth Gagnon and Liz Browe will present an excerpt from "Le Femme Fatale."

Crystal Marvin will participate in the ninth and tenth grade poetry competition, reading a selection of poems from Bloom County by Berke Breathed.

The students qualified for the State Finals by placing among the top performers in Regional Competition in April.

Crystal Marvin

This group of Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students will be performing an excerpt from "Schindler's List" at the Individual Events State Finals Saturday. They are (front from left) Ellen McKinney, Wendy Jacobs, (back) Sven Gartinbroeker, Keith Parrish, Nick Himebauch, David Skeel.

Richard John Hull

Richard John Hull, 75, of Charlevoix, died May 1, 1994, at Metropolitan Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Wednesday, May 4, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God in Charlevoix will officiate. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Hull was born Sept. 10, 1918, in Charlevoix, the son of Emerson G. and Lillian (Engstrom) Hull. He was raised in Charlevoix, and attended Charlevoix schools.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II from 1942-1945.

On Feb. 14, 1947, he married Hilma E. Hardy, and she survives. The couple made their home in Charlevoix.

Mr. Hull was a self-employed painting contractor.

He was a member of the VFW Post No. 1153 and the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, both of Charlevoix. He was also a member of the Charlevoix Community Church of God.

Survivors include his wife, Hilma Hardy Hull; and three sisters.

C. Fred Feindt

C. Fred Feindt, 67, of Charlevoix, died April 27, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memorial service took place Friday, April 29, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The ters, Marguerite McKay of Charlevoix, Edna Miller of Charlevoix, and Emerjean Christy of Orange, Calif.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Feindt was born May 30, 1926, in South Haven, the son of John Lawrence and Elizabeth M. (Enichen) Feindt. He was raised in Illinois, and received a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Purdue University in Indiana.

Mr. Feindt began work in Detroit. He transferred to Rockford, Ill., and then to Colorado before returning to Michigan in 1970 to make his home in Charlevoix.

Mr. Feindt was employed by Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering from 1972 until his retirement in 1987.

He was an active member of the Boy Scouts of America. He was also a member of the Purdue Chapter of the Triangle Fraternity.

Survivors include his stepmother, Mary C. Feindt, of Charlevoix; one stepbrother, Lawrence R. Feindt and his wife, Faye, of Charlevoix; two aunts; and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Thomas L. Ramsey

Thomas Leroy Ramsey, 71, a lifetime summer resident of Charlevoix, died April 29 in Toledo, Ohio. Ramsey was born in Toledo and was a graduate of the University of Toledo. He was a member of the Toledo Power Squadron for 35 years.

Mr. Ramsey spent summers in Charlevoix and was active in the North Pointe Nature Preserve project. He is survived by his wife, Gaylene Ramsey of Toledo; a sister, Ruth Ramsey Willis and her husband Charles Perrin Willis of Pittsburgh, Pa.; a nephew David Ramsey Willis and his wife Angela; and a niece, Laura Bullard Willis.

Mr. Ramsey's body was cremated according to his wishes. There will be a memorial service in Charlevoix in August. Memorials may be made in his name to the Little Traverse Conservancy, 3264, Powell Road, Harbor Springs MI 49740.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

James L. Zeidler of Charlevoix has been selected to have his biography published in the 1993-1994 National Dean's List. Zeidler is a student at Michigan Tech University. Only half of one percent of the nation's college students qualify to be included in the National Dean's List publication. Zeidler, a civil engineering major, has been named to the Michigan Tech University Dean's List eight times and has a cumulative grade point average of 3.87 on a 4-point grading scale.

Four Charlevoix students will be among the University of Michigan's 1994 spring graduates. The students and the degrees they will receive are: Daniel Bickersteth, Bachelor of Science in Industrial and Operations Engineering; Heather Brown, Bachelor of Business Administration; Timothy Jervis, Bachelor of Business Administration; Abigail Uhrick, Bachelor of Arts.

David B. and William T. Saunders, printing management majors from Charlevoix, are two of 22 students who were recently inducted into the Ferris State University Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honor society.

The two, graduates of Northville High School, are the sons of Shari and Bernard Saunders of Charlevoix.

Omicron Delta Kappa recognizes achievement in scholarship; athletics; social, service and religious activities and campus government; journalism; speech and mass media; and creative and performing arts. In addition, student members must be in the upper 35 percent scholastically of their academic unit at Ferris.

ODK was founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee University with a goal of recognizing and encouraging superior scholarship and leadership by men and women of exemplary character and service. Presently there are 180 Circles of ODK nationally.

James A. MacNaughton, a student at East Jordan High School and the son of Janet R. Kelts of East Jordan, and Donald A. MacNaughton of Boyne City, recently enlisted in the United States Army's Delayed Entry Program for a 3-year tour of duty in the infantry. He is scheduled to report for active duty July 1994, at Fort Benning, Georgia.

United We Stand America organizes Charlevoix County chapter

United We Stand America (UWSA) recently organized a Charlevoix County Area Chapter. Eighteen UWSA members and three nonmembers attended an April 27 meeting at the Boyne City Country Star restaurant. Susan Esser, the State executive director of UWSA - MI presided. Also present was Dorothy Matzinger, alternate coordinator, Congressional District 1, and her husband Rex.

Elected as Charlevoix County Area Chapter coordinator was Karl Waldner. Jerry Aydlott was elected alternate coordinator. A secretary/treasurer will be appointed as soon as one volunteers.

The next meeting will be at the Jordan Valley District Library, a hop and a skip south of the East Jordan High School, at 7 p.m., May 11. Among the issues for future action are: the Charlevoix county commissioners' continuing reluctance to legally lower their operating millage levy; the possibility of persuading the commissioners to end user fees on the Ironton ferry for Charlevoix county residents; et cetera.

All area, whether you live in Antrim or Emmet counties (peripherally) it doesn't matter. UWSA members are invited to come and bring a friend or two.

Pointedly urged by UWSA to enlighten, as regards their thoughts on the above two issues, are the Charlevoix County commissioner candidates.

JR's restaurant under new ownership

By Laurie Lounsbury

JR's restaurant has always been a favorite for breakfast and lunch. Now it promises to be a favorite for dinner. John and Sherry Fiedorek, owners of the Flight Deck, have teamed up with Dianna Metiva as new partners in JR's restaurant. While the popular breakfast and lunch offerings will remain the same, the Fiedoreks and Metiva have decided to offer dinner too. Brian Martineck, a popular chef with the locals, will be cooking in the evenings. JR's will offer a simple menu for dinner, moderately priced, and featuring a special each day. They'll also feature a fresh catch of the day, provided by Cross Fisheries. Prices for dinner range from $5.95 to $9.95. Baby back ribs will be a regular specialty item. Specials will be served with an array of fresh vegetables, such as zucchini and squash. Kids ten and under may choose their entrees from a children's menu.

Sherry Fiedorek is no stranger to the cozy surroundings at JR's. She was working there as a waitress when she learned that Metiva's partner, Jerry Uhrick, was interested in selling his share of the business. The Fiedoreks decided that the rhythm of business at JR's would synchronize well with their other business endeavor, The Flight Deck and Paul Bunyan bowling lanes. The bowling alley is busiest in the winter season, while JR's hits its full stride in the summer.

Sherry Fiedorek will devote most of her time to JR's, while husband John keeps one eye on the Flight Deck and the other eye on handyman projects at JR's.

JR's is currently serving dinner Thursday through Sunday, from five to eight. They'll be open six nights a week during the summer.

Dianna Metiva (right) and her new business partner Sherry Fiedorek (left) flank JR's restaurant chef Brian Martineck. JR's, long known for its breakfast and lunch menu is planning to begin offering dinners.

Growth causes local Post Office to add sixth route

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, May 4, 1994 - PAGE 11

Due to the continued growth in the area, the Charlevoix Post Office will add a sixth rural route. The fifth route was added less than a year ago. City routes will soon be adjusted to better balance their size due to the recent uneven growth in these areas.

Because of these route changes the post office asks each home owner to have their proper address on their home and/or rural mail box so each carrier, as he delivers an unfamiliar route, will be able to identify the mail with the proper destination.

As recently as seven years ago only three rural routes served the area. The increase is due to the growth in population and the general increase in mail volume.

In the last 18 months, due to retirements, promotions and lateral moves there are five new employees at Charlevoix Post Office - with more to come, as a result of the new route.

To obtain the best possible service, it is imperative that all those receiving mail through the Charlevoix Post Office, or any post office for that matter, use their proper mailing address. It is expected that new employees learn every street/road in the area as well, as the division of each of these streets to a particular route (Three routes have Ferry Street or Road, three routes have Lake Street or Road). There will be some errors during this learning process. What slows this learning process and causes a greater delay of the mail, is when the residents use no address, a wrong address or use a street address when they receive their mail at a post office box. No address, or the wrong address means those sorting the mail are expected to know each family tree, i.e. which Smith belongs to this Smith family. Mail properly sorted is done by address; if the address is wrong the mail must be turned in to be resorted again.

Automation is in the near future (for mail forwarding, it is already here) it will be wise to start preparing for it. The automation for incoming mail will identify by address only (We no longer have names on our sorting cases. As a first step toward automation, if that address is not in the computer it will be relegated to hand processing, losing the cost and time advantages of automation. Today, if you have mail forwarded and you are receiving it using more than one address (or last name) you should make out a change of address card for each different name/address to insure the quickest possible service.

Most people don't worry about the address, as long as they receive their mail. Many never look closely at the way their mail is addressed. Postal employees seem to be the ones most aware of the errors.

A suggestion: for one month take a careful look at how the mail you receive is addressed. When you find an error please take steps to have it corrected. Many people receive important documents with improper addresses on them.

Many areas are already automated so it is a good idea to begin using the correct address when sending mail as well as for your return address.

SPORTS

Rayder baseball

Don Jess follows through on a pitch in the first game April 28 against Elk Rapids. Charlevoix fell behind in the first inning, then rallied, but ended up falling short by two runs 8-7.

Nick Himebauch swung just a shade low and fouled this pitch back. Himebauch and his Rayder teammates fell to Elk Rapids at home last Thursday.

Nick Himebauch (6) motions for Brandon Webb (5) to stay up rather than slide as Webb scores in a game against Elk Rapids.

SPORTS

Tennis team wins two matches

The Charlevoix High School Tennis team won two matches last week. Thursday, April 28 the Rayders traveled to Traverse City and beat Traverse City St. Francis 6-1. Friday, April 29 the Rayders stayed home and beat Boyne City 7-0.

Individual results for the two matches were as follows:

#1 singles: Jeff Joy lost 6-0, 6-2 in Traverse City and won 6-1, 6-1 against Boyne City.

#2 singles: Chris Pair won 6-0, 6-

2 in both matches.

#3 singles: Amy Freidinger won 6-0, 6-2 April 28 and 6-0, 6-1 April 29.

#4 singles: David Dobulis won 6-1, 6-0 April 28 and 6-0, 6-1 April 29.

#1 doubles: Tim Terry and Chris Matye won 7-5, 6-3 April 28 and 7-5, 6-0 April 29.

#2 doubles: Zach Patis and Richie LaVoie won 6-1, 6-2 April 28 and 6-2, 6-0 April 29.

#3 doubles: Shay Arnold and Brad Parsel won 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 April 28 and Matt Dietel and Parsel won 6-2, 6-0 April 29.

In exhibition play, Sara Warner, Jess Wood, Matt Norton, Tony Frederick, Sara Lundy, Traci Allison, Eric Anderson, James Conlan, Maro LaBlance and Lilly Pair all picked up wins.

Charlevoix is now 3-1 on the season. The Rayders' next match will be Thursday, May 5 at Grayling.

Softball team splits with Elk Rapids

Charlevoix's girls' softball team split a pair of close games with Elk Rapids Thursday, April 28. After giving up three runs in the final inning and losing the opening game.

6-5, the Rayders rallied late in the second game for a 5-4 win.

In the opening game, Charlevoix led 3-3 entering the final inning, but then the defense exploded and a few errors and three runs later the Rayders had lost 6-4.

Liz Grunch acquired the pitching loss despite striking out 11, while walking two and allowing only three hits. The Rayders mustered only four singles in the game.

In the second game, Angela Buday singled in the winning run in the fifth inning. Buday had three hits in the game. Liz Coen also had a triple.

The split left Charlevoix with a season record of 6-3 and a record of 3-1 in league play.

Mike Bush wins three medals

Mike Bush brought home three medals from the CHIP Relays in Mount Pleasant Saturday. Bush placed fourth in the 3200 meter run and was a member of the distance medley relay and 3200 meter relay teams which placed fifth. Matt Dickinson, Chris LeButt and Josh Dhaseler were the other members of the relay teams.

Travis Wood took the highest place (literally and figuratively) for the Rayders. Wood cleared the 13'6" mark in the pole vault to place second in the meet.

Sports Boosters will meet Friday

The Charlevoix High School Sports Boosters will have an informal meeting Friday, May 6 at 7:30 a.m. at the Flap Jack Family Restaurant. The public is invited. The Boosters are planning their annual banquet for senior athletes and their parents. The banquet will take place May 23 at the high school. The guest speaker will be Edgar Wilson, assistant basketball coach at Central Michigan University.

Apparently whatever sign the catcher flashed met with Don Jess' favor as he was smiling before throwing this pitch last week against Elk Rapids.

ORDER TO ANSWER

On March 10, 1994, an action was filed by the above named Plaintiff, against the above named Defendants, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to quiet title to real property situated in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix,
State of Michigan, more specifically identified as follows:

Commencing at a 1/2 inch rod at the northeast corner of Section 23, T34N, R8W; thence along the East line of said section South 00°40'13"
West 2653.39 feet to a one inch rod at the East quarter corner of said section; thence continuing along said East section line South
00°39'18" West 1508.17 feet
(recorded as 1507.40 feet) to a concrete monument recorded as being 80 feet Northwest of the center line of the former Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad right of way, as measured perpendicularly thereto;

thence South 32°26'44" West (recorded as being 32°44" deflection angle to the right from said section line) 756.76 feet to an iron stake on the Easterly extension of the Northerly line of Cherry Street; thence along the Easterly extension of the Northerly line of Cherry Street North 70°47'00" West 62.91 feet to the Southeast corner of the former Frank J. Brown property described in Liber 124, Page 220, Charlevoix County records; thence along the Southeasterly line of said Brown property South 19°11'38" West 39.88 feet, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing South 19°11'38" West 178.10 feet; thence along a curve to the left 239.01 feet (radius of said curve is 239.02 feet and the chord bears North 25°47'41" West 215.20 feet) to the Southerly line of Cherry Street; thence along the Southerly line of Cherry Street South 70°47'00" East 81.68 feet; thence along the Southerly line of an 80 foot diameter cut-de-sac on Cherry Street on the curve to the left 153.87 feet (radius is 40.00 feet and the chord bears North 88°58'24" East 75.08 feet) to a point of beginning; being a part of Government

Lot 4, Section 23, and part of Government Lot 1, Section 26, all in T34N, R8W. The above bearings are in relationship to the Michigan
Coordinate system, Central Zone
(2112); the above distances are grid distances. NOTE: Because of an error by the original government surveyor, C.W. Catchcat, Deputy Surveyor of the United States of America, part of Sections 23 and 26 overlap one another. Thus, described land can either be perceived as a part of Government Lot 4 of Section 23 or part of Government Lot 1 of Section 26, both of which are in T34N, R8W. A decision properly identifying the extensive overlap of the two sections has never been rendered.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants FRANK J. BROWN and wife, as above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, and any other parties claiming interest, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before:

June 1, 1994.

Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment be default against Defendants for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on:

June 13, 1994 at 2:15 p.m.

in the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

Date signed: 4-12-94.

use writing skills in all subjects, not just English or writing classes. Teachers spent in-service time learning how to utilize the system.

Elementary school teacher Jeanne Seymour reported that students will be better prepared to take upcoming MEAP tests. Teachers were trained on methods of preparing students for the test.

During the board work session, discussion ensued over the procedure to schedule school team practices on snow days. Czerkes questioned the policy that middle school practices are cancelled on snow days, yet high school practices are often held even though school is cancelled. He maintained that the safety of elementary school and middle school students was just as important as the safety of high school students.

Board member Joan Buday said no students would be forced to attend practices on snow days. Students able to attend practice would be free to do so. Students living in areas where getting to school would be difficult wouldn't be expected to attend practice.

The senior prom is scheduled to take place May 28 at the Hilton Shanty Creek resort.

Helicopter rescues chilly fisherman

Three fishermen were rescued Saturday on the Lake Michigan shoreline near Bay Shore after a large wave swamped their 16-foot boat and tossed one of the fishermen into the water.

David Bush, 42, of Perry was thrown into the water by a large wave shortly before 4 p.m. April 30. At the time the boat was about a-quarter-mile off shore. Two other fishermen, Craig Young and Rex Rutherford of Lansing, remained in the boat, but were unable to get to Bush. The wind blew the boat ashore where Rutherford and Young were able to bail it out. They then went back out to Bush and were able to get him into the boat.

After retrieving Bush, the fishermen brought the boat back to the beach and contacted the Emmet County Sheriff's Department. The Emmet County Sheriff's Department contacted the U.S. Coast Guard Air Rescue Station in Traverse City and a helicopter was dispatched.

The boat was beached on a portion of the beach which was difficult to access with vehicles by land. The helicopter dropped a swimmer into the water who assisted Bush into a lift basket. Bush was carried up to U.S. 31 where he was transferred to an ambulance and taken to Northern Michigan Hospital. At the hospital, he was treated for hypothermia and released. Young and Rutherford were able to walk to safety.

Other agencies assisting in the rescue were: Resort-Bear Creek Fire and Rescue; Life Link; Charlevoix Coast Guard Lifeboat Station; the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department; and the Charlevoix City Police Department.

The paint's provided: now all we need is people to use it

Seniors and handicapped throughout Emmet and Charlevoix counties will benefit on June 11, not only from the generosity of area businesses, service clubs and individuals during the 2nd Annual Paint Blitz, but from paint suppliers from outside the area.

"We are very excited about the participation we are receiving," says Hal Johnson, Emmet County Chairperson for the event. "Chris Smrekar at the Paint Center is a terrific example of one of our area business people taking an idea and running with it." Smrekar read the article last month in the News-Review and contacted his paint suppliers and vendors.

After hearing about the project from Smrekar, Devoe

Raynolds Company, Benjamin Moore and Pittsburg Paint all donated large quantities of paint to be used during the Paint Blitz. Elder & Jenks, another vendor of Smrekar's, is donating brushes and rollers.

Kathy Johnson, Chairperson for the Charlevoix County Paint Blitz, said "We are very pleased with the participation we are getting from area service groups and businesses. We have about 10 paint crews already set for the two counties; but we have fourteen homes that have applied and the applications for help are still coming in."

Anyone interested in helping to paint a house is urged to call either Hal or Kathy Johnson at 582-2715.

Chris Smrekar (right), owner of The Paint Center in Petoskey and Charlevoix, presents Hal Johnson, Chairperson for the Emmet and Charlevoix County Paint Blitz with more than 60 gallons of paint along with brushes and rollers which will be used during the upcoming Paint Blitz.

County says no more DDA capture of county taxes

By Laurie Lounsbury

The City of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority will have to fight for Charlevoix County tax dollars instead of capturing them without a fuss. County Commissioner Chairman Don Smith got the support of all but one county commissioner in a vote to stop funding the Charlevoix DDA. Commissioner Richie Gillespie cast the only dissenting vote. Gillespie represents the City of Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

Smith said the board is acting on its legal rights provided in Public Act 323, which was part of Proposal A - a property tax reform proposal adopted by state voters in March. The act says any taxing municipality may exempt itself from DDA funding as long as it acts within 60 days of a DDA public hearing. The Charlevoix DDA recently had a public hearing in February to amend their plan and extend the life of the DDA to the year 2013.

Several DDA supporters attended the county board of commissioners' meeting to see how the board as a whole would vote on the resolution. Bill Supernaw, a member of the Charlevoix DDA board, talked about all of the things the DDA does for the downtown area that benefit people living in the surrounding townships. "What is the county going to do with the captured millage that would have gone to the DDA?" Supernaw asked Smith. "Tell me what you need the money for, don't just take it away from the DDA. Give me a reason, and make it a good one." Supernaw was referring to the approximately $60,000 the DDA would capture from four allocated millages - Grandvue, the Transit Authority, 911 and the schools. "I think you're just out to get the DDA," Supernaw added.

Smith acknowledged in an interview later that he is opposed not only to losing $60,000 in county tax dollars but he's opposed to the DDA itself. "It's time to take action. We've been pushed around too long. If we don't, it (the DDA) will become a permanent thing. An ongoing DDA is illegal in my opinion," Smith said.

Smith cited the fact that in order to legally form a downtown development authority, a city must meet four qualifications: The governing body must determine: that property values are deteriorating; there is a need to increase property value; there is a need to eliminate the causes of that deterioration; and a need to promote economic growth. Smith maintains the Charlevoix DDA is illegal because property values were growing at the time the DDA was formed and have continued to increase to this day. "The only economic justification the DDA gives is the winter of '84-'82 when 19 businesses on Bridge Street were closed, and 41 were open," Smith said.

When the roll call vote was taken, Commissioners Phil Johnson, Carl Price, and Howard Hosier voted to support the resolution but also said that in general they are in favor of DDAs. "I'm in favor of DDAs, if they follow the guidelines," Hosier said after he cast his vote. Johnson said he supported the resolution because the DDA wanted to keep allocated county millage or return it to the county only if the county would extend their agreement to the year 2013. "I think that's getting downright greedy," Johnson said.

Smith said in a later interview that a lawsuit isn't necessarily in the offing. "The whole dispute could be negotiated, but not based on the two proposals that we already rejected," Smith said. He also said that Pete Patterson, one of the county's attorneys, recommended that the county sue the DDA for all of the funds captured since the creation of the DDA, if they should decide to sue. "That amounts to about a quarter of a million dollars," Smith said.

Castle fund drive in its final days

$70,000
still needed
by Sunday

By L. Scott Swanson

The drive to raise money for a downpayment on Castle Farms is in its final days. Organizers of the funding campaign need to raise $250,000 by Sunday. As of Monday, they were $74,000 short of that goal, but money was coming in rapidly.

"It's going to be close," said Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H President Chuck McDermott.

The Friends of 4-H are attempting to purchase Castle Farms on a land contract and turn the facility into a community center. The center's focus would be youth activities, but it would also be available for wedding receptions, an art festival, family concerts and other events.

For the past several years, Castle Farms has been owned by the Reible family. It is best known as the site of large concerts, but has also been the site of the Castle Farms Arts Festival. This past spring the Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H reached an agreement with the Reible family to purchase Castle Farms for $1.1 million on a land contract. The first payment on that land contract, $250,000, is due this Sunday. Plans call for Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H to take over the facility after making that payment.

Once they are in the facility, the group plans to operate the facility as a self-supporting entity. Charlevoix County Friends of 4-H would host family-oriented concerts to generate revenue to pay off the remainder of the land contract and provide operational funding.

Facilities within the complex would eventually include: a darkroom; observatory; planetarium; restaurant quality kitchen; science and environmental lab; artist studio; soccer field; baseball diamond; archery range; picnic area; and summer camp.

As of Monday afternoon, McDermott said the funding campaign had $151,308 in cash and written pledges and another $25,000 in verbal pledges. He said all of that money came from donations by local individuals.

Back to the basics

A Charlevoix fourth grade class taught by Ann Kelly took a step back in time last Friday morning by spending a day in a one-room school of the past. Class was held at the Barnard Grange with the children and teachers dressed in period costume and studying according to the educational format of the early 1900s. Kelly was assisted by Dee Ann Rothenberger, a retired East Jordan teacher who had developed a similar one-room school day while teaching in East Jordan.

Petition drive initiated to repeal teacher tenure

By L. Scott Swanson

A petition to repeal the Michigan teacher tenure act is circulating in Charlevoix and throughout the state. If the drive is successful, Michigan voters could have an opportunity at the November election to decide whether teacher tenure should be continued or repealed.

The Michigan teacher law, which was adopted in 1937 and amended several times since, says that once a teacher completes a probationary period the teacher "shall be employed continuously" by the school district and not dismissed or demoted except under circumstances specified in the act. Supporters of teacher tenure contend that it protects teachers from being fired without just cause. Opponents of teacher tenure contend that no other professionals have similar protection and that teacher tenure protects bad teachers by making it possible to fire them only after a lengthy and costly process.

In Charlevoix, petitions to repeal the law are being circulated by Dr. Jim Stewart. Stewart read about the petition drive in the April 26 edition of the Detroit Free Press. The article contained the name and phone number of Alice Stimpson, one of three women who started the drive. Stewart called Stimpson and she sent him petitions and information the next day. In about a week, Stewart has collected more than 100 signatures. He said collecting the signatures hasn't been at all difficult. Of the people he's talked to, only two refused to sign.

Stewart said he became interested in and opposed to tenure when one of his children had a problem with a Charlevoix teacher. He said that when he and his wife attempted to address the problem, they were "instantly met with the fact that the teacher had tenure and the (teachers') union immediately came to his (the teacher's) defense."

Placing the issue of tenure repeal on the state ballot will require the collection of at least 205,166 valid signatures of state voters by June 1. Organizers of the petition drive want to collect at least 400,000 signatures. Stewart is optimistic about the drive's chances for success. "I think it's going to be on the ballot in November and I think it will be approved overwhelmingly," he said.

Jan Tice of Ann Arbor is one of the three women who have initiated the petition drive. Petition organizers have adopted the acronym PART (Parents' Alliance to Repeal Tenure). In a telephone conversation with the Courier May 9, she said that since the Free Press article appeared April 26, the group began getting calls that day. She said people from more than 40 percent of Michigan counties contacted the group right away. Referring to a map, Tice said Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Grand Traverse are among the counties from which people have contacted PART to request petitions. Tice noted that something she's found astounding is that people who were recently sent several petitions are now calling back in need of additional petitions.

The Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB) and the Michigan Chamber of Commerce are among the organizations supporting the tenure repeal effort. Tice said the MASB has made petitions available in all Michigan counties.

Tice recalls one particular incident that triggered her interest in repealing teacher tenure. She said she was a Cub Scout Den Mother when her son was in second grade. One Saturday, her son and the other boys in the Den were at her home working on a project. She said it should have been a fun thing, but all the boys talked about was how afraid they were of one particular

Letters to the editor

Congress shouldn't restrict free speech

Editor,
Congress is trying to pass the Fairness in Broadcasting Act to regulate the opinions and commentaries of radio and television broadcasters. But rather than simply having the public's best interest in mind, politicians in Washington are simply trying to quiet the broadcast personalities who have been challenging their political policies.

The Fairness in Broadcasting Act would force stations to give free, equal time to the opposing view of any issue discussed on the air.

It is clear that Congress is trying to keep shows like Rush Limbaugh off the air because of the incredible influence conservative commentators like Rush have had on public opinion and action.

Since Rush's popularity has skyrocketed, so have phone calls and letters to Congress challenging the actions taken by our elected leaders in Washington. Constituents no longer simply need to take a politician's word for something because they are able to hear another side and make judgments for themselves.

In the face of more opposition than they are used to, Congress is trying to take action. If they can't legally keep Rush and other conservatives off the air, they'll regulate them out of business.

The Fairness Doctrine was tried in the 1960s under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, admittedly for the purpose of keeping their opponents from expressing their views.

While personalities such as Rush Limbaugh are controversial, and many Americans don't agree with his opinions, the vast number of news and entertainment sources available, both liberal and conservative, allow audience members to choose programming that fits their tastes. They are not forced to listen to Rush Limbaugh or any other political commentator. With the many programs available, audience members who do not agree with Rush can easily tune in to a more liberal station.

If the liberals pushing the Fairness in Broadcasting Act are tired of the opposition conservative commentators like Rush Limbaugh are stirring up, then they should look at and reevaluate their policies rather than simply ignoring America's First Amendment right to a free press.

Sincerely,
Mr. Thomas W. Browe

Charlevoix Personified

A look at some of the people who make Charlevoix what it is.

Bill McKay

Bill McKay is a man of many talents, capable of running a bank's bookkeeping department and selling real estate. But McKay says he's happiest when he's helping people and working on cars. McKay is the head of the service department at the Pat McKeown Ford Dealership.

McKay came to Charlevoix in 1976, when he went to work at Erber Auto, which is now Pat McKeown Ford. After honing his skills as a mechanic, McKay decided to put his accounting degree to work, so he went to work at the Charlevoix County State Bank. From there he tried his hand in real estate with Ski and Shore. After seven years in real estate he decided to go back to the work that pleased him the most, so he returned to the service department at McKeown's. McKay has a gift when it comes to diagnosing car problems. Whatever hum, rattle or hiss a car might make, McKay can usually translate the sound to the mechanical problem causing it. "I like what I'm doing now the best," McKay said, adding, "I'm good at it."

When McKay leaves the dealership, he goes home to work on engines of another era. He enjoys working on classic cars in the evenings. Classic cars are never inanimate objects to McKay. "She's running a little rough," McKay might say of a car.

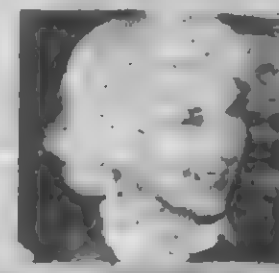

The machine that holds the closest spot to McKay's heart is his motorcycle. He and his wife Marion spend long vacations touring the countryside on McKay's road bike. The McKays rode 1,500 miles up to Nova Scotia on the Honda CB 1000 last fall. They have another long trip out west planned for this fall.

Best Part of the Job: "Being able to help people. I can solve their problems."

EDITH GILBERT

When I asked Brenda Teague what motivated her to buy the "Green" Building on Bridge Street next to Murdock's Fudge Shop, her answer was, "I visited my parents, who moved up here seven years ago, and fell in love with the area."

"My brother, Scott Teague, also lives up here. He owns the Amish Way Antiques place in Petoskey."

Teague may have fallen in love with the area, but a lot of people have already fallen in love with her new shop, Maison and Jardin, which as you know means Home and Garden in French, s'il vous plait. The first thing Teague did was paint the trim of the 1885 building in the Victorian manner, much as the "Painted Ladies," a major tourist attraction in San Francisco. At the entrance she placed two Juniper spiral topiary trees that lure you into the unique shop, filled with Home and Garden accessories.

Teague has a trained eye for the unusual. She recently sold her successful business in Birmingham where she had a large following. Many of her down state clients are delighted to know that she has opened a shop "up north" where a large portion of them own second homes.

Maison and Jardin is filled with a tempting mixture of out of the ordinary, je ne sais quois items. You'll find a variety of both contemporary and country French iron furniture for indoors and out. You'll also find French cedarwood soaps, goat-skin gardening gloves, long stemmed potted live orchids, graceful iron candleholders and 18th Century garden fragments, as well as mud cloth pillows and antique samplers.

Teague loves the combination of iron and stone which she claims are suitable in any period. On her walls are antique oars as well as a collection of large gourd bowls and a Gothic stained glass window.

Born and raised in Royal Oak, Teague's plans are to remodel the second story of this old building into a permanent residence with a marine view of Round Lake. Her college-age son and daughter will visit during the summer to look for Petoskey stones and do a little fly fishing, among other things.

Maison and Jardin is a welcome addition to the fine shops that have sprung up lately on Bridge Street, and the French theme fits in nicely with the French name of Charlevoix, n'est ce pas?

Charlevoix Jaycees grateful for fundraising help

Editor,

On Wednesday night April 20, the Charlevoix Jaycees held their first fund-raising event. With overwhelming support from the community and a lot of hard work this event was a tremendous success.

The Charlevoix Jaycees took over The Villager and became waiters, waitresses and bartenders with tips received going to Camp Quality. We had a lot of fun and there are many people who helped make the night such a success.

We wish to thank the many businesses and business people who made the event a success.

We really appreciate the help and support we received from everyone. The money we raised will go to camp Quality, a camp for children in Charlevoix County who have cancer. The camp is run on a volunteer basis and the operating costs are very high. We were happy to see many Camp Quality Volunteers at The Villager - we think what you do is great! Thanks again to everyone!

Sincerely,
Linda Joy, Charlevoix Jaycees

Harsha House Historical Museum to open May 16

The local Harsha House Museum on State Street will be open 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 16 through May 20 to observe Michigan Week.

Charlevoix area citizens are invited to come in and see some of Charlevoix's history. The Harsha House Museum is a State Historic Site and only artifacts from Charlevoix and the area are displayed there. Hundreds of Bob Miles photos, a newly arranged museum area, Victorian Parlor and Reception Room are on display. The Parlor now has furniture once belonging to Ann Harsha which has been recently donated by a Harsha family member.

An Earl Young film taken during the 1930s will be shown nightly from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The Harsha House is located on State Street, next to the Congregational Church. Harsha House is owned and operated by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

In addition to serving as a museum, it also serves as a reference center for historical research involving the Charlevoix area.

Group attempts to form charter school in Charlevoix

By L. Scott Swanson

A group of Charlevoix people is working toward founding a charter school system called the Charlevoix Public Academy for Science and Arts to work in collaboration with public schools. The school would be for middle and high school students. The group will host a meeting at 7:30 p.m. May 12 in the dining room at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. All interested members of the public are invited to attend and participate in the meeting.

An information release sent to local newspapers May 9 said the Charlevoix Public Academy for Science and Arts will "promote work ethics towards individual and team attainments in the fields of communications, mathematics, science and technology." It also said that "students' families will be expected to actively participate in the governance of the school, and, in activities, both in the school and in other settings which support the educational process."

The school would be open to all middle and high school students within the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

As a charter school organized in accord with Michigan law, the academy would qualify for state financial aid. The academy does not intend to charge any additional tuition fees.

Kay Chase, one of the organizers of the group, says they want to make sure people realize this is not an elitist group. The academy will not be a private school. It will be a public school.

According to the information release, "The group strongly believes that the establishment of such a school will greatly enhance the educational opportunities offered in the area. It is their vision that such a school can be established and operated on a collaborative basis with the existing public schools and that activities, classes, and services can be shared between the schools so that public educational resources within our communities can be maximized."

Tuesday morning, Chase said that later this week a couple of group members were scheduled to meet with Dr. Roberta Jackson, Charlevoix School Superintendent. Chase said that although the group hasn't had any formal feedback from the public school system, they had touched base with some faculty and administrative people.

A vision statement which was faxed with the information release said the majority of the elected membership of the School Board of the Charlevoix Public Academy for Science and Arts will consist of parents but the board will also include members elected by the faculty and by the student body.

Chase said that ideally the academy would have between 50 and 100 students. Organizers would like to have the academy running by September, but Chase said the beginning of second semester in January might be a more realistic timetable.

Artists Osborne and Colburn to participate in joint exhibit

Betty Ann Osborne and Hazel Colburn, local artists, will hold a joint exhibition May 15 through May 27 at the Jordan River Arts Center in East Jordan.

Osborne, a traditional oil painter, focuses on calling the viewer's attention to the beauty in ordinary objects. Working from her own collection of china, glass, and antique linens she creates serene still life compositions that are rich in color and detail.

Colburn works in watercolor, pen and ink, and colored pencil to capture the remnants of past generations in the area. Working from used to have "jewelry piles" where non-working machinery, tools, and other items were relegated until some other use could be found for parts of them.

obituaries

Bryan K. Roloff

Bryan K. Roloff, 30, of Charlevoix, died May 6, 1994, at home.

His funeral was Monday, May 9, at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Michael Dennis of the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Roloff was born Aug. 3, 1963, in Saginaw, the son of William J. and Shirley J. (Sudreth) Roloff.

He had lived in Charlevoix for the last 20 years, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981.

Mr. Roloff loved music, art and people. He was a rock and roll musician and won the 1993 WKLT Hot Licks Guitar Contest.

He worked as a carpenter in the Charlevoix area.

Survivors include his parents, William J. and Shirley J. Roloff of Charlevoix; two brothers, Bill Roloff and his wife, Jane, and Bob Roloff and his wife, Audrey, all of Charlevoix; two sisters, Beth Anne Roloff and Becky Roloff, both of Charlevoix; his girlfriend, Colleen Sell, of Charlevoix; three nieces, Jamie, Jodie and Andrea; and two nephews, Bobby and Billie.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Hospice. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where visitation was held Sunday evening.

Frances Joseph Seidel

Francis Joseph Seidel, 78, of Plant City, Fla., and Charlevoix, died May 5, 1994, at his home in Plant City, Fla.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, May 11, at St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis of St. Mary Church will officiate. Burial will be in Barnard Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Seidel was born March 26, 1916, in Bodenbach, Austria, Hungary, the son of Joseph and Ferdinando (Musi) Seidel. He moved to the United States in 1936.

On May 26, 1943, he married Isabelle Dohm at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., and she survives.

Mr. Seidel was a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army, retiring in 1976 after more than 30 years of service.

He graduated from Central Michigan University in 1969.

In 1954, he moved to Charlevoix, and had spent winters in Plant City, Fla. since 1984.

He was a member of VFW Post No. 1153, American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, and St. Mary Catholic Church, all in Charlevoix.

Survivors include his wife, Isabelle, of Charlevoix and Plant City, Fla.; a son and daughter-in-law, Joseph and Gail Seidel of Charlevoix; grandson, Joseph Seidel, of Charlevoix; granddaughter, Amanda Seidel, of Charlevoix; and a sister, Julia Sheridan, of San Diego, Calif.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital, Lakeshore Drive, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720, or to the Hospice of Hillsborough, 3010 Azelee St., Tampa, Fla. 33609.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

This week's annular eclipse brought back memories of one that I saw when we lived down south. The newscasts had "prepared" us for several days prior to its coming. But nothing was quite like the actual event.

It was a quiet afternoon and the phones were blessedly quiet. It was not a dramatic change. Yet you could most definitely sense something was up. The sky was still a brilliant blue. But the light was different. Is it possible for light to be dark at the same time? That's how I remember it.

If the change in lighting wasn't enough, what had been a breezy morning suddenly became strangely still. The birds in our yard almost seemed bewildered by it all. One pair that had been busily rounding up worms for their young headed back to their nest acting like it was bedtime.

Everyone emphasized how important it was not to look directly at the sun. But at its peak, I couldn't resist doing something to see what was causing this midday darkness. I used a paper clip to punch a hole in a piece of mimeo paper and focused the "light" on another sheet of paper. For some reason or another, it reminded me of a cookie that someone had taken a bite out of. My fantasy burst when I realized what time it was. It was around three o'clock.

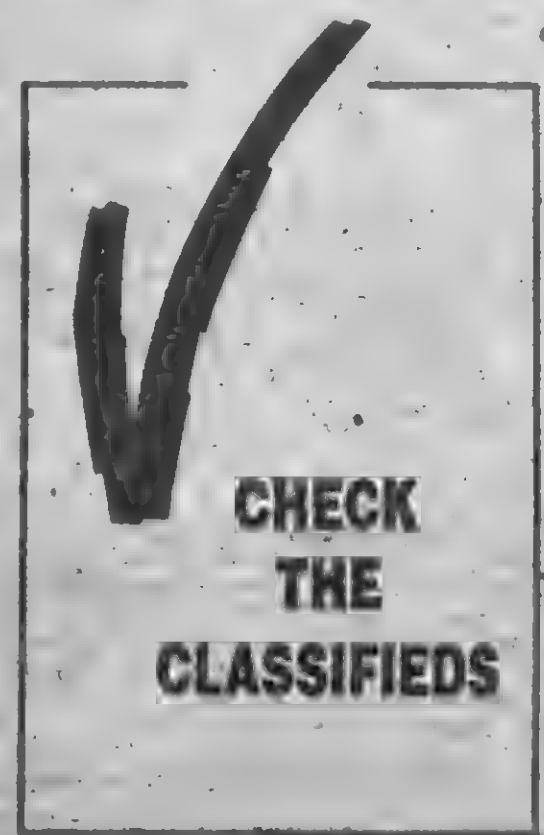

That triggered another set of emotions because I had been working on an Easter sermon that morning. It was a sermon on the death of Jesus and how it appeared that darkness covered the whole earth about "the third hour." Could this have been what the world was like the day Jesus died?

God has allowed us to learn literally millions of things about our world in the centuries that have followed. Yet even though our knowledge is so much greater, there are some things that will always stir up a real wonder in our souls every time we see them. A tree that has been dormant all winter long, looking almost skeleton like and forlorn, magically bursts into life with new leaves every spring. We know it's not magic. We know there are chemical processes and reactions involved. But it's still beautiful to see.

For nine months, a baby forms inside its mother's womb. A beating heart, flesh and bones, eyes and teeth, even fingers that reach out and touch are all there long before the child glimpses its world. We have gotten to where we can even tell whether it is a boy or a girl before birth. Yet nothing can adequately describe the wonder of holding your son or daughter in your arms for the very first time.

We have known the ravages of kin in our lives for an equally long time. We have felt its pain and fear for what seems like an eternity. Perhaps we have even heard about what God did that one "dark" day for us through the love of Jesus. But nothing compares to experiencing it personally. If you're curious about salvation, you don't have to be afraid to look God's way. All you have to do is ask.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Methodists celebrate 125 years with a fish fry

In the summer of 1867, the first class on the Charlevoix Circuit of the United Methodist Church was organized at A.D. Brady's in the town of Marion. In the fall of that year, Charlevoix was named head of the Methodist circuit and the first preacher was appointed. By January 1868, a class was founded in the village with 17 members.

According to the "Sentinel" in July of 1874 the following was stated. "A project is in progress for the erection of a Methodist Church edifice in Charlevoix, which, starting out under favorable auspices, bids fair to be successful. The little germ planted by The Ladies Aid Society, although having yet yielded no great pecuniary results, has given the society a starting point, from which has already emanated definite plans and a determination to carry them to a successful issue. The design is to build a wooden structure, of a novel and unique style of architecture, 32 x 70 feet on the ground, with a spire on one corner 100 feet high. The estimated cost of the building will be $4,000, of which $800 is already subscribed. Work will be commenced soon on the foundation and basement, and will continue as long as the means hold out. The site proposed is the lot on State Street lately purchased by the Ladies Aid Society." The cornerstone was laid August 12, 1874.

On Feb. 17, 1879, after a long time of patient toil and weary waiting, the building was erected. Extensive remodeling was done to the interior in 1959 and complete new entry way was built on the front of the church in 1972. The church is currently looking at plans to add on a new fellowship and educational wing.

Says current pastor, Dale Ostema, "For more than 125 years, there has been a Methodist presence in this area. God has done great things through His people here and will continue to in the days ahead."

In celebration of the 125 years of ministry to the Charlevoix community, the church is hosting "On Old-Fashioned Fish Fry" in the tradition of Mrs. Hulda Cross's fish dinners of the past: Fish/Chips, slaw, carrot salad, rolls, beverage and lemon meringue pie. The dinner will be held in the Church Fellowship Hall, Friday, May 13, 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Cost is $6 or $3 for children under 12 years.

St. Mary's youth to receive first communion

The parishioners who will be making their first Communion in St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix, on Sunday, May 15th, at the ten o'clock Mass are:

Kyle Borths, son of Robert and Cooky Borths; Timothy Cross, son of Larry and Cathy Cross; Brian Cunningham, son of Mitch and Connie Cunningham; Bryce Daly, son of Dennis and Suzette Daly; John DiMartino, son of Fred and Donna DiMartino; Lauren Eldredge, daughter of Douglas and Nancy Eldredge; Loretta Gilewicz, daughter of Karl and Carol Gilewicz; Rebecca Kanine, daughter of James and Jane Kanine; Samantha Kupka, daughter of Stan and Martha Kupka; Mandy Macks, daughter of David and Susan Macks; Alyssia McDonough, daughter of Shawn and Jean McDonough; Jimmy and Tara Marsh, children of James and Debra Marsh; Michael Todd Moore, son of Michael and Carolyn Moore; Bonnie Paschke, daughter of Toni Holtzman; Andrea Ruhlman, daughter of Barbara and Michael Ruhlman; Andrew Ross, son of James and Janis Ross; Joseph Sievertson, son of Roger and Maureen Sievertson; Andrew Wright, son of George and Michalene Wright; Rachel Wyniawsky, daughter of Richard and Donna Wyniawsky.

Love For Children visits area churches

This past Sunday, the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix hosted the Love For Children's (LFC) organization.

Special guest at the service was Randy Weiss, President of the Charlevoix LFC Board of Directors. Weiss shared with the congregation some of LFC's background and future goals. Tansley Stewart, the church's LFC contact person, was also available to discuss the volunteer program and recruit volunteers.

Love For Children is a pilot program in Charlevoix and a few other selected Great Lakes communities. The pilot program is funded by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Each local LFC affiliate, in cooperation with area Head Start and/or WIC officials, will initiate volunteer programs which best meet local needs and capabilities in helping area children.

Church volunteers who want to help children now have the opportunity to develop supportive relationships and greater levels of help through the LFC volunteer program.

LFC recruits, organizes and trains churches to provide volunteers for their neighbors in need. Operating as a ministry of World Vision, LFC matches church volunteers and resources with the unmet needs of Head Start/WIC children and their families.

The next LFC Sunday will be at the Charlevoix Congregational Church, May 15. Patti Ulrich is the LFC contact for that church. For more information, phone the LFC office at 547-1719.

St. Mary's to host mass of healing

There will be a "Mass of Healing" in St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix, on Saturday, May 14 at 4 p.m. This Liturgy will consist of a communal anointing of the sick and a celebration of the Eucharist. A social hour will follow in the parish center.

There will be no Saturday Vigil Mass at 5:30 p.m. on that day.

BUSINESS

Kilwin's of Charlevoix opens on a sweet note

Within minutes of Kilwin's Chocolates, Fudge and Ice Cream officially opening for business this weekend, in Charlevoix's former Wharfside Market building, Matt and Sheryl Seelye were serving ice cream cones and preparing gift boxes of chocolates for Mother's Day.

"We wanted to open quietly," Matt grinned. "Guess the word got around pretty quickly anyway."

Visions of Kilwin's handmade chocolates, the alluring aroma of chocolate, the tantalizing list of Kilwin's ice cream flavors, fill the long narrow confectionery store.

Kilwin's and their neighbor The North Seas Gallery have transformed the building at the edge of the park, overlooking Round Lake.

Two fudge tables fill Kilwin's Bridge Street front window. Long chocolate cases brimming with Kilwin's chocolates lead to the ice cream cases at the back of the store.

A rediscovered window opens over the park, bringing light into the store with its old fashioned high tin ceiling.

"The building is perfect for Kilwin's," Matt said. "Kilwin's is an old fashioned family confectionary store."

"And here we are, Charlevoix's corner candy shop in a great old fashioned building," he smiled.

As she finished filling a fast minute Mother's Day box of chocolates, Sheryl added, "People have been asking us, every day, when we would open. It's pretty nice to have that sort of welcome for a new business in town."

The only glitch to an otherwise perfect opening was that one large marble top for a fudge table arrived cracked in two.

"We'll be making fudge on the small marble table until the new four by five marble top arrives," Matt explained. That was something of a disappointment," he confessed.

Matt, who doubles as Director of Franchise Support for Kilwin's headquarters in Petoskey, said that bringing Kilwin's to Charlevoix has been a matter of timing and location.

"Kilwin's has wanted to come to Charlevoix for years. Luckily this building came along at the right time."

Daily operations of Kilwin's of Charlevoix will be overseen by Matt, with Sheryl, a mortgage loan officer with Old Kent Bank in Petoskey, pitching in on weekends and evenings.

Interior renovations had been a Kilwin's team effort with Kilwin's Vice President Don McCarty helping Matt hang wall paper and set up the interior design. Opening day, Lorene Rose, wife of Kilwin's President Wayne Rose, who is a merchandising consultant for Kilwin's, gave her time helping Matt and Sheryl serve customers and put the finishing touches on the store's decor.

Kilwin's Chocolates, Fudge and Ice Cream of Charlevoix is the 26th franchised Kilwin's. Since its foundation in 1946 in Petoskey, Kilwin's had become nationally known for its some 120 different handmade fine chocolates and its award winning private recipe ice cream.

According to Matt and Sheryl, one of the keys to Kilwin's success is their ability to create custom gifts for customers.

"We've got a large selection of boxed chocolates, but we just as often sell boxes filled entirely with customer's special favorites," Sheryl said.

"One Mother's Day box was all chocolate covered cherries. Kilwin's owners tell many stories of extravagant boxes of truffles, of diamond rings hidden in chocolates. Some customers put together amazing gifts," Matt noted.

Kilwin's will be open for business from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. six days a week and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays, until they expand their hours around Memorial Day.

KHQ purchased by MacDonald Broadcasting

By Laurie Lounsbury

KHQ's "Captain" Bill Vogel just got a new admiral. Taking over at the helm of the radio station is Trish MacDonald Garber of MacDonald Broadcasting. MacDonald Broadcasting purchased the station from out of state banks, where it had been in receivership. MacDonald has no plans to make significant changes at the station. "KHQ is a winning station. We're not planning to get in the way of that," Garber said. The music format will stay the same, while an effort will be made to keep the music consistent throughout all day parts. Vogel will continue his morning show, and afternoon disc jockey Rob Hazelton will stay in his time slot.

MacDonald Broadcasting also owns WLXT, formerly WMBN, in Petoskey. "We have the two most compatible adult contemporary stations joining forces," Garber said, adding that it should create a lot of synergy. She noted that one of the primary reasons for acquiring the station was the economy of scale that will come with operating two radio stations under one ownership.

One physical change in the works is that Garber plans to move KHQ's operations to Petoskey, where it will share space with WLXT.

Rayder boys' track team wins Kalkaska Invitational meet

Charlevoix's boys' track team won the Warren Converse Invitational track meet at Kalkaska Saturday. The Rayders accumulated 145 points, which was 48 better than second place Suttons Bay. Nine northern Michigan teams participated in the meet.

Travis Wood and Larry Skippergosh set the tone for the meet in the field events. Wood placed first in the pole vault, clearing 13 feet while Skippergosh placed first in the discus with a fling of 137-7 and took third in the shot put.

In the running events, the 3200 relay team of Matt Dickinson, Josh

Dhaseleer, Brian Martinus and Mike Bush took a first in 8:28.7. Chris LeButt took third and Scott Smith sixth in the 110 meter hurdles. Jerry Duhart placed first in the 100 meter dash in a time of 11.7. Mike Rostar took fifth in the 100. The Rayder 800 meter relay team of Rostar, Wood, Duhart and Seth Kilander placed first in a time of 1:35.5. Mike Bush took second and Matt Dickinson fourth in the 1600 meter run. Dhaseleer placed fifth in the 3200. In the 1600 meter relay, Wood, LeButt, Kilander and Duhart took third. Matt Miller tied for third in the high jump. Rostar placed second in the long jump. Skippergosh took third in the shot put while Geoff Sheldon placed fifth. In the 400 relay, Rostar, Kilander, Duhart and Marc Jacobs took first. In the 300 meter hurdles, Wood placed second, LeButt fourth and Smith sixth. Paul Henne took fourth in the 800. Kilander placed third in the 200.

For Charlevoix in the girls' meet: Amy Phillips placed fourth in the 3200. In the 1600 meter relay, Nicole Moore, Gretchen Scott, Lisa Hoadley and Liz Kelly placed second. In the 3200 meter relay Becca Chamberlain, Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Hoadley and Kelly placed second. In the 100 meter sprint Jessica VanGuilder placed second. In the 800 meter relay, Moore, Tiffany Palmer, Scott and VanGuilder placed second. In the 400 meter relay, Moore, Palmer, Scott and VanGuilder placed third. Moore took second in the 400 meter run. Palmer placed fourth and Sarah Fairbanks sixth in the 200 meter run.

The Charlevoix track teams will be at home Wednesday, May 11 with Traverse City St. Francis. Saturday, May 14 they will travel to Alma.

Clinic scheduled for soccer coaches

A beginning coaching clinic for soccer coaches will take place from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, May 14 at Charlevoix High School. The clinic offers certification for those who complete the eight hours of instruction. The instructor for the course is Mike Dennis, the Charlevoix High School varsity coach and AYSO Area Chief Coach. People attending should wear tennis shoes and bring a soccer ball. There is a $5 fee that will be collected upon registration to help pay for materials. Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For more information, call 547-4121 weekdays or 547-9765 in the evening.

Chris LeButt clears a hurdle in the 300 meter race last week in a triangular meet with Boyne City and Harbor Springs.

Jessica VanGuilder, a freshman, has been among the top sprinters on the Charlevoix girls' track team this season.

Softball team places second

A last inning rally fell just short for the Rayder girls' softball team in the finals of the Inland Lakes Tournament Saturday. Trailing 3-0 going into the last inning the Rayders scored twice and had two runners on base, but ran out of outs.

Charlevoix opened the tournament by thrashing Harbor Light Christian 7-0, then just got by Inland Lakes 8-7 in extra innings.

In game two against Inland Lakes, the Rayders trailed 7-5 in the final inning when Waja Wujcik tied the game with a single, then worked her way around to third base and stole home to send the game to extra innings. In the eighth inning Grunch walked with the bases loaded to force home Lisa Boss with the game winning run. Grunch got the pitching win.

striking out 10, walking three and allowing five hits. Christie Kaczynski had two hits for the Rayders.

Grunch got the loss in game three, striking out two, walking two and giving up four hits. Jenny Eveleigh had a two-run single in the seventh to draw the Rayders within a run.

The Rayders' next game will be Thursday at Boyne City.

Neither Harbor Springs nor Boyne City had anyone who could stay close to sophomore Liz Kelly in this middle distance race last week in Charlevoix.

A lifesaving ring from the Carl D. Bradley will come to its final resting place at the Beaver Island Marine Museum. Ed Lundy (center) found the life ring in 1958 near Torch Lake Village, where it washed ashore after the Bradley, an oar carrier, went down. Lundy hung on to it for ten years, then gave it to Lloyd Kirby (left) with the understanding that he would never sell it. When Kirby read last year's story in the Courier about the lifeboat of the Carl D. Bradley being donated to the Beaver Island Museum, he immediately knew where the life ring really belonged.

Last Friday Lundy, his son Phil, and Kirby met museum curator Bill McDonough (right) at the Beaver Island boat dock to present him with the life ring.

Melissa Jones stands and sings with her classmates during the one-room school day at the Barnard Grange. Jones was part of Ann Kelly's fourth grade class that stepped back in time for a day last week.

Names in Business

A look at some recent accomplishments and milestones involving people in the Charlevoix business community.

A Charlevoix jeweler won an award in the Michigan Jewelers Association's Sixth Annual Jewelry Design Contest. Cristina Mannino took second place in the student category for her creation of a ladies' gold, silver and pearl pin.

William C. Brodin of Prudential Insurance & Financial Services in Charlevoix has announced the addition of his new associate, Timothy M. Bruce of Professional Planning. Bruce is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and is pleased to relocate back to the area. They will specialize in Insurance and Financial Planning Services for Businesses and individuals. Their new office is located at 6775 US 31 South in Charlevoix.

Ron Phipps, Jerry Thayer, and Tom Berry of South Point Collision Repair, recently completed extensive training and became PPG certified refinishing technicians. This designation, along with South Point's computerized paint mixing system, which assures a perfect paint match, allows South Point to warranty paint refinishing for three years.

PPG awards this designation only to quality body repair facilities and South Point is one of two shops on this side of the state north of Traverse City with this designation.

South Point Collision Repair, is part of South Point Auto Sales and is located across from the airport in Charlevoix.

East Jordan murder under investigation

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is investigating the murder of an 81-year-old East Jordan man. Clark Lee Washburn was found dead in his trailer on Rogers Road Friday afternoon. He had been shot several times.

A sheriff's deputy was called to the home after a county transit driver became suspicious when Washburn did not answer the door. Washburn was found dead in the trailer. The sheriff's department was assisted at the scene by the Michigan State Police crime lab from Grayling. Monday, an autopsy of Washburn's body was performed at Blodgett Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Anyone observing any suspicious activity at the Washburn residence on Rogers Road between 3:30 p.m. Thursday, May 5 and 3:30 p.m., Friday, May 6 is asked to contact the Sheriff's department at 547-4461.

teacher. Later, she talked to a teen-age babysitter who told her that teacher had been a problem for years.

Tice said that with teacher tenure laws it costs school boards tens of thousands of dollars and takes years to get rid of bad teachers. Consequently, schools don't get rid of bad teachers. Instead, they either shift them around or move them to positions where they don't deal with kids. Then, they hire an additional teacher to fill the position the bad teacher occupied.

Rather than tenure, Tice feels teachers should be protected either by provisions negotiated into individual school contracts or by the same laws and court decisions regarding due process which protect everyone else.

"If you're a good teacher, you're not afraid of this," Tice said. "This is not out to do anything more than make it feasible to get rid of the really rotten apples."

Tom Sothard, a Charlevoix Middle School faculty member who is part of the local teachers' union contract negotiating team, said Tuesday morning he hasn't heard much about the petition drive.

Of the people initiating the drive, Sothard said, "I have a sense that they probably don't understand tenure." Sothard said the purpose of tenure is to protect the rights of teachers and to establish a due process.

Stewart said Charlevoix people who would like more information about the petition drive are welcome to call him during the evening at 547-5353.

Suspect arraigned in murder case

By L. Scott Swanson

On May 12, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and Deputy Roger Moses went to arrest Daniel Puroll of Boyne City on a charge of murdering an 81-year-old Wilson Township man. According to court records, an acquaintance of Puroll's informed police that Puroll had told him he had shot Clark Lee Washburn.

Lasater and Moses found Puroll, 28, at his mother's house on Korhase Road. When Lasater and Moses arrested Puroll, they found a loaded Ruger 357 magnum pistol beneath the front seat of his 1990 Mercury Topaz.

This past Monday morning Puroll was arraigned on charges of open murder, felony firearm use and carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle. 90th District Court Judge Harvey Varnum denied bond and Puroll currently is in the Charlevoix County jail awaiting trial. A preliminary examination has been set for May 26, but chances are that will be postponed.

The murder charge carries a maximum sentence of life in prison. Deputy Moses found Washburn's body at about 5 p.m. May 6 after being dispatched to the elderly man's trailer on Rogers Road when a county transit bus driver notified the sheriff's department that Washburn wouldn't answer the door.

A medical examiner, called to the scene, determined that Washburn died sometime around midnight May 5. An autopsy performed later at Blodgett Hospital in Grand Rapids revealed that Washburn had been shot five times in the right side of his face.

The weapon used in the murder was not the 357 caliber pistol taken from Puroll. The weapon used in Roger Angernuller (left) and Aaron Paschke (second from right) received the City of Charlevoix's Jack Mol Concerned Citizen Award during Monday evening's City Council meeting. The two boys were playing outdoors on Loeb Road Feb. 10 when they noticed a nearby house burning. They notified the occupants of the house and helped them to safety. Mayor Dave Novotny (second from left) and City Fire Chief Doug Carver (right) presented the awards.

City criticized for interfering with private enterprise

By L. Scott Swanson

Mayor Dave Novotny and the Charlevoix City Council received criticism Monday evening for their plan to give a piece of city property to the U.S. Coast Guard for Coast Guard housing. Charles Butcher, who owns three rental properties in Charlevoix complained that the city is putting the U.S. Government in competition with private landlords.

At an April 18 meeting the council voted to pursue transferring 8.2 acres of city owned property on M-66 to the Coast Guard as part of an effort to persuade the Coast Guard to continue to have a ship stationed in Charlevoix. Novotny said that in discussions, Coast Guard officials have indicated that one of the advantages other communities have over Charlevoix is the availability of more affordable housing.

The vote to pursue transferring the property passed 3-2 with council members Cheri Hoffman, Bruce Reid and Don Meggison voting in favor and Butch Russell and Jackie Cross voting opposed.

At Monday evening's meeting, Butcher said, "I agree with the Coast Guard Command that rents in this city are high. But so are the taxes, and electric and water/sewer services, all of which have been increased within the past year."

"There's no end to what bureaucrats can do with the taxpayers' money."

Charles Butcher, complaining that the city council is interfering with private enterprise.

Butcher said that the only way a landlord can cover increased costs is by rent increases. He added, "The solution to lower rents is not by putting the U.S. Government in competition with us. The solution is for the City to cut our costs."

Butcher also criticized a proposal by Novotny for the City to consider installing a gas dock on Round Lake. Butcher said that would put the city in competition with private businesses currently supplying gas to boaters.

"I said this is something we might have to take under study. I didn't say we were going to do it."

Mayor Dave Novotny, explaining that a municipal gas dock is something which has been brought up for discussion, not acted upon.

"My personal opinion is that our mayor, and possibly others, needs a few lessons in business economics. You might understand what it's all about if you had a business of your own. There's no end to what bureaucrats can do with the taxpayers' money."

Novotny said the proposal for a City gas dock is only something which has been raised as a possibility in response to the possibility that Bellinger-Marine Service may be sold and consequently no longer sell gas.

"I said this is something we might have to take under study. I didn't say we were going to do it," Novotny explained.

Mel Renaud, who owns a marine service, said he would like to see the city give free enterprise a chance to handle boaters' fueling needs and if that doesn't work out, then consider a municipal gas dock.

In other matters the council: *Directed City Manager Mike Wiesner and City Attorney Jim Young to begin compiling figures to help the council in considering the best form of management at the municipal airport. Currently, the airport contracts out the management of the airport.

*Approved rezoning a vacant lot on East Dixon Street to allow for construction of a duplex.

*Approved a request from Bay Breeze Charters to have a floating ticket office in the slip with the Appledore.

Not much competition for council seats

There will be little competition for city council seats in this year's election. Mayor Dave Novotny and three of the six council members are up for election, but the only competition will be in the second ward where Gabe Campbell is challenging incumbent Ted Feller.

Novotny, a two-term incumbent, is the only candidate who filed by the May 10 deadline for mayor. Incumbent first ward councilman Don Meggison is unopposed as is incumbent third ward councilman Jackie Cross.

The primary election will take place Aug. 2.

The murder is a 22 caliber Marlin rifle which is still missing. Ironically, Washburn purchased the rifle at a Boyne City store less than 24 hours before he was shot with it. Police found the box-the rifle came in at Washburn's residence. They also found a box of 22 shells on the kitchen table. Twelve shells were missing from the box.

Charlevoix County Assistant Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur said Puroll, when questioned by police, admitted being at Washburn's home during the evening of May 5, but said he left well before midnight.

Two other people placed Puroll at Washburn's home near midnight. One of Washburn's neighbors saw a logging truck Puroll drives at the house at about 11:20 p.m. Sometime after midnight, Puroll telephoned a man acquainted with both Puroll and Washburn. The man said Puroll called from Washburn's house and he could hear Washburn in the background.

Kur said police believe Puroll apparently became acquainted with Washburn about a month before the murder.

Charlevoix recognized as a "Tree City, U.S.A." for community's appreciation of trees

Charlevoix has once again been designated a Tree City U.S.A. by the National Arbor Society in recognition of the City's ongoing efforts to utilize trees in beautifying the community. Boy Scouts presented the city council with a flag Monday evening while Bern Cannan (front center) of the City Shade Tree Commission presented a plaque.

Charlevoix High School physical education students have been participating in step aerobics at the Charlevoix Fitness Center. The aerobics are part of an effort to broaden the students' concept of physical education.

High School students try step aerobics

High school physical education teacher Brian Certa wants his students to be exposed to all sorts of physical activities. To that end, he's been taking his P.E. classes to Candy Smith's step aerobics classes at the Charlevoix Fitness Center. "I try to teach them fitness and recreation skills for life. Things that have life applications," Certa said.

Certa reported the students are enjoying the step aerobics classes. "They like it a lot better than the jog down here from the high school," he said.

P.E. students will also do weight training, circuit training, team sports such as volleyball, softball, basketball, and floor hockey.

"I want them to know what opportunities exist in the community for all these sports," Certa said.

Petunia planting: the beds are being readied for May 26

Hard to believe, but Charlevoix's Operation Petunia is in its thirteenth year. People are invited to participate in this year's petunia planting beginning at 5 p.m. May 26. Volunteering to help is easy. Simply take to the streets and find one of the block captains who will be dressed in bright orange vests.

As any gardener will tell you, the key to growing things is good soil and this year the petunia beds should be in prime shape. Beds which have been disturbed by sidewalk construction will have new topsoil. All other beds will receive some of the prettiest compost you could ever hope to see courtesy of the city's composting program. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the agency sponsoring and coordinating the petunia planting, has purchased $3,100 worth of equipment to spread the compost on the beds each year. Due to salt contamination in the winter, a major portion of the soil has to be replaced each year.

The number of block captains will be doubled this year to provide better on-site planting management.

Karen Kelly LaVanway is coordinating the block captains.

After completing planting, planters should have their planting tickets validated by block captains. Validated tickets will be good for admission to the Petunia Picnic in East Park and also good for a two-piece candy sampler provided by Kilwin's of Charlevoix.

For additional information, contact KCB President Bruce MacArthur at 547-6906 or Operation Petunia Chairman Dale Boss at 547-6401.

Jo Cannan, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild Gift Shop manager, shows off the new hospital gift shop located in the new lobby.

Hospital's new gift shop opens

After being closed for nearly two years, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild Gift Shop has reopened in bright, spacious new quarters. The Gift Shop is a major fund-raising project of the Guild to provide funds for hospital equipment, building programs, and scholarships for area students in the medical field.

Jo Cannan, gift shop manager, says: "We are very proud of our new shop and we hope people will think of us when they need a gift, card or flowers." Many new items fill the shop, including gifts for children, men and women of all ages for all occasions. The public is invited to stop in and see the new shop from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The shop is also open two Sunday afternoons a month from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Shirley Koerber is gift shop buyer. She is assisted by children's buyers Sue Gettinger and Robyn Blosh.

The Gift Shop is located just inside the new main entrance with parking close by.

Letter carriers collect three tons of food

The National Association of Letter Carriers and the U.S. Post Office sponsored a food collection drive May 14 to benefit the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. Non-perishable food items were hung from mail boxes throughout the area and collected by letter carriers. A total of three tons of food was collected.

The United Way of Charlevoix and East Jordan coordinated the transfer of the food to the food pantry. The United Methodist men's group contributed the use of their van for the food delivery.

Food Pantry Coordinator Mary Helen Riggle said spring is a great time of year to have a benefit. "We always are in need of food now, when it is between the major holidays, our need is even greater." The Community Food Pantry is located at the First Congregational Church, 191 State Street.

Jordan River to undergo spring cleaning

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed, Inc. has announced the second annual "Clean Up of the Headwaters".

The Friends of the Jordan, in conjunction with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources "Adopt-A-Forest" program, will sponsor a trash pick-up through the road system of the Jordan River Forest on Saturday, May 28, from 9 a.m. until noon.

Individuals or groups wanting to participate should meet at the parking lot of the National Fish Hatchery located at the west end of Turner Road. Bring a trash bag and spend a few refreshing hours cleaning up the roadways through this beautiful forest.

obituaries

Harold James Miller

Harold James Miller, 50, of Charlevoix, died May 15, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, May 18, at the Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix. Pastor James Green will officiate, and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Miller was born Dec. 16, 1943, in Saginaw, the son of Louis M. and Agnes Mary (Prall) Miller. He was raised in Saginaw, and his family moved to Burt Lake in 1969. He made his home in Charlevoix for the last 20 years.

On Nov. 28, 1976, he married Sharon Diane Campbell, and she survives. Mr. Miller attended the Bergmann Center and the Charlevoix House.

He is survived by his wife,

Sharon D., of Charlevoix; his parents, Louis M. and Agnes Miller, of Burt Lake; two brothers, Donald Miller and his wife, Norma, of Hemlock, and Charles Miller of Saginaw; and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Sharon/Harold Miller Family Trust. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Richard Zipp

Richard Zipp, 74, of Bay Shore, died May 13, 1994, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

His funeral was Tuesday, May 17, at Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey. The Rev. Robert Paulman officiated. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

Mr. Zipp was born Dec. 31, 1919, in Petoskey; the son of Arthur and Bessie Mae (Tillotson)

Zipp. He grew up in Bay Shore and attended school in Petoskey where he graduated from Petoskey High School.

On Feb. 22, 1941, he married Dorothy Nelson in Petoskey, and she survives.

Mr. Zipp had resided in the Bay Shore area most of his life. He worked for Petoskey Portland Cement and then Penn Dixie Cement for more than 40 years, retiring in 1979.

Mr. Zipp collected bells and loved to hunt and fish. He enjoyed gardening and reading.

He was a member of the Bay Shore Presbyterian Church, the Barnard Grange, was active in Hayes Township and was a volunteer for the Low Vision group.

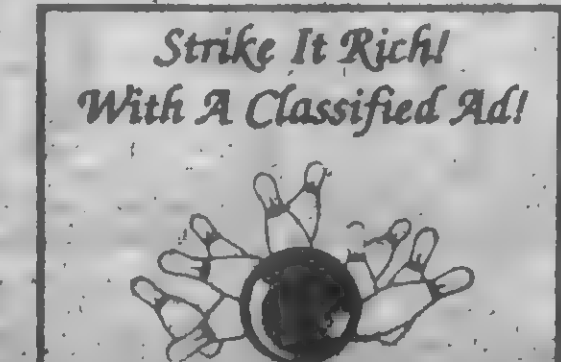

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; one daughter, Sandra Marquardt and her husband, Frank, of Charlevoix; two sons, Gary Zipp and his wife, Patricia, of East Jordan, and David Zipp and his wife, Sharon, of Charlevoix; nine grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; one brother, Lawrence Zipp, of Bay Shore; two sisters, Arthella Duffas of Petoskey, and Eileen Green of Bay Shore; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by three sisters.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Bay Shore Presbyterian Church or to the charity of choice. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Stone Funeral Home.

Francis B. Flanders, Chairman of CB North, has announced the appointment of Michael R. Hinkle as Credit Manager for the bank's loan department. Hinkle comes to CB North from Link Investment Service Inc., a brokerage service affiliated with City Bank & Trust Company in Jackson, Michigan. He began his banking career with City Bank & Trust Company in 1991 as a credit analyst. Hinkle is a native of Grass Lake, Michigan with a bachelor's degree in finance from Western Michigan University.

At a special meeting of Shareholders of CB North bank, the following members were nominated and re-elected to the Board of Directors: Brian D. Bell, Director, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, CB Financial Corporation; Douglas C. Bergmann; John W. Campbell; Francis B. Flanders, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer CB North; Walter J. Hufford; Richard J. Martin; Donald P. Southwick; Robert W. Winchester; Gilbert L. Ziegler.

Patrick M. Donnelly, plant manager at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant, recently completed the senior nuclear plant management course conducted by the National Academy for Nuclear Training. The five-week course is designed to enhance each participant's ability to identify, analyze and solve management challenges typical of those they encounter at nuclear plants.

Three weeks of the course were spent on classroom presentations and discussion at the national academy's Atlanta headquarters. During the remaining two weeks, participants observed operations at other nuclear plants.

Course attendees are nominated by member utilities based on their potential for assignment as plant managers or to other senior nuclear plant-management positions. The course is held four times a year, with nine to 10 participants in each session. Three senior managers from nuclear utilities serve as mentors for the course, one during each of the three weeks in Atlanta. International participants bring perspectives from their countries to the discussions.

The National Academy for Nuclear Training was formed in 1985 and operates under the auspices of the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations. The National Academy unifies the industry's commitment to high quality training and to enhancing the professionalism of nuclear plant personnel. Through a formal accreditation process, which includes an independent National Nuclear Accrediting Board, the National Academy verifies that training at nuclear plants meets established objectives. All U.S. nuclear utilities with operational plants are National Academy members and have their training programs accredited.

Ralph C. Burnett

Ralph C. Burnett, 76, of Charlevoix, died May 10, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

There will be no service. Interment will be in Southern Cemetery, Central Lake.

Mr. Burnett was born Nov. 28, 1917, in Bay Shore, the son of Charles and Leola (Denton) Burnett. He was raised in Bay Shore and attended Murray School.

On Sept. 26, 1936, he married Virginia Snyder, and she survives.

Mr. Burnett worked in the area as an operating engineer and was a life resident of this area.

He was a member of Local 324 Operating Engineers. He was also a life member of the F & AM Lodge No. 282 and the Order of the Eastern Star No. 72, both in Charlevoix.

Survivors include his wife, Virginia M. Burnett, of Charlevoix; two daughters, Betty David and her husband, Alvin, of Eagle, Mich., and Sally McGeorge of Grand Rapids; four grandchildren, Brenda and Brian David, both of Charlevoix, and Kenneth and Mark McGeorge, both of Covington, La.

Matthew R. Miller

Matthew R. Miller, 22, of Charlevoix, died May 10, 1994, at his home.

His funeral was Friday, May 13, at the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church officiated. Burial will be in Barnard Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Miller was born July 16, 1971, in Big Rapids, the son of Garrett C. and Barbara J. (Dohm) Miller. He was a life resident of the Charlevoix area. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1989, and attended North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

He also attended the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

Mr. Miller was an avid downhill skier. He was a ski instructor at the Northern Michigan Ski School and the Ski Academy at Boyne Mountain. He was an automobile enthusiast, and loved being with his friends and family.

Survivors include his parents, Garrett and Barb Miller, of Charlevoix; one brother, Garrett C. Miller II and his wife, LeBita, stationed on the USS Fahrron in Summerville, S.C.; two nephews, Garrett C. Miller III and Johnathan Miller; his paternal grandmother, Louise Magnuson, of Muskegon; maternal grandparents, Russell and Jean Dohm, of Charlevoix and Englewood, Fla.; and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the Michigan Diabetes Research and Training Center (MDRTC), University of Michigan.

Edna G. Reich

Edna G. Reich, 86, of Charlevoix, died May 14, 1994, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was held at 10 a.m. May 16, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema officiated. Burial will be in Donaldson Presbyterian Cemetery, Donaldson, Mich.

She was born April 23, 1908, in Parkville, the daughter of Charles G. and Olive White. She grew up in Parkville, and attended school in Donaldson and Sault Ste. Marie. She also attended business college in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Canada.

On Aug. 31, 1935, she married Clifford T. Reich in Pickford, and he survives.

Mrs. Reich was a member of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

Survivors include her husband, Clifford T., of Charlevoix; two daughters, Verna Darlene Troman of Alma, and Norma Mae Kuhl of Longmont, Colo.; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by one daughter, Olive Virgenc, in 1943.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Softball team sweeps East Jordan at home

It's not how many more runs you score, just as long as you score more runs than the other team. Charlevoix's girls' softball team took two games from East Jordan Monday. Both games went down to the wire and ended at 10-9 in favor of Charlevoix.

In the opening game, Liz Grunch got the pitching win allowing eight hits while striking out six and walking four. At the plate, she had a single and a triple. Aprille Pischner also had two singles in the game.

The game was a see-saw affair with Charlevoix finally scoring the winning run in the bottom of the last inning.

Game two was another game dominated by the offense. Grunch raised her season pitching record to 15-6 allowing six hits while striking out six and walking four. Sara Thorpe went on a hitting binge, picking up three hits to give her a total of four on the day. Grunch had two hits, including a double, and also ended up with a four-hit day. Pischner also added two hits in the second game.

Charlevoix trailed 8-3 entering the fifth inning, but then scored seven runs on seven hits to take a lead they never relinquished.

The two wins raised the Rayders' season record to 15-7 overall and 8-2 in conference play. Charlevoix will be at home Thursday against Traverse City St. Francis.

Baseball team splits

After losing to East Jordan 5-3 in game one, Charlevoix rallied to win game two by the same score Monday.

In the opening game, Charlevoix wasted a three-hitter by Don Jess mustering only five hits themselves. The crucial blow of the game was a two-run homerun by East Jordan pitcher. In addition to giving up three hits, Jess struck out six and walked five. For Charlevoix, Justin Gengle homered while David Skeel had two hits.

In the second game, Brandon Webb threw a four-hitter and the Rayders capitalized. Josh Watrous had the key hit of the game, a two-run single in the fifth inning. Nick Himebauch and Josh Love each had two hits in the game.

The split leaves the Rayders with a season record of 7-10-1. They are 2-5 in league play. Charlevoix will host Traverse City St. Francis Thursday.

You make the call. Is Liz Coen out or safe on this play at first base? According to the umpire, she was out. Some Charlevoix fans in the bleachers behind first base saw it differently.

The object is to hit the ball, not to get hit by the ball. Finding this pitch just a bit close for comfort, Waja Wujcik leans out of the way against East Jordan Monday.

Tennis team takes second in conference tournament

Charlevoix's high school tennis team placed second among six teams at the conference tournament at Boyne Mountain, May 13.

The Rayders totaled 12 1/2 points which was three less than first place Whittemore-Preseot and one better than third place Harbor Springs.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen was pleased with the way his team played.

"I was really happy because everybody scored for us. Everybody contributed which was very important." While all of the Rayders won at least one match, two doubles teams and one singles player won all three matches to take their divisions.

At #4 singles, David Dobulis won 6-1, 6-1; 3-6, 6-4, 6-4; and 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

In #1 doubles, Tim Terry and Chris Maye won 6-3, 6-4; 7-5, 6-3; 4-6, 6-3; 6-3.
